THE ROTUNDA

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VI | THE ROTUNDA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1925. | Number 1

FRESHMEN INVITED TO JOIN VARIOUS CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

The Rotunda, Literary Societies, Dramatic Club, Honor Society, Student Government and Y. W. C. A. Interest Freshmen.

The organizations in school do not belong to the upper classmen alone, they belong to every student and they are glad to have every student take part in them.

Sometimes Freshmen come to Farmville and have been here two or three terms before they know that The Rotunda is their paper and that the Staff is always glad for contributions. Vacancies are constantly occurring and every Freshman has an equal chance with the upper classman to fill the vacancy, but how can The Rotunda Staff know which one out of 450 who is gifted with literary ability unless you help us. If you are interested in school papers and would like at some time to become a member of the staff, give yourself a "try-out", that is write some article, theme or news event, sign your name and drop in the Rotunda box; your name will not be printed but it may give you an opportunity to become a member of the staff.

Do you know that there are six Literary Societies in school? The Arjus, Cunningham, Pierian, Athenian, and Sidney Ruffner. You are eligible to membership in any one of these. Keep your English work above average so that you may be recommended. Then there is little doubt but what you will be a member.

The Dramatic Club "try-outs" will take place very soon. Every new girl in school has a chance to become a member of the Dramatic Club if she has any talent. Don't be ashamed to try, be a good sport. If you are talented, the Dramatic Club needs you. If there are girls who can do better along the Dramatic line than you can, you have at least done your part.

Like the Dramatic Club, the Glee Club decides on its new members by a system of "try-outs". Now there are certainly quite a number of excellent voices to be found among 450 girls. So don't be timid, Mrs. King hasn't time to go round and try all of those 450 girls. If you know that you have a voice which is average or above, go and sign up to try out. Give the school the benefit of your voice.

Some girls have come here and stayed a year before they knew we had such a thing as an Honor Society. Did you know it? We have, and the name is Pi Kappa Omega. Any and every girl has a chance to become a member. However, the requirements are that a girl shall make an average of nearer "A" than "B" on all of her academic work, that she show an ability to lead and a spirit of service. Scholarship, leadership, character and service are the four things required, by studying you may make your scholarship average, take part in the

GOOD SPORTS IS URGED

All who heard Miss Graham's talk to the student body realized that it was worth our time to seriously consider the things she told us about our school activities and also the attitude we should have concerning sportsmanship at S. T. C.

We are all interested, or at least we should be interested, in athletics at S. T. C. Miss Graham told us how we would be given a chance to help. There will be all forms of athletics. For those who cannot participate in the more strenuous forms will have a chance to take part in milder sports. For those who cannot enter at all, there will be given a chance to help by doing their best to produce good original school songs.

The most important phase of our school life, good sportsmanship, was discussed in a brief but convincing way. Miss Graham recommended the old students for the spirit shown last year among the classes, and by the school as a whole. She said that the real meaning of sportsmanship is often misinterpreted. "A real sport is a good loser as well as a good winner. A class or a school with the proper spirit will always applaud a good play whether made by its own team or the opposing team. It is not only the victorious team that deserves praise but the team that plays its best and gives credit where credit is due. Antagonism between classes or schools does not mean that these classes or schools have good school spirit. It means that they have not learned the first lesson in sportsmanship."

An appeal was made to the new girls to "fall in line" and learn the spirit of S. T. C. so that we can make the coming year the best we have ever had.

NOTICE TO ALUMNAE

With this issue the Rotunda begins a new year. The staff and every girl at S. T. C. wants to make this one best Rotunda year ever, but the cooperation of the alumnae especially the girls of last years class, is needed. One dollar and a half, ($1.50) and your address sent to the circulation manager, will bring each week the Rotunda, full of news of your alma mater. Alumnae, keep the spirit of S. T. C. and "cooperate". Send your money and address at once. You can't afford to miss a single issue.

You are invited to Prayers after supper each night in the auditorium.

Y. W. C. A. AT CENTRALIA

From Saturday, September 19, until the following Tuesday morning, the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet of our College, with Miss Willie London, held a set-

Hedge Lawn. Isn't the name itself in Centralia near Richmond.

Hedge Lawn Isn't the name itself suggestive of a large, rambling home with a beautiful lawn surrounded by evergreen? There business and pleasure mixed. Conferences half-filled the afternoons and nights; and our Cabinet considered, talked over, and finally settled upon various plans to make this year the best ever at S. T. C. From such an environment as Hedge Lawn come the Book Store idea. (We always knew "Doolittle" could extract money from a person who had been "broke" a week.)

People, however, dear readers, must not think too deeply and continuously. Therefore, girls of the various clubs and organizations there that week-end amused themselves by rambling in the nearby country, swimming, and playing tennis. Everyone met everyone else, and everybody went to Richmond Monday. Sh-h-h! It's a secret! But "Chubby" and "Doclittle" missed the street car one [illegible]—and consequently dinner; came [illegible] while dessert was being served, and compromised with "Sweets for the Sweet." That isn't all concerning "eats" either. Picture the Cabinet seated on the beautiful lawn eating slices of luscious watermelon!

Envious? Of course you are. 'Cause we had a grand and glorious time. Ask Miss London!

MISS GRENELS JUNIOR MAN

At a meeting of the Junior class held this week, an event that promises well for the future took place. Miss Grenels was elected class man for the Junior class. She has all Juniors backing her and she is sure to bring the Junior class lots of new, original ideas.

To come down from the clouds and speak of finances, the class has found a rather profitable way of adding to the amount in the treasury. On Monday and Thursday night the halls were filled by the Juniors selling sandwiches of several different kinds. They proved to be greatly in demand so we have hopes for the future along the same line.

You are invited to Prayers after supper each night in the auditorium.

"What are you writing?"

"A joke."

"Well give him my regards."

TEACHERS COLLEGE HAS LARGEST ENROLLMENT IN HISTORY

Forty-Sixth Session Opened September 22nd, With 900 Students; Forty-six Applying For Degrees—Large Freshman Class.

The State Teachers College opened its forty-sixth annual session on September 22, the enrollment being the largest in the history of the institution. Nearly 900 girls have already matriculated, 450 of these being members of the freshman class. The degree class this year has an enrollment of forty-six, this being the largest class ever enrolled for the B. S. degree. The junior class numbers eighty-five and the sophomore about 320.

In spite of the fact that four new dormitories have been added to the rooming space of the college, every room is not only filled, but large numbers who aplied during the summer, could not be admitted. The chaperones of the new dormitories include Misses Mary Peck, E. Myrtle Grenels, Brownie Taliaferro, and Ida Hill.

The formal opening was held at the chapel hour on Friday morning. The Rev. Mr. White of the Methodist Church conducted the devotional exercises; and after a word of greeting from the ministers of the town Dr. Jarman welcomed the students and introduced the new members of the faculty, who include the following:

James E. Wimbush, Ph. D., head of the department of history, who comes from Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C.; Elizabeth G. Marshall, Ph. D., associate in the English department who is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and the University of Virginia, and who also studied in England last year; Frances Waters, B. S., associate teacher in the department of geography and a graduate of the George Peabody College; Olive [illegible]ler, a graduate of the Sargent School of Physical Training, Harvard University, who is an associate in the department of physical education; Miss Elizabeth Lewis, A. B., graduate of State Teachers College, Farmville, and Randolph Macon. Miss Lewis is an associate in the department of English. She is taking the place of Miss Carrie Sutherlin, who is spending the year at Columbia University taking graduate work. Miss Ilma von Schilling, supervisor of the seventh grade, is back after a year's leave of absence spent in studying at Columbia.

Misses Grace L. Russell, Katherine Tupper and Alice Carter of the faculty were engaged in graduate study during the summer at Columbia University. Miss Russell took a part of her work under the head of the department of journalism while there.

Y. W. C. A. RECEPTION HELD

On Friday evening, September 25, the student body and faculty of State Teachers College and the ministers of the town were delightfully entertained at a reception, given by the Young Women's Christian Association in the Recreation hall of the college. The hall was attractively decorated with goldenrod and potted plants. During the evening punch was served.

The guests were entertained by a charming musical program. Miss Emma Meban Hunt of Roanoke, who has studied voice in New York, sang three very beautiful selections and Miss Virginia Vincent of Emporia, and Helen Hodges of Sutherlin, also added to the program by singing. Altie Chappell of Norfolk, played several selections on the piano and Mrs. Warren D. Bowman played charmingly on the violin.

The reception was well attended, everyone having an enjoyable evening.

MISS HINER SENIOR MAN

At an enthusiastic class meeting of the Seniors last Wednesday night, Miss Mary Clay Hiner was unanimously re-elected "class man."

The Senior's installation service will be held as soon as their caps and and gowns arrive. After the service, they will, on Saturdays, march into Chapel in caps and gowns.

The Senior class is glad to welcome the following to its number: Mrs. May Marshall Edwards, Fanny Bell Shorter, Selina Hindle, Virginia Boyd, Audrey Chewning, Margaret Lewis Stearnes, and Mildred Smith.

CONGRATULATIONS, FRESHMEN!

Freshmen—we want to congratulate you! You are a fine bunch. We know of the inconveniences overlooked by you and we are proud to have your smiling faces among us. Some of you are far away from the main building, but you get to mea's on time, you get to class on time—you don't complain. Maybe you think these things haven't been noticed, but we can assure you that we sympathize with you in your troubles and smile with you because you smile at troubles. Keep it up Freshies and you'll surely come out on top!

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

HONOR AND STUDENT GOVERNMENT.

Since the freshmen training councils and examination are over, some may decide that student government rules and regulations are now things of the past and that everyone is through with such things. But, on the contrary, your responsibilities with reference to them are just beginning. You learned the rules and policies in order that you may uphold and obey them from now on.

There is nothing more closely related to student government than honor. The mere routine of training councils may come and go but honor lives on forever. No one would be willing to have her sense of honor taken from her; therefore, let her make use of this highly prized possession by employing it in becoming an enthusiastic law abiding member of our Student Government Association.

When one is pleased one can smile, when one is happy one can laugh, when one is spellbound one can not talk and so, Dr. Jarman, that is the state we are in when we think of the beautiful gifts you have given us this fall. We can never tell you how much we appreciate all the beautiful new furniture.

"How darling," "How perfectly adorable" and such phrases are all we have said or heard this week. The Student Building Reception Hall is simply gorgeous and so artistic with the little red chairs scattered among the grey against the blue rug. Our dormitory rooms in the Student Building are so complete and pretty that we don't dare leave our room in a mess for fear of spoiling the beauty of the furniture.

But the Main Building has not been neglected upstairs on the second floor is the coziest little sitting room with bright colored draperies where many a cold wintry afternoon will be spent.

After prayers there is a mad scramble through the hall to the Recreation Hall. Of course Dr. Jarman does certainly understand girls and that all work and no play will make Jane a dull girl. The Recreation Hall has its supply of pretty furniture and decorations but the large space has been left for dancing and to be used for any kind of fun.

Dr. Jarman, if we can't tell you how much we appreciate your gifts, we will let actions speak and you just watch us enjoy this winter more than any other.—Thanks to you!

JOAN SPEAKS—

How many years I have sat here I can hardly remember but it is always with a great throb of joy that I see the old front doors thrown open to welcome the old and the new girls in the fall.

Old girls, you know your Joan is glad to see you back and is, as always, your friend. But it is to the new girls that I want to talk especially. From my position in the Reception Hall I see and hear a great deal and that is why I often take a tiny space in the Rotunda to talk to you. First of all I want you to love Farmville and feel at home here, and the way to do this is to go into every activity on the campus with all your might. What about studying? you ask. Of course study and study hard. We'd like for Miss Jennie to have to order a new supply of Honor Roll cards but you can study a great deal better if you are busyand happy.

I know this is true for I have been here long enough to know. I saw the school when it was very, very small, when we had our first degree class, when we built the Student Building and now when our family has grown to nearly a thousand and we have fifty proud Seniors who will soon be donning their caps and gowns.

Freshman, I love you and want you to love me. Some of you have already learned to say, "Meet me at Joan." I am the spirit of Farmville, of love, service and honor. As surely as I led my France to victory in days of old, I will lead my girls of S. T. C.

A NEW TODAY

Just the whispered notes of a master hand
Whose song held a breath of God,
Just the infinite peace of a shadowy nook
Where an hour with my dreams I trod-
Just a glimpse of sky thru an open door
Just the smile of a child—today
Brought back my faith to laugh—to love—
From the depths I thought it lay.
—Lorah Brewer '27

A LITTLE TRICK OF LAUGHING

A little trick of laughing,
When all your plans go wrong,
Will turn a fit of growling
Into a cheerful song.

A little trick of laughing,
When skies are d[illegible] gray,
Will make your life worth living,
And roll your cares away.

Early to bed and early to rise,
Love all the teachers and tell no lies,
Study your lessons that you may be wise.
And buy from the firms that advertise!

JUST VASES

I stand within my shop
And gaze about at shelves piled high
Such funny wares!
Hardly a vase in all the lot
Not seamed by wear
Or, crooked, or with a handle off
A corner gone.
Poor, time worn clay
I smile—so tired,
Remembering a day
When each was fair and whole
And colorful and new;
Remembering a day
When each was broken;
And being broken, mended . . . .
I gaze about the shelves
All full, except one little spot
Vacant; pitiless in its emptiness.
I do not smile
Remembering a day
That first vase fell—
Shattered—on the floor,
The only one
Too broken for mending . . . .
I gaze about the shelves
With quick distaste
Just mended clay
Better to break forever
Than mar oneself by mended corners.
Queer, how easily they broke
After that first vase fell.

S. T. C. GIRL HONORED

Elizabeth Bugg, undergraduate representative of our Y. W. C. A. has beenappointed as Virginia State Representative of Southern Council for Week-end Conferences. In the Spring, she will plan week-end conferences for the training of new Cabinet members.

CHAPERONES ENTERTAIN NEW GIRLS

What can drive away the blues quicker than real friendliness? And what can make a homesick girl more contented than the feeling that she is really among friends? Our hand goes out to the chaperones who have welcomed the new girls with open arms. Not only have they given them words of cheer, but have entertained them with little parties in order that they may know them better and also to acquaint the Freshmen with each other. The Rotunda speaks for the Freshmen who wish to extend their thanks and loyalty to their chaperons.

Get Sweets

If you are hungry, eat candy—get it from the Sophomores in room twenty-nine.

"Ye Second-hand Book Shoppe."

If perchance, in your wanderings about the halls of this, our College, you espied a girl—that is, her head—surrounded entirely by volumes of knowledge, you would have discovered upon investigation, that it was not the most studious person at S. T. C. (perhaps) but a seller of books in a unquely devised book shop. It is the only one of its kind in existence—at S. T. C.!

How the old girls, with a giggle or a malicious grin passed over a much marked Psychoogly or Hstory book to an unsuspecting Freshman! (Wait until next term, you "Rats", and you too may declare that "Revenge is Sweet")

The Y. W. C. A. had charge of this book-selling plan, by which old and new girls alike were benefitted. About $200 worth of books were sold and the "Y. W." reaped the small but well deserved amount of $17.50.

All students concerned express their appreciatoin to the Y. W. C. A.

VOICE OF THE ROTUNDA BOX CALLS TO FRESHMAN

The Rotunda wishes to invite all Freshman as well as old girls to contribute to its columns. The staff has no way of finding out Freshmen who can do newspaper work except by a formal questionaire. If you wish to contribute to the Rotunda write your name, room number and what phase of work you are interested in on a slip of paper and drop it, in the Rotunda box through the slot in the office door. All contributions to the Rotunda must be signed, your name will not be published if there is an objection. Your work is solicited and appreciated by the student body.

Notice to Reporters

All contributions to the Rotunda must be in the office box not later than Friday night of each week as the paper will go to press Saturday and will come out on Tuesday.

FIRST STUDENT BODY MEETING SEPTEMBER 23

As Kate Trent, president of the Student Association arose to address the student body for the first time this term on Wednesday evening, she was greeted by cheers.

The meeting was opened by the singing of our Alma Mater song, after which the president extended a cordial greeting and a hearty welcome to both new and the old students.

It was necessary to bring before the girls a few important regulations and to announce that the Student Government rules would go into effect on Thursday, September 24.

The question of having an open forum at each regualr meeting of the student body was openly discussed, voted on, and passed.

By the open forum, it is hoped that both old and new students will feel to a higher degree that they have a part in student government.

SENIORS HAVE JUNIOR GIRLS

Instead of selecting their Junior girls at random from either the freshman, sophomore or junior classes, the Senior class of 1926 has decided to choose their Junior girls on a firmer basis of friendship, and that by their doing so a more collegiate standard may be reached. This leaves the sophomores the chance to have a freshman for their Junior girl and makes a more equal division. The junior class is delighted that they are to have the honor of having senior sisters.

MISS BESSIE TREVOETT AT S. T. C.

Miss Bessie Trevoett, representing the Woman's Mission Board of the Baptist Church, has been with us this week conducting a class in Mission study. She also spoke to us at Prayers on Tuesday night. Those who have had the opportunity to meeting Miss Trevoett and hearing her speak, have been both charmed and delighted. We enjoyed having her with us and sincerely hope that she will visit us again.

DRAMATIC CLUB TRY-OUT THIS WEEK

The Dramatic Clu is eager to be at work again, There are many of the old members back and we feel that with them, and the material we can see in the freshman class, we shall have the most successful year we have ever had. All girls, either old or new who are interested in this work, will be given a chance to try out either Monday or Tuesday night of next week, before the following committee:

Miss Leola Wheeler, Miss Mary P. Haynes, Louise McCormick, Lucy Haile Overbey, Mary Alice Blanton, and Frances Sale.

The passage selected by the try-out committee is a short scene from "She Stoops to Conquer," but any reading or recitation may be used. Come on, girls, try out. Let us cooperate with Miss Wheeler and make this the most enjoyable, as well as the most profitable, year the Dramatic Club has ever spent.

WARNING—Keep doors and windows locked and your valuables hidden away—"THE THIEF OF BAGDAD" is coming to Farmville soon.

MONOGRAM CLUB

The students who won their S. T. C. monogram and varsity "F" last year organized a monogram club. The purpose of this club is to promote and encourage good sportsmanship, and all phases of athletics in this school This club has its place among the various activities of the campus and any student winning either a varsity "F" or S. T. C. monogram is eligible to this club.

GLEE CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The regular meeting of the Glee club was held Wednesday afternoon, in Room D. Miss Louise Marsh, who represented the club at Blue Ridge gave a very interesting account of her stay at the Conference. She brought back many interesting facts in regard to music clubs in other colleges. It was decided that, following the example set by many other colleges, we should have a Glee club and a Choral club. The best voices in the Choral club shall be picked by Mrs. King for the Glee club, The new Glee club, which shall be composed of the best voices in school, will have only about fifty members. Try-outs for all students will be on Monday and Tuesday nights in Room D. The try-outs will be before a committee chosen by Mrs. King from the old Glee club. Come on, girls, don't be afraid to try; show your school spirit by helping this years' Glee club, to be the best ever.

WHY DO WE HAVE TO GO TO SCHOOL ON SATURDAYS?

This question is benig asked all over school. Dr. Jarman wants to do everything possible to make S. T. C. rate as an A-1 college. All of the best schools have a six-day week of classes. Having classes on Saturday also relieves the schedule committee. Most of the classes are over by four o'clock; only rarely are classes held after four. If other girl's colleges can do it, we can too, so buck up, girls, and stop complaining.

Morning Watch is held by the Y. W. C. A. every Sunday morning at 7:45 in the Student Building Lounge, all are invited.

Bill: Ah—er—that has been my custom."

Clever Collegiate: "I wish I could revise the alphabet."

Dumb Dora: "What would you do?"

C. C.: "I'd put U and I closer together."

"What do you think of the Chinese question?"

"What is it?"

"Got any laundry."

Sweetbriar Sweet: "Will you be a stag at our formal next week?"

Freshman (not so sweet): "Sure I love masquerade parties."

Englishman: "I say, old chop, do you carry that brand of cigarettes, er a Fortunate Strokes?"

Absent minded dentist (flirting with his motor car): "Now I am afraid this is going to hurt you just a little."

I see by the papers there's been a lot of picknikers around here.

Bible Prof. "What was the straightest man of Bible time?"

Fresh Freshman: "Joseph, because the Pharoah made a ruler out of him.

Jonah: Don't leave me, big boy.

Enlightenment

License Clerk—(Pausing at street corner) Look here stranger, you can't sell anything in this town without a peddler's license.

Peddler—Man—you certainly speak truth. I know I can't sell anything in this town—but I didn't know the reason.

That's Different

Girl—Will you please turn on the radio, Jack.

Harold—Why do you keep calling me Jack?

She—Oh, I'm sorry. I keep thinking this is Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

Laugh This Off

Loud Talker— wish I was boss at our place. I'd show 'em how to run the business.

Other Fellow—"Alright—Let's assume that you are. Now answer me this. If you were trying to build up 'loyalty' would you hire yourself for your present job—if you were boss?

Keep the Campus beautiful!

ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES

Is the Athletic Association awake? If you want to know what has been planed for this season in order to answer this foolish question glance over the sports that will be scheduled immediately-then answer the question for yourself.

Tennis Tournament

A tennis tournament is to be scheduled as soon as the courts are dry. In other words—if the weather permits a tournament for everyone will be scheduled this week. Only singles will be played and the winner will be presented with a loving cup. Some whisper around that the Freshmen will "walk away with it." Others claim the Sophomores will surely win while still others are positve that either the Juniors or Seniors will get the cup without half trying. But remember this, everyone has an equal chance and everyone should not only fight for the cup but for her class.

Sign up to play and then watch the bulletin board to see whom you will play against. Those who play in the finals and semi-finals will be announced later.

Hockey

This week another game will be introduced on the campus. It is almost too good to be true. However, it is true that we are going to play hockey this year! Every girl in every class has a chance for the class hockey team. And then the real competition and fun will begin when the inter-class hockey tournament is staged. Come on and help make your class team the champion team the first year hockey is played here. Practice will be in the afternoon from 4:15 until 5:00.

Basket-ball

Will the red and white continue to decorate the athletic cup this year? Will the Sophomores win the Thanksgiving game again this year? We wonder! h

Basket-ball practice has begun. All four classes have already started working hard to put out the championship team of 1925-'26. We have seen the Seniors, Juniors, and Sophomores play. We know what they can do, but what we are all wondering about is the Freshmen.

The first inter-class games will be played Thanksgiving when the Freshmen play the Sophomores and the Juniors play the Seniors.

Do your part to make your class the victorious team. Come out for basket ball, work hard; do your part.

The time for regular practice will be announced later.

"Try-outs" for the college monogram will start right away. With the exception of the individual cup the S. T. C. monogram is the greatest athletic honor won. Some girls can play basket-ball but can't play tennis but the monogram is in reach of every student who has the grit and determination to stick and win. The monogram stands for all 'round development. You have a chance for this so work from the beginning of the season rather than starting later and losing by just a few points.

Watch the A. A. bulletin board for announcements of "try outs."

Varsity

S. T. C. is planniag for a larger basket-ball schedule this year than we have ever had. Many schools have been challenged and if things work out as expected S. T. C.'s varsity will be kept on the "go" this year.

Athletic Asso. Offers Prize

The Athletic Association offers a prize for the best original school song that is passed in this year. We need things that belong to S. T. C. alone, and worst of all, we need original music and songs. There are many who can help S. T. C. by contributing a song for this prize so why not try to write one. The prize will be something of value and as pretty as the silver bar pin which was awarded to Mary Boker last year. The contest will close Thanksgiving to get to work and write a song.

Wanted—A Cheer Leader, Snappy Songs and Peppy Yells.

Have you thought of a cheer leader for the schol this year? One must be elected at the first possible date so be thinking who you think would be the best we could have. Also be thinking of snappy songs and yells. We need them.

DRAMATIC CLUB ELECTS NEW MEMBERS

The Dramatic Club takes pleasure announcing the following new members:

Miss Amanda Grey
Miss Polly Riddle

It will be remembered that these girls substituted for two characters in "The Yellow Jacket" last February. They did admirable work and took the parts on two days notice.

MR. McCORKLE IS SOPHOMORE MAN

The Freshman of '25 have returned. Three hundred strong, with even more pep and enthusiasm than they showed last year. With Mr. McCorkle as class man they are determned to make this Sophomore class the best in the history of S. T. C.

At a recent meeting Elizabeth Armfield was elected Monogram representative, "Jackie" Woodson and Isabel Payne, who showed their ability last year were re-elected cheer leaders.

The Sophomores are planning a surprise for the student body on the ninth—watch for the posters!

activities, show your willingness to help and conform to the rules and you will have a chance to both lead and serve.

The Student Government, you have already been told is made up of every member of the student body. We are told this every year and yet some students seem to think that the committee comprises the whole Student Government. This is not true, they are merely our representatives, it is up to each one of us to prove our school spirit by living the pledge we sign. Don't forget that you are a unit in the government of your school.

Every girl in school is asked to join the Y. W. C. A. and we try to have a one hundred per cent membership each year. While signing your membership card makes you a member of the association, your duty as a member has only just begun. Back the Y. W. C. A. in all of its activities, pledge as much as you can. Don't forget that prayers are held every night after supper, and morning watch every Sunday morning. Go and take away with you the inspiration which is so often gained at such meetings.

With so many organizations at our disposal there is no reason why every single girl shouldn't feel that she has her own special place in school. Get into the thing which you are most suited to, and make yourself a part of it. Start now, don't wait until the end of the year, and then regret that you waited.

DULANEY ELECTED SECRETARY ATHLETIC ASSN.

Due to the fact that Virginia Lewis did not return to school this year the office of Athletic Association Secretary was left vacant. As a result of the election held Friday, Evelyn Dulaney was elected to fill the vacancy. While we are sorry that Virginia is not back, and we are going to miss her. We are glad to have "Dulittle" and we know she will be a secretary who will cooperate with the Council and the Association. We are plenty glad that so capable a person is to fill in the vacancy. Good luck to you, in your work, "Dulittle." ?

STOP THE STOPPER FIEND

Have we a stopper fiend at S. T. C.? What can be the appealing characteristic of plain, rubber, bathtub stopper? They are not beautiful; it can't be beauty; they are not pawnable, it can't be value; they are not wonderful, it can't be awe—and yet they disappear. I know of no more helpless situation than a human being ready for a plunge into a stopperless tub. A search today revealed one stopper for six tubs. Will we have to print in next year's handbook, "Bring a bathtub stopper with you"? Please, please kind fiend, have mercy upon us and don't stop to stoop and steal a stopper

She Understood

Lady waiting to use phone—Say you've been in that booth twenty minutes and haven't said a word!

He—Wait just a little while longer I'm talking to my wife.

WHAT'S EDUCATION?

The basis, the bulwark, the epitome of modern civilization is education. Yet, when you get down to actual cases and look back at the school stuff from a perspective of twenty years or so, what does it amount to but this:

Latin—All Gaul is divided into three parts: amo, amas, amat.

Greek—On that day Xenophon marched twenty-eight parasangs; o sophos anthrophos.

Algebra—What does X equal?

Geometry—The square of the hypotenuse of a rt. triangle is equal to the sum of the difference of the opposite sides or something like that.

Arithmetic—A jeweler sold a watch for $20, making 25 per cent. profit. What did the watch cost? Answer on page 234.

History—"Give me Liberty or Give Me Death!" Patrick Henry. Sir Walter Raleigh brought the first tobacco into England.

English—Scott was born in 1632 or was it 1734?

German—Ich weiss nicht was soll es bedeuten; Oh, Tannenbaum, Oh Tannenbaum, wie treu sind deine blatter.

French—Je t' adore. (Shut the door)

Geography—Tropic of Cancer, Capricorn, et al. The capital of Florida is Tallahassee.

Physiology—Tobacco weakens the heart. Capillary veins, aorta, floating ribs.

Music—Nothing.

Drawing—Ditto.

Manual Training—Ditto.

—Torrey Ford

That's the Question

Dickson—Boy-oh-boy—I've got the automobile at last. You orta' seee her take a hill.

Friend—Up or down?

Come to the Y. W. "Sings" on Saturday nights.

FRESHMEN! TAKE NOTICE!

Do you know that within a few days you will be called together to elect your president and the remainder of your class officers? Have you been thinking of this and do you know who is the best girl for each office?

Freshmen, you have the largest class in school and your aim should be to make it the best freshman class in the history of S. T. C. You can do it if you will. Listen carefully and take heed to what follows:

First of all, when the president of your sister class calls you together, every "man" must be there. Be sure that you choose and elect the best girl for each office. Do not feel that because you have not been eelcted to one of the offices that there is no work for you to do. The staff of officers is the executive committee of your class, but without the whole-hearted cooperation of every girl in the class, they can do nothiag.

Secondly, when any organization in school calls for aid, go to its assistance. Show your class spirit, stand by your colors, and show S. T. C. and the world what YOU can do! There are enough types of work at S. T. C. for each girl to find something interesting and something "along her line." So, when you are given an opportunity to join the Dramatic Club, the Glee Club, the literary societies, and all the other organizations in school, avail yourselves of the aforesaid opportunities. If you are not interested in work of this kind, perhaps you would like athletics. Basket-ball practice has already started and here you have a chance to make the varsity or your class team—and maybe both if you will fight hard enough. Those that do not play can show their spirit by coming out and suporting their team.

Thirdly, whenever you are called upon to do any kind of work, be ready and willing to do your share. If every girl will just catch this spirit and then pass it on until every girl in the freshman class has caught the same spirit, you will have the best freshman class that has ever come to S. T. C.

Come on, Freshmen, and show S. T. C. what you are made of!

TO THE GIRL IN CHARGE:
By a Freshman

Five long nights of toils and cares,
Listening and learning S. T. C. affairs;
Not to visit nor talk to men,
And be in bed by half past ten;
Where to go to curl our hair,
To stop walking when the lights aren't there;
When to go shopping—how to sign up,
Which bell is for Chapel—by which do we sup;
Learning Alma Mater; what Honor is,
Not to go riding in any kind of a "Liz"
Oh its a hard, hard life for a Freshman lass
Attending each night the new Training Class.

TO THE FRESHMEN:
By a Girl in Charge

I was your teacher for five long nights
And this I must confess;
Though many were late and some got lost,
You certainly did your best.
So, dear Freshman Class, you have learned our rules
And know how to obey;
We welcome you with open arms,—
You're a part of our College today.

—R. H. H.

You are invited to Prayers after supper each night in the auditorium.

ALUMNAE NEWS

Dear Alumnae:-

Those of us who are under the roof of our dear Alma Mater are eager to hear what our sisters are doing in other sections of the State and elsewhere. So many of you say, "Oh, I know of nothing interesting to write." But let me hasten to assure you that a letter, telling us of the daily happenings in your home, your school room, or your office will be of great interest to your former school friends. Tell us about your school children, your patients or your clients. Whatever interests you is of interest to us.

We have already had visits from a number of you and we hope that the number will be greatly increased before the year is over.

And again, let me say that we are eagerly awaiting letters from all of you.

Sincerly,
THE ROTUNDA STAFF

CRITERION MALE QUARTET DELIGHTS LARGE AUDIENCE

(This was fine)

The Criterion Male Quartette of New York City, on their southern tour, opened a series of entertainments known at S. T. C. as the Lyceum Course. It was decidedly one of the best performances held here for a long time, and marked a brilliant beginning for the school year.

Every seat in the Auditorium was occupied, as well as extra chairs that were brought in. Judging from the hearty applause and the repeated encores, no one was disappointed.

Each member of the company was exceptionally talented, and with the assistance of a very able and charming pianist, the program was a delightful success from start to finish.

The Quartette came to Farmville from High Point, North Carolina, and went from here to Fredericksburg, Virginia.

The program was as follows:-

Personnel

Mr. Frank Mellor ---------- Tenor
Mr. John Young ---------- Tenor
Mr. George Reardon ---------- Baritone
Mr. Frederick Thomas ---------- Basso
Miss Emiale Gaetze, Pianist

FRESHES HOLD FIRST MEET

Virginia Vincent, President of the Junior Class, called the first Freshmen meeting to order Tuesday, October 6, at seven o'clock. The meeting was opened by Virginia telling the Freshmen how glad their sister class was to have them here.

The first business taken up was the election of representatives to the Student Standards Committee. Maude Baptist and Mattie Smith were elected as Freshmen repreaentatves.

Virginia then reminded the Freshmen that some time in the near future they would be called on to elect their officers and that now was the time to think about WHO they would want We hope the Freshmen are going to go about this in the same capable way they have everything else.

When Virginia had finished all the business to be brought before the class, the meetng was turned over to Jackie Woodson, a representative of

PRAYERS

After the whirling rush of daily duties, and before study hour begins, there comes a pause in S. T. C. known as Prayers. Every evening after supper, we hold a short prayer service in the Auditorium. We want all girls both old and new, to come and join in the service and to

"Wait and worship, while the night
Sets her evening lamps alight,
Through all the sky."

It is the time when, spent with the day's toil and tribulation, we may bow our heads in prayer, and feel the divine spirit of rest and peace steal o'er us; it is the time of twilight, when our spirts may meet and commune with God, our Father.

Let us appreciate our opportunity and attend these prayer services regularly.

Y. W. C. A. MEMBERSHIP WEEK

To you, Freshmen, the Y. W. C. A. of our College extends a most cordial and hearty welcome to become one of us. The aim of the "Y" is to develop Christian character in its members to promote a friendly spirit among students, and to train and send forth girls to take their places as leaders in the world.

Have you been attending our prayer services in the evenings after supper? Then you have heard and enjoyed the inspiratonal talks that have been given and have felt something of the spirit and purpose of the Y. W. C. A You have seen a model Cabinet meeting and have heard the plans of various committees for the coming year.

Let's make this the biggest and best year ever at S. T. C! The Y. W. C. A. needs you and your support—both personal and financial. You will be given an opportunity this week to join our Association, which will put you in touch with the highest deals in a student's life.

Again, we extend a welcome to you!

ALUMNAE SUBSCRIBE

The staff and every girl at S. T. C. is working to make this the best Rotunda year ever; but the cooperation of all the alumnae, especially the girls of last year's class is needed. One dollar and a half ($1.50) and your address sent to the circulaton manager will bring you each week The Rotunda, full of news of your Alma Mater. Keep the spirit of S. T. C. and "cooperate." Send your money and address at once. You can't afford to miss a single issue.

Greetings From Dr. J. L. Jarman

Farmville, Va.
October 9, 1925

To the Girls of the Class of 1925:

"Let me say right in the beginning that we miss you. While we have a goodly number of you back with us as Juniors (and are delighted that they made "the wise choice") there is a large percentage that is scattered to the four winds of heaven—and these are the ones we miss.

To those who took the Degree we extend a hearty invitation to come back from time to time to see how we are progressing, what improvements we are making, and to hearten us in our work by their interest in what we are doing.

To those who took the Diploma we say that we are still looking forward to the pleasure of having you back with us some day.

To all of you we send affectionate greetings and good wishes for your success and happiness wherever you may be.

Sincerely your friend,
J. L. JARMAN

HOME DEPARTMENT NEWS

Mrs. Eva Hetrick Warren, who was formerly employed in the business office, is now assisting Miss Mary White Cox, head of the Home Department. Mrs. Warren's place in the business office is now occupied by Mrs. Warren D. Bowman, nee, Miss Olive Smith.

The college regrets to learn that Mrs. Lizzie B. Williams will not be back this year. She is now in St. Petersburg, Florida, teaching in a school for young women. Mrs. William's position has been filled at the college by Mrs. Warren.

Mrs. Province, of Cumberland, Va., is a new assistant in the pantry. Miss Coline Bagley, of Kenbridge, Va., is substituting in the dining room for Mrs. Alce Peery, who will not return to S. T. C. for several weeks.

Practically every member of the Home Department enjoyed a very pleasant vacation in various cities and resorts. Miss Frances B. Shelton spent three weeks visiting in Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Willoughby Beach.

Mrs. Emma Bugg Blanton was at Massanetta Springs, Va., while the Presbyterian Conference was being held there.

Mrs. Hallie K. Laing, accompanied by her daugher, Martha Anne, visited Huntington, Lewisburg, and Beckley, West Virginia. She also spent a large part of her vacation in Washington, D. C.

THANKS, FRESHMEN

Miss McDonald and the assistant librarians wsh to compliment the entire Freshman class for their splendid attitude in the Library. From seven o'clock until eight-thirty the Library is what a library should be.

NEW MEMBERS DRAMATIC CL'B

The Dramatic Club try-outs were held last week and a committee selected the new members to be taken in. A word of explanation about the try-outs is necessary. The committee had many points to consider in selecting the members. Certain types are needed in the club. Some of the girls trying out were very good but their type was not needed at present and the club only has a membership of about thirty. Girls who would play men's parts were more in demand than any other type and out of the number trying only a few were able to take them. A few girls were chosen on their ability to play character parts and others to play girls parts. Other poinis which were considered were stage presence, voice, posture and naturalness in acting.

The new members were voted upon by the committee and the entire Dramatic Club.

We take great pleasure in announcing the following new members:

Eleanor Bennett of Norfolk.
Emma Mebin Hunt of Roanoke.
Virginia Potts of Lynchburg.
Anne Ferree of Danville.
Carrol Cromwell of Norfolk.
Gertrude Jarman of Charlottesville
Virginia Boxley of Grange.
Mildred Lohr of Madison.

FIRST MEETING OF THE DRAMATIC CLUB

The Dramatic Club met Friday night. Several officers were elected in place of the girls who did not come back. Evelyn Dulaney resigned as business manager on account of holding other offices. Eleanor Bennett was elected business manager and Polly Riddle, assstant business manager. Frances Sale was elected secretary.

Miss Wheeler spoke to the club about new plays. The play will be presented around the first of January and the cast will chosen as soon as possible.

FRESHMAN TRAINING AT S. T. C.

During the second week of school, the Freshmen and other new girls at S. T. C. attended a series of lessons on the general regulations of S. T. C., including the learning of our Alma Mater song. These classes were conducted by several members of the upper classes. The series of lessons culminated in an examination held on September 26.

Those conductng the lessons say that the examination papers show excellent work.

The president of the Student Association hopes, by these training classes, to make our school regulations understood and known by all new girls. She hopes by them to help the girls and to help the school, and she is sure that if these regulations are practiced in the same spirit in which they were learned, the training classes were not conducted in vain.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

PECULIAR COMPLAINING ATTRACTS ATTENTION

A remark made by a Freshman was accidenally overheard by a member of he faculty, as was also the reply made by her comranion. Open your ears upper classmen and list to the remark! It was made in a complaining tone but on such a peculiar subject. The Freshman were complaining that they had, not too much—but too little work to do. Naturally the faculty member was terrified to think that the faculty was allowing people to waste time. Speaking for the Sophs, Juniors, Seniors, and quite a number of Freshmen, I should like to ask just one question, what course are you two Freshmen taking, and who are your teachers? I'm sure that some of us would like to trade just half way with you, because we have almost more than we have time for. However, I think there is an explanation, and for goodness sake, don't you Freshmen write home and tell your parents that you haven't anything to do. You see the schedule committee has done an untold amount of work; and in trying to arrange things to your advantage they have often changed sections ,giving you one or two difficult teachers, then very likely you had nothing to prepare for one recitation. Going to school on Saturday is intended to relieve some of the congested schedules and give more time for preparations. Surely if you put two hours on every recitation and then in not too long a time, your time will be filled and you will have to look for time to do things in, rather than looking for things to fill up your time.

AN IDEAL SCHOOL PAPER.

Just at present, our minds, and the minds of students all over the country, are on the subject of "what is an ideal school paper?" Have you ever seen one? If you have, please present it to The Rotunda Staff immediately.

There are so many sides from which to look at the question. Do we want a newspaper alone, or do we want it combined with literary material?

The Staff alone cannot make the school paper an ideal one, the paper belongs to the students and the students are the ones who make the paper.

Do you think our editorials are what they should be? Do they discuss current topics of interest and do they express an unbiased opinion? How can the Staff alone judge them?

An ideal school paper is democratic. There is a column for everything and each column has a special place—Y. W., Student Government, Society, literary sicieties, athletics, etc. Think how nice it would be to be able to pick up your Rotunda and know exactly where to look for what you want.

Articles on athletics play no small part in the make up of an ideal paper. They must be well written, and exact, so that they may be depended on as correct statements.

Has it ever occured to you that if our school paper is ideal it will be something which we will always want to keep. It will keep a record for us of the happiest days of our lives. Our class elections, athletic meets, dramatic club plays and glee club operettas will all be fully described and recorded. Can we keep so complete a diary?

The humorouus side of a paper plays no small part; wonder if we ever stop and think how hard it is to find good jokes that have plenty of humor and yet are not stale? It's no small job and it composes one of the absolutely essential parts of our ideal paper.

The literary material in an ideal paper should differ in type. One needs formal and informal essays, poems, short stories, book reviews and literary material of all types, and in vaious styles.

These are merely some of the things which I can think that go nto the composition of a paper bordering on the ideal. Can you think of some other characteristics which should be included? Don't be afraid to say so, and won't you make it one of yorr aims at S. T. C. to do your bit to make The Rotunda a paper which may be said to be ideal?

OUR "MISS MARY".

I have often wondered how this school would get along without Miss Mary White Cox,—have you? She is our Mother, so to speak, for nine months, and have you ever stopped to think how well she takes care of, manages and improves her large family. Her care of us starts long before we arrive. How would you like the job of rooming 800 girls, trying to put the old girls where they ask to be, and giving the new ones every consideration? You know I think I'd rather have any other job, and yet we fuss about our rooms, our roommates, and the smallest sort of things. I believe if we would all stop and think how much Miss Mary has done, and is doing for us, we would have only thanks and praise for her.

Miss Mary is never too tired to hear our excuses, complaints, desires and troubles. I wonder how many times already this year she has had to hear, "I don't like my room, can't I possibly be changed, my mother said—". I'm afraid most of us would give up in despair, but not Miss Mary, she goes cheerfully on, and instead of getting disgusted, she tries her best to make us happy and satisfied.

Our parents and we, ourselves, can never thank Miss Mary enough for the excellent care she takes of us. We have pleasant surroundings, clean, attractive rooms and lovely social rooms, thanks to Miss Mary's thoughtfulness.

We fuss and we fume and yet under it all we appreciate what is done for us and, I think, every, single one of us, love Miss Mary dearly, let's think more in terms of what is being done for us and see of we can't shrow Miss Mary that we love her, and we apreciate her many, many, kindnesses, and her excellent care.

JOAN SAYS—

Well, well! Guess what. Last week, after reading The Rotunda, a Freshman wanted to know who was Joan that had so much to say. So I don't feel so big after all. But even if I am not big I see a lot, and one thing I have noticed this week is that quite a few new girls looked as if they would just as soon be at home as not. How about it? Isn't that true?

That's what I thought so I began thinking what I could do to cheer you up and I happen to remember this little jingle—maybe it will help. I hope so anyway.

"Be cheerful, chirped the Robin.
"Be busy," hummed the Bee.
"Be loving," said the Dewdrop.
"And no matter what you do,
If you are busy, loviny, cheerful,
You will be HAPPY too."

S. T. C.'S LATEST BEAUTY SPOT

Around S. T. C., they are always springing up, where our feet have just been—or rather, our feet have not been—and these things of sudden, exquisite growth are attractive garden plots. Have you noticed the very latest one? Your glance scarcely could miss seeing it—the lot by the Tea Room outside entrance that has been beautified recently, with tall cannas and velvety grass. Only our cooperation is needed to complete the beauty of the patch.

WEEK OCTOBER 19TH—24TH
SHOWS START EACH NIGHT AT 7:15

MON.—Pete Morrison in SANTE FE PETE with LIGHTNING, his horse in a good Western picture. If you've red blood in your veins—if you enjoy adventure and humor and romance—don't miss this picture. There's a whirlwind of excitement in it; it's packed with stunts that will make you gasp. Also Pathe News.

TUES.—Pete Morrison and Lightning his horse in THE MYSTERY OF LOST RANCH. Here's another Western picture with wild roping cowboys, beautiful women, romance, humor and adventure. If it's the outdoors you love—the grandeur of the West——the plains, the mountains, plus a real adventure yarn, see this picture. Also 14th episode of The Fighting Ranger.

WED.—PETE MORRISON and his horse again on this night in WEST OF ARIZONA. Did you ever see a man save himself and his sweetheart by crossing a canyon on a rope. There's a leap for life in this picture that for sheer excitement beats every thing ever filmed. Also Aesop Fable. To lovers of Western pctures WE RECOMMEND THE ABOVE THREE.

THURS. & FRI.—THE GOOSE HANGS HIGH a special PARAMOUNT Picture enacted by a special cast, directed by the director of "The Covered Wagon." Here is the classic of the American Home. A true and ennobling pcture of American family life, love and loyalty. A laugh, a tear, a gasp—and a thought to carry home. Here is a comedy drama that is MORE THAN WONDERFUL ENTERTAINMENT—It's life. Everyone will enjoy this picture. Also a good comedy each night. 4 o'clock Matinee Thmursday.

SAT.—RICHARD DIX in the William De Mille Paramount picture MEN AND WOMEN. A story of the pitfalls that confront young married people in New York. From the famous play by David Belasco. It is a living, throbbing cross section of life. Cast includes Claire Adams, Robert Edeson and Flora Finch. Also 9th episode of the Riddle Rider. There will be two shows. ONE AT 7:30 and one at 9:00 O'CLOCK.

Polly: "I suppose you will commit suicide if I refuse you."

Bill: Ah—er—that has been my custom."

Clever Collegiate: "I wish I could revise the alphabet."

Dumb Dora: "What would you do?"

C. C.: "I'd put U and I closer together."

"What do you think of the Chinese question?"

"What is it?"

"Got any laundry."

Sweetbriar Sweet: "Will you be a stag at our formal next week?"

Freshman (not so sweet): "Sure I love masquerade parties."

Englishman: "I say, old chop, do you carry that brand of cigarettes, er a Fortunate Strokes?"

Absent minded dentist (tinkering with his motor car): "Now I am afraid this is going to hurt you just a little."

I see by the papers there's been a lot of picknikers around here.

Bible Prof. "What was the straightest man of Bible time?"

Fresh Freshman: "Joseph, because the Pharoah made a ruler out of him."

"I'm the cats!" said the mouse when he saw he was covered.

Our prize dumb question heard at the prom: "Who is that girl over there with the bobbed hair?"

Jonah: How far are we from land?

Whale: 3,000 miles.

Jonah: Don't leave me, big boy.

Enlightenment

License Clerk—(Pausing at street corner) Look here stranger, you can't sell anything in this town without a peddler's license.

Peddler—Man—you certainly speak truth. I know I can't sell anything in this town—but I didn't know the reason.

That's Different

Girl—Will you please turn on the radio, Jack.

Harold—Why do you keep calling me Jack?

She—Oh, I'm sorry. I keep thinking this is Wednesday instead of Tuesday.

Laugh This Off

Loud Talker— wish I was boss at our place. I'd show 'em how to run the business.

Other Fellow—"Alright—Let's assume that you are. Now answer me this. If you were trying to build up 'loyalty' would you hire yourself for your present job—if you were boss?

ATHLETICS

Tennis Tournament

Who will be the tennis champion? That's what we all wonder. However, the mystery will soon be solved for the rest of the games will be "played off" this week. Last week the first three rounds were "played off" and these matches made everyone realize that the semi-final and the championship games will both be hard-fought battles.

Tuesday, the fourth round will be completed; Thursday the semi-final games will be played and Saturday at 4 o'clock the championship match will be played.—And after the game—the loving cup. Who will be the "proud possessor?" We wonder!

Hockey

Have you wondered what happened to keep us from having hockey practice last week, or are you one of the "dead-weights" that hasn't enough school spirit to know hockey will be played this year?

The hockey sticks have been ordered, but have not arrived. There has been some delay, because the style of stick ordered was not in stock. However, they will arrive at an early date and when the do, practice will begin immediately. Listen for an announcement, and do your part to make hockey successful this year.

Varsity

Miss Blanche Edith Oliver Graham is practicing the varsity in squads at present. The Freshmen compose one squad, while the upper-classmen compose the other. each squad practices two days a week. Later another schedule will be arranged for varsity practice, but the change will be announced.

CHANGES IN CHAPEL PERIOD

This year the faculty and students have decided to make some changes in order to make the chapel period more interesting. The Committee is willing to cooperate with the classes and do all it can to help make a success of this plan. Miss Florence Stubbs, head of the Committee has already discussed this question with some of the classes to get their view on the subject. Everyone wants to see this plan carried out, and to do it, each student back up the committee and cooperate in every way.

DON'T SAY IT WITH MUSIC

There was a time not long ago,
B fore arriving here—
That to my mind, of instruments
A person could hold dear,
Victrolas held the upper hand
I loved their music so,
That I never tired of hearing one
Wherever I might go;
But the mystic charm has vanished
I crave them nevermore,
They are to me a bother, a worry
and a bore,
Perhaps you'll wonder why I changed,
It wouldn't be hard to guess,
Their music dins my ears by day,
At night it breaks my rest—
They start them here 'fore breakfast
And wind them all the day,
Until you wish sometimes you could
Fly forty miles away—
The same old records all the time
Until I sometimes doubt
They'll be O. K. the next day,
Why don't the things wear out?
Please owners dear—be kind to me,
For what will be my fate,
I do not know—until you swear
You will Cooperate. —F. R. B.

It isn't what a girl knows that bothers us, but how she learned it. Ex

THE WAY TO A GIRL'S HEART

"The thing that brightens any mood, is good, old-fashioned, homelike food"

Just a few congratulatory words for the food we have had this year. It has been both better and hotter and we have apprpeciated it. There are also dishes unheard of before and loved by us all. Countenances themselves speak for this wonderful change. Only smiles enter the portals of our dining room, and often these smiles turn to grins at sight of favorite dishes. Such remarks as, "Oh! I love fried apples—why haven't we had them before", "This pie is great", and "Why, we've had dessert four times this week," are common remarks these days. We have you to thank, Miss Bagley. You are surely on our side.

THE BOOK SHELF

God's Stepchildren by Sarah P. Willia

This book which deals with the intertsting queston of the half-caste negro has been called—"the distinctive book of the year." It is fascinating because of its simplicty, directness and its intensive pathos. It is not a book that is forgotten when it is finished. To quote from Punch—"A masterly book, extraordinarily vivid."

NOTICE

An error appeared last week in the title of an article on sportsmanship. The title should have been "Good Sportsmanship Is Urged."

There are only two kinds of liars in a smash-up; both drivers.

RAT INITIATION

Absolute silence in the lengthy gymn—the Rat Class on the floor awaiting orders—The honorable Sophomore president enthroned in the center of the big room surrounded by her willing lieutenants—The balcony filled with upper classmen. What did it all mean? It meant that hundreds of Rat subjects were to be welcomed into the realms of Ratdom. It meant that they were to become willing subjects of the honorable Sophomores, and more than all else it meant that class spirit would be kindled at S. T. C. Roll call brought Rats, big and small; short and tall, before their majesty, King Updike, and the solemn oath was given individually while the Rats caps were donned. Orders were obeyed to the minute and the Rat class gave to the onlookers a very good performance.

Don't weaken Rats—keep the rules—obey orders and wear those caps. Remember—when you weaken, the Sophs harden.

May class spirit ever live at S. T. C.

Freshmen Hold First Meeting

the Sophomore Class.

Jackie struck the Freshmen silent by her direction as to wearing caps. She informed them that every Freshman would have a cap and would be compelled to wear it. Instructions as to the "rat parade" and the first wearing of caps, Saturday afternoon were given, and dire threats were made as to what shall become of the first Freshman (also the last) to disregard the regulations.

The class adjourned after their driections and it is probable that in a very few weeks another meeting will be called for the purpose of electing officers.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VI | THE ROTUNDA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1925 | Number 3

SPECIAL ISSUES OF ROTUNDA TO APPEAR

Music Number to Appear First

The Rotunda Staff is very much interested in the fact that different departments of the school are taking such an interest in The Rotunda that they wish to edit special issues.

Mrs. King, as head of the Music Department has already spoken for the first issue. An entire staff will be elected from her department and will have complete charge of the paper. The department will finance all extra charges for cuts and extra copies of the paper. This issue promises to be an interestnig one.

Miss Coulling, has also spoken of an art issue. The details of this have not been worked out but we feel sure this issue will be a successful one.

Classes have published class issues in the Spring but departments of the college have never taken this much interest before. The Staff is interested in these issues and is willing to help any way it can.

SERVICE NOT CREDIT IS WHAT WE PRAISE

Two girls were talking a few days ago and after hearing that typists were needed on The Rotunda Staff one rearked, "I cannot see why anyone wants to type articles for The Rotunda, what credit is gained from typing articles week after week." And then after a pause came the remark, "Do they get paid for it?"

This girl had in mind only the credit gained and not the fact that she was serving others. She overlooked the fact that no student officers in the school receive salaries for their services but that they do it in a spirit of willingness and through love for the school.

The Rotunda has to be typed before it goes to press and someone has to type it. On the staff at present we hae Frances Jones, Elsie Gibson, and Helen Cohen who type the paper. Aren't there others who are willing to give their services?

A MESSAGE TO THE FRESHMEN

The other day a Freshman was heard to remark that she really wanted to contribute to the school paper but just how to go about it she did not know. This proved that the Freshman class is anxious and willing to help do her bit for The Rotunda. All contributions must be dropped in the box at the door of The Rotunda office and names must be signed to all articles. Now Freshmen,—we are banking on you. That big class of yours can't fool us. We know there is hidden talent in your ranks, so step out Freshmen.

She: The flowers you sent were lovely. I think there was still some dew on them!"

He: awkwardly: "Aw—er—yes, but I'm going to pay it off tomorrow."

Buck Prince: "I call my girl Listerine."

Henry McElveen: "Why?"

Buck: "Because she takes my breath away."

MR. WYNNE GOES TO COLUMBIA

Mr. J. P. Wynne, director of the training school, and head of the Department of Education here, left on Tuesday, October 13, for New York. Mr. Wynne is receiving a leave of absence for several months in order that he may continue his studies at Columbia University. Mr. Wynne has been working on his Ph. D. and he hopes that with a few months work he may obtain this degree. We shall miss Mr. Wynne, but we wish him all kinds of good luck and while we say goodbye to Mr. Wynne, we hope we may welcome Dr. Wynne back.

SOPHOMORE MINSTREL

The Sophomores gave a very good minstrel show on Friday night. Evelyn Dulaney directed the show and Mary Lynn Petty was accompanist. The end men were Chubby Grey, Isabelle Payne, "Sis" Jordan, Jackie Woodson, Mittie Quarles and Virginia Perkins.

Songs and jokes held sway until the last act which was entitled, "A Ragtime Court Scene," and this act was the best act of the four gievn as it was a good black face comedy.

The Sophomores are to be congratulated on being the first class to make the largest amount towards the Student Building Fund.

SLICKERS

"They put a ban on knickers,
But they haven't forbid us slickers."

The slicker craze is on. These past rainy days have brought forth the slicker army. They are some army, but the colors vary greatly--red, green, blue, purple and yellow. Well do I remember the first appearance of the slicker at S. T. C. Surely some Hampden-Sidney lad had left it here one night by mistake. Or was the wearer posing as a Uneeda Biscuit advertisement? But lo. The owner did not return for his slicker. Instead, the number gradually increased until several beloved yellow coats were owned by envied girls, to be borrowed by envious hundreds. Then one dismal day a human rainbow walked proudly through our hall, composed of slickers in various bright shades. Since that eventful day the light yellow shade has been a wee less popular. But they have their advantages. They prove a more picturesque background for the artistic talent displayed on their backs. There must be hundreds of these coats in S. T. C. They are not all beautiful, they do not always fit, perhaps they even leak; but they are slickers and what is life without one?

"So here's to the slickers—may they ever be
The joy of the rainy days at S. T. C."

The Belgian franc has risen above par of the French franc. This is interpreted as due to New York pressure, which shows that countries who agree to debt terms of U. S. will fare better in international exchange market.

COUNTY AND CITY CLUBS ORGANIZE

For the first time since 1922, a Northern Neck Club has been formed. The girls, thirteen in number, met on Saturday, October 10, organized and elected the following officers:

President ---------- Grace Jones
Sec. & Treas. Evelyne McKenney
Reporter ---------- Louisa Currie

PITTSYLVANIA CLUB ORGANIZED

The first meeting of the Danville-Pittsylvania club was held Tuesday, October 6, 1925, for the purpose of electing officers. Ilma Williams was elected president, Gladys, Poe was elected secretary and treasurer.

The second meeting was held Wednesday, October 14, at which time Thelma Williams was made vice-president. Dues were decided upon and since a name has not yet been chosen the girls were told to be thinking about one for the club.

BLUE RIDGE CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

At a called metnig of the Blue Ridge Club the following were elected as officers for 1925-26:

President ---------- Alice Carter
Vice-President ---- Gladys Moses
Secretary-Treas. -- Mamie Daniels
Reporter ---------- Virgina Boyd

The club is glad to welcome so many new members and hopes that all others who are interested in Blue Ridge will join.

GAMMA THETA GIVES SPREAD

A sandwich spread was given by the Gamma Theta Sorority in S. B. 21, between bells, on Thursday night. Those invited were:

Elizabeth Scott	Virginia Woodward
Florence McIntyre	Cornelia McIntyre
Frances Willis	Page Archer
Carroll Cromwell	Maude Baptist
Marion Grimes	Rachel Patton
Pauline Stallard	Mebane Hunt
Mildred Smith	Josephine Lyne
Virginia Boxely	Virginia Hodgson
Louise Foster

THE DAHLIA SHOW

The townspeople of Farmville do not realize how much pleasure the S. T. C. girls derived from the Dahlia Show whch they have every year.

The flowers were some of the loveliest of their kind, and every girl who had a chance to see them came away rested and inspired.

We enjoyed looking at the lovely flowers but this was only half, for the food was tempting beyond resistance. All the girls who enjoyed the suppers are wishing the Dahlia Show would contine all the time.

Mrs. Todd: "Graham, run across the street and see how old Mrs. Brown is this morning.

G. Todd (returning in a few minutes): "Mrs. Brown says it's none of your business how old she is."

INVITATION TO ATTEND NATIONAL CONFERENCE

To Be Held at Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh on November 27 and 28, 1925.

The invitation list, according to Dr. Thomas S. Baker, President of Carnegie Institute of Technology, and author of the plan of the conference, includes many of the American universities and colleges and the community playhouses. As far as it is possible, informal student organizations which give serious plays are being invited to send delegates. In addition, the list includes theatrical critics, and representatives of those theatrical groups that include producers, playwrights, actors, and artists.

"The program", according to President Baker, "will be so arranged as to bring out not only the nature of the work done at the colleges, but also to show the significance of the community theaters. It is felt that the relation between the college theatricals and the community theaters is very close. The representatives of the colleges will be given an opportunity to tell what his institution is doing for the cultivation of the drama. Such questions as the purpose of the work, the financial support, college credits, etc., will be considered during the sessions."

As a sidelight to the conference details, it is planned also, by special permission of the author, to have a production of one of Galsworthy's plays presented by the students of the Department of Drama of Carnegie. B. Iden Payne, who gave up his work as a producer to become a full-time professor of drama at the Pittsburgh institution, will direct the production of the play.

KEEP OUR SCHOOL BEAUTIFUL

"Don't walk on this grass." How many of you think the little signs with the above, or some other "don't," is attractive, and adds to our campus? Someone evidently likes the sign, or else, someone has forgot. We know that none of our girls mean to be thoughtless enough to deliberately walk across new grass, or any grass plots—someone forgot, and another, and another, and another, until there was a path which detracted from our campus.

Not only on the campus do we find traces of the thoughtless girl, but in the school building as well. Trash is thrown along the halls which seems so unnecessary, when there are numerous waste baskets to be found. Pencil marks on desks and walls never did look attractive, and very probably, they never will. They only cause extra work for one of our maids and extra worry for someone.

How many of you love beautiful places, buildings, etc.? All of you do, of course! Then, let's make our school, our Alma Mater, a place to be proud of, and beautiful to look upon! "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

GETTING OUT A PAPER IS NO JOKE

If we print jokes, folks say we are silly,

If we publish original material, they say we lack variety,

If we publish things from other papers, they say we are too lazy to write,

If we stay on the job, we ought to be out after news,

If we are out after news we are not attending to business in our own department.

If we don't print contributions we don't show proper appreciation.

If we print them, the paper is full of junk,

Like as not some fellow will say we swiped this from an exchange. Well, we did. Ex.

IN HONOR OF MISS VINCENT

On Saturday evening at eight o'clock, the Alpha Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma, gave in honor of Eugenia Vincent, a graduate of S. T. C., a miscellaneous shower. The room was tastefully decorated in purple and white, the sorority colors. The color scheme was further carried out by the use of a tiny purple wheel barrow on which little Miss India Dunnington brought the gifts to Miss Vincent. After the shower, a sandwich spread was given in honor of the rushees. The guests were Mrs. Wm. Dunnington, Mrs. Newbill, Misses Lois Williams, Mabel Mays, Mary Rives Richardson, Eliza Davis, and Miss Pauline Camper, the faculty advisor of the sorority.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN WIT AND HUMOR

Wit is intellect while humor is more or less the apprecation of what is witty. A witty person is one who can see quickly the connection of two things which are not usually thought of together, and thus surprises his listeners. The person with a sense of humor stands by and laughs because he recognizes the incongrouity of the situation. Humor is of a kinder nature than is wit, but it is more closely connected with pathos though they are thought of as opposites. We see much humor in things that are really sad. Wit is more closely connected with sarcasm than anything else. Witty people are often sarcastic as the surprising effect of unthought of expressions is what real wit is. Some are so thoughtless that they are often witty at the cost of someone's feelings.

A show may be advertised as one with much humor in it but it is really the comical, ridiculous acting that appealsto your sense of humor, which is your aprpeciation of such things.

Humor acts upon what wit suggests.

Shorty Harrell: "Yours may be de vine, but mine's de berries."

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

TURN OUT THE LIGHTS.

Last year some little misunderstanding occurred on a date night when the lights in the parlors went out. Whether they were trying to save some on our electric light bill or not, has not yet come to light, but we hope the purpose was good.

The light bill of the school comes to a large amount each month and each bulb in the school has a part in running the bill higher

A number of us hae a habit of leaving lights on in our rooms when we're to be out several hours. Every little bit of electricity saved, helps toward making the bill smaller.

It is said that John D. Rockefellow turns the lights out in his home as he walks from room to room. There are no "John Ds" here we know, but let's all try to be like him in one way and turn off lights when we do not need them.

When you go about
Turn your lights out,
Don't leave them burning there,
We have no light money to spare.
Now when you have a date
Of course, a light you rate!
But when you have not need of light
Why, put it out of sight.
Let's pull that bill so far down,
That when the light man makes his round
He'll be so surprised to see
The light bill "ain't what it used to be."

DO YOU CHARGE?

What a funny question, but do you?. If you do, please stop and think about some of these things. The merchants in Farmville are kind enough to give us the privilege of having credit accounts with them, we are going to be honest enough not to walk over their kindness. Many people, when they see something they want have the habit of walking in and getting it, whether they have the money or not. They simply say, "Please charge this to me." The other day I happened to hear a girl say that she had seen a pair of shoes, liked them and had gotten them. Her companion made the remark that she wanted a pair but she simply couldn't afford to get a pair at the time. The first girl laughed and said, "Oh! I couldn't either but I charge them. I don't know when I'll ever be able to pay for them but I simply had to have them." Is this fair? All of us, at some time or other, want to make use of this privilege as a convenience, but if some girls are going to over-step bounds all of us are going to be deprived of this privilege. You know the old saying, "pay day has to come." It is certainly true, so let's pay as we go, as far as possible, and not charge until we know how and when we are going to pay for what we get.

THE LITERARY HACK

He was a writer, and he learned
The art, "in all its phases,"
Of using wellknown synonyms,
And penning hackneyed phrases.
"Conspicuous by his absence" was Another standby, too,
A maiden had "a willowy form,"
And "hair of golden hue."
He followed on "with bated breath,"
"So near and yet so far",
"An eagle glance," "magnetic gaze,"
"The moaning of the bar;"
'A sight to make the angels weep,"
"The human form divine,"
"Dilating nostrils," "flowing locks"
"And all the uses nine."
"The inner man," "last but not least"
"A few well-chosen words,"
"The mellow moon" and "twinkling stars,"
And "little twittering birds,"
"Arch smile," and "lips of rosy tint"
"A dainty gloved hand"
And "succulent bivalve", of course
Was always in demand.
To "philosophic heights" he'd rise,
"Of reason chew the cud,"
And never once did he forget
To write of "sickening thud."

GIRLS AND GIRLS

There are many different kinds of girls
Some with straight hair, some with curls.
Some are awkward, some are bold
Some who neer do as they are told.
Girls who are bashful and painfully shy
Who, when you tease them will always cry.
Girls who are dumb and girls who are bright
Some look "the thing", some look a fright.
Some are quite pretty, some are neat
Some are dignified, some are sweet
Some girls are happy, some are blue
But the question is—"What kind are you?"

THE BOOK SHELF

One Increasing Purpose by A. S. M. Hutcheson

This novel by the same author as Main Street, is a splendid story of the spiritual effect of the World War on certain people in England.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, says, "The fumbling search of this generation for spiritual meaning in life is admirably portrayed in Hutcheson's Simon Paris. His name will be a staple of dinner table conversation on every Main Street in America before the year is over."

Glorious Apollo—by E. Barrington

This is the story of the life of Byron—a concoction of history and fiction. It is well worth reading.

LITTLE THINGS

It takes a little muscle
And it takes a little grit,
A little true ambition
With a little bit of wit.
It's not the "biggest" things that count
And make the "biggest" show;
It's the little things that people do
That makes the old world go.

A little bit of smiling
And a little sunny chat
A little bit of courage
To a comrade slipping back,
It's not the "biggest" things that count
And make the "biggest" show
It's the little things that people do
That makes the old world go.

It takes a kindly action
And it takes a word of cheer
To fill a life with sunshine
And to drie away a tear.
Great things are not the 'biggest' things
That make the "biggest" show;
It's the little things that we may do
That make this old world go.

WHAT IS A TYPICAL S. T. C. GIRL?

Every girl at S. T. C., in one sense of the term is an S. T. C. girl, but in another sense, she is merely a student enrolled in an educational institute to get what she can and give nothing. There is another type of what an S. T. C. girl really is and should be.

First, she is a truly representative girl taking part in all school activities her work will allow and having a general interest in everything about the school. She must be, in every sense of the word, a leader. Her work must not be below average nor is it necessary for her record to be A throughout.

An S. T. C. girl is a girl who seems to have the school at heart and all her actions in connection with the school will show whether she has or not.

SOCIAL

Last Wednesday afternoon the Domestic Club was entertained at a tea given by Miss Wheeler at her room. An enjoyable hour was spent, during which refreshments were served. Some of our members were unable to be with us, but we were especially glad to have the new members present.

After the tea a short business meeting was held for the purpose of discussing our first play for this season which we expect to present some time the first of this year. Characters were chosen and parts assigned. Practice will start the first of this week, and we hope to make this one of the most beautiful we have ever presented.

TEA FOR MISS MARSHALL

Miss Grace Mix and Miss Ruth Davis entertained a group of friends at a little tea on Saturday, in honor of Miss Elizabeth Marshall, recently added to the English faculty of the State Teachers College.

The tea was given at the home of Mr. Frank Hubbard, who rented his. The sitting rom and dining room were decorated with marigolds, which added a note of warmth and cheer to the pleasant occasion.

Those present were Misses Hayne, Wheeler, Stubbs, Peck, Carter, Lewis McDonald, Her, Lila London, Willie London, Jones, Penny, Cooper, Mary Clay Hiner, Winnie Hiner, and Mrs. Coyner.

FORUM ARTICLE ASKS $50,000,00 FOR PROFS

Frank Bohn Says That College Professors Should Receive From $20,000 to $50,000 a Year,

The October issue of the Forum contains an article by Frank Bohn which is particularly [illegible] institution of learning [illegible] States. The title of the article is "$50,000 for Professors," and in it Mr Bohn makes a rather general arraignment of the American college as it now is.

In the beginning the author reviews recent gifts to colleges by Rockefeller, Eastman, Duke and others totaling $1,585,500,000. He compares this with the average salary of a college professor, which he places at $2,292. The result, he says, is the decay of the trained leader and the consequent degeneration of cultured democracy which is "drowned out by a noisy flood of ignorance and vulgar materialism." Mr. Bohn's diagnosis of the trouble is best shown by a quotation:

"Our colleges and universities suffer primarily from elephantiasis. One Western State university advertises that it ministers to over 40,000. * * * Under the circumstances we might expect from the * * * head of the department of dietetics that each student in his department can consume five pounds of baked potatoes with his dinner."

The prescription given under a head called "The Endowment of the Mind." Mr. Bohn first suggests a restriction of numbers. He adds the following as the remaining steps for the "regeneration": a faculty of about two hundred, the division of the faculty into less artificial classes, and the paying of larger salaries. On this point Mr. Bohn says:

"The salary of either sort of professor should equal that of the average corporation lawyer and the leading scientists in our industrial laboratories. At present the professors should receive from $30,000 to $50,000 annually.

"Probably it would be expecting too much to believe that one of our existing [illegible] can save its soul and regenerate its body after the fashion [illegible] scribed. * * *

"That group which has the vision, the means, and the will to create the first school of the sort will be among America's most useful benefactors in this terror-stricken generation."

New Pupil: "Do you teach French and Spanish too?"

Professor: "No, I don't teach Spanish two; I teach Spanish one."

WHY YOU NEED THIS GUIDE

"It is safe to say that failure to guide and direct study is the weak point in the whole educational machine. Prof G. M. Whipple, U. of Michigan.

"The successful men in college do not seem to be very happy. Most of them, especially the athletes are overworked." Prof. H. S. Canby, Yale.

"Misdirected labor, though honest and well intentioned may lead to naught. Among the most important things for the student to learn is how to study. Without knowledge of this his labor may be largely in vain." Prof. G. F. Swain, M. I. T.

"To students who have never learnt "How to Study," work is very often a chastisement, a flagellation and an insuperable obstacle to contentment." Prof. A. Inglis, Harvard.

"HOW TO STUDY" will show you how to avoid all misdirected effort Get a good start and make this year a highly successful one by sending for this hand-book and guide NOW.

SENIOR INSTALLATION SERVICE IS HELD

The installing of the senior class made an unusually effective service. Thursday night at seven the seniors in their gowns, with their junior girls carrying their caps, walked down the center aisle of the auditorium to the strains of our Alma Mater. On the stage Dr. Jarman palced each senior's cap on her head. After singing the Almat Mater song, Dr. Jarman gave a short talk in which he stressed the two ideals of our college, high scholarships and, of still more importance, the spirit of service. Miss Emma Mebane Hunt ended the service by singing in her usual charming manner "Smiling Thru."

HONORARY MEMBER PRESENTED BY SENIOR CLASS

Miss Hiner Honorary Member Senior Class

The Seniors, in order to celebrate fully their first appearance in chapel in caps and gowns, on Saturday morning, presented their honorary member, Miss Mary Clay Hiner. After their president, had presented Miss Hiner to the student body, the class sang to her the songs, which are her own, written for her by the class.

The Seniors have the honor of being the first to present their "class man." This presentation proved so attractive that the other classes will have to think hard in order to have a better one.

DR. JAMES ELLIOT WALMSLEY SUCCEEDS DR. TURNER AS HEAD HISTORY DEPT.

DR. JAMES ELLIOT WALMSLEY

We are fortunate in getting such a man as Dr. Walmsley as head of the History Department. He has had much experience as one may see from the short account of his career as a teacher since 1893 when he began as a professor of English and Greek. Dr. Walmsley has already won his classes by his outspoken opinions, his fairness, his knowledge of his subject, and his ability to impart it with interest. We have every reason to believe that he will wn his future classes as he has won these of the first term and at the close of the year Dr. Walmsley will be one of the most popular and highly respected teachers on our campus.

Dr. Walmsey is a member of the honorary fraternity Pi Gamma Mu, the new fraternity in social science, with the same requirements as Phi Beta Kappa, in academic work.

The following will give an account of where he has been and what he has done before he came to S. T. C. His most recent work is a book of documents on "The Change of Secessoin Sentiment in Virginia in 1865."

WEYANOKE HOTEL FORMALLY OPENED

Raising of the Flag Over the Building Attended With Ceremonies by American Legion, Silver Band and Company G.

The opening of the Hotel Weyanoke on last Tuesday, October 20th, marked a new day in the hotel history of Farmville. Together with the two other hotels of this city, The Prince Edward and the Continental, it lists this city with the leading hotel centers of this State. Situated on the Washington-Raleigh highway, half way between the two cities, and about the half way point on the Norfolk-Bristol highway, Farmville will undoubtedly be known as the most convenient hotel center in the State.

The opening of the Weyanoke was attended by an elaborate program. The parade formed at the north end of Main Street at 5:00 o'clock, and was led by the Farmville Silver Band, up Main Street to the hotel, on the corner of North and High streets. In the parade were the American Legion, Company G, The Directors of the hotel and the stockholders. Little Miss Virginia Martin, daughter of E. S. Martin, president of the hotel corporation, was dressed in a red, white and blue costume, and had the honor of raising the flag at the hotel, while the band played the national anthem and Company G, fired a salute.

Governor E. Lee Trinkle, made the address of dedication, in which he praised the community spirit which fostered the hotel, and greatly complimented this city for its progressive spirit.

Following the Governor's address of dedication, over two thousand people made an inspection of the new building between the hours of 6:00 and 10:00 o'clock. Many interested persons came from out of town, and hotel men from the nearby cities were guests of the hotel management.

The front door opens into a spa-

WOMANLESS WEDDING

Don't miss the womanless wedding in the Auditorium on Tuesday night 7 P. M. "Why is it being given?"

"So you can have a good laugh!"

"What for?"

"What a silly question; for the Student Building, of course!

The admission is only ten cents and you get at least a quarter's worth of laughs, besides seeing our own Faculty and the men in town in the wedding. If you miss it you shall be eternally sorry. Be sure to come and bring a dime.

M. Semashks, of the Soviet Commission of Health hopes to preserve experienced fights in the Soviet cause and is said to have aided the rejuvenation of Klarazethin, 68, famed "Grandmother of German Communism."

SHOULD SORORITIES HOLD BACK CLUBS?

Would the clubs, Pi Apha, Mu Omega and Zeta Tau mean more to th non-sorority girls if the sorority girls were not allowed to be members? From all observations and experience in the matter, it is, without a doubt, evident that the clubs would be better off without sorority girls. There is proof of this in the Zeta Tau Club, which is recognized as meaning more to its members than either Pi Alpha or Mu Omega.

Of course the sorority girls have more interest in their sororities than in their clubs. This is expected and is evident in all cases, by their indifference and attitude after the club bids are all over. Sorority "rushing" was given the preference, and right to "rush", and bid first. This is evidence enough of where most of the interest of the sorority girl lies, for each member of the sorority Pan-Hellenic is a club girl.

Sororities accomplish something and do good whether it is made public or not. And at the same time enjoy some social life. What do the clubs do? Nothing,—beause they are not as one, the interest is divided. The very name "Club" signifies that it's members should be "club girls". And it makes the name "sorority club girls" rather inane.

Without sorority-girl membership clubs would eventually take in a larger group and this will give more girls the advantage of social life while at school. Should the sorority girls monopolize the social field of the school with the exception of the Y. W. C. A. social functions? The club will have its interests from a different viewpoint and will be able to accomplish more in the social line or any other interests it may take up.

If a sorority, later on in the year should wish to bid a club girl, the club will not be so binding as to not allow any resignations.

Sorority girls have expense enough in their sororities, without taking on the expense of a club.

In a recent club meeting fifty girls' names were "brought up." About thirty of these were "rushees" of sororities. Is it fair to the club girls to draw the same dead "timber" year after year and by so doing, destroy all hopes of ever making the club membership worth anything?

The only solution to the matter, it seems, is to expel the clubs from the school or turn them over to "club girls" who can make something of them.

LET ME WALK WITH THE MEN IN THE ROAD

By Walter J. Gresham

The poet, a half truth the poet has sung
Of the house by the side of the way;
Our Master had neither a house nor a home,
But he walked with the crowd day by day.
And I think, when I read of the poet's desire,
That a home by the road would be good,
That service is found in its tenderest form
When we walk with the crowd in the road.
So I say, let me walk with men in the road,
Let me share out the burdens that crush,
Let me speak a kind word of good cheer to the weak,
Who are falling behind in the rush.
There are wounds to be healed, there are breaks we must bend,
There's a cup of cold water to give;
And the man in the road by the side of his friend
Is the man who has learned to live.
Then tell me no more of the house by the road,
There is only one place I can live;
It's there with the men who are toiling along,
Who are needing the cheer I can give.
It is pleasant to live in the house by the way,
And be a friend, as the poet has said,
But the Master is bidding us, "Bear ye their load,
For your rest waiteth yonder ahead."
I could not remain in the house by the road
And watch as the toilers go on;
Their faces beclouded with pain and with sin,
So burdened, their strength nearly gone.
I'll go to their side, I'll speak in good cheer,
I'll help them carry their load;
And I'll smile at the man in the house by the way
As I walk with the crowd in the road.
But there in the road thatgoes by the house,
Where the poet is singing his song,
I'll walk and I'll work midst the heat of the day,
And I'll help falling brothers along.
Too busy to live in house by the way,
Too happy for such an abode,
And my heart sings its praise to the Master of all,
Who is helping me serve in the road.

SHALL WE HAVE POST OFFICE BOXES?

How many times has this question been asked? Every year it comes up anew and always the answer is, "We want them," but the question was "Shall we have them?" Whether we shall have them or not depends a great deal on the Students, if we want them, we must do our part toward getting them. The school has very heavy expenses to bear and Post Office boxes cannot be had for nothing. Dr. Jarman hesitates to add one cent of expense to that which we already have, so it is up to us to find a solution to the problem Here is onewe think suitable. The classes, that is Seniors, Juniors and Sophomores, have decided that they want Post Office boxes so badly, that they will willingly earn money and pay for the boxes. They are willing to give a part and to give in proportion to the members in the class, providing of course, that Dr. Jarman is willing and that the expenses will not be too heavy.

Since the girls want the boxes so badly there must be some reason, and when a proposition is stated, reasons must always be given. Why do we want Post Office boxes instead of getting mail in the dining room as we have been doing? There are many excellent reasons. One is that the meal is interrupted if we get the mail before we start to eat, some piece of news which we may receive in a letter will distress or excite us so that we cannot eat our meal, and certainly cannot digest it. When we get the mail during the meal, the meal is interrupted for we either eat hurriedly in order to get through and read our letter or, sometimes when we have a letter that we are particularly anxious to read, we stop right where we are and read the letter. If the mail is not given out unil we finish we are kept in the dining room longer, noise is bad when the notices are being read, then in case of bad news or of some unusual piece of news, our digestive system is likely to be upset, so that the food we have eaten does us little or no good. There are other reasons, sometimes the mesasge in a letter comes just too late for you to catch a train, or get a letter off in time to catch one, while if the mail were put in boxes when it arrives this would be avoided. At present we waste a great deal of time standing in package line. A great deal of this lost time might be saved and a large amount of slips and energy by having Post Office boxes; for all the packages of small size might be put in these boxes, while the larger ones could be called for. The question of why we eat at one table a whole year has often been asked, the answer is simple. When mail is given out at the table, it is simply impossible to change tables during the year, without a great deal of confusion and trouble. If this were done away with perhaps every term a table hostess might have the privilege of inviting different girls to eat at her table. Things would certainly be much more pleasant, for it very often happens that girls at a table aren't entirely congenial, and at the same time it gives each girl a chance to become well acquainted.

Shall we have Post Office boxes. Do we want them badly enough to work for them and to cooperate? Can you think of stronger and better reasons why we shouldn't have them? It's up to us if we want them, to prove that we do. Shall the answer be "we will"?

NEW CLUB ORGANIZED

The thirteen girls who represent Lunenburg County at S. T. C. met last week and organized a club. The Lunenburg Club elected as its president Madeline Gary, and Ruth Love as secretary and treasurer. With these active officers and the cooperation on the part of each member we are going to try and make this club worth while. We will strive to uphold our Alma Mater as a group as well as individually. Our colors are red and white and our flower is the red rambler. Regular meetings will be held the first Saturday in every month.

THE TRIANGLE CLUB

The Triangle Club which is composed of the Prince George, Nansemond and Isle of Wight county girls, met on Tuesday, October 6 for the purpose of recrganizing. The following officers were elected:

Annie Leigh Gwaltney — Pres.
Henrietta Binford — Secretary
Eva Lowe — Treasurer
Virginia Temple and Adelia Burrows — Reporters
Mary G. Hall, and Adelia Burrows — Social Committee

We were glad to be able to welcome so many of the old members, and delighted to know that we would have so many new girls with us.

We feel that we have a "peppy" little club, and have already made great plans for the coming year.

Morris Is Tennis Champion

Mildred Morris is the Champion! She is the one that will be the owner of individual cup which the Athletic Association has offered to the tennis champion of S. T. C.

The final tennis game was staged Thursday at 4:30 and the contest was a hard fought battle between Vincent of '27 and Morris of '29. The game began with each girl losing her own serve. However, Vincent rallied and won three successive games making the score 3—1. After this both players tightened and tied the score many times until Morris won two successive games making the first set hers with a score of 8—6.

The second set was a game of endurance which finally ended in Morris' favor with a score of 6—3. Vincent's luck in "scooping" balls and her good placing, made her outmatch Morris many times, since Morris' placing proved to be her weak point. However, Morris' endurance and her accuracy in serving, as well as her good form, were points in her favor.

The game was won by "a green and white" from "a green and white." However, the victory could not be attributed, in the least, to the backing of the class for none of the four college classes showed enough interest to have more than half a dozen representatives present at the final tournament.

Basketball

Sophomores and Freshmen are starting out basketball season with a bang. The Freshmen are falling in line rapidly for a fine team and are determined to win the game for the green and white this year. The 'Sophs' are determined to "reclaim their cup" consequently all kinds of excitement is promised for Thanksgiving.

The Juniors and Seniors are also at work on their team. Everyone wonders which will win (?)

The varsity has been put through a course on fundamentals and technique. This year the school is trying to develop coaches and officials. Anyone who is interested in preparing for either is urged to report to the coach.

The schedule for class and varsity practice has been arranged as follows:

Freshmen: Monday and Wednesday.
Sophomores: Tuesday and Thursday
Juniors: Wednesday.
Seniors: Tuesday.
Varsity: Saturday.

Hockey

Hockey practice has begun! It started off with plenty of pep last week. The girls were enthusiastic over the game and have a big game Thanksgiving as the hockey objective for this year. Thanksgiving day will be a big day this year. In the morning the basketball games will be played while hockey will be staged in the afternoon. It is necessary that all girls report on the Athletic Field Wednesday at 4:15 as groups will be assigned at that time.

Monogram Try-Outs

Monogram try-outs will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 3:15 on the Athletic Field. All interested must report at this time.

Recognition Service

Perhaps the most impressive service in our college, especially to the new girls, is the Recognition Service of the Y. W. C. A.

Last Tuesday night, amidst the solemn glow of candles and soft strains of music, the President and Y. W. C. A. Cabinet moved down the central aisle of the auditorium, followed by the new girls.

After the Vice-President presented the new members, the President welcomed them into the Association, and they went forward and lighted their candles from those of the Cabinet. Then each girl asked the Father of all Creation to keep the glow of Christian love and friendship forever burning in her heart.

The Recessional was led by the Cabinet, who were followed by the new members.

We are glad to welcome you, new members! May each of you "Follow the Gleam" as eagerly as you sang it!

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY SCHOOL FAIR

The Prince Edward County School Fair was held in the Armory October 22 and 23.

The exhibits showed the progress and consolidation of the schools. They were attractively displayed and many of the posters made by the pupils and teachers showed exceptional skill.

The Prince Edward County Federation allowed fifty dolarls out of the budget for the County Educational Exhibit. Forty dollars was offered as prizes for the best community league in Prince Edward County, the best Junior League, the most attractive exhibit, and the best essay on "The Junior League." Prospect won five prizes, Farmville two and Rice and Baghy Chapel each one.

The fair was exceptionally good and gave a good representation of the work done in the schools of Prince Edward County.

"No; only on a small scale."

"Sir, your daughter has promised to become my wife."

"Well, don't come to me for sympathy. I knew something like that would hapen to you hanging around the house five nights a week."

Slow

Barber: "Your har iis turning gray n the back, sir."

Customer: "I don't wonder at it,—hurry up."

Good Old Days

"When I was young," said Aunt Jane, "Young girls never thought of loing the things they do today."

"That's probably why they didn't lo them," drawled the girl.

Danger

"Ulay's fiance is supposed to be a dreadfully bad egg."

"I wondered why she didn't drop him."

"Youth is a blunder; manhood a struggle; old age a regret."

NOTE

The staff apprpeciates the response which Freshmen and several old girls have made in answer to the call of The Rotunda. Jokes, essays and poems have been handed in. Some of the contributors are Lorah Brewer, Virginia Burkes and Maude Clark. Keep the good work up and remember you are invited to any staff meeting you wish to attend on Wednesday nights at seven o'clock.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE HONORED

One of Four in U. S. Chosen for Rural Research Work

In a letter to our Y. W. C. A. secretary, Miss Winnifred Wygal, National Secretary states the following:

"Under the Ford Fund, which is a special gift of Henry Ford to the National Board for research work in rural and community contacts, there has been employed Miss Galdys Taylor who is half student and half rural secretary, to do eighteen months of special study of the way college Y. W. C. A. girls who are preparing to be teachers, fit into their communities. After studying all of the colleges in the Unted Staties to decide which four are most ideal for this study, we have chosen these: Washington State College, Pullman, Washington; Illinois State Normal, Normal Illinois; New Hampshire State College, Durham, New Hampshire; and State Teachers College at Farmville; the last, of course, provided you and your cabinet are willing. The reason we chose Farmville is because it has a good local student secretary, a strong, thriving Y. W. C. A., is a teachers college well recommended by Miss Karney and others of the Rural Education Department at Columbia with whom we are working, and because it fits small town and rural communities with teachers."

One of four! Are we just swelled with pride? I'll say we are!

cious lobby lounge, with clerk's desk facing the entrance. The elevator, dining room, ladies room, check room, public telephone booths, managers office and suite of rooms opens into the lobby, and are arranged so that the maximum service can be accorded guests with minimum effort. The main stairway up and down from the ground floor is located in the elevator lobby, the freight elevator is located in the far end of the elevator lobby with entrances on the ground and basement floor, from store room. It is isolated from the bed rooms on the upper floors.

The main dining room opens into the right of the lobby, immediately behind which is one of the most modernly equipped kitchens in the state.

The ladies room, to the left of the lobby, is a special provision for the convenience of automobile tourists. It is attractively fitted with lounging space, beautiful draperies and carpets.

The ground floor, because of the grade, gives opportunity for a business store for rent and a barber shop which is operated by Mack and Owen. A dining room located under the kitchen, can be used for club banquets, or other purposes. This will not interfere with the main dining room business. In addition to this, there is sufficient room for several excellent sample rooms, as well as servants rooms and store rooms.

The second, third and fourth floors are arranged for bedrooms, so that every room has direct connection with a bath room, the bath being placed between the two rooms, making it possible to rent them with or without bath or ensuite with bath. Each bed room is entirely covered with carpets, and is fitted out with either single or twin beds, a table and chairs, bureau, spacious closets, and running water in every room.

The entire effect of the hotel, its fixtures and furnishings, gives a homey atmosphere, a plain and simple, but hospitable appearance.

FARMVILLE WOMANS CLUB MEETS

Miss Leola Wheeler Gives Interesting Account of Period Furniture

On Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Farmville Women's Club, Miss Leola Wheeler read a very interesting and instructive account of "Early American Period Furniture." This account and the slides to illustrate it were sent to the club from national headquarters. Miss Ilma Von Schilling assisted Miss Wheeler by operating the machine by which the slides were shown.

Members of Miss Katharine Tupper's Home Making Class, who attended, the meeting, gained very helpful information from the illustrated account of period furniture.

Volume VI — THE ROTUNDA, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1925 — NO. 5

World War item. In the discussion of America's debt, Dr. Walmsley brought out the fact that twenty countries owe the United States, and only one of those countries has paid her debt—that being Cuba. America seems to have more trouble with the French debt. Dr. Walmsley stated that President Coolidge did not want that "talked up" for fear of agitation among the Americans citizens.

Dr. Walmsley stated also that the United States owed millions to foreign countries—her national debt being twenty-two millions. Dr. Walmsley said that the question being discussed at the present time was, when the United States should pay her World War debt. It has been suggested by prominent men of our country that we pay after a term of fifty or even sixty-two years, but if we are to wait that long the amount owed will doubtless be doubled. If the United States pays within the next few years, taxes will run up. Dr. Walmsley stated that the most vital question before the citizens of today is "Shall we wait?"

A MESSAGE OF APPRECIATION

"It's the little things that count." How very old is this saying and yet it still holds true. So often the little things which count must pass us by unnoticed and unappreciated. To the doer they are a pleasure and not a duty—she performs through love those little services which mean so much to all the passers-by. There are little duties to perform everywhere and S. T. C. has its share of opportunities. I wonder how many students have no-

ALUMNAE TO HOLD A CARNIVAL SOON

All Organizations Are Invited to Take Part

The Farmville Chapter of the Alumnae Association is to give a carnival the first part of December in the gymnasium. Several years ago the Alumnae had a carnival in which all the organzations in school who wished, took part. It was a great success—in fact, such a success that they were requested to repeat it—well, they waited awhile to repeat it, but they are doing it this year and on a much larger scale.

At a meeting of representatives from all the organizations Miss Mary Clay Hiner invited each one to take part. There will be ring performances and side shows. For the best ring performance, the contest is open to all, a prize of five dollars ($5.00) will be given, and for the second best performance a prize of two dollars ($2.00). The organizations besides putting on ring performances may each have a side show of some kind.

Everyone has been very enthusiastic so far, and if the classes, clubs etc., want to have their choice of stunts, they had better say so at once, as everyone will have an equal chance.

This will be an opportunity for everyone to have a good time and for all of us to make some money, so let's all help the alumnae and ourselves by boosting the Carnival!

COMMITTEE ON POST OFFICE BOXES HAS BEEN APPOINTED

As a result of the suggestions given in last weeks' editorial on "Shall We Have Post Office Boxes?" a committee has been selected to carry the plan out as far as possible.

The committee is as follows:

Members, Virginia Vincent, Virginia Updike.

The Freshman class is expected to play its part in this work and as soon as the class president is elected she will be invited to join the committee.

...sider yourselves among the adult classes or approaching that age, will wonder, no doubt, what such an article is doing in a college publication. You, probably have forgotten the many times that your grandmother has brought cosmos out of chaos with a jingling doggerel such as "Polly put the kettle on" or "Ride a cockhorse to Banbury Cross." Thus, we think it only fitting that we take the part of old Mother Goose, pleaded the case of her, who was condemned to perdition by her son-in-law.

Howbeit, it has remained for the new school to psychoanalyze, and alas, they have found her to be responsible for most of the ills of our day. Why she condones slovenliness in the very lines,

It has been suggested that we exchange Mother Goose for such educational gems as this:

"What makes us stand so tall and straight?
Our bones, which number two hundred eight;"

or this one which tends to correct fear complexes by padding the strong arm of the law:

"Let Friend Policeman be your guide
When into the street you go.
Whether you walk or in autos ride,
You must mind the rules, you know."

AMERICAN COLLEGES PROVE VITAL FACTOR IN RED CROSS DRIVE

First Aid Made Credit in Schools

Seven years ago the curtain of molten steel which had shut out nation from nation and people from people, was lifted to disclose a world made over. Spent and breathless, the peoples of the earth emerged from under this barrier to find themselves in a new era.

First to sense this change was the American Red Cross. From an organization bending every resource to meet war needs, it turned to a peace program which in itself, and in the manner in which it has been executed, is a monument to American vision.

Sharing in this achievement have been the college men and women of the United States. Wholeheartedly they have accepted the Red Cross program, and with the spirit characteristic of American youth, have made it their own. An important part of the Red Cross program has for its aim the elimination of useless deaths from accidents, whether in the water, or from every-day mishaps. The toll from this cause is just beginning to be realized, and it is to the credit of the country's universities and colleges that they are meeting the situation in the way it demands. In the University of Kentucky, for example First Aid has been made an accredited course; classified as Hygeine 2 under the Department of Hygeine and Public Health in the College of Arts and Sciences. While academically listed in this college as a subject, it is elective for students in all colleges of this university. As a credit it counts two for graduation; as a course it is given two hours a week each semester for 18 weeks; being thus repeated to reach two separate groups during the University session. The plan is not simply an experiment; it is generally believed that the course is vital, practical and necessary, worthy of consideration in comparison with other subjects. The worth of the course to the individual, and through him to any community where his career may take him after college, may be better estimated when it is realized that accidents in the United States during the World War period claimed one and one-half times as many persons as did the shells and machine guns faced by the American troops during the same interval.

President Frank L. McVey, of the Kentucky institution, makes this observation: "Instruction in First Aid is a matter too long neglected in our colleges. Somewhere along the line of education such instruction should be given and if not in high schools certainly in the colleges. —Such a course comes to have standing in the department offering it and has real value as an educational factor."

Other faculty members speak in equally high terms of this work which is not new in this particular university, but is representative of their attitude.

Further indication of the part which institutions of higher education so stressed today by leaders in the nursing profession. Work was concentrated during the past summer in two key positions, Pennsylvania State Col-

S. T. C.'S PAINTINGS TO BE DISCUSSED BY THE STUDENTS OF ART

"Peace and Plenty" is Subject

Among the most beautiful paintings in our college, is that of "Peace and Plenty," a landscape by George Inness. This artist was born in Newburg, N. Y. in 1825 and died in 1894. He studied in France and England, but most of his famous pictures were painted around New York and New Jersey. "His was an original—a distinctly American mind in art." Among his most famous paintings are: "The Midfield Meadows," "Grey Lowering Day," "Peace and Plenty", Meadgara," and "Delaware Water Gap." A number of his original paintings are in museums, but quite a few of them are in private homes.

'Peace and Plenty" is one of the most beautiful of the pictures in the Student Building Lounge. It will be found on the left of the fire place.

The painting is a landscape noted for its naturalness. After gazing at it but a moment we can easily imagine ourselves lying in the cool grass under the shadows of the great elms. Nearby are two harvesters engaged in conversation—probably resting before assuming their cutting of grain. In the distance we can hear the creaking of a wagon as it moves slowly down the road under its heavy load. And then, there is the laping of the water, and an occasional "thump" as a big old frog falls in. It is late afternoon we know by the long shadows cast across the water. In our imagination we can hear the sweet notes of a bird as he calls to his mate. . . .

In conclusion as to the power of the picture, I shall quote De Garmo Winslow, "I am convinced that it should appeal to all who love nature, and nature is of course, universal in her appeal. The picture will always appal to men the world over!"

The above article was written by a student of Miss Coulling's Freshman Drawing Class. In each issue of The Rotunda will appear a similiar article on famous paintings in S. T. C. Miss Coulling is having this done in order that all students may know something of the famous paintings in our college.

HAVE YOU DONE YOUR PART TOWARD THE Y. W. C. A. BUDGET?

When the Y. W. C. A. membership campaign was put on, and resulted in nearly every new girl here joining, all the Cabinet was delighted. Of course the nextthing on the program was the Finance Campaign. Perhaps the results of the membership drive had given the Cabinet too high hopes for the finance drive, anyway, they are greatly disappointed. The most disappointing thing was that the old girls didn't do any better than the new girls. Have you done your part?

The purpose of the Y. W. C. A. is to better the moral and social standing of the school and to promote good fellowshinp between the students, they can't carry on their work without funds. No one person is asked to give much. If only everyone would do her part we should have no trouble, we need not feel any extra strain on our finances at all. If we would each say I will give up going to the tea room, or some other place where we spend money foolishly, for one day each week and give that money to the Y. W. C. A. they could easily carry on its work and we would hardly miss the money we had given. Perhaps, if we could feel it, it would do us more good. Have you ever noticed how much more pleasure we get out of giving a gift when we deny ourselves something in order to give it.

Think over the fact that the Y. W. C. A. does not make a demand for any certain amount, and only asks us to give what we can. The pledges have amounted to just about half of the budget. Do you know what that means? It means that a number of girls in school have not pledged at all and that those who have pledged, in many cases have given just a very small sum, perhaps what they happened to have on hand at the minute. Some girls have done their part and more than their part and they will probably feel that they will have to do more unless some of us who are slackers will come forward and help make up the deficiency.

It is embarassing for the Y. W. to have to keep on asking for money just as it is embarassing for us, but, unless we help them by doing our part without being constantly reminded, [illegible] to be the reminders.

Let's surprise the Treasurer and the Finance chairman by making the Y. W. C. A. budget go over the mark this week

HOW DO WE KEEP SUNDAY?

When we leave home and go off to school, most of us do not have any idea of what to expect. We have no idea that our ways of living, our atmosphere and our very ideals may be changed. Yet, this is true. In every phase of existence we find ourselves adrift, to settle down and to settle in a way which will not lower but raise our ideals is the hardest problem which faces us.

One of the first questions we have to decide, and one which only

CHAPEL TALK ON AMERICA'S WAR DEBT

—o—

Dr. Walmsley Gives Second Talk

During chapel Tuesday, Dr. Walmsley discussed one of the most interesting topics of the day—America's World War Debt. In the discussion of America's debt, Dr. Walmsley brought in the fact that twenty countries owe the United States, and only one of those countries has paid her debt—that being Cuba. America seems to have more trouble with the French debt. Dr. Walmsley stated that President Coolidge did not want that "talked up" for fear of agitation among the Americans citizens.

Dr. Walmsley stated also that the United States owed millions to foreign countries—her national debt being twenty-two millions. Dr. Walmsley said that the question being discussed at the present time was, when the United States should pay her World War debt. It has been suggested by prominent men of our country that we pay after a term of fifty or even sixty-two years, but if we are to wait that long the amount owed will doubtless be doubled. If the United States pays within the next few years, taxes will run up. Dr. Walmsley stated that the most vital question before the citizens of today is "Shall we wait?"

A MESSAGE OF APPRECIATION

"It's the little things that count." How very old is this saying and yet it still holds true. So often the little things which count must pass us by unnoticed and unappreciated. To the doer they are a pleasure and not a duty—she performs through love those little services which mean so much to all the passers-by. There are little duties to perform everywhere and S. T. C. has its share of opportunities. I wonder how many students have noticed the plants in the Library? Perhaps you have noticed them, but have you ever stopped to consider that someone's thoughtfulness and care keeps them green and beautiful to brighten the room for us? Have you ever wondered who this someone is? She is no other than Miss M. K. Taliaferro and we wish to take this means of expressing to her our appreciation of her services to others.

HOME DEPARTMENT AND FACULTY NEWS

Misses Winnie and Mary Clay Hiner returned Tuesday, after spending a delightful visit of three days at their home in Staunton.

Miss Lessie Lea was recently in Richmond shopping.

Among the members of the faculty who attended the American Country Life Association held in Richmond this week were Misses Willie London, Lila London, Florence Stubbs, Pauline Camper, and Dr. J. L. Jarman, president.

Miss Ada Bierbower accompanied a group of S. T. C. students to the American Country Life Association in Richmond over the week-end.

DR ALDERMAN'S ADVICE

President E. A. Alderman of the University of Virginia says, "Our colleges stand in need of having the most gifted high school instructors promoted for teaching courses where the aim is not purely graduate research work, but skillful and inspiring teaching."

He states, "There are many high school teachers of today of far greater didactic and pedagogical ability than very learned young Doctors of Philosophy functioning as assistant professors."

OPENING DANCES AT HAMPDEN-SIDNEY ATTENDED BY MANY S. T. C. GIRLS

The German Club of Hampden-Sidney entertained at their Fall Dances on the 31st of October, at the Comity Club. A color scheme of Garnet and Gray, the school colors, was carried out in the decorations. Many Farmville girls attended, and they could not decide which night was best because both were so enjoyable. The Old Dominion Orchestra furnished the music. The girls from school, who attended, with their escorts are the following:

Miss Gertrude Quinn with Mr. Jimmy Bowers.

Miss Margaret Lewis Stearnes with Dr. W. J. Sydnor.

Miss Alice Thomas with Mr. Jack Morton.

Miss Dorothy Myers with Mr. Robert Moss.

Miss Mary Alice Blanton with Mr John Brinser.

Miss Besise Meade Riddle with Mr. Lacy Tynes.

Miss Polly Riddle with Mr. Edward Sager.

Miss Eleanor Zacharias with Mr Ridley Alexander.

Miss Helen Hodges with Mr. Lewis Holliday.

Miss Amelia Johnson with Mr. Wm. Peery.

Miss Mary Johns with Mr. Marion Parker.

Miss Margaret Jordan with Mr Alexander Hamilton.

Miss Gweldolyn Hatch with Mr. Wm. McPherson.

Miss Frances Tull with Mr. Chilton Day.

Miss Sylvia Seigel with Mr. Hank Burstem.

Miss Ruth Salasky with Mr. Frank Rinehart.

Miss Kitty Reid with Mr. Jeff Gills.

Miss Gwendolyn Edye with Mr. Joseph Gillespie.

Miss Helen Willcox with Mr. Edwin Carter.

Miss Frances Taylor with Mr. B. D. Dechert.

Miss Marion Grimles with Mr Charles Browning.

Miss Mittie Quarles with Mr. M. L. Hughes.

Miss Helen Taylor with Mr. Robert Crulle.

Miss Alice Jackson with Mr. Theodore Baben.

Miss Jo Culin with Mr. Stuart Wheatley.

Miss Virginia Boxley with Mr. John Trundle.

Miss Mary Culin with Mr. William Broach.

Miss Anne Ferree with Mr. Sam Broaddus.

Miss Helen Hart with Mr. Julian Adams.

Miss Virginia Hodgson with Mr. Jimmy Parish.

HEY DIDDLE DIDDLE

Mother Goose Rythmes, one of the greatest of American classics, are domed to the realm of the past. The modernists say she must go. They say that she is not only silly, ungrammatical and un-American, but is brutal and obscene. You who consider yourselves among the adult classes or approaching that age, will wonder, no doubt, what such an article is doing in a college publication. You, probably have forgotten the many times that your grandmother has brought cosmos out of chaos with a jingling doggerel such as "Polly put the kettle on" or "Ride a cockhorse to Banbury Cross." Thus, we think it only fitting that we take the part of old Mother Goose, pleaded the case of her, who was condemned to perdition by her son-in-law.

Howbeit, it has remained for the new school to psychoanalyze, and alas, they have found her to be responsible for most of the ills of our day. Why she condones slovenliness in the very lines,

"Deedle deedle dumpling, my son,
John
Went to bed with his stockings on.

Poor Simple Simon, I am told advocated unsound economics, in his pie story. Miss Muffet and her spider engender a fear complex. King Cole, that ribald soul, exto's imperialism, while "Sing a song of sixpence" is un-American, since it deals with a monarchial monetary system

It has been suggested that we exchange Mother Goose for such educational gems as this:

"What makes us stand so tall and straight?
Our bones, which number two hundred eight;"

or this one which tends to correct fear complexes by padding the strong arm of the law:

"Let Friend Policeman be your guide
When into the street you go.
Whether you walk or in autos ride,
You must mind the rules, you know."

After little Elizabeth has been read the weather forecast for tomorrow, when she is planning to goon a picnic she will merely respond;

"Pitter, patter rainy day,
Bringing summer showers
Though I can't go out to play,
I know 'twill help the flowers.

Having, bordered on the absurdity thus far, may it be added that she gives sheer delight, no mean amount of intellectual exercise, she kindles imagination, developes a sense of rythm, and a keen instinct for dramatization. Long live Mother Goose

"I HAVE A LITTLE ROOMMATE."

I had a little roommate
And she was wondrous wise,
My bed she stacks with brooms and tacks
And implements all size—

I had a little roommate
And she was tender, sweet,
My boxes flew, I never knew
A fairy so could eat!

I had a little roommate
Ye Gods,—she was in love—
She'd sigh, she'd pout—write verse about
Her "twin soul from above."

I had a little roommate
She could divinely snore,
This morn at three, I smothered she
Now I can sing no more
"I HAVE A LITTLE ROOMMATE"—

lege, State College, Pa., for the East; and Colorado Agricultural College Fort Collins, Colorado, for the West. Widely scattered instances, but these two examples are typical of the importance of the college in the new program; practical participation sums it up.

Not the least practical, and certainly the most general, however, has been the reception accorded in America's college, to the Red Cross Annual Roll Call, during which the strength to carry out this vast work is built up through membership. The Ninth Annual Roll Call will be held this year from Armistice Day, November 11, to Thanksgiving, November 26. President John Grier Hibben, of Princeton has accepted the Chairmanship of the College Roll Call in the Eastern area.

In a letter to the people of the United States this year, President Coolidge states that the worth of the American Red Cross has been proven not alone in war but in peace.

You in the colleges of the United States can make the Red Cross even more worthy of this indorsement for 1926.

"Of course, you didn't;" chuckled Saint Peter. 'That's why you are here.'

Catering Made Easy

Methuselah ate what he found on his plate
And never as people do now,
I did he count the amount of the calories
He ate it because it was chow.
He wasn't disturbed, as at dinner he sat,
Destroyed roast or a pie,
To think it was lacking in granular fat
Or if vitamines shy.
He chewed every species of food,
Untroubled by worries of fears
Lest his health might be hurt by some fancy dessert—
And he lived over nine hundred years.

Our Florida "Mother Goose"

Had so many children
She didn't know what to do.
She sent 'em to Florida
To rid her of cares;
They stayed there a week
And returned millionaires.

MISS HAYNES ENTERTAINS

Is there anyone who can truthfully say she does not adore Bacon Bats? We all love them but the teachers in the First Grade love them most of all. Since Wednesday afternoon they have decided, one and all, that Bacon Bats are the best things for a real good time. Then it was that Miss Haynes invited Miss Mix, Miss Trent, Miss Quinn, and the First Grade teachers to go with her on a Bacon Bat. Needless for me to tell you more. If there should be any doubt about our good time just question any teacher in the First Grade.

TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

Children of the Training School are now busy filling Chrismas boxes for the Red Cross to send to children in foreign countries.

An interesting debate was held in the seventh grade recently. The subject was, "Resolved: That a department of education is of more importance to the people of the United States than a Department of Agriculture." The negative side won the debate.

Say It With Flowers

"I thank you for the flowers you sent," she said,
She smiled and blushed and drooped her head,
"I'm sorry for the words I spoke last night
Your sending me the flowers proved you were right,
Forgive me"—
He forgave her
And as they walked and talked beneath the bowers,
He wondered who in H— sent those flowers.

WHY THE OLD GIRLS COME BACK

Today I wondered, as I gazed upon the old familiar faces—just why do they come back? What is it that they miss when they leave Alma Mater behind them? What are the memories that crowd in upon them in their new life as teachers? Perhaps they miss the work, perhaps they miss the play but certain it is that they miss something. When they are far away they feel homesick for their school and friends and they love to get back. If only for a day. They cannot believe that they are not remembered and yet they know that they are missing the real school life and spirit. When The Rotunda comes to them they read with a lump in their throats the news from school and long more than ever to come back for a glimpse of S. T. C. I wonder if these girls realize just how much we want them with us. We haven't forgotten them. Their memory lingers with us long, long after they leave our midst. And now, as I realize that we who see the old girls return will so soon long to come back ourselves. I wonder if we appreciate as we should those things which we will soon miss? Do we realize that our complaints will so soon change to longings? Old girls,—we want you with us always and hope that we will be as welcome when we return as we will ever be at S. T. C.

AMERICAN COUNTRY LIFE ASSOCIATION MEETS IN RICHMOND

Last week, the Tea Room of the Jefferson Hotel in Richmond, was the scene of a most interesting and forward looking group of Americans. There were men and women—girls and boys from Maine, Arkansas, Michigan and many other far away states, who were gathered together to discuss the great problem of the American country life. These men and women felt that the hope of the future of our country depends on the home and community life of the people of today. In the United States the majority of people live in the city where they rush through their lives and finally die of a nervous breakdown.

Many suggestions for the solutions of the problems were made at the conference, which was attended Saturday by a group of S. T. C. girls. The morning was thrown open to discussion groups where different problems of particular interest to students were discussed. Campus activities, the curriculums and other such topics were taken up.

Dr. Isherad, the Editor of the A. C. L. A. magazine made a plea for more Rural Life Clubs to be established and extended an invitation for any material that would be of interest to the readers of the magazine.

The convention closed with a most inspiring talk by Miss Clerk, who has devoted her entire life to the cause of furthering country life in America. She challenged us to find life more perfectly portrayed than in the small town. There we find the drama of life. Plots, characters, settings with deaths, births, marriages; all are found there. It is only if we have eyes to see it?

The youth of the United States is leaving the country and going to the city and will continue to do so until the life is made more attractive in the country. This can only be done by diligent leaders. The question is are our colleges training these leaders?

C is for character, a fine one he's got.
O is for often he aids us a lot.
R is for right—which he helps us to do
K is for kindness—so constant and true!
L is for love—who couldn't love him?
E is for every—why every Sophomore.

SOPHOMORES PRESENT HONORARY MEMBER, MR. T. A. McCORKLE

The Sophomores are holding to their Freshman reputation for pep. On Tuesday morning, November third the class presented their honorary member, Mr. T. A. McCorkle. The two upper classes had marched in and waited until after the president presented their honorary member, before they started singing, but not so the Sophomores, they were bubling over with pep—so they marched in singing their peppy song, then they fooled us, they had even more pep than we thought, for after Mr. McCorkle had been presented, they sang two more songs to Mr. McCorkle, pledging to him love and loyalty. Each class has made its presentation just a little different from the one before it, the Freshmen have both an advantage and a disadvantage in being the last class to present their honorary member, every member of the student body and the faculty is waiting for the Freshmen to prove their reputation of being different. The Sophomores set them a mighty good example of whole hearted enthusiasm

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA GLEE CLUB RENDERS CONCERT

On Wednesday evening, November 5, a most delightful concert was given by the University of Virginia Glee Club in the college auditorium. An unusually large crowd attended and showed keen enjoyment of the program by repeatedly encoring the singers and orchestra.

This entertainment was secured through the music group of the Farmville Woman's Club, of which Mrs W. J. Gills is chairman. The Glee Club was directed by Prof. Arthur Fickenscher, who before coming to the University of Virginia, was well known in New York City.

Mr. Eugene Turner, of Richmond, Virginia, who rendered several solos, has a very fine tenor voice. The other soloist, Mr. Lyttelton Waddell, has an unusually good baritone voice. His solo, "Danny Deever", was excellent.

The Glee Club Orchestra, consisting of ten pieces is said to be one of the best of its kind for several years. Mr. R. A. Williamson, director if this orchestra, is a splendid and capable leader.

The first number on the program, "Virginia Alma Mater Song", was composed by Mr. Albert Morrow, an alumnus of the University.

The program was as follows:

1. a. Va. Alma Mater Song, Morrow
   b. ---------- Arr. by Bartholomew

PERCY A. SCHOLES GIVES FINE LECTURE, "MUSIC UNFETTERED"

Thursday, November 5th, Percy A. Scholes, a native of England and an "Eminent Critic", author, and educator, gave a lecture-recital on "Music Unfettered." As illustrations Mr. Scholes used typical types of composition of Bach, Hayden, Mozart, Beethoven, and the Scottish composer, MacDowell. Mr. Scholes had with him a famous Duo-Art piano, on which were rendered the compositions just as the world known artists play them today.

Mr. Scholes stated that there were two kinds of music—a good and bad—just as there were two types of anything that could be either good or bad. In substitution of the good and the bad music, there was the "simple" and the "complex". The simple could be understood by anyone, but complex was more difficult. More thought was required to listen and distinguish the various tones. Not only were we to distinguish the various tones, but to recognize the repeated themes. To illustrate this fact, Mr. Scholes played several well-known old airs to see if we might hear different tones at the same time.

From the simple selections he advanced his audience with the more complex compositions of Bach, and the sweeping composition of Beethoven. Probably the most enjoyable of the compositions on the Duo-Art piano, was Hayden's Sonate in D, which lasted for more than seven minutes.

Mr. Scholes said that anyone could love and appreciate music if they would only interpret its meaning as they did songs and poems. He stated that we alone should learn to love and appreciate it, so that as educators of the future generation we might instill in our students the love and appreciation of famous compositions.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

HOW EDITORIALS ACCOMPLISH THINGS AND WHY THEY SHOULD BE READ.

After the class presidents were appointed as the committee to carry out the plan of post office boxes suggested by The Rotunda, a faculty advisor was in demand. Miss Maude K. Taliaferro kindly offered her services and she has already met the committee. All investigations as to the expense and regulations of the school system of boxes are being made. Dr. Jarman is in favor of the plan and he is doing what he can to help it.

This is just an example of what we can accomplish if we try. At first all members of The Rotunda Staff said that an editorial on the subject would be useless, as it had been tried before and failed. However points were given in favor of it and plans brought out, so the article was written and read by the students. The class presidents upon being asked to carry out the plan agreed that it would be a fine gift to leave the school and were highly in favor of it.

This plan brings out the fact that the editorial of The Rotunda is generally on a subject that concerns the student body and it is the wish of the staff that they be read and given thought.

The Rotunda is glad to publish editorials written by the students upon matters which they think should reach the student body through The Rotunda. Our paper is given the name "Rotunda" because it is the point around which all activities of school life center. Its columns are open to any of our opinions on subjects we wish to discuss with the student body. The Rotunda is our paper and it is ready to publish what we want it to.

ON BORROWING

[illegible] of all—is what is borrowing? Until I en[illegible] S. T. C. I thought I knew the meaning of the word. To [illegible] borrowing [illegible] is receiving permission to use something belonging to [illegible] else. That definition still [illegible] in some cases, but in other [illegible] the last two words "receiving permission" become so very, very oblivious. Are you a borrower? If so,— in what class shall your name be written? There are borrowers and borrowers—to be one is no honor, nor is it a disgrace, and not to be one is probably beyond the power of students in this institution.

To become a borrower was not your intention when you started school. You were told to refrain from this very thing by the folks at home and you knew you would never contract such a habit, but you did. You don't know why or how, but it just happened. Was it the morning you were in the tea room hungry, without any money and your classmate walked in with a five dollar bill from home, or was it the nite of that first date with the Hampden-Sidney football player when you just had to wear that adorable dress belonging to the girl in the next room? You didn't mean to borrow, you didn't want to borrow but you did.

Borrowing is a habit—the easiest to acquire and the hardest to break. I have observed this dreaded disease in all its symptoms and its grip is probably stronger than the ravages of fever. The first symptom may be "a two cent stamp" or just a small piece of Ivory soap to wash out some hose, but the result may be complications of wearing dresses, hats, and fur coats.

As I have said there are borrowers and borrowers. I often wonder if all should be classed as borrowers. In my opinion they should be "borrowers" and "takers". Borrowing becomes such an easy task that permission of the owner soon fades in the background and the property of others is often utilized for the conveniences of certain bold parties. This was brought home to me the other day when walking down the street with several girls. One girl remarked, "I told so and so she might carry my dress away this week-end. It was in so and so room. I hope she got it all right. Going on our way we suddenly came upon a certain party arrayed in the very dress mentioned. The owner was of course rather astonished that this individual should have deliberately without permission, taken the dress promised to someone else. Naturally the owner became angry and perhaps lost a friend over this very incident. Such problems are very common in school life. I have heard such remarks passed, "that dress is right cute but its not hers' and that slicker doesn't belong to her either". Remarks of this kind are so common that I believe the guilty parties would far rather have the public know that they owned perhaps a few dresses than that they borrowed every dress they wore. And are the borrowers giving the owners a chance? Can an owner derive any amount of pleasure from a new frock which becomes old often before she has had a chance to wear it? The other nite I heard, "well I'll wear my pink dress to Hampden-Sidney tonight. It's the third time it's been there but not on me. I guess everyone is tired of it now and I haven't even worn it."

Borrowing is an evil which must be banished by certain brave individuals. It is hard to deny a friend the privilege of any small amount of pleasure we may give them, but why not become brave knights and say in the sweetest tone possible, "I'd love to but, really, I am neither borrowing nor lending these days." No friend could forsake you because of such a remark. She might even thank you in later years and you would be furthering a worthy cause.

Let's make a resolution:
Neither a borrower nor a lender be,
We want it abolished at S. T. C.

THE CORNFIELD

The Degree Class of 1925 has left as its parting gift to the school, one of John Constable's famous pictures, "The Cornfield," which has been placed in the Lounge of the Student Building.

The painter of this picture was one of England's greatest artists during the early part of the nineteenth century. At an early age he started painting landscapes and was encourage by Sir George Beaumont, who was also a painter. This nobleman gave Constable models for practice, which inspired him. Constable was awarded a gold medal for his painting, "The Hay Wain". It was in France that Constable had his first real success, and the French were the first to really appreciate his works. The true value of "The Cornfield" was not realized until after his death. But now it is considered one of our most beautiful landscape paintings. The fact is Constable's work did not sell until he had been painting forty-five years.

He did not paint as all the great painters had done before him. He went out into real life and painted the home life scenes as he saw them. Constable was very fond of color and in all of his work he used the brightest of colors. Paintings with Constable was only another name for feeling. His paintings were so homelike that others loved them and could get a companionship with every detail. He learned to know hills, the winding of its streams, and the position and character of every tree and object.

Because Constable interpreted nature according to his own mood he was in fact, the first of the temperamental landscape painters—Constable is called the father of modern landscape.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Cottage "G" was the scene of a Hallowe'en party last Saturday night.

The room was decorated very attractively in an orange and black color scheme. Several ghosts were seen walking around which made things seem very "spooky" indeed.

The refreshments were furnished by Mr. S. R. Gauet, of Scottsville, Va., and everything imaginable was served. Those present were:

Ethel Whitlock	Joy Burch
Mary Glover	Katherine Carter
Ida Williams	Lila Hancock
Caroline Meredith	Mollie Blanton

LITERARY COLUMN

Feeling a need for work of real literary value in our school paper, the stag has decided to conduct a Literary Column in The Rotunda. Knowing that there is literary talent among such a large group of students, we hope that this column will be the means of introducing to S. T. C. much worthwhile, hidden talent. In order that this new idea may not only prove popular but also be successful, in that its subject matter be truly literary, we are asking the cooperation of every member of the student body. The Rotunda is your paper, the Literary Column is to be your column; therefore, throughout your English courses or during idle moments remember that the column is ready and waiting for contributions.

THE STADIUM IN CHICAGO

The new stadium in Chicago is one of the largest amphitheaters in the wrold. It occupies more than seven acres of land and is planned to seat 100,000 people. It is built in the shape of a U, so that parades and pageants may enter it with unbroken columns. The open-air arena is equipped so that it can be flooded with water during the winter for ice-skating.

THE WORLD COURT

Do You Know What It Is? Would You Vote For It?

The Permanent Court of International Justice usually referred to as the World Court is the first actual court set up by the nations of the world in an attempt to substitute law for war as the method of settling international dispute.

It is a court of justice, not a court of arbitration but it is in a direct sense an outcome of the two Hayne Conferences which established and developed the old Hague Court of Arbitration. Indeed, the American delegates to the two Hague Conferences, urged the establishment of a Permanent Court of International Justice similar in most essential features to the Court of Justice that actually came into being in 1920. The World Court is therefore, in a significant sense, an American idea.

Do you know that in rejecting the World Court, America deliberately placed herself in company with Germany, Russia, Turkey, and Mexico? For a powerful nation like the United States to refuse to cooperate in creating effective international agencies, but to manifest downright antagonism to such ecorts, would prove to be nothing less than a calamity to the cause of world peace. With vast economic and financial resources, with not traditional hatreds, with less reason to be afraid because of the protection afforded by an ocean on either side, with great reserves of moral enthusiasm—with all these advantages, the United States could easily turn the tide against international anarchy and in favor of international organization for the settlement of disputes on the basis of law.

Do you know that December 17th marks the opening of the debate in the Senate on America's entrance into the World Court? Do you know that the Senate is still uncertain? Students of all colleges in the United States are asked to send letters and telegrams to their State Senators urging them to vote in favor of the Court, that God's law of love and international brotherhood may be brought about in the world.

ATHLETIC NEWS

Change in Constitution

The Athletic Association constitution will have to be changed slightly in order to meet the needs of the school and to provide for the requirements for the college monogram this year. This is something that every member of the Athletic Association should know about and vote on, therefore it is absolutely necessary that all are acquainted with the amendments that are to be made.

There are two events that have been added to the optional points for the monogram. The first is the javelin throw which can be tried in place of swinging the rings. Five points can be made on this event. The discus throw is the other for which five points can be made. This can be done in place of climbing the rope.

The Athletic Council, which meets every Thursday, has been working on a standard certificate to be given to certify that the individual has participated in any of the different phases of athletics. In other words, the same certificate will be given for all phases of activities, on which will be indicated the name of the particular phase participated in. The student body should be thinking of this plan.

Regulation of Sports

The section of the Athletic Association constitution which deals with the regulation of sports and the requirements for those who wish to participate in these is as follows:

Section I.

"Each sport shall be governed by its own rules and regulations and by such intersport legislation as shall be enacted by the Executive Board.

Section II.

Judgment in awarding positions on class teams shall be based on official record as follows:

(1) Health.
(2) Scholarship.
(3) Sportsmanship.
(4) Technical skill.
(5- Scholastic ability.

No woman shall earn an award, or be a memberof a team unless she has a passing grade for the preceeding semester and unless she has no unsatisfied failure. condition, incomplete probation, or diciplinary penalty incurred either during the academic year or summer session.

School Songs

The last day for the submission of the school songs is drawing near. One can not only win a valuable prize but she can also contribute a great service to the school by writing a school song.

School Monogram

The Freshmen are walking away with the majority of the school monograms. The Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors will wake up too late if they don't "buckle down" and show the Freshmen that they aren't all talk. Two dozen monograms have been ordered. We wonder how they will be distributed among the classes.

School Cheer Leader

The student body will soon have to elect a school cheer leader. In order to give all a fair chance those who were interested were given an opportunity to try out Saturday night. The student body should be considering whom they think would be the best fitted for this position. A dead cheer leader means stunned pep. A wide-awake, efficient cheer leader is the very foundation of school enthusiasm and pep at games.

JEFFERSON'S "WHIRLIGIG CHAIR"

Thomas Jefferson, statesman and president of the United Stats, is credited with the invention of the swivel chair, which he originated in order at he might look in all directions at once. Although the newspapers of to date made fun of Jefferson's "whirligig chair" it has proved a valuable discovery, as a modern business office can hardly be imagined without an ample supply of such chairs. Jefferson supervised the building of his famous mansion at Monticello, Virginia, and personally taught his Negro helpers carpentry and cabinetmaking in order that his unique ideas in architecture and furniture might be carried out successfully.

MODEL EDITOR OF COLLEGE PAPER

A college editor should be a superman endowed with the patience of Job, the editorial ability if Horace Greely, the managing and directing ability of Charles Schwab, the diplomacy of Woodrow Wilson, the judicial qualities of former Chief Justice Marshall; he needs the dignity and philosophy of Socrates, the agnostic tendencies of Ingersoll; he should have the literary ability of Shakespeare and the lack of conscience of Amy Lowell.

In addition to the few qualifications he needs the physique of Jack Dempsey, the nerve of a hold-up man, and Edison's ability to do without sleep His brain should be so constituted that he could absorb the essentials of a twenty-credit course by means of the barest perusal of the subjects contained and to pass the final exams with honors so that the faculty will respect him and allow him to stay in school. He should be absolutely foreign to the needs of rest, sleep, eating, recreation, the love of society, the inclination for glory in athletics, and love.

Having these few requirements, he should be able to qualify as a fairly competent editor, and there is a possibility that he should not be hauled on the faculty carpet more than once a week and kicked by the student-body in general more than twice a day. Baron Alphaomega.

STUDENT CONVENTION ON WORLD COURT HELD IN [illegible]

During the week-end [illegible] 1st there was held, in [illegible] the [illegible] tian churches in L[illegible]burg a convention and student [illegible]ent to bring about America [illegible]trance the World Court. Our [illegible] college its delegates among the [illegible]ndren fifty students who rep[illegible]nted [illegible] of the colleges of Virginia at this [illegible]tensely interesting affair.

Mary Curtis Foster, C[illegible]man of the Southern Division of [illegible] presided at the meetings and introduced the principle speaker of the occasion, Mr. Kirby Page. Mr. Page has travelled extensively and made a study of post-war conditions in Europe as well as in the United States. He is now giving his entire time in atte[illegible] conventions and lecturing on the World Court. Mr. Page strongly urged America's entrance into this great World Court and frankly stated that in his opinion one of the greatest issues facing present day students of international affairs is the World Court.

His first address was "How to Outlaw War." In this he showed the horrors and the uselessness of wars such as the world at large has just experienced. He set forth plans by which the people of the world might live without struggle and conflict; the greatest substitute, of course, being the World Court.

His second lecture was "What it Will mean to America to enter the World Court". If this should happen, America with all of her power and resources, would indeed be benefitted and be an aid to others.

His third lecture was "The Student's Place in Bringing About [illegible]ce into the World Court." This indeed is what we are particularly interested in. What have we to do with a World Court? How are we concerned in its adoption or rejection? Mr. Page shows how a responsibility rested on each college to do his or her share in bringing [illegible]ica's [illegible] into the World Court for the promotion of Peace throughout the World.

BABY SHOW HELD IN AUDITORIUM

Prizes Donated by Town People. Proceeds Went to Student Building

At three o'clock Monday afternoon all the babies in Farmville were entered into a contest of beauty. There were babies from six months to three years of age. The proud mother's held them in their arms while the judges looked at them. It was a task to say which was the best looking, and the judges were at their wits end when they gazed upon six beautiful babies, to decide upon one.

A row of ten handsome little boys stood on the platform, while the judges looked from one to the other, turning them around and examining them carefully. Henry Logan Newbill was voted the best looking child and was given a tricycle as a prize.

The best dressed dolls were also awarded a prize. The show was opened by a parade of doll carriages and the best decorated one, won a prize of a large doll. Little boys followed in the parade with wheelbarrows decorated very attractively. A prize of a football was won by Dick Vaughan, who had his wheelbarrow decorated in red, white and blue, with his dog sitting in it.

The show went off with unusual success and it was enjoyed by all. All mothers present should have received a prize. The babies were sweet and beautiful and we know each is a prize to its mother.

250 000 TO SEND BOYS TO COLLEGE

To help develop leadership for the future among grammar school boys of today, The Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, has offered $250,000 to be loaned to boys who desire to attend college. To any boy who qualifies under the terms of this College Loan Plan, The Curtis Publishing Co. will loan needed amounts up to $1,500 until the total of $250,000 is outstanding. The security for each loan will be the boy's character as developed in his home, in his school, and in his work in delivering the Curtis publications.

The plan has been perfected with the advice and counsel of more than fifty of the country's leading educators and business men. It has their unanimous approval on the ground that American business needs better trained executives and is finding it increasingly difficult to obtain them.

WHY YOU NEED THIS GUIDE

"It is safe to say that failure to guide and direct study is the weak point in the whole educational machine. Prof G. M. Whipple, U. of Michigan.

"The successful men in college do not seem to be very happy. Most of them, especially the athletes are overworked." Prof. H. S. Canby, Yale.

"Misdirected labor, though honest and well intentioned may lead to naught. Among the most important things for the student to learn is how to study. Without knowledge of this his labor may be largely in vain." Prof. G. F. Swain, M. I. T.

"To students who have never learnt "How to Study," work is very often a chastisement, a flagellation and an insuperable obstacle to contentment." Prof. A. Inglis, Harvard.

THE ROTUNDA

MUSIC NUMBER

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VI | THE ROTUNDA, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1925 | NO. 8

FAMOUS OXFORD SPEAKER AT STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

John Cowper Powys, N. A. a brilliant English novelist, poet and essayist, former staff lecturer of the Extension Societies by Oxford and Cambridge Universities and author of Suspended Judgment, Visions, and Revisions, Wood and St., Rodmone, Wolf's Bane, Mandragora, The Complex Vision, Saphire, One Hundred Best Books and Psychoanalysis and Morality, lectured at S. T. C. Nov. 19, on The Study of Poetry.

In th course of this lecture, Mr. Powys brought out the idea that poetry is something belonging to private life—more like a love affair than like a study; and it is unfair to this great and beautiful goddess to treat it in any other way than as something secret, belonging to our inmost selves—a thing from which we may get in any mood, comfort and consolation.

The Oxford Blood of English Verse, contains the quintessance of English poetry and Mr. Powys urged us to become familiar with it and change it into a Farmville Book of Verse.

In life we have moments of happiness then come moments when nature gives us a thrill; moments we are indescribably happy. Poetry does at least two things for us, it reconciles us to life, and helps us escape from life. Poetry is a mysterious, divine power and spirit.

He also urged us to make the old poets a part of our life. To Mr. Powys, Shakespeare is decidedly the greatest English poet. He has many weaknesses, but we find him most apt in portraying events and occurrances of daily life. He has written poetry to suit every mood.

According to Mr. Powys the second greatest English poet is John Milton. He is peculiarly masculine and expresses the masculine desire to escape from women. Mr. Powys preferred more single thoughts and verses in Paradise Lost, Paradise Regained and Lucidis than in any of his poetry as a whole.

In his classification John Keats was placed third. We read Keats for its passionate beauty. Keats himself said, "Beauty is truth, truth beauty. That is all we know and all we need to know."

Mr. Powys said, "Keats half believed that flowers could feel and that trees could feel, and I more than half believe it myself."

Concerning Shelley Mr. Powys said that no poet is so beautiful nor so staid. His description of white violets, white narcissus, and white death are so beautiful yet so delicate.

The fifth great English poet is Alfred Lord Tennyson. Mr. Powys spoke of Tennyson as his boyhood favorite. Among his poems, The Lady of Shalot, Loxly Hall, and others had a strong appeal to him in his youth.

William Blake, the mystic; the greatest of all mysteries in English poetry is one of the speaker's peculiar favorites.

Leaving the old English Poets, Mr. Powys then classified modern poets and quoted from many of them. He told of two modern English poets, Walter De La Mare who has written Peacock's Pie, and the novel, The Memiors of a Midget, and William Butler Yeats, an Irishman, who wrote among other things, The Hour Glass and The Land of Heart's Desire.

Edgar Lee Masters was classified first among the modern American poets. His works are found in, Spoon River Anthology. This unique book is sardonic, it has dry humor, it is unhappy and tragic, yet it has a kind of hope. He is like Walt Whitman in that he has no meter and no rhyme

THE COLLEGE ORCHESTRA

The college orchestra has begun work in earnest this year with Mrs. Katherine King as director. There can be no doubt of its success.

This year is the first year in the history of the school that a girl has come here who can play a flute. With Belle Bryant and her flute, Mary Booker and her clarinet, backed by the many violins, xylophone, drums, and piano, we are expecting to have music of the very best.

Every Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock, they hold their practices in Room D. If there are any more girls who would like to join, they will be welcomed.

The members are:

Josephine Peters	Elizabeth Bell
Belle Bryant	Virginia Woodward
Mary Tucker	Mary Booker
Virginia Vincent	Miss Browning
Mary Linn Petty	Mrs. Bowman
Louise Forbes	Mary Vaughan

Margaret Lewis Stearnes

MANDOLIN-GUITAR CLUB

The Mandoin-Guitar Culb has been holding regular meetings every week in Room D. The club wishes to urge all girls who play either the mandolin or the guitar to meet on Thursday at 4:15.

Several members of the Mandolin-Guitar Club went to Powhatan this week-end with Glee Club Group No. 1.

The following are the officers for this year: President, Helen Thomas; Secretary-Treasurer, Marian Fitchett.

THE COIN

Into my heart's treasury
I slipped a coin
That time cannot take
Nor a thief purloin,—
Oh, better than the minting
Of a gold crowned king
Is the safe-kept memory
Of a lovely thing.

DIRECTOR OF MUSIC DEPT.

MRS. KATHERINE KING

MRS. KATHERINE KING

S. T. C. is quite fortunate in having for the second year at the head of its Music Department, Mrs. Katherine King, whom every student loves and cherishes.

Mrs. King comes to us with a B. M. from Washington College. She receiving a diploma of Public School Music and took graduate work at the Northwestern University, Summer School. After this she attended the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago. Mrs. King was an artiste pupil of Francesco Daddi, Chicago Opera Company, and Edgar Nelson. During the past summer she studied under Pres. Bush of the American Conservatory, Chicago.

We are proud to say that Mrs. King is pushing forward the musical side of our curriculum. Her energy and interest for the work which she is doing with the Choral and Glee Clubs seem untiring. We are wishing her great success and are willing to stand by her in all the work which she undertakes!

MR. FRANK HOFFMAN SPEAKS AT PRAYERS WEDNESDAY

Mr. Frank Hoffman, a student at Hampden-Sidney College, spoke to us at Prayers last Wednesday evening. His subject was "International Friendship."

He showed how years ago each plantation in America was a neighborhood in itself, raising all necessary good doing its own repair work, and conducting its own affairs in general. However, during and after the Civil War, inventions and discoveries brought the North and South of our own country into closer communication, and finally joined the United States with great, foreign world powers. "Today", stated Mr. Hoffman, "the world is our neighborhood. We can no longer be citizens of a State or country but of the world." Foreign countries are calling for our aid to help establish international friendship in the world. What are we present students and future citizens going to do about it? Let us take Christ as our example of brotherly love and friendship, and do our part to establish the Kingdom of God on earth and to carry out God's law of love."

Forewarned

"If had known what a fool you were I would never have married you", stormed Mrs. Knaggs.

"You might have guessed it, my dear, when I proposed to you", protested her spouse mildly.

FACULTY REPRESENTED AT STATE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

The Virginia State Teacher's Association will meet in Norfolk, November 24, 1925. Several members of our faculty will take part in the program. Dr. J. L. MUSICAL MUSINGS

What does music mean to most of us? No question could be harder to answer, for music, like Nature, speaks a "various language." Music is as much of an outlet as literature, according to Dr. C. Alphonso Smith. Composers have poured forth their deep and powerful emotions in the measured bars of the world's great musical compositions. Musicians have put their hearts in to the execution of these materpieces, selecting their programs to suit their moods. Audiences have listened to the masterpieces of the composers, as interpreted by musicians, and have been swayed by the same emotions, seeing their thoughts and sentiments translated into melody.

Music stands for the best to most of us. We often liken the finest things to it. How often have we compared a dear voice to music! How often have we said, "That news is music to my ears!" How often have we referred to a beautiful life as a song! Harmony, a musical term, is synonymous with peace and used only in a complimentary sense.

As music stands for something good to us, we expect those whom we deem noble, good and worth while, to love it. We, like Shakespeare, distrust the "man who has no music in his soul." Every truly great person loves or has loved some particular bit of music, whether it be an old song, a pleasant air, or a more intricate composition. How many "favorite hymns" of the great have been handed down to us!

We seize upon music to do many things for us. There is some tune or melody for every emotion or mood that comes our way. The great operas are a proof of this for they express whole stories, involved plots in song; the air in every case giving the first clue to what is happening or being felt. One of the best examples of this is the quartet from "Rigoletto." We hear the father pleading with his daughter, her protesting replies, trying to think the best of her lover, under this we hear the voice of that lover as he responds to the call of the woman who is enchanting him. All these forces expressed in one bit of harmony! That is grand opera, with which all of us are not on familiar terms, so let us think of simpler airs. Who could not become pleasantly reminiscent over "Souvenir"? Is there anvone who has something sadly sweet to remember, who does not feel memories come softly back at the call of "Love's Old Sweet Song"? Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" puts us all in a festive mood, while "Glory and Love to the Men of Old" makes shoulders straigten and the feet quicken in martial tread. And so on through hundreds of songs. Music, when we try to analyze ourselves, is a vital and integral part of our beings. We cannot imagine ourselves without music, because we cannot be without it. It is universal and eternal. It will be with us as long as a cricket chirps, or a bee hums, as long as the wind stirs Aeolian melodies in the trees, or a bird carols on a limb, as long as the voices of children chatter or a mother croons over her young one, as long as the mighty spheres revolve in perfect unison and harmony, and as long as the human heart strings are touched by any emotion.

THE BEGINNING OF OUR MUSIC

When we go to operas or hear music of any kind, I wonder how many of us stop to think how it began and how it has been handed down to us? Yet it is very important that we should know what other nations and people have done so we can appreciate the music we have today.

Music is a part of man's nature. It is a way by which he can express his feelings which he cannot express in other ways. Even the savages have some sort of music.

The Chinese claim that music began in their country 3000 years before the birth of Christ. They had a scale and gave each note an odd name. They believed in eight sounding bodies and made their instruments out of these. Some of the instruments are kin, the flute, harp, king, shing, drum and others. They were satisfied with their music and did not try to improve it.

It was from the Greeks, who lived before Christ, that modern Europe got its fou[illegible] ple [illegible] ge[illegible] they had. music was as important to them as art, poetry and culture. They had the chromatic scale, which is very much like our minor scale of today. They had seven scales and gave each a one [illegible]. Their instruments were the [illegible] standard instrument, flute, harp, and others.

The next step in the development of music is what the church wo[illegible] and the church was [illegible] and cathedrals. The head [illegible] church was at Rome and that accounts for so many of the musical teams being in the Italian language. They also saved the best in the Greek learning. Their scales were simpler than the Greek. The music they used was the Gregorian style which we use today. We get our syllables: do, re, mi, etc., from an old Latin hymn. The first syllable was taken from each line.

The next period of music is very interesting. Instead of religious music there were love songs and tales of bravery. The Troubadours and Trouveres, which mean discoverers of new poems or melodies, came from southern and northern France. They wrote love songs and about brave deeds and played them under their ladies' windows. It is said that the folk songs came from them.

Now let us see how music was written. The oldest way was the letters of the alphabet were placed in different positions to represent different sounds.

Then the neumes, which were signs placed above the syllables to tell how low or high pitch was, were used. Later the pitch was shown by placing the words on parallel lines and by colored lines. Then they placed the notes far apart or close together to tell the length of the sound of the note.

The treble and bass clefs come from two old Latin letters, G and F.

John Dunstable was the first one to write polyhonic music and Dufay was the first one to use the canon. Lasso wrote over twenty-five hundred compositions. All of these were great musicians, but the greatest of them in that age was Palestrina.

Palestrina was born in 1526, some say 1514, in Palestrina, near Rome. That is how he got his name. At fourteen he went to Rome to study music. In 1544 he returned home as organist in his church. Four years later he was called as choirmaster to St. Peter's in Rome. In 1565 he supplied music for the Papal Chapel.

While he was at Rome he tried to found a music school, which never produced an great musicians, because it was at this time when the Reformation began and carried the music into other channels.

Palestrina is called the "Savior of Church Music", for in the sixteenth century, when the church music had deteriorated, he composed a mass called Pope Marcellus, which was of high order. He also placed the music of the Latin church on so high a plane that no composers, until the time of Bach, equalled him.

Palestrina wrote all his work in the polyhonic mode. There are about 33 large volumes of his works and they must be heard by a good choir to be appreciated. He did not go by the music law which so many did, but the beauty of the composition was his first thought.

MEMORIES OF BLUE RIDGE

May I tell you something about Blue Ridge? Blue Ridge is the official conference grounds for the southern colleges. This past summer it held its fourteenth conference. To tell you how beautiful it is I cannot, but this is just a hazy picture which I hope will give you an idea of how Blue Ridge looks. There are fifty white buildings scattered here and there nestling up in the mountains. From the porch of the main building, Robert E. Lee Hall, we look out over the spacious grounds sloping toward the entrance. Glancing around we see the mountains rising above us and way into the distance; before us is Mt. Mitchell. Over us hang the clouds so near that we want to reach up and touch them. Everything about us is beauiful and awe-inspiring.

Then it came to me that if S. T.C.'s soul for music should be inspired more and more here was my chance to find a newer, broader, and more beautiful way in which our Glee Club might begin. Someone must have [illegible] was on my mind, for the [illegible] thought [illegible] "that [illegible] Club [illegible] girls s[illegible] have good voices." Then the sugges[illegible]on of singing in chapel was offered. Another report, thinking of [illegible] life, suggested entertaining [illegible] delightful [illegible] the suggestions of having a choral club and to sing in chapel. Will we entertain? Well, I think most of our Glee Club girls are looking [illegible] every girl at the college might go, for here one sees, feels, and hears the bautiful.

"Music is love, seeking a way of life." May our Glee Club, through its efforts, find the way of life and love for music; and inspire and lead S. T. C. forward with a broader, deeper, richer aprpeciation and love for music.

A WORLD WITHOUT MUSIC

Have you ever stopped to consider the real importance of music? Perhaps you would if, through experience, you could live for awhile at least in a world without music. In such a world a commonplace day would pass as follows: You gaze out of your window one bright morning to see approaching an organ grinder smiling and bowing. Upon his shoulder perches the red-coated monkey, joyfully awaiting the turn of the heavy melodious organ. The foreigner sees you, bows and scrapes, and immediately halts beneath your window. The stage is set; the monkey is ready, the grinder is ready, but the organ is not ready at all. Not even a single note breaks the stillness—disappointment reigns. That afternoon you attend a dansant, thrilled with the expectation of dancing to the well known foreign orchestra. The stage is set; beautiful ball-room, shiny floors, wonderful dancers, but your heart sinks—a telegram is read by the hostess, "Arrival impossible—storm prevents landing." Again your craving for music has been denied. You leave and wander aimlessly along yearning for music until you pass a church brightly illuminated with many candles—a wedding will soon take place. You enter; here at least you will hear music—but what happens? The organist is ill—he cannot play—there is no music. You sink limply into your seat and then you once more find yourself in the street with a look of grim determination on your face. On to a moving picture theatre you go—perhaps the inner player might drive away the blues. You enter. Upon the screen as you walk down the aisle is flashed the following notice: "Piano out of order. No music tonight." Turning a right about face you soon find yourself in the street. The silence is unbearable. Can there be no music anywhere? Listlessly you trudge home, and crawling into bed you pray that a bird might awaken you with his song in the morning. What would life be without music?

HARMONY IN DISCHORD

One thing I cannot understand
No matter how I try and puzzle
My mind gets more into a muzzle
Because I see on every hand
The artists who o'er flow our land
(They say they don't come "for mere money")
And tho' they live not in harmony
With one another, all the time
Their names consistently do rhyme.
For there's Madeline Keltie and Juliette Velty,
And Michel Piastro & Oscar Nicastro
And Greta Torpadie and Rosza Varady
Arturo Bonucci and Gino Nastrucci,
Sergei Pavloska, Lydia Lipowska,
Giamcomo Rimini, Pietro Cimini,
Margaret Selinsky, Vladimir Dublinsky,
Enrichetta Onelli and Richard Bonelli,
Charles Wakefield Cadmun, also Royal Dadmun,
And Geraldine Farrar, Marguerite Namara,
Marie Jeritza, also Germaine Schnitza,
August Linska and Zabetta Brenska,
And G. Martinelli and Rosa Ponselle.

Oh! their name is legion, but what would know
The question that vexes and puzzles me so
When they live in disharmony most of the time
Why in the dickens do most of their names rhyme?

CHAPEL ON SATURDAYS

The chapel committee has made chapel on Saturday mornings so interesting that the auditorium is crowded to overflowing. The music department has charge and the students, as well as the faculty, are anxious for each Saturday to come to hear the good music.

The first Saturday Dr. Jarman sang two beautiful numbers. They were "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "Duna". There is no need to say how much they were enjoyed. The applause did that.

The next Saturday, Mrs. King sang for us. Could anything have been nicer? She sang "Lolita", "Deep River", "Animal Crackrs," "The Singer", and "Little Woman O' Mine."

The Choral Club made its first appearance last Saturday at the chapel hour. Girls, can't they sing?

Oh, Promise Me

(As it might be sung today)

Oh, promise me that some day you will try
To make, as mother did, an apple pie
That I can eat and not bid life adieu
Because the crust required an ax to hew!

The first green apples, dear of early spring,
With longing in my heart to you I bring;
And voice my earnest wish on bended knee
Oh, promise me; oh, promise me!

Oh promise me that you will turn your hand
To gaining renoun in this busy land,
That your fair name be lauded to the skies
As mistress in the Art of Baking Pies.
Hearing your praises as they onward roll
'Twill sound as music to my very soul
Ah love! how perfect will be life with thee!
Oh, promise me; oh, promise me!

to his poetry.

Vachel Lindsey was second among the modern American poets. He gets much of his mythopoedic imagination from the colored race.

Edna St. Vincent Millay, a Vassar student, ranks third, in Mr. Powys estimation. He said that she is sad but honest and writes from her heart, whether good, bad, or indifferent. She has a real genius for lyrical poetry.

Fourth among the modern American poets is Edward Arlington Robinson. His little poems are complicated and very reserved. He has made his living entirely by his poetry and is recognized as the most pollished of American poets.

And last in this classification Mr. Powys places one who writes very fantastically and sophisticatedly, Mr. Wallace Stephens, Esquire, a lawyer and poet. He has written, A Cortege for Rosenbloom and Peter Quince at the Clayior. His poems are collected in a volume called Harmonia.

Mr. Powys ended his most entertaining and helpful lecture by urging us not to neglect poetry; but to read and study it—not for the sake of our studies, a certificate or a degree, nor even for life, but for the poetry itself.

The stingiest man in the world is the one who brought his bride nickel's worth of peppermint candy and took her on a trolley ride honeymoon. When they got off the car he said: "Honey, suppose we save the rest of this candy for the children?" Ex.

HOW MEAL-TIME MUSIC GREW INTO THE SYMPHONY

"No music during meals!"

That is the legend that hangs above the doorway of a certain restaurant. It sets you thinking. Suppose that had always been the rule, what effect would it have had on our music today? One thing is fairly certain. We should never have had the symphony or the sonata—and perhaps we should never even have heard of Haydn.

When Joseph Haydn was born in the little Austrian village of Rohran in 1732, the country was divided into small states governed by princes and dukes who had their own courts and a permanent band of musicians besides. Joseph was the son of poor peasants, the eldest of eleven brothers and sisters, so that although he showed his talents very early there was too little money to spare any for his education. When his mother and father, who were both musical, played and sang the folk songs, Joseph would pretend he was playing a fiddle, and his mother would say, "See, the boy is musical. Perhaps some day he will become great and go to court."

When Joseph was only a small boy, a cousin visited his home and offered to take him home to Hainburg and train him for a musician. Two years ... and ... directed to ... Stephen's Cathedral in Vi...

When, at last he arose, he was conscious of having moved one step farther on toward his career. For here was the form which he was in after years to expand in those works which have made him known as the father of the symphony.

Haydn was nearly thirty when he became concert director to Prince Anton Esterhazy, and shortly afterwards he took a similar position with Prince Nicholas, his brother. This prince was very fond of music, so Haydn took this opportunity to compose some pieces and experiment with the ochestra.

Audiences came not to listen to music, but to other things, to which music made an attractive background. One of the most popular of these was eating! It was the custom to have music at mealtime in all the grand houses, and the symphonies of Haydn were first heard to the accompaniment of a buzz of conversation and to the cheerful clatter of knives, forks and plates! Haydn had to adopt a clear, definite form for these works, with very obvious divisions between the different sections, or his music would never have been followed by an unheeding audience of dinner-party guests.

"The party waxed merry."

"Must have been tough on poor Mary."

The guests this past week-end were as follows:

Dodie Shoffner
Lucile Barnett
Kitty Carroll
Nancy Huitt
Rena Luck

ORATORIO

An oratorio form embodies the same mode of construction as an opera—it is built of recitatives and arias for solo voices (singly and concerted) as of choral and instrumental numbers. In oratorios the text is taken from scriptural or sacred sources—one ...t event or series of consequent ...s and lines of thought are followed out as consistently as possible. Idealism rather than realism is aimed at.

The oratorio is not without dramatic and personal tendencies. It is referred ... Its heroes and heroines are the ideal in... ... and messengers of divinity. ...ruggles, their triumphs are ...high and noble souls.

Just as the ...ral is one of the biggest tri... ...s of the designer's and build...rt so the oratorio is in the front ...of all that is noble and exalted ...n the output of the creative musician. The stability of first-class oratorio music is proved in the most conclusive way by the familiarity of all classes of hearers with such works as Handel's "Messiah" and Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

A WISH

When day is over and evening
Comes with her calm peaceful rest,
Mine be some sweet tender music
To lighten the cares of my breast.

When death comes at life's weary evening
And earth takes me back to her sway,
Mine be a grave where some river
Will murmer sweet music for aye.

The choir was rehearsing a new setting of "Onward Christian Soldiers", for the Sunday School anniversary. At verse three the choir master said:

"Now remember, only the trebles sing down to the "gates of hell", and then you all come in."

THE STADIUM IN CHICAGO

The new stadium in Chicago is one of the largest amphitheaters in the wrold. It occupies more than seven acres of land and is planned to seat 100,000 people. It is built in the shape of a U, so that parades and pageants may enter it with unbroken columns. The open-air arena is equipped so that it can be flooded with water during the winter for ice-skating.

S.T.C. REPRESENTED AT NORFOLK CONVENTION

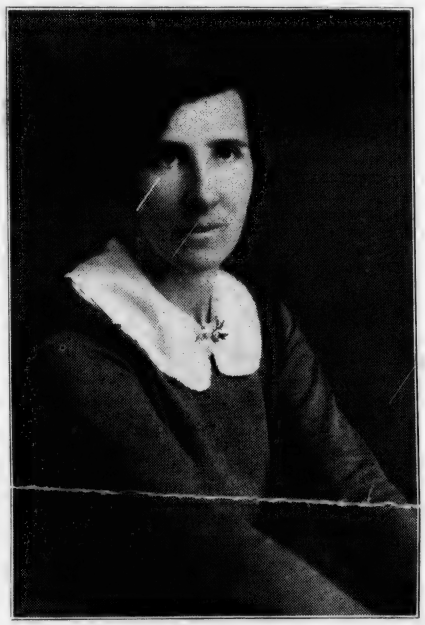
State Teachers College, Farmville, was represented at the Virginia State Teachers Association, Norfolk, by the following faculty members:

Dr. J. L. Jarman, president, addressed the conference on "Extra-Curricula Activities"; Dr. J. E. Walmsley, head of th department of history, addressed the Department of History on "The History Teacher's Declaration of rights"; Miss Sarah B. Tucker, associate professor of history, also gave a report to the hitory section on "Vital Points to History Tachers," gleaned from the meeting of the American Historical Association which met in Richmond last year; Miss Ilma Von Schilling addressed the rural section on "Project Method of Teaching Geography in Rural Schools."

Other members of the faculty who attended were Misses Pauline Camper, Katharine Tupper, Estelle Smithey, Olive Iler, Grace Mix, Mary P. Jones, Ada Bierbower, and Martha W. Coulling.

FACULTY ATTEND CONFERENCE AT COLUMBIA

Miss Lila London, of the department of mathematics; Miss Mary Clay Hiner, of the department of English; and Miss Myrtle Grenels, of the department of Geography; are attending a conference a Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, regarding work on courses of study for normal schools.



FARMVILLE SPIRIT

I wonder if there was a single girl in school this week who did not feel what might be called the "Farmville spirit." At no other time during the year is our spirit shown more plainly than now. The excitement, pep, enthusiasm or whatever you choose to call it, started bubbling over Tuesday. At every meal in the dining room we heard an announcement something like this, "there will be a joint 'pep' meeting of the Freshman—Junior classes in the auditorium after breakfast, dinner or supper"—while immediately after it followed an announcement that the Sophomores and Seniors would do their yelling in the Recreation Hall.

Ah! then came Wednesday. Long before the rising bell, in fact it was hardly light, when from every direction across the campus came hurrying figures. Down every pair of steps you could hear someone running for fear she would be late—but why? Thanksgiving wasn't until Thursday and we couldn't hang colors before hand. Here's the answer. The Freshmen enthusiasm was about to bubble over and they wanted to all be together for the grand bubbling.

HONORARY MEMBER OF FRESHMAN CLASS

MISS OLIVE ILER

MISS OLIVE ILER

Miss Olive T. Iler was presented by the Freshmen on Thursday, November 19th, as their class man.

Miss Iler is the Physical Education teacher for the Freshman Class. She was a member of the class of 1919 of Sargent's School for Physical Education in Cambridge, Massachusett's.

For one year she was the physical instructor at Chevy Chase School for Girls. She comes to S. T. C. from Baltimore, where she was supervisor of the Play-ground Athletic League for girls during school and after school.

As Miss Iler's work has been with girls, the Freshman Class feels that in selecting her for class man, they have a sympathetic as well as wise advisor.

SYMPATHY TO MISS BARLOW

The student body is grieved to learn of the death of Miss Barlow's mother. It extends its deepest sympathy.

NOTICE

The faculty is complaining of not receiving The Rotunda. A paper is put in each box every week and evidently thoughtless girls are taking them out. Please do not take Rotundas from the faculty post office. The faculty pays $1.50 for a subscription just as you do.

MISS ILER PRESENTED AS FRESHMAN MAN

Freshman Presentation Furnishes a Unique and Attractive Chapel Program

On Thursday morning, November 19, the Freshman Class conducted their class day and presentation exercises in a peppy and unusual manner.

The Pied Piper was present, not Browning's Piper, but the Piper of the Freshman Class, Miss Phylis Pedigo, and at the sound of a few notes on her pipe, the Rats came tumbling:

"Great rats, small rats, lean rats, brawny rats,"

all of them dressed in white and crowned with their dignified rat-caps, and each one singing lustily, "We're Senior Bound."

After all the Rats were settled and quiet, the Freshman President, Miss Elizabeth Hargrave, escorted Miss Iler, the honorary member up to her white and green decorated chair. After which Mebane Hnnt led the class in "So Give Us Miss Iler", and "Let Us Tell Miss Iler."

The day being Dr. Jarman's birthday the entire student body arose and greeted him with "Happy Birthday to You," and "What's the matter with Jarman?"

Then regular devitional exercises were conducted, immediately following which a cord was struck, and the Freshmen arose and sang, "We'll Take Miss Iler."

SOPHOMORES AND JUNIORS WIN THANKSGIVING DAY GAMES

Freshmen Bow to Sophomores 36—19

Thursday, in a fast, clean game the Sophomores won the first basketball game of the season from the Freshmen with a score of 36—19.

The first half gave promise to neither side for victory as the first quarter ended with a score of 5—4 in favor of the Freshmen and the second quarter closed with the Sophomores two points in the lead with 14—12 as the score. Although the teams were evenly matched during the first half the Sophomores outplayed the "rats" during the entire second quarter putting the score to 22—14 at the end of the third quarter and 36—19 as the final score. No one Sophomore could be picked as the best player because the team's strongest point was the way they succeeded in carrying out signals and passing the ball down the floor to the forwards who always did their part to "pile up the score."

The same could be said of the Freshmen who fought to the end and made the Sophomores work for every point they gained.

The line-up:

Freshmen	Position	Sophomores
Bryant	F	Perkins
Orgain	F	Hall
Hardy	J. C.	Mitchell
Hargrave	S. C.	Woodson
Whitehurst	G	Smith
Jones, P.	G	Jones, P.

Substitutions—Sophomores: Taylor for Woodson, Crowder for Smith. Freshmen: Burch for Bryant, Bryant for Orgain, Jarman for Hardy.

Referee: Miss Branche E. O. Graham.

RED AND WHITE DEFEAT ALUMNAE 22—19

Friday night the old girls who were mostly girls of a green and white class played the Seniors in a close, interesting, but loosely played basket ball game Although the alumnae put up a hard fight they were defeated by the Senior Class with a score of 22—19.

On the Alumnae team McKenney proved to be the outstanding player. she made several goals some distance from the center of the forward territory.

Fowlkes, a Sophomore borrowed by the seniors, also played a good game.

The line-up was as follows.

Alumnae	Position	Seniors
Shotwell, E.	F	Gibson
McKenney, E	F	Fowlkes
Hall, C	J. C.	Wright
Morgan, K.	R. C.	Woodson
Parson, G.	G	Boyd
Cox, D.	G	Crowder

Substitutions — Seniors: Woodson for Fowlks, Fowlkes for Woodson, Wright for Boyd, Boyd for Wright.

Referee: Virginia Perkins; Umpire, Eleanor Zacharias.

Juniors Walk Over Seniors 16—2

The Juniors won from the Seniors in a loose, amusing game with a score of 16—2. With White and Gary as the Junior guards the Seniors were seldom given a chance to make a goal. However, Wright and Bowman upheld the red and white by intercepting many Junior passes and by checking numerous attempts for goals. The guards proved to be the strongest positions on the team and were responsible to a large extent for the score being held 16—2.

The line-up was as follows:

Juniors	Position	Seniors
Vincent	F	Boyd
Crute	F	Bugg
Lohr	J. C.	Whaley
Brower	S. C.	Smith, A
White	G	Wright
Gary	G	Bowman

Substitutions—Juniors: Rucker for Vincent.

The total score for the Red and White or "even' classes was 38, while the Green and White or "odd" classes made a total score. This victory for Red and White gave the Sophomore and Senior classes the privilege of decorating the Rotunda with their colors.

FRESHMEN ELECT REPRESENTATIVES TO STUDENT COMMITTEE

At a very short but important meeting of the Freshman Class Friday, November 27th, the following girls were chosen to represent the Freshman Class on the Student Committee:

Mattie Rodgers Smith
Joe Lyon
Maude Baptiste
Margaret Johnston
Gladys Huban
Rachaell Patton

An announcement was made of the Alumni Carnival in which the Freshmen are to participate. Suggestions were asked for plans of presentation. The President then extended to the Freshmen, on behalf of the Junior Class, an invitation to a party given Saturday, November 28th.

On motion the meeting was adjourned.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

LEADERSHIP AT S. T. C.

All colleges at some time try what is known as the point system. The following is a list drawn up here several years ago and is supposed to be in practice now with the rule that no girl can carry over ten points.

There are numbers of offices left out which take considerable time and ability to carry out which are not listed. Among them are the following: Offices in Kindergarten Union Club, Offices of County Clubs, Representatives of Student Government, Committee members of Y. W. C. A., The Rotunda Reporters, Typists, Assistant editors, and Proof Reader. The Virginian: Circulation manager, Photographic manager, Advertising manager, and the Typists. Vice-presidents of classes, The Dramatic Club president, Vice-president, Business manager, Property manager, and Costume mistress. Membership in any organization should be credited.

From a study of a point system can be seen many weaknesses. For example one girl could be president of the Athletic Association (Whose membership is nine hundred) and assistant editor of The Rotunda. A student could be secretary of the Y. W. C. A., secretary of the Degree class, and president of a literary society. This sounds inane, but such conditions exist here. There are numbers of girls who have several points over the supposed limit.

In any college the members of the Dramatic Club are also members of other organizations in the school. This stands to reason, when the qualities of a member of the Dramatic Club are pointed out, for they are in many cases the same abilities needed in a girl to hold other offices in the school. In a few cases the Dramatic Club is the organization that developed the girl for other offices. Is it fair, or logical, that a girl who holds an eight or ten point office in the school, should resign from the Dramatic Club? It must be remembered that when the points are given it is for the time served, and duing play rehearsals is the time the Dramatic Club points are guessed at. Some of the same points can apply to the Glee Club.

The question is how can anyone determine the number of points to be given to an office? With the greatest effort a girl could hardly keep an accurate account of all the time she gave to an office. From the point system's view there are only three major offices in the school. A casual observer could see this condition not to be true. The point system is full of errors from beginning to end. The only way for an accurate system of points to be listed would be for each officer in the school to give an account of all the time spent in filling an office, which would be almost impossible. The question of how the office was filled would also have to enter into the matter. From every point of view the point system seems to be a failure. Careful study of it will convince anyone.

A college girl can judge the amount of outside work she can carry. Do the students impose upon one girl and give her more than she can do. In many cases they do. There is a tendency to pile work on the workers. The new student writes as follows: "Behind the multiplicity of college activities stand two or three generals, issuing orders and pulling strings. At the expense of their studies they carry the burden of directing the extra curricula uproar." This is so often true, a student often neglects her studies for outside activity. Every girl should take part in school activities for the good of the school, and for the development of citizenship that does not come out in any other way at school. Service to others is the greatest work one can render in life. To lead others, one must first serve. It i not the list of offices we hold that show our loyalty, but the every day services we render to our school and to each other.

In a student body of nine hundred there is a girl for every office and an office for every girl, so let us try to remember, when at meetings, to think over what the girl who is nominated, already has to do, and not embarass her by urging her to accept another office. A girl should have the courage to stand up and tell what she already does and ask to be excused. However, this has never been practiced here, and girls go on and accept more than they can do for fear some will say she just does not want to serve. The whole situation is due, largely to thoughtlessness, and the old tendency to give the work to the same group of girls. We do not need any point system to guide us, but just a little more thought on the part of the group and the individual. In a short while, it will be just conventional for a student not to be involved in more outside work than she can do and for an organization to carefully consider the appointments to offices. Organizations will not deteriorate and students will accomplish more in all their work.

JOAN SAYS—

I am afraid Prince Charming would have been mightily disappointed had he come to S. T. C. Wednesday night, for the sleeping Beauties were very scarce—not that there weren't Beauties galore, but none of them were sleeping. Who could sleep the night before the biggest game of the year was to be played. When the green and the red would vie for supremacy. Throughout the whole night could be heard suppressed giggles and whispers and the atmosphere which prevailed the whole school was one of mystery and suspense. The Rotunda had been decorated for my benefit—on one side was the green and white, while on the other the red and white and above me uniting the red and green was the True Blue of S. T. C. At the first clap of the six o'clock bell Thursday morning the day began and a happy one it was too. But what put more color into this Red letter day for me was the number of old girls back. As a mother longs for her children, so I long for my girls who have gone out into the world. These girls came back and displayed a spirit that made the bearers of their colors hold them higher and fight for them with more vim. Girls it is you who make the spirit of Farmville but old girls, it's you who makes Farmville live. Alumnae, it is your spirit, your loyalty, that has given us a standard to live up to. The gift for which I was most thankful on this Thanksgiving Day was the return of so many old girls, who still held in their hearts the love of the Blue and White—May we carry on that love.

So all over school from Infirmary to White House and from the first floor S. B. to the top went the long line of Freshman, singing and dancing as they went. Such spirit, first cheering themselves and then the Sophs, they showed they too had caught not only class spirit but the spirit of S. T. C.

All day long Wednesday excited little groups could be seen, whispering together, someone all the while keeping a sharp lookout to be sure no enemy was in the territory. Conferences were held in front of the building while everyone stood and gazed soulfully at the roof, the flag pole and each entrance. If you chanced to go by you might have heard a remark such as this, "Don't keep on looking at it,you know people around here have some sense. Sh! someone's looking out the window. Turn around quick, here they come!"

At 5:30 the campus was a lovely spot, for all the Seniors and Sophomores dressed in red and white gathered on the campus and did some cheering. They started with the bugle blowing taps. They, too snake dancel and found a bridge of red and white under which everyone walked into the dining room.

Wednesday night! Shall we ever forget it? Footsteps on the roof, running and whispering down the hall, ropes swinging from mysterious places!! Every girl had a secret, which she hugged her heart. The class representatives were almost overwhelmed at the offers of help while they decorated the Rotunda. The spirit held in!!

The 5:45, 11 o'clock and 1 clock trains brought back alumnae, everyone of them were made to feel before they were inside the door, the school had missed them and that we couldn't do without them another day. They, toi, had the spirit and they showed it!!!

The tap of the six o'clock bell, Thursday morning, which generally finds the hall as still as churches, brought forth someone from every door and window in school. Screams could be heard and the colors could be seen flying in every direction. Even if we hadn't slept all night, or if we had spent the better part of the time on the roof and in class room our pep was still with us. Which color predominated would be almost impossible to say. The red and white was highest until some brave Freshman succeeded in going an inch higher on the flag pole, This we can turly say, not one spot that could possibly be hung with color was missed.

I doubt, very seriously, if anyone ate any breakfast. At least, 20 minutes before the games were called, both sides were in their section of the Gymn, cheering as hard as they could. The cheer leader in clown suit and the team in their orignal costume offered another unexpected surprise. Then the whistle blew———! The games were the best ever seen in S. T. C. and the green and white took their defeat with the same spirit they had displayed. The red and white were ideal winners, they neither gloried or gloated. They were justly proud!

With a stiff upper lip the green and white colors were removed from the Rotunda, and with broadly smiling faces the red and white was put up all the way round. It was lovely, the Rotunda has never looked prettier, and the blue and white at the top made it perfect.

The whole week-end the spirit kept up. The alumnae gave some of the best cheering and turned out to be one of the best we have ever had. Weren't we proud of our alumnae to come back with such spirit?

The Junior—Freshman—Alumnae dance Saturday night was the grand finale, but let's hope not the spirit. We've caught it so let's hold on to it. The next class game is Wednesday afternoon, when the Freshmen will play the Sophomores. Can't we make our spirit hold out? The spirit of S. T. . is an intangible thing, and we have it in our grasp. We love it! We stand for it, and we are going to make it the predominating feature of our school life.

ART CORNER

JOAN OF ARC

—o—

Living in the little out of the way village of Domremy, Joan of Arc had for years feasted on the tales of passing soldiers and had watched playmates go off to war. She prayed so fervently, and thought so often about her country's danger, that she seemed to hear the saints giving her, a poor illiterate girl, the courage and inspiration to lead France's armies to victory.

From then on painters and sculptors tried for a reproduction of the girl who had won widespread recognition in so short a time. The majority of the pictures of Joan had the girl warrior in armor with gleaming shield and banner. Then, in the latter part of the 18th century, Bastein Lepage and Henri Chapu, the first in his painting and the latter in his statue, shows her as the simple, robust, peasant girl that she was. Both picture her looking very young and serious. With rapt gaze she is trying to see into the future as her spirit responds to the vows that beseech her to "Save France."

Both pieces of art were influenced by the classical school, but these men, had sufficient orginality to go beyond and strike a deep chord in all hearts.

When one stops and considers her wonderful ideals and what she did for her country, how could one help but love these portrayals of Joan of Arc?

We, in this school, are fortunate enough to have both these pieces of art. Chapu's statute is in our Reception Hall and Bastein Lepage's "Listening to the Voices" can be found in the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet room. Why not avail ourselves of this splendid opportunity of studying these productions?

PIERROT

Pierrot stands in the garden
Beneath a waning moon,
And in his lute he fashions
A fragile silver tune.

Pierrot plays in the garden,
He thinks he plays for me,
But I am quite forgotten
Under the cherry tree.

Pierrot plays in the garden,
And all the roses know
That Pierrot loves his music,—
But I love Pierrot.

—Sara Teasdale.

ON HAVING ONE'S PICTURE MADE FOR THE COLLEGE ANNUAL

With fear and trembling I stepped behind the screen into the circle of bluish-white light, and stood face to face with the man! I use the article wisely, I believe, for to me, just at that moment, he could either make my perfecty ordinary face a thing of beauty, or reproduce it with always (except in the case of the chosen few) disappointing accuracy. I was having my picture taken for the college annual, and I had, even then, lovely, clouded visions of the countless hundreds stopping aghast in the half-careless, half-interested turning of the pages of the annual, at the radiance of my pictured beauty! O, joyous dream! And here was the man who was to make it true!

I gave him a hazy imploring smile, and with a flattering docility turned myself over to his alchemical talents. He ordered me to a round stool in the center of the rays from the lights, and weak with the strain, I slid onto it.

Very confidingly I informed him of my desire to have a profile picture. Heaven knows I deserved one, after spending two weeks deciding which side of my face was the more symmetrical, and half of another arranging my hair becomingly on the favored side! I hopefully tilted my nose in the air, and painfully tried to give each of my well regulated curls the advantage of the camera. The man, however, wanted a slight adjustment, and he actually touched one hitherto obedient curl. I trembled—and as he turned back to prepare the camera, one hand slipped surreptitiously to my head to give it a reassuring pat. I heard a click—my fate was decided. "Is is er—over?" I gasped. "Did you—er take it?" My words were an uncomprehending choke. I did manage, however, to judge by his disgusted air of finality that it was "over". With another choke, I was outside of the screen, blinking at the sudden transition from light to darkness. A second later I stood before my mirror, and my face relaxed. The most critical if inspections showed that every curl lay, with the highest degree of mathematical accuracy, at the specified angle, and that my nose was behaving with true breeding. For the first time since I had dressed for the momentous occasion, I dared to bend my head—I was uttering a prayer of thankfulness, and a blessing—on the man! —Altie Chapel

Are you wondering what your future will be? Come to the Carnival, and find out. Soothsayers from the far East will foretell for you, either from your palm or with the cards, all the mysteries of the days to come. What of your lover's character? Bring a bit of his writing and his life and character will become to you, an open book.

SOCIAL NEWS

THE JUNIORS ENTERTAIN THEIR "LITTLE SISTERS"

On Saturday, the twenty-eighth of November, the Freshman thoroughly enjoyed a party given them by the Juniors. Dancing was begun with a vim. Games were played by those who were not dancing. Very unique stunts were put on by various groups. The one given by the alumnae was especialyl good. Later in the evening delicious punch and cake were served. Just how much we Freshmen appreciate the whole thing cannot be put into words.

Mrs. D. E. Davidson gave a dinner party in honor of Peggy Moore on Saturday evening. Those invited were Frances Sale, Audrey Chewning, and Lucy Haile Overbey.

ALUMNAE PARTY

That the spirit of Alma Mater does not cease with graduating was shown during the Thanksgiving recess. Alumnae of the class of '25 had a supper in the Tea Room, a real turkey supper! They displayed their old time pep by singing and giving yells for their class, their colors, green and white, and for their beloved Alma Mater. Theose present were: Peggy Moore, Erna Shotwell, Kathleen Morgan, Eula Harris, Mary Rives Richardson, and Louise Parsons.

ZETA TAU ENTERTAINS

Saurday, afternoon, November 21st, Zeta Tau gave a spread in honor of its pledges. The color scheme of orchid and silver was effectively carried out. After the delicious salad course, cakes, cocoa, and candy were served. Then, for the rest of the afternoon, dancing held sway.

CHECK!

Oh, Percival has gold to spare
A car and lots of swank
Head waiters know him everywhere;
He almost owns the Central Bank.

But very little does he know
Of how to turn a pretty phrase—
His mind is rather dull and slow,
And he fatigues me with his praise.

Now Pat, the dear, has not enough;
I love to hear him batter me
He writes the most delightful stuff,
But not a single cent has he.

Oh, Percival would you pay my bills,
And Pat would pay me compliments,
I might prefer receipts to thrills
If I were blessed with business sense.

I may as well confess I'm not
And so my heart is Pat's alone,
Well, anyway, thank goodness, I've got
An ample income of my own.

This concluded the exercises and the President escorted Miss Iler, whom the Freshmen, as well as the entire student body, knows will be a wise advisor and leader, out of the auditorium followed by the Piper and her army of Rats.

OUR GUESTS OVER WEEK-END

There were quite a number of visitors at S. T. C. for Thanksgiving Day, and the week-end, most of whom were alumnae.

We we all so glad to have them with us, and it's good to know that the alumnae still have the interest of S. T. C. at heart. Their love for it can never die.

More than four hundred persons representing the public, the manufacturers, the broadcasters, and the distributors, met at Washington last week for the fourth annual National Radio Conference. Secretary Hoover reported the problems that confront him and voted to recommend that no new broadcasting stations be licensed until present number of stations shall have been reduced. Although at present the air is overcrowded with 578 stations in the United States, nearly 200 applications for new stations are perding.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE THAT—

Men were said to be "dizzy" in 1805 as well as in 1925? Such was the name bestowed upon Benjamin Disraeli, late Earl of Beaconsfield, by the London Punch.

The English, say things and mean them when they aren't what the say and they're not what they say? "When Dover and Callias meet" means never. And if at tea you say, "I expect to dine with Duke Humphrey," just means that you aren't going to dine at all. The latter expression, by authorities is said to have arisen from the fact that Duke Humphrey, the ill-fated son of Henry IV (1399-1413), starved to death.

At Scandinavian weddings the bridegroom usually drew on the finger-nail a knot? Thus originates the expression, "Marriage Knot."

The real meaning if the phrase, "Mad as a Hatter", means as venomous as an adder"? Attu means an adder or viper, but later years in a slang expression, the word is being pronounced at hatter. This word does not mean to cast any reflection at hat makers however.

Java, a Malay word means "Land of the Nutmegs"?

Miss Russell: "How old was Robert Burns when he went to school?"

Answer: "I think he was about six."

Miss Russell: "You are wrong, he was seven."

At Eaco Theatre This Week

MONDAY at 4 o'clock matinee and at night The Lions Club will present for the benefit of hte High School Lunch Room DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in THE MARK OF ZORRO a big special producion. Here we have a wonderful story, full of action, heart interest and suspense. It is yroduced on a very lavish scale. By seeing this you will enyo DON Q, SON OF ZORRO. Pathe New will be the added attraction.

TUES. Buster Keaton in SHERLOCK, JR. This picture is a fitting sequel to "Our Hospitality". Here is a picture that is said to be funny enough to give a bald-head a permanent wave. Fun, fast and furious in his comedy feature that tops the best Buster has ever done. It will do you good to see this. Also 5th episode of "Perils of the Wild."

WED., THURS., & FRI.—We will present DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in his very latest Super Special Production DON Q, SON OF ZORRO. We are running this big picture three days to give every one a chance to see and enjoy it. It is the finest adventure tale ever screened and in it there is swift action, tender romance, daredevil stunts, comedy nobody can resist, rapid adventure, high conspiracy, and startling surprises. There are more laughs, more real thrills, more high speed in this picture than any picture Fairbanks has ever made. Take our word and do not fail to see this picture. Usual short subjects shown. Matniee Thursday at 3:30.

SAT.—Betty Compson and Raymond Griffith in PATHS TO PARADISE. A Paramount picture. To get to Paradise turn to the right till you come to The Eaco Theatre, then turn to laughter. This is a comedy riot with His High Hat Highness, Raymond Griffith, hitting on high. Also last episode of "The Riddle Rider. Two shows his night, one at 7:15 and the other a nine.

FRESHMEN HOLD SOPHOMORES IN TIGHT GAME 31-26

Wednesday afternoon the Freshmen came back on the Sophomores in the game of basket ball that kept the spectators and both teams uncertain of the winning side until the final whistle blew and the score was announced. With only two more minutes to play the score was tied with twenty-six points on each side. Everyone stood almost breathless while forwards on both sides shot for goals that would decided, within two minutes, which team was the better, the Sophs or Freshies. The upholders of the Red and White won by making five additional points and, thus making the final score 31—26.

Epperson played an unusually good game and blocked many balls that would have meant a goal if it had gotten into Perkin's or Hall's hands. Orgain also played a good game. However, it would be hard to mention one player without telling of the entire teams for all played a hard game from beginning to end.

The line-up:

Freshmen	Position	Sophomorse
Hardy	F	Hall
Orgain	F	Perkins
Jarman	J. C.	Mitchell
Burch	S. C.	Ponton
Epperson	G	Crowder
Whitchurst	G	Volk

Substitutions — Freshmen: Yancy for Orgain, Bryant for Yancy, Orgain for Hardy, Hargrave for Bursch.

OUR STUDENT BUILDING

[illegible] are for the students and their [illegible] activities the Student Government Association, the Y. W. C. A., the Rotunda and the Virginian, the Dramatic Club, the Literary and Debating societies, the Pi Kappa Omega society, and the Sororities; there are also six guest roms for visiting alumnae.

Across the entire front of the building runs The Lounge; a beautiful room, tastefully and expensively furnished, containing a large open fire place and many other things to add to the comfort and pleasure of the girls. The graduating classes of 1925 presented three beautiful pictures to be hung in The Lounge and more will be added from time to time.

At the rear of the second floor is a small auditorium, seating about two hundred—complete with stage, curtain, and opera chairs upholstered in blue leather.

The entire building is one of which the college may be justly proud; the students enjoy it the whole year round and their interest in helping the President to lighten the load of the debt is just as keen right now, if not keener than it was in the early days of the project.

This building is a part of every alumna and student who has taken her proper share of interest in making it possible; those who had gone out before it was realized feel that they have a vital share in what is going on at their Alma Mater; those who are here now have not only the joy

We Build

We build for the past,
Our school-girl past
With its memories tender and sweet;
There is never a doubt
That, this past left out
Our life would be incomplete.

We build for the present:
The splendid today
With its April smiles and tears;
For the lessons of truth
Instilled in our youth
Will last through the coming years.

We build for the future
And all it may hold:
For the girls of the years to come;
To give us a share
In the pleasures rare
That will grace their dear school home.

For the College we build.
Alma Mater so fair.
Thy daughters are loyal and true;
With zeal in each heart
They are doing their part
To prove their devotion to you.

And so we build on
Just a brick at a time
Until our fair building fair shall rise
A monument sweet
To our love, and replete
With the spirit of sacrifice;

For as we build on
We are doing our best
To give of ourselves as we can;
By earnest endeavor
(Our faith flagging never)
Completing our beautiful plan!

—0—

What does the Student Building mean to you? Are you proud of it—proud that it is yours? Do you consider it a building or a home? The Student Building is a home. A home is made up of comforts. The same can be said of the Student Building. It is furnished throughout in the most home-like way. One notices an atmosphere of peace and contentment upon entering the Lounge. The comfortable chairs invite you and the beautiful. restful paintings capture your eye. The draperies, rugs and fixtures all tend to make of this room an informal, cozy, chatting place. Then there are the students rooms with their attractive furnishings so dear to the hearts of the owners. They prize their room with the beautiful new furniture and go to no end of But—should the Student Building belong to just those who claim one room within its walls? No—it belongs to the Student Body. It is ours to love and enjoy. The Student Building is a dream fulfilled. Can we say we do not love a beautful dream come true.

ALUMNAE BASKETBALL GAME

At the State Teachers College Convention held in Norfolk last week the Harrisonburg Alumnae played the Farmville Alumnae. The score was 35 to 29 in favorof Farmville.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

STUDENT BUILDING SPIRIT.

We may at times disagree on this and that and agree till we are weak but on one thing we all agree and that is that our Student Building and our highest ambition in connection with our school is to see it paid for and full of girls, who enjoy and love it.

You, Freshmen, will catch the spirit of the Student Building because it is in the air at S. T. C. and you have shown yourselves the class to catch the right kind of spirit. The raising of funds for the Student Building is the thing that brings us closer together than any other activity at S. T. C. To hear the sums given by the different organizations and our alumnae chapters called out on Founder's Day by Dr Jarman is one of the greatest thrills we have while here. Eeverybody is happy and the spirit is kindled more and more.

At times we may grow tired of hearing the cry of this and that for benefit of the Student Building, but once out of that stage we are out of it forever, for not until we have gone through a period of ,'not knowing what it is all about" do we see the clear plan and then we catch what is known as the spirit of the Student Building! What is it? No one can tell you, you have to get it yourself.

DO YOU OBSERVE "BUSY SIGNS"?

"Busy Signs" have a meaning; they are put up for a purpose, not a decoration. Have you ever thought of this? Generally upon walking down the hall and seeing a "Busy Sign" upon your friends door, you say to yourself, "I wonder what Mary is doing with a "Busy" on her door, I guess I'll go in and see." Then you go gently and call, "Mary, it's only Louise; may I come in?" What can the girl say but "yes"? Do you realize that you have been impolite, to say the least, and that you are probably making a nuisance of yourself and have lowered your friend's opinion of you? You have!! We have no way here of having one minute in our rooms without disturbance unless we signify in this way that we wish to remain undisturbed, and there are times when even one's best friend is not wanted. Have you ever tried to take a nap? Or maybe, I should say, have you ever succeeded in taking one? The "Busy" should be your protection against intruders, but not so, that sign seems to attract everyone who passes. Then, although we often fail to realize it, people at times cannot study with a room full of girls. Can you concentrate with three or four people talking, around you? These are at least two of the purposes of "Busy Signs" and they surely deserve your consideration. Stay out of the place in which you are not wanted. If you "walk in" on girls when they have a "Busy" on their door, they are perfectly justified in resenting it. Think this over and remember that if each one of us will bear this in mind we may each succeed in having often needed moments alone.

As the situation is now, "Busy Signs" mean nothing. Let us try a new plan of "Busy Signs". Put them up only when you want no one, not even your best friend, to enter your room. Do not put them up when room inspectin hour is on. Only a phone call or telegram should necessitate a "Busy Sign" being disregarded. If the "Busy Signs" here are made to mean what they mean in other colleges they will be worth while, if not, they should be disregarded by every one.

It has reached the point that some think of a "Busy Sign" as a guard against any government girl's coming in as something might be going on that should not be. This is not true. "A locked door is a confesison." "Busy Signs" are not always put up in these cases for the very fact that it will give the occupants of the room away. Student government girls complain of their signs being disregarded. Is it another case of the innocent suffering for the guilty?

A uniform "Busy Sign" can be bought at a very small cost. Buy one, use it when you have a need for it and observe it when you see it hanging on a door.

SUBSCRIBE TO THE VIRGINIAN

Would you be disappointed, if when the end of the term came and everybody you knew had an annual and you hadn't ordered one? A lot of people were last year, and all because they didn't subscribe when the opportunity was offered. The faculty room is the new headquarters for "The Virginian," and subscriptions will be taken there on Wednesdays. If you are a town girl, or if it is impossible for you to subscribe at the tables in the faculty room, see Alice Thomas, the circulation manager for "The Virginian" in Room 128.

ENJOYABLE PROGRAMS RENDERED IN CHAPEL PAST WEEK

Saturday, November 29, in chapel, Mrs. Clive Smith Bowman played several violin solos, which were thoroughly enjoyed by the student body, as was shown by the responsive applause. Mrs. Bowman first played "Souvenir." Her second selection was "At Dawning", which in return for the vigorous applause she payed an encore.

Tuesday, Dr. Walmsley gave his usual weekly and interesting current event talk. He discussed some very interesting topics of the day, such as the Mitchell trial, and whether or not submarines should be abolished.

Saturday, the fifth, a very interesting and enjoyable program was given by Miss Mebane Hunt and the Sensational Syncophated Orchestra. The program was divided into two parts. Miss Hunt sang in her usual charming manner "Melisande in the Wood" by Gotez, "Sweetheart" by Stewart, and as an encore Bach's "Grannda."

The second part of the program the Sensational Syncophated Orchestra played "If I Had a Girl Like You", "Margurite Waltz" and encored with "I Can't Realize You Love Me" and "Sailor Boy."

These delightful programs make our chapel period most enjoyable, and we hope that through the coming months many more will follow.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Miss Lillian Lenhoff of the Southern Methodist Mission Board visited our college last week. She spoke at Prayers Wednesday and Thursday, and afterwards to the Methodist girls. She was here primarily in the interest of the Methodist grls, but is interested in students of all denominations.

She pointed out the great opportunity college girls have for serving the different communities into which they go after leaving college. She showed how the ideals of the Y. W. C. A. and of the college might be carried on in communities, especally in forwarding the recreational and spiritual life of the young people. To all of us there comes the great challenge—What can we do to make our lives most profitable and serviceable to all mankind?

Miss Harriet Hitchcock, secretary for Student's Interests of Financial Division of National Board of Y. W. C. A. was also a visitor in our college last week. She spoke to the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet and Financial Advisors, and also at Prayers. Miss Hitchcock is visiting local Y. W. C. A.'s in order that she may study local problems of Finance. She offered to our Y. W. C. A. several suggestions as to raising our budget by means of pledges.

COLLEGE BANQUETS OUR SPECIALTY

YES, WE HAVE NO BANANAS

Only since I have walked back and forth from the Training School upon so many occasions has the thought struck home, and yet I wonder that I have noticed nothing else of more importance upon my systematic wanderings. But I haven't. That thing and that alone has caught the glance from my theme eye, until I find myself faithfully, if unconsciously gazing in the self-same direction many, many times a day.

Kind friends, do not think me foolish when I admit that the charmng spot which holds me captive is no other than the window of the little store across the way, so dear to each one of our hears. But why, why you ask me, should a widow hold such fascination? It is simply this. In that window hangs a peg, placed there for the benefit of bunches of luscious bananas, which apear and disappear so very, very often, that I began to wonder and marvel at the fact. Had we a banana fiend at S. T. C., did the owner remove the bunches from the peg at stated intervals; just what magic impluse caused the disappearance of such a great many beautiful, tempting yellow objects upon such short notice? Why, one morning I saw placed upon the peg the loviest and fullest bunch of bananas I had ever seen and when I visited the store that night the answer to my order was, "but we have no bananas". To my disappointment and surprise I saw hanging there the mere skeleton of what had been, a few hours earlier, a mass of yellow beauty.

It seems incredible and yet the plain facts are before you. Bananas are a drawing card. The ripe ones sell, the green ones go, and even those in the last stages with pitiful black dots upon their bright yellow coats pass on to the highest bidder. Their popularity can be judged by the pitiful sighs uttered and the longing eyes cast at the empty peg when disappointed purchasers leave the store with empty hands.

When the familiar sight of my favorite fruit is not there to greet me as I pass the window of the store across the way, I am sad; sad for the friends who love and want them. So here's to the bananas—may they ever hang in glorious bunches upon the peg, to delight my theme eye as I pass.

ON HAVING TO WEAR HATS

Oh, why were hats ever invented? Who was the fiend that inflicted this form of torture on suffering humanity? Of course, there are many advantages in a hat when one has a bald head, and sometimes possibly to keep the sun out of one's eyes; but are not these advantages greatly overbalanced by the agonizing moments as to whether it becomes us or whether it is the latest style; and the knowledge that we must wear it, because convention demands it.

Certainly they give no pleasure to the wearer, and it generally irritates us to see them on some one else. Have you never sat behind a hat in the theatre? I say a hat because the person under it fades into insignificance beside the breadth, length, and depth of some hats.

On sunny days hats are a nuisance because they give us a headache, on rainy days they are an anxiety because we do not want to get them wet, and on windy days, what is more embarrassing than to have your hat snatched from your head by a gust of wind and to chase it for several bocks amid the daughter of unsympathetic spectators.

If I had my way with hats I would see everyone destroyed, except a few which could be saved as relics; so that future generations might be warned against this comfort-stealing evil.

ART CORNER

THE MADONNA OF THE CHAIR.

Among all the painters of the Madonna, Raphael Santi holds first place; and among all the Madonna pictures he produced, the Madonna of the Chair holds that place in the hearts of the lovers of beauty. Undoubtedly the supreme achievement of the master is the Sistine Madonna of Dresden. It is in a class by itself, apart, exalted, superhuman; it appeals to the elect. The Madonna of the Chair is in a room with many other pictures, in the Pitti Palace, Florence. It apepals to the crowds that flow and ebb around it year after year. Everybody has a smile and a word of apprpeciation for this most home-Like rendering of the Mother and her holy child.

The picture was painted about 1516, when Raphael was in full possession of all his powers. No picture within a circle was ever more skillfully composed. One's eye is passed gracefully along from one lovely contour to another, happily entertained with soft curves, rich colors, sufficiently harmonius to give perpetual delight. Within this charming circle one finds all one can desire of loveliness and peace.

The traditional colors of the Virgin Mary are white, blue and red. White is a symbol of purity, blue of constancy, and red of love. Nearly all of the Madonnas have had robes of these colors. Raphael has given this Madonna the red and the blue; but for the white he has substituted green, the symbol of fruitfulness. White does not appear, however, on her head-dress and in the patter over the shoulder. The child's robe is yellow, symbol of wisdom, for his is a revelation of the power and wisdom of God. The robe of little John Baptist is orange, the symbol of benovolence and good will. The rich purple quality of the shadows and of the background completes the entire spectrum of color. To see such a picture is like listening to a chord of music, it is sweet and human, like the rich music of a choir. This picture can be seen in Miss Coulling's room during the next week.

CHEER LEADERS

What part did the following girls pay in the Thanksgiving games—Claire Black, "Izzy" Payne, Mebane Hunt, Phyllis Pedigo and Edith Asher? Did they shoot goals, guard, play center, or root? Yes, they are the only ones that did have a part in all four things. Why? Because they were the ones that led the cheers and songs for the four classes. They are the class cheer leaders that were responsible for the cooperation the school furnished through pep and enthusiasm during the entire basket ball games.

What does a team feel like if the players make a good play and receive no recognition of their efforts? Naturally the team wouldn't play as well because the members would realize

"Good gracious! What does that mean?"

"Means that I'll get a five-pound box of candy in about an hour."

"What's this", asked the Prof. in zoology, pointing to the picture of a zebra.

Enterprising Frosh "A horse in a bathing suit."

"Jack's a good fellow, but rather loquacious, don't you think?"

"Yeah, and besides, he talks too much."

I asked her shyly for a kiss
And she who feared evil, "Then,"
Now what has had me guessing is
Did she say "sure" or "sin"?

As a man thinks, so is he.
Some people are never.

DR. WALMSLEY'S ADDRESS AT TEACHERS MEETING

"The History Teachers Declaration of Right", was the subject of the address delivered by the Virginia Society of History Teachers by Dr. James E. Walmsley, head of the department of history and social science at State Teachers College, Farmville. The meeting was held in the ball room of the Southland Hotel, Norfolk, on November 26.

In brief, Dr. Walmsley's list of "rights" are as follows:

First, that the course of study in every school should recognize as of first importance the study of social subjects, past, present, and future.

Second, that no teaching of history be recognized which does not show familiarity with more than one text and with standard sources.

ENGLISH 36

English 36, offered in the winter quarter, is not primarily a course in versification, though some elementary instruction in versification will be given, and some practice will be afforded in verse-making. Students who can never write poetry can learn to write creditable verse. Such accomplishment is worth cultivating. The chief aim of the course, however, is to develop a clearer understanding of poetry, with a corresponding delight in the art. The course will consist mainly in the actual study of poetry. This course is for students only who have a natural love for poetry, and who wish to improve their taste. If you are at all interested, do not hesitate to ask your English teacher if you could take this course to an advantage. The course is open to all upper classmen who have ability in the creation or interpretaton of poetry,or who may wish to acquire such ability.

One of the most pleasant features of the recent Teachers Conference, held in Norfolk, last week was the annual luncheon of the Alumnae held at Thanksgiving time.

Promptly at one o'clock there assembled at Gainor's on Granby Street, four on hundred and fifteen enthusiastic daughters of Farmville S. N. C. Although the dates of attendion ranged from 1900 to 1926 not a single trace of lagging enthusiasm for Alma Mater could be found. Christine Mackan was toastmistress and presided in a charming manner. Anyone, who has ever attended one of these affairs on previous occasions knows how much interest and life are put in colelge songs when led by Elizabeth Ewald. No one was disappointed this time. There were songs to the school, to Dr. Jarman and to various members of the faculty who were present. An orchestra composed of Maury High School students furnished splendid music between toasts.

As president of the Norfolk Chapter, Roberta Hodgkin gave the visitors a cordial greeting and welcome to the city. Ada Bierbower brought greetings from the General Association of the Alumnae. Christine Armstrong gave a toast to Farmville, Evelyn Brooks to Dr. Jarman. Our beloved president, in his unsual fatherly manner, talked to his girls and invited them to visit the school. He said he was proud of the alumnae and was dong everything in his power to make the school worthy of their pride. Dr. W. H. T. Squires, an alumnus of Hampden-Sidney, was the principal speaker at the luncheon and kept his audience in continual laughter by his jovial spirit and his witty jokes.

The following is part of a beautiful toast given by Mrs. Lucy Wright James: "Here's to the woman who has a smile for every joy, a tear for every sorrow, a consolation for every grief, an excuse for every fault, a prayer for every misfortune, an encouragement for every hope,—The Teacher."

Our final song was "All Hail, Alma Mater." After this there was a little time to shake hands and speak our regrets at not having hte opportunity to remain longer together.

Many thanks are due the Norfolk Chapter for having arranged such a pleasant affair.

MON., MARY PICKFORD in her big special production ROSITA. In this picture "The World's Sweetheart" plays a lulaby of love—an overture of passion—a symphony of hate—a jazz tune of laughter and a song of romance. It is a most stirring melodrama filled with scenes of intense, gripping emotionalism. Pathe News will be shown and Hampden-Sidney Orchestra will play during the night. Matinee a 4 o'clock.

TUES.—Buster Keaton in THREE AGES. This picture is a real bombshell of mirth. It is built on a monumental scale, showing the grandeur of an ancient Rome, the life of prehistoric man and the ulxury of the modern world. Three times as big and three times as funny as any Keaton picture yet. Also 6th episode of "Perils of the Wild.

WED., THURS., & FRI.—THE TEN COMMANDMENTS. The greatest, most magnificent production yet screened. There is hardly a man, woman or child who hasn't heard of this picture, so it is nedless to say much about it here. It will carry you from the splendors and orgies of the Pharoahs to the humor and tragedy of this jazzmad age. When you see the waters of the Red Sea swallow up the army of Pharoah, it will live in your memory forever. Ministers from their pulpits have urged their congregations to see this magnificent spectacle. Matinee at 3:30 Wednesday and Friday. Adult admissions at night 50c, children 25c. At matinee adults 35c and, children 15c.

SAT—Bebe Daniels in THE MANICURE GIRL. A Paramount picture. Bebe as the manicure girl manicures the blues. It is a bright and breezy comedy of he-nails and females in the manicure shops of New York. "She held their hands and rolled her eyes; They thought they were in paradise." On this night we will show the first episode of THE ACE OF SPADES, a thrilling, gripping serial. Two shows this night at 7:15 and 9 o'clock.

DO NOT MISS HEARING MISS RICE'S STORY

THE ROTUNDA

POE

ARE YOU GOING CAROLLING?

THE STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VI | THE ROTUNDA, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1925. | No. 11

CHRISTMAS CUSTOMS AT STATE T. C.

As Christmas draws near, old girls gather in groups and such fragments of speech as these may be heard: "Wasn't she wonderful last year?" or "Hanging of the greens" or "Yes, singing!" All of these are merely references to some time-honored customs at our college.

Each year for ever so long,—Miss Rice has been telling the story of "The Other Wise Man" at prayers, we always look forward with a great deal of pleasure to this story, for each year Miss Rice's sweet voice, sometimes low and tender, sometimes chanting, sometimes rising in an ecstasy of joy, carries us floating, drifting, back to the time of our Saviour's birth. We hear the herald, Angels sing. We see the Wise Men of the East. For a certain period of time, we are living almost two thousand years ago. Ah Freshmen! We envy you the pleasure of hearing Miss Rice tell the story for the first time, and yet, not for all our worldly possessions, would we exchange the ecstacy we have experienced in the past years.

Another custom of our college without which Christmas would be incomplete, is the "Hanging of the Greens" about our college. This is done one evening after prayers, a short time before Christmas. Every girl here is invited to participate in hanging the beautiful running cedar moss about the college. With the hanging of each bit of clinging green moss, the spirit of Christmas is entwined about a girl's heart.

And then, there can't be a Christmas without singing. Already in chapel and prayers we are singing Christmas carols! But in addition to that on a clear, cold night just before Christmas, when the stars are shining so brightly that one can almost see to be able to reach up and touch them the student body is divided into groups and away they go to sing Christmas carrols before the homes of beloved faculty. Our hearts are warmed in these songs, and when an organ is silent and hears from afar the faint sounds of "Holy Night," drifting on the wind in the intense stillness, is there any wonder that our very hearts throb in exultation?

The spirit of our college and the spirit of Christmas are intertwined. When the last lesson is done, and the last "Merry Christmas!" is shouted, Joan smiles her wise smile as if to say, "Beautiful college and customs, beautiful girls, beautiful spirit!" And Dr. Jarman smiles and says, "Merry Christmas girls!"

RESULT OF THE STRAW VOTE

The result of the straw vote as to whether or not the United States should enter the World Court was as follows:

Affirmative, 284.
Negative, 23.

TO DR. JARMAN
A MERRY CHRISTMAS

Dear Dr. Jarman, deep in our hearts,
As the Yuletide season draws near,
There's a feeling of Faith, and Hope, and Love,
Of great, unbounded good cheer.

A kind and noble man you are,
We love you all the while,
You, with your great and generous heart
And smile—your radiant smile!

To us you are all that is good and true,
Sacred to us, and dear;
So we're wishing you a Merry Christmas
And a happy, glad New Year.

BIG STEP TAKEN IN DEVELOPMENT OF DEMOCRACY AT S. T. C.

The Student Body wishes to thank Dr. Jarman and the committee on investigating the courses given in school, for the very kind opportunity we had of expressing our liberal opinions of the different courses of the school. We feel that this is one of the fairest and most democratic things we have ever been allowed to do.

Some few through fear may not have written their honest opinions but we think the majority did write exactly what they believed to be true.

We appreciate it more than we know how to say, for this thing of going around the school knocking teachers and their courses is not what we want at S. T. C. We feel that the formal expression is just exactly what the students wanted and what some have been waiting for, for sometime.

When Dr. Jarman announced we did not have to sign our names everyone felt that the highest trust was being laid on us and we know that the most of us treated it accordingly.

This is one of the finest plans ever worked in any college, for after all, even the poorest students recognize a good subject and a good teacher and it's only fair that our voices should be heard.

Again, we thank you!

SOPHOMORES WIN BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeat Juniors 27—11

Tuesday afternoon the Sophomores defeated the Juniors in the final inter class game of the season.

Although the Sophomores were in the lead during the entire game the Juniors were only a few points behind until the end of the third quarter. The third quarter was the best for the Juniors for their blocking held the Sophomores to one goal while they made one to balance that. However, the upholders of the red and white "rallied up" the score 11 points during the last quarter. During this time Woodson was the outstanding player.

Line-up:

Sophomores	Position	Juniors
Hall	F.	Crute
Perkins	F	Vincent
Crowder	J. C.	Brewer

THE GAME OF THE SEASON

Who said the faculty of S. T. C. wasn't full of pep, interest and enthusiasm? They showed what kind of sports they were Thursday when they played a game of basketball against the Seniors. The game ended 22—12 in favor of the Seniors! The Seniors 'out-did' the faculty! That is a recognized happening that occurs only once in a lifetime so it should certainly be recorded:

The line-up:

Faculty	Position	Seniors
Dresse	F	Boyd
Iler		Anderson
Graham	C	Whaley
Barlow	C	Smith
Browning	G	Wright
Marshall	G	Bowman

Substitutions: Faculty—Graham for Iler, Iler for Browning, Browning for Graham, Iler for Graham, Browning for Iler, Graham for Graham.

THE NIGHT BEFORE HOLIDAY

'Twas the night before holidays—all through the hall,
Was noise such as we were not used to at all,
Could study hour mean anything that night here,
With Christmas and home going time drawing near?
We jabbered and tacked and then jabbered some more,
'Bout holidays, presents and wishes galore—
'Bout trains going this way and buses going that,
The minutes and hours passed and still we could chat;
We thought of the morrow—what joy, joy, joy in sight,
For the girls who were leaving home after tonight.
No one had a worry—no one could be sad,
Nothing mattered, for this was the time to be glad,
Our studies were over—all packed away,
No more classes or tests for many a day.
We did go to bed, but no, we didn't sleep,
Our brains were a-whirling before us would creep
Old Santa, the reindeer, the pack on the sleigh
With things we had asked for, just coming our way,
We tumbled and tossed until we were sore,
And then when too tired to toss over once more,
From exhaustion we slept—till night passed us by,
And a beautiful brightness illumined the sky—
Then up and away like a flash we were gone,

MR. ALLEY SPEAKS ON WORLD COURT

Last Saturday morning, the student body of our college heard an interesting and unusual lecture on the World Court by Mr. Alden Alley, who was a non-partisan representative to the League of Nations. Personally, he advocated the joining of the League, thinking it best for the United States. He spoke a few words concerning its organization and great power of bringing about international peace.

But, as he said, he was traveling through America lecturing, not on the League of Nations, but on the World Court and on the effect of America's entrance into such a court. He pointed out very cleverly that the World Court was not a legislative body, that it could not make laws nor amend old ones; that it was not an executive body to carry out laws; that it would not handle illegal disputes. Its function, however, in handling legal disputes, (1) as to what the law is, (2) as to what it means, (3) as to whether a certain act was committed or not, and (4) as to the damages that should be paid. The Court, stated Mr. Alley, has been in existence only three years and has settled eighteen disputes successfully. It is indespensable and invaluable to the peace and justice of the nations of the world.

There are two ways in which America may join this court:

1. By promising always to go before the Court with legal disputes.
2. By reserving the right to refuse the disputes before the court, if she should wish. Mr. Coolidge wants a court into which "we can't" cannot be brought," and strongly urges America's entrance. All of our Presidents who have ever known about this court were in favor of it. And since Mr. Coolidge would reserve for the U. S. the right to refer the Court only, and not the League of Nations, there seems to be no "strings" tied to it.

The record of the Court, the fine character and ability of the judges, and the spirit in which they have done their work, seemed to Mr. Alley proof in itself of the greatness of the Court.

He reminded us, however, that such a great undertaking needed not only skilled workmen, but a great faith in these workmen. He stated that the first step in universal wisdom—and one which each American might do well to say—is: "There may be something wrong with me!"

Last of all, Mr. Alley said that we as citizens of the world must be willing to "pay the price" of peace, that those who made the great sacrifice in the late war may not have died in vain.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT AND NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS

Have you felt it? That wonderful spirit that is felt at no other time, except the Christmas season. It is indifinable and yet it is undoubtedly felt. Christmas in our bones! Christmas in the air! Cheer and good will on all sides! But what does it mean this wonderful spirit?

The true spirit of Christmas is that of unselfishness of giving for the pleasure of giving, and for the joy we may accord others. Over two thousand years ago the greatest gift that mankind has ever received was given to the world in that sublime gift "the Christ Child," from the very beginning this set a precident and we found the wise men bringing their gifts to lay at his feet. Gifts which stood for gratitude and for love.

The modern spirit of giving has been experienced in the phantom Santa Claus; and although we no longer believe in that wonderful man of childhood, unless we can keep that spirit in our hearts we cannot get the joy out of Christmas which is ours by rights.

How many times do we hear on everyside the remark: "Well, Christmas is such a hard time for me, because I can't afford to give presents such as I'd like to." What a shame that a time which is meant for rejoicing and thankfulness shall be passed in such a spirit. For

"Not what we give but what we share
The gift without the giver is bare."

I wonder if we would look at things more in this spirit. if all of us wouldn't feel better and happier. If we can give nothing but justice where it is due, and if we can do no more than see the good in people rather than band and if we will only feel a spirit of fellowship and just commendation toward our fellow men—then we will give happiness and joy rather than pain and sorrow to some heart, and I'm sure we will find an answering fire kindled in our own hearts.

While we think of the Christmas spirit we find following close on ton of it the New Years resolutions. So can't we combine the two in one and make our New Years resolutions and our Christmas spirit be to give a word of help and good cheer to our friends, and classmates as well as to our leaders?

DO YOU ANTICIPATE SENDING A TELEGRAM TO YOUR SENATOR ON DECEMBER 17?

December 17 marks the opening of the debate in the United States Senate on America's entrance into the World Court. What will be the result? America, so far, has deliberately placed herself in company with Germany, Russia, Turkey, and Mexico, in rejecting this plan. For a powerful nation to cooperate in creating effecting international agencies is almost a calamity to world peace.

Students in all colleges of our country on that eventful day, are sending telegrams of cheer, of hope, and of faith to their senators in Congress. We want our representatives to know that we, as American students and future citizens, are backing them in their affirmative decisions concerning the World Court. Whether we live in or out of the Old Dominion, surely our senators would appreiate letters and telegrams expressing our opinions.

WHAT KIND OF LETTERS DO YOU WRITE HOME

"I use any kind of stationery when I write home."

"I don't have to bother about margins when I write to Mother."

Such expressions as these are heard on the hall and on the campus every day indeed, many times a day. I wonder why some of us are so careless in writing to the ones most dear to us? Very careful thought would prevent many hastily and incorrectly written letters. Who is most interested in our success a school? "Now", you say, "I never thought of that, but since you mentioned it, I believe my parents are watching my success more closely and with more interest than anyone else." Well, then, if that be true, do you believe that your mother is pleased with the success you are making? This question gives us food for thought. What kind of a letter do you write home? Is your letter written on stationary that is in good taste? Is it written correctly, as to sentence structure, punctuation, margins, or is it a "slip-shod", poorly expressed and poorly written letter? Imagine the joy that comes to your mother when she receives the letter of the former type. How delighted she is to know that you are improving and that all her efforts to train you have not been in vain!

Then, I wonder just what is the content of the letter written by the majority of S. T. C. students. Do we bemoan our condition and wish that we were in any other place but at Farmville? If we do, (and I hope that none of us do) why cause others sadness by telling them so. The happiness of our loved ones is largely dependent upon the happiness of us, and our happiness should be largely dependent upon theirs. Don't make your mother unhappy for [illegible] when your unhappiness may have vanished by the time it was mailed! How many of us no longer mail a "letter of calamity" than we would give worlds to get it out of the post office? But alas! Miss Taliaferro has it and soon it goes on its way to the eagerly waiting recipient

Let's resolve, girls that from now on the letters we write home will be of such a nature that our parents will be assured of our improvement, and that they will be happy in the belief that we are happy.—Betty Edmunds.

STUDENT BUILDING

You have all heard it said, "well it cannot be done"
But one man I know said "I'll do it"
So he thought and he planned—bricks were piled way up high
Until one day a smile said "I knew it"
'Twas a building he wanted—the finest at all,
And he said he'd have none but the best,
So he worked and he planned and he worked and he planned
'Till I wonder he ever could rest.
'Tis said that the building's foundation was faith,
And now I believe it is true
That most anything can be done if your faith
Is such that it will put it through.
Our dear Student Building's a wonderful dream,
The greatest dream ever come true,
Dr Jarman, we love it and want you to know
That our hearts full of thanks are for you!

The gilt inner coffin of Tut-anhkamen, built to the shape of the young Egyptian ruler, has been uncovered by Howard Carter who resumed work at the Tomb last month.

IF LETTERS TOLD THE TRUTH

Your letter, love, received today,
With sentiments strong and true—
But a bigger thrill was a wee white slip,
"Call for package please at two!"

Your words can sway my list'ning heart
With magic as no other pen.
(Except the magic in Dad's note,
"Inclosed you'll find a ten!")

I'm lifted to another world
By the haunting mem'ry of your eyes—
(But from Ma's box I get a lift
To a substantial paradise!)

Time is a tyrant—my soul would fain
Have utterance with you night and day—
(Oh, Caesar's Ghost? How can I write
With not a dog-gone thing to say?)

Dear, I see your dream-white vision
Of a cozy land for two—
(How 'bout a land where Tuesdays never come,
And white slips are taboo?)

Oh, why must I say good-nite so soon
Why live our lives by a bell—?
(That excuse has sufficed for letters five—I'll say it's an art for a snapy farewell!)

THE DECLINE OF HOME LIFE

As styles change, as customs change, and as the world progresses in its varied and sundry stages of development; just as rapidly as upward strides are made is some things, so are downward strides made in others.

I speak in condemnation of the rapid decline of home life; the home life of livable, living rooms, open fire places, big easy chairs, and, best all the assembly of large congenial, family groups for nightly discussions of the days, trials and tribulations.

The days of family home life has passed, but the vivid picture is with us yet. Mother in the easy rocker with her knitting—the youngest girl on a stool at her feet. In the morris chair father smokes his pipe between accounts of interesting events read aloud from the paper, to the enjoyment of the family. At the piano sits the young lady of the house, radiant in her effort to accompany older brother, whose happiest evenings are spent rendering the old songs loved best of all by his proud parents. As the tall clock ticks away the hours, each member of th family is drawn in closer communion, and love, is kept alive by heart felt smiles and sighs before the glowing coals.

What of the family life today Is there a time of the day in the modern American home when mother and father, sons and daughters form congenial, lovable groups, before glowing embers, for heart to heart talks with each other?

Gone are the days of such family intimacy. In this modern age, when night approaches, the young daughter is off to a dance, the son, recklessly speeding along the highway of life, the mother at some fashionable card party, and the father at the club for billiards or a chat with a business [illegible] open spaces of the bare drawing room resounds no happy echoes of loving voices.

And then, too, the old order of family morning prayers has long since ceased to exist. The days when father read from the worn family Bible to the silent kneeling group before him. Such morning devotion plays no part in the average home today. Early hours bring no assembly of the modern family. Breakfast hour finds the young heir and heiress asleep, the mother with her tray and mail beside her bed, while father snatches a bit of food alone at the big vacant table.

And so, time has wrought its changes, but even time cannot efface the picturesqueness of the home life of long ago, and perhaps once more it may occupy its place of honor in the world, different in form, but equal in beauty and significance.

ROANOKE COLLEGE — HAMPDEN-SIDNEY DEBATE

One wing of a dual debate of Roanoke College versus Hampden-Sidney College was held recently in the auditorium at State Teachers College.

The subject was: Resolved, That the United States should enter the World Court on the basis of the Swanson Resolution.

Speakers included: Affirmative—F. L. Hobacb and W. J. Paxton, of Roanoke College; Negative—T. A. Harrison and R. B. Randolph, of Hampden-Sidney College.

Judges were J. Taylor Thompson, W. C. Camada, Dr. Frederick Diehl, all of Farmville. Dr. J. D. Eggleston, of Hampden-Sidney acted as presiding officer.

The decision was two to one in favor of the affirmative.

THE THINGS WE DO

Have you ever noticed how easy,
It is for some folks to say—
That they will start to work or study.
Not now, but another day.
They love to build air castles,
Of all their fondest dreams,
When it comes to brick and stone,
The castles fade, it seems.
Of their ideals they will talk and talk,
To a large score they amount—
But it's not the things we're going to do,
But the things we do, that count.
It really seems so very queer,
That some folks can't realize—
The reason why they don't gain fame,
And aren't so very wise.
It's just because they always wait,
And put off day by day—
The things they really ought to do,
And needlessly delay,
Moments are golden and folks will learn.
Of each one to take account,
For it's not the things we're going to do,
But the things we do that count.

—Virginia Hodgson

WE SHOULD JOIN WORLD COURT!

In a speech in New York, Nov. 19, President Coolidge made a strong plea for the United States to join the World Court. "I can conceive of nothing that we could do," he said "which involves assuming new obligations on our part, that would be likely to prove of so much value to the world"

Speaking of the war debts of foreign nations to the United States, the President said that this Government would continue to insist upon payment. Debt settlements, he continued, are a good thing, both for the creditor and the debtor, because they maintain the principle of the integrity of international obligations.

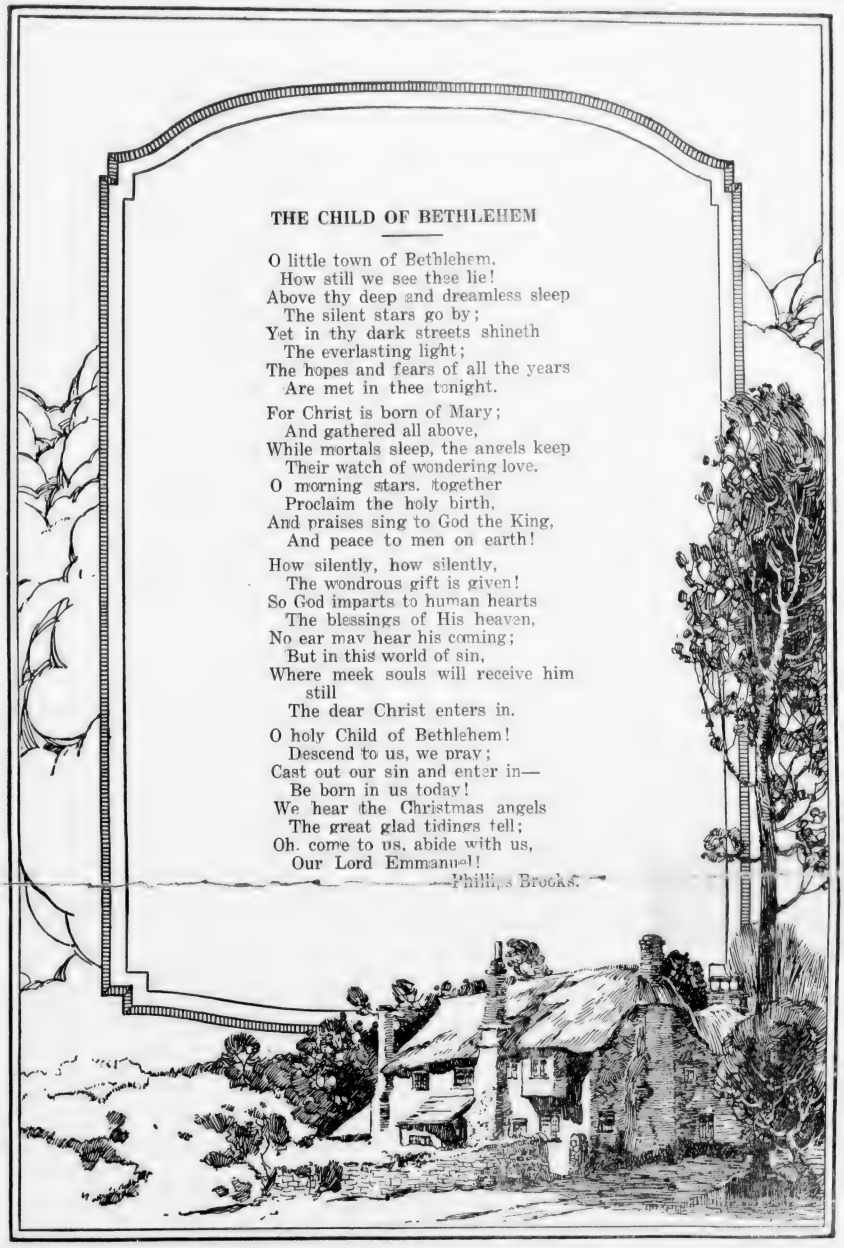
The President also touched upon business problems. The Government, he said, should not interfere with "true business." Each should be independent in its own sphere. Business added the President, when conducted in the righ way, has nothing to fear from the Government, its "vigilant supporter and friend."

JUNIORS WIN FROM THE SENIORS AGAIN—23—10

If the first Junior—Senior game was loose, the one that was played on December 7 was the opposite. The Seniors gave the Juniors the scare of their lives by holding the score to a tie through the third quarter. The first quarter ended 3—3, the second 9—6 in favor of the Juniors, and the third 10—10.

The fourth quarter was "another song." The Juniors fell in line, kept the Seniors from making another point and made thirteen more themselves, Crute played a good game during this time and made eleven of the thirteen points.

Anderson, who was a new girl in the Senior line-up for this game, played a good game.



The line-up:

Juniors	Position	Seniors
Vincent	F	Anderson
Crute	F	Bugg
White	S. C.	Whaley
Lohr	S. C.	Smith
Rucker	G	Boyd
Gary	G	Wright

Substitutions: None. Referee—Miss Iler. Umpire—Miss Graham.

THE CHILD OF BETHLEHEM

O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie!
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee tonight.

For Christ is born of Mary;
And gathered all above,
While mortals sleep, the angels keep
Their watch of wondering love.
O morning stars, together
Proclaim the holy birth,
And praises sing to God the King,
And peace to men on earth!

How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven,
No ear may hear his coming;
But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive him still
The dear Christ enters in.

O holy Child of Bethlehem!
Descend to us, we pray;
Cast out our sin and enter in—
Be born in us today!
We hear the Christmas angels
The great glad tidings tell;
Oh, come to us, abide with us,
Our Lord Emmanuel!

—Phillips Brooks.

JUST BECAUSE

Just because a girl doesn't act
Just like you, or
Just like you think she should act;
Just because her clothes don't look
Just like yours, or
Just like you think they ought to look;
Just because she doesn't talk
Just like you, or
Just like you think she should talk;
Just because a girl's herself instead of
Just like you, or
Just like you think she ought to be;
Is no reason she isn't
Just like she "oughtta be!

BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS!

The eighteenth annual Christmas Seal Sale is on, and will continue until Christmas Day. It is in charge of the National Tuberculosis Association. The money received from the sale of the little stickers for Christmas mail is used to promote the child welfare movement. Through this medium millions of school children have already been taught daily habits of cleanliness, diet, exercise and rest, in order that they might develop into robust men and women.

The Christmas Seal Sale this year began on November 28, at Washington, D. C. A big reproduction of the seal, bearing two tall candles, was placed in the window of the south portico of the White House. When Mrs. Coolidge lighted the candles the campaign was on. Then President Coolidge bought the first seal from eleven year old Adrienne Mayer, one of the "health crusaders" of the national capital.

Last year 1,250,000,000 seals were printed and sold.

FRESHMEN HOLD REGULAR MEETING

The regular meeting of the Freshman Class was held Tuesday, December 8. The main objectives in this meeting were to select a motto and a class flower. Out of many suggestions, "B2" was chosen as motto and in keeping with the class colors, the white rose was selected as class flower.

The meeting was then turned over to Stella Rogers Smith, the chairman of the committee for freshmen representation in the carnival. She appointed decoration and entertainment committees, after which, there being no more business the meeting adjourned.

A SUBSCRIPTION DANCE

A subscription dance was held under the auspices of young men of Farmville, who are upon the receiving list of the college, on Friday evening, from 9 p. m until 1:30 a. m. for the benefit of the Student Building. Approximately fifty couples attended, thirty-three of the young ladies being students of the college. Hampden-Sidney College was well represented

Patronesses included Miss Mary White Cox, head of the home department; Mrs. James K. Laing and Mrs. Eva H. Warren of the home department; and Miss Winnie Hiner, treasurer.

Excellent music was furnished by the orchestra from Washington and Lee University. Refreshments were sold during intermission by the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority of the college.

Y. W. C. A.

Miss Winnifred Wygal, National Secretary of the Y. W. C. A., visited our college last week. She spoke at Prayers Wednesday night, bringing to us a true, sweet message of "Beauty." She showed how God in His goodness and infinite love created a world of things for man's enjoyment. Her one outstanding thought was that all of us might, with keen, alert senses, see and feel the beauties of this grand old world.

She also spoke to the Cabinet at the morning watch Thursday morning.

McCORMICK ELECTED PRESIDENT DRAMATIC CLUB

Potts Vice-President, Overbey Resigns

On December 4, Lucy Haile Overbey handed in her resignation as president of the Dramatic Club, on account of other outside work. Louise McCormick, who was vice-president was elected president and Virginia Potts was elected vice-president.

The Dramatic Club expects to present "Prunella" or "Love in a Dutch Garden" the second week in January.

RUFFNER LITERARY SOCIETY

On December 9, the Ruffner Literary Society had an hour of fun initiating the six new members They all proved to be good sports, nothing more than expected. On December 11, the regular meeting of the society was held in Room J. The program was of real interest as it brought in the origin of the society. This will be the last meeting before Christmas. The first meeting after the holidays will be the election of new officers; so each, bethinking of suitable suggestions.

ROTUNDA PARTY

On Wednesday night at the regular staff meeting of the Rotunda everyone was surprised by a party given in honor of Geneva Llonberger. REPLIES NEVER RECEIVED AT S. T. C.

Dear Daughter:

I see you are all settled at school once more after those enjoyable weeks vacation for Thanksgiving. Dear child, it makes your father so happy to get your letters. You seem so satisfied with everything—the food you say is beyond reproach, you do not want any boxes from home—how I have longed to send you sweets each week, but you wrote me that with dessert twice a day it is entirely unnecessary I am so glad you have waffles for breakfast each morning—how you have loved them since you were a wee child.

Why did you say you didn't want a fur coat? I want you to have one and by today's mail I am sending you a mink and a squirrel—make your selection and don't think of the price when choosing.

I am so glad you have no studying now. I do not want you to work. I want you there to enjoy yourself with brother about your classes. I only want you to go to classes occasionally, because I never want the afternoons to find you buried in books but much of pleasure and less of work.

You will find enclosed a check for $100. Do not use a cent of this for Xmas dues of pledges—simply enjoy it. Remember when it is gone another will be sent immediately.

How would you like for Santa to bring you a roadster? A little bird told me he had already found a platinum watch studded with diamonds, which he thought you'd like.

Lovingly
DAD

P. S. I am sorry you have only three weeks vacation for Chrsitmas but remember school colses May 1st

TEMPLE GARLANDS

There is a temple in my heart
Where moth or rust can never come,
A temple swept and set apart
To make my soul a home.
And round about the doors of it
Hang garlands that forever last,
That gathered once are aways sweet;
The roses of the Past!

LETTERS TO SANTA FROM THE FACULTY

S. T. C.

Dear Mr. Santa—

I'm just a little boy and I have been awful good all year. Will you bring me a new garage to go with my new house, a "sh"er, to keep girls quiet and just lots and lots of mental tests.

Hurry to see me,

Boyd C

Dear Santa Claus, my dear heart,

I really don't care for very much this Christmas but could you bring me a talking dolly—I would prefer one who could talk poetry, it appeals to me so.

Thanks dear,

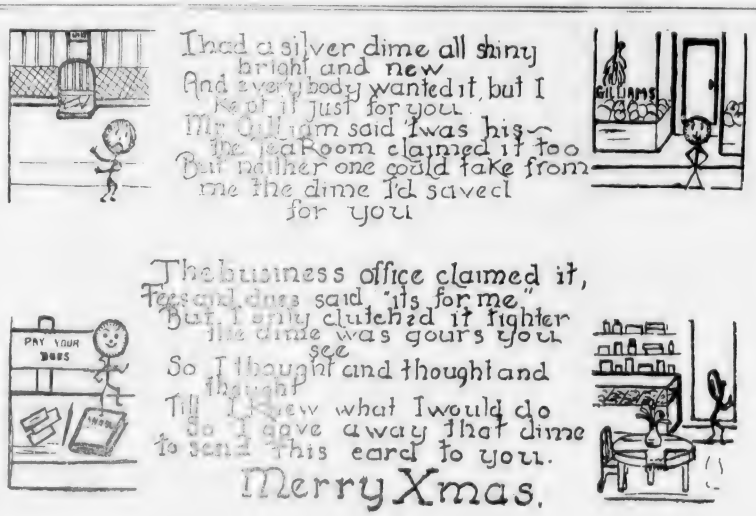
A CONFESSION

Squares, triangles, futuristic outlines, all decorate my margins, fly leaves, and the pages of my notebook



Patiently I wait till my name is called by the teacher and my question answered—then my mind is free and I may unburden my weary brain and give free play to my pencil. Frantically I turn pages in my notebook Ah,—there is a blank page, at last

My mind works with freedom and spontaneity. There is no need for an incentive. Always there is more material. I am never at a loss.

If it is not circles and triangles, it is my A, B, C's. There is no capital in any handwriting that I have not mastered. I can draw faces from the outline of a circle, parenthesis, or a bracket. Rabbits with backs turned toward you; pussy cats with long tails; bottles, vases, mazes;—all adorn my margins, fly leaves, and notebooks

If I only had talent—who knows—but, oh well, I haven't —Sara Spiers

Christmas presents may be divided roughly into two classes those we don't like and thoe we didn't get.

"PRUNELLA" TO BE PRESENTED

THE ROTUNDA

POE

CLASS ISSUES WILL SOON APPEAR

THE STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VI | THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 13, 1926. | NUMBER 12

DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT "PRUNELLA"

In the College Auditorium on January 22 at eight o'clock the Dramatic Club of the State Teachers College will present "Prunella" as their first play this year.

"Prunella" is a delightful three-act play, telling the story of how a young girl, Prunella, ignorant of the world and living in seclusion with her three aunts: Prim, Pride and Privacy, glimpses over the garden wall the Pierrot of a band of travelling Mummets, is serenaded by him and runs away with him to become his Pierette. It is a very lovely tale which works slowly to a climax of great and touching beauty, when he realizes his fascination for her has turned to love.

This play is staged against a background of unusual beauty, which, with the quaint costumes and tuneful music with its plaintive note love will charm you and carry you to a realm of dreams.

PAYNE ELECTED CHEER LEADER AT ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION MEETING

Constitution Amended

An Athletic Association meeting was held Friday after regular chapel service at which time the cheer leader and assistant cheer leader was elected and the constitution of the Athletic Association was amended.

Isabel Payne was elected as cheer leader with Eleanor Bennett as her assistant. "Izzy", who has pepped the Sophs this year at games will be in charge of the cheers while Eleanor Bennett will lead the songs. With this combination and the backing of the school, the yells and songs will be all right.

The following amendments were made to the constitution:

1. The varsity L, the monogram and the numerals shall be worn only by their respective winners.

2. An old English F shall be awarded to girls winning four sets of numerals.

3. A star shall be awarded to every girl for every additional year after the varsity F has been won.

4. In place of using the ring and the ropes in the requirments for obtaining the monogram the javelin and discus throw shall be substituted.

THE PAN-HELLENIC INITIAL DANCE

Saturday night in the Recreation Hall the Pan-Hellenic of Hampden-Sidney held its first dance, which was one of the best ever—with stags galore! There were comparatively few girls present as the Hampden-Sidney Freshmen were not allowed to make dates. The Lynchburg orchestra furnished good, peppy, music and everybody had a good time. Miss Mary W. Cox, Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Laing and Mrs. William Anderson chaperoned. The guests from school with their escorts were:

Muriel Thompson with Ernest Garland.

Nellie Callahan with Joe Cox.

Margaret Lewis Stearnes with Rhea Blake.

FRESHMAN COMMISSION ORGANIZES HIGH SCHOOL CLUB

A new and interesting project has been undertaken by the twenty girls who make up the Freshman Commission and who serve as the vital connecting link between their large class and the Y. W. C. A. It is the organizing and leading of a high school club in the Training School. Both the Freshman Commission and the Training School club are relatively new ideas—both having been introduced last year for the first time.

The Commission first unified itself by electing officers. Lorah Brewer was elected president; Anna Mae Ellis, vice-president; and Frances Willis, secretary. Aft[illegible] few meet[illegible] secon[illegible] of plann[illegible] to [illegible]es to be [illegible] talental of the Co[illegible] nte[illegible] talked be[illegible] the w[illegible]the high sch[illegible] about the one [illegible] of starting a [illegible] service and [illegible] High School Club to be indirectly affiliated with the Y. W. of the college. An invitation was given to all interested to meet in the Lounge a day later. The respons was enthusiastic. Over 20 girls met with the Commission group, and formed the nucleus of a High School Club. Elizabeth Mann was chosen president of the new club, and some peppy wide-awake beginning plans made. Business was then discarded, and each commission girl took a "little sister" under wing down town to get happily acquainted over a chocolate soda.

That was the beginning! The next meeting found the membership doubled and even greater interest manifested by the high school girls. A Christmas program featuring ole Santa and his laughable gifts, topped off the meeting after plans had been made for a New Year's party.

All in all, the club is just a beginning of what it may become. A definitely planned year's program, original and snappy committee work, socials that will lead to a closer friendship between the Freshman and the high school girls—these are the goals of present plans. Under the auspices of the college Y. W. C. A., and under the leadership and wholehearted "buddy" spirit of the twenty Freshman girls, it hopes to eventually mean to the Training School all that the Y. W. C. A. means to S. T. C.—service, friendliness, and play, plus a development of future leaders.

THE NEW YEAR

I see not a step before me,
As I tread on another year,
But the past is still in God's keeping,
The future His mercy shall clear,
And what looks dark in the distance
May brighten as I draw near.

—Brainard.

GREETINGS TO THE NEW GIRLS

—o—

The old students of S. T. C. wish to extend a hearty welcome to the new girls who have entered with the New Year. There are some who have before been students here, they are returning home and we are glad There are some who are probably leaving home for the first time and we want them to feel that they are now one of us. We want S. T. C. to be a home to them as it is to every old student. Not only does each individual girl welcome the newcomers but each organization hopes that it may benefit as well as be benfitted by these girls. The Y. W. thanks them for their hearty support and hopes that it may be the connecting link that will draw them closer to the spiritual life of the [illegible] Again we extend our [illegible] that we, the [illegible] girls are here to serve, so do not hesitate to call upon us.

CHANGES IN THE SUNDAY SCHEDULE

At a call meeting of the Student Body, Miss Mary White Cox, announced the changes which would take place in the Sunday schedules. Breakfast will be at 8:30 and dinner at 2:00. This change enables the maids of the dining room to attend church on Sunday nights.

This seems to be a change for the best. We like changes! We want more of them.

FARMVILLE TO HAVE NEW HOSPITAL

Due to the work which Farmville has accomplished along the line of health and sanitation and of the interest of her people in this work, Farmville was chosen as the site for a hospital, part of the money for which is to be given by the Commonwealth Fund of New York City.

Farmville must earn part of the money herself, and for every dollar which she earns the Commonwealth Fund will add two more dollars. Her quota at present is $60,000, and a campaign to raise this money is now going on.

People for thirty-five miles are expected to contribute as well as the residents of Farmville, because the hospital will be for their use and protection. Everyone is showing an [illegible]erest in the campaign, and [illegible] our [illegible] the manager that th[illegible] reached.

[illegible]se was presented to [illegible] of the town by the min[illegible]sters from the various churches, the subject of the Sunday sermons was the necessity and help of a hospital. Other organizations have been most enthusiastic and extensive advertising has been carried on as a part of the campaign.

Farmville is very lucky to have a chance to get so splendid a hospital—and it will be a great aid to her.

This school will undoubtedly be helped, and since the town always back us in whatever we do, we want them to know that we are back of them and it is our earnest hope that they will succeed in getting one of the best hospitals in the State.

CLASS ISSUES OF ROTUNDA TO APPEAR SOON

Every year it is the custom for each class to elect a newspaper staff and edit The Rotunda. A faculty committee is elected to judge which issue is the best.

The class issues will begin with the first issue in February and the Seniors will edit the first paper. A complete staff will be elected from each class, electing no member of the regular Rotounda Staff. All extra cuts, colors and extra features are to be paid for by the classes.

If their are other organizations of the school who wish to edit a paper, The Rotunda Staff will be glad to assist them.

NOTICE

It is necessary that all anuals be sold before January 26th. After that date no student can buy an annual as the order will be placed on that day.

A good resolve will make any port.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

FORGET, FORGIVE, LOVE AND BE CONTENT.

The old year is over and with it go all our failures so let us forget them and try to be more of a success at the close of 1926 than we were in 1925. We have a wonderful chance to improve over our mistakes of the past. Let us take it.

If we have dong wrong let us begin to do the right things now. We have all had trials and hardships and we will cross more hard bridges in 1926 which are now unseen but let us begin with a good spirt so that we can bear them when they come.

We have held many things against our friends let us forgive all and start the year with an open heart and forgiving spirit. If we can not forgive people we are not worth the space we take up in this world. "To err is human, to forgive divine."
forgive it is hard, it is divine and so divine.

Let us try to be more considerate of others and take more interest in others and do more for them than we have in the past. The spirit of unselfishness is of the highest virtue and noblest praise. Let us love one another more than we have. Love, after all, is the greatest thing that exists among man, we should practice it more. One of our greatest sins in this day of rush and hurry is that we do not love each other more.

Contentment cannot be bought but it can be gotten through the determination of making ourselves satisfied with what we have. To be content does not mean to be content with what we are but with what we have. Let us try to say with Paul. "I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content." We will be happy then for we are happy only when we are satisfied Our lot in life is not so bad after all. There are always those around us who are far worse off. Would you be anybody but the person you are? No, you would not.

And now let us start the New Year with the lesson of the disciple,

"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise think on these things."

JOAN SAYS—

Happy New Year to you each and everyone—both old girls and the very new ones. May this truly be your happiest and most successful year. You know any one can wish you a happy New Year but it is only you yourself who can make it one. Your success and happiness depends on how you spend your time how you look upon life. It is always you.

I know of some girls whose lives seem to me to have been nothing but sorrow and disappointment and yet they are very happy, while girls who have all their hearts could desire and always are pouting and miserable. So we reasize its not circumstance that makes a person happy but—shall we say love or faith a person has in God. If we know we have faith in God and He is for us who can be against us? Let us put our trust in Him and rejoince and be glad. And may 1926 be the happiest year for each girl in S. T. C.

A NEW LEAF.

To the desk of his teacher a little lad came
With his eyes downcast and his cheeks aflame,
And he said in trembling and hesitant tone,
"I've spoiled this leaf; may I have a new one?"
In place of the sheet so stained and blotted
She gave him a new one, clean unspotted;
His tear-stained face she lifted, they smiled,
And said, "Try to do better now, my child."

To my teacher I went on my knees, alone;
The days had passed by, and another year flown;
"Dear Father, hast Thou not a new leaf for me?
I've blotted so badly this other, I see."
God took the old leaf, so soiled and blotted,
And gave me a new one, clean, unspotted,
And into my sorrowing heart he smiled
Saying, "Try to do better now, my child."

MILITARY TRAINING IN SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

It is a surprising thing that military training is becoming a prominent part of education offered by [illegible] (Dr) and colleges [illegible] ing the school year of 1924-25 any instruction was given in more than 226 educational institutions in the United States. Among the list were many famous colleges such as Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Johns Hopkins.

Military training of the students is carried in under the encouragment of the War Department which supplies uniforms, necessary equipment and the men who teach these youths. Apparently the purpose of the War Department is to go on, furthering military training, until all boys over fourteen years of age enrolled in the schools of the United States are being drilled to take part in war.

Have we changed our opinion? Before the World War, we believed that no nation requiring all its young men to take training as soldiers could be strongly devoted to peace. Even though military training is sold to the student and his father and mother by much talk about its being training for citizenship, army officers are told in their manual that "they, (the young men) are being trained to be soldiers."

In an enlightening pamphlet on this subject Mr. Wisthrop D. Lane urges that we "take action to secure to American youth such educational influences as will make unequivocally for peace."

AN OPEN AIR FREE LIBRARY

In a municipal park in Spain a small open-air free library has been established. A policeman has charge of it. Every morning he opens it, and at night he closes it up. Any one may take a book from the shelves without giving a receipt for it, may sit down and read under the shade of the trees, returning the book to the shelves when he is ready to leave. No books have ever been stolen. Good for Spain and for Spanish boys and girls.

THE SALT IN THE SEA

The sea is salty because during millions of years the rains have been wearing down the land and carrying the dust and sand from it into the sea. Enough of this has accumulated and there is enough salt in the material to make the sea salty.

THE DRAWING ROOM

In early days the entire household lived in the "great hall." Then the need of more privacy was felt and the withdrawing-room was introduced for the women of the house. From this term the modern word "drawing-room" is derived.

COMING THROUGH THE HALLS

A girl, who has a test for tomorrow, must go to her room, shut the world out, and begin concentrating on her work. Soon after she has comfortably settled herself for an hours hard study, she is disturbed by a noise in the hall. The noise is a girl singing on her way to the library. The girl reviews what she was studying before the disturbance and tries to concentrate again.

In a few minutes she is annoyed again, this time a girl has stopped just outside her door and is telling her roommate about the wonderful time, she had over the week-end.

After several such occurances the poor student loses all her inclination to study and resorts to the writing of poetry.

(With apologies to Robert Burns)

If a body meet a body coming through the hall
If a body greet a body need a body bawl
Every girlie has a chumie she may want to call
Yet all the girls must not disturb
When coming through the hall.

ON BEING CALLED "MISS"

Long ago when I was very young the title, "Miss" had a sort of radiant fascination for me. There seemed to be a sort of [illegible] in the word. It implied dignity, power, command. With childish disregard I used to happily muse upon the time in the remote, very remote, future when I should be a "grown lady", tall and dignified with an abundance of light hair piled high upon my head.

The years slowly and imperceptably slipped by. I passed several impatiently awaited birthdays, but I seemed to grow no older, I had not yet reached that enviable state of dignity. Soon I had attained the age of "almost eighteen". I had, somehow, unconsciously relinquished that former childish forecast of my "grown up" self. It had slowly slipped from my consciousness. I ceased to conjecture upon the matter at all.

At this time I came to S. T. C. My notions concerning college were the rather vague, alluring impressions gained from stories. I had never given the question of what I should be called a thought. Quite unexpectedly I was assailed on all sides by the long-awaited title, "Miss". Where was its radiance, its charm, its allurement; all the dignity, power and command which should naturally have accompanied it? Gone! In their place was left the cold, impersonal, business-like little word, "Miss", followed by my last name. This was very disappointng but there was at least the fascination of novelty in the situation.

Empty, hollow, inconstant quality! It, too, soon fled and I am left with two cherished dreams shattered. Although I do not consider myself quite "grown up", I know that they can't be realized. I am short, my hair is dark; and I almost detest the once radiant title, "Miss."

ATHLETICS

VARSITY GAME NEXT FRIDAY

On Friday, January 15, the varsity will play its first intercollegiate basketball game against Lynchburg College. This game will be played on the home floor and naturally the entire student body is expected to be present at the game;—that is, all who are worthy of being called a student of S. T. C. This game is really a new challenge to the college because this is the first time Lynchburg College will have been here and whatever the student body does about this game will be the impression that college gets of our school.

New songs are also going to be sung. This means that we must attend the pep meetings and learn the songs we're going to sing. We have our cheer leaders and we have our songs. The rest is left up to us.

There is no need to comment on the varsity. It is enough to say that they are doing their best to put S. T. C. where it belongs in athletics.

Although some will be added and some eliminated the varsity squad at present is composed of the following girls:

Mitchell, Vincent, Perkins, Hall (manager), Gary, White, Crute, Wells, Wright, Woodson, Brewer, Lohr, Greggs, D. Jones, Poe, Burch, M. Holmes, G. Jarman, Whitehurst, R. Ponten, Hargrave, Volk.

ART CORNER

THE SISTINE MADONNA

There hangs in Miss Coulling's class room this week, a copy of the greatest of all pictures—The Sistine Madonna, by Raphael Sanzia. It is the apex of all religious art, rising out of the domain of the particular and temporal into the realm of the universal and eternal.

At the first glance the picture appears small—the forms are less than life size—and to the eyes educated by the Gran' Duca and the Madonna of the chair, it appears rather dull in color. The larger areas of green, blue and gray, seem to give a dominence to the cooler colors; but presently one discovers that the colors are more subdued and the contrasts softer than usual, and that the whole canvas is suffused with the dim green —golden light of a forest glade in [illegible]tember.

JAMESTOWN

We left the quaint old city of Williamsburg with a last lingering look back at its beautiful old college, and our car plunged down a red clay hill to what I thought must be a silver mirror. Instead itw as a calm placid pool of water spread out between banks of beautiful trees that dipped their leaves and vines into its brim and sent tiny ripples out from the shore. A laxy turtle sunned itself on a half sunken log, and around a distant curve glided a swift canoe with its musical paddle.

What a setting for Pocahontas, I thought, as we climed a steep bank and moved on thru the glory of woods in spring. Vistas thru the trees gave us, at times, glimpses of hill sides, dogwood blossoms, and little white bridges across streams. Beautiful and prosperous farms came in sight and were left behind, and, then, sharp against the blue of the sky, we saw the obelisk of the Jamstown monument. We thundered across the long bridge that spans the creek leading to the island, and then we were there!

This is Jamestown, a clear, sparkling emerald, set in the platinum stream of the James. Surely a jewel that Virginia is proud to wear upon her breast! Ancient trees with long festooning grape vines cover one end of the sacred enclosure, a memorial of that far away time where the first Virginians tied their boats to the trees and praised the "goodly vines". Here is a grass covered slope shaped like a triangle, and we read that it is all that remains of the old colony fort that protected our fore fathers. We step silently into the old church, and stand looking up thru

Y. M. C. A. CABINET ENTERTAINS NEW GIRLS

Friday afternoon, the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet entertained the new comers to our college at a tea, given in the Tea Room.

Miss London, with her sweet smile and charming, lovable manner, poured tea. The "old" girls met the "new" ones, and compared acquaintances and friends. A dolly in pink (Gertrude Quinn) and a Buster Brown (Jo Culin) performed their little "Doll Love Dance" to the great delight of all the girls. Afterwards, they ceased to be dollies and became real people, who also enjoyed a chat over tea cups.

The Y. W. C. A. wishes to take this opportunity of publicly welcoming the new girls, and telling them how delighted wew ere to meet them at tea and talk with thm. We are so glad to hear new friends, to have you in our college, and we wish you all success and happiness in the coming year.

CAPS AND GOWNS BECOME MORE PROMINENT

What does a cap and gown signify? To an underclass man it may mean little, but to a Senior it means a great deal. It is to her the great reward for which she has gradually climbed during four years college work; it is to her the appreciation for all of the uphill drawbacks and struggles.

What should the cap and gown mean to underclassmen? First of all they should realize the position of a Senior, and show them the deference that befits their station. In other colleges Seniors are respected because of their position. This respect is shown in such common situations as holding a door for her to pass, offering her a seat in a car, and recognizing her importance through other small courtesies.

Shall S. T. C. be different from the rest? I heard a Freshman remark, the other day, that she could not distinguish a Senior from anyone else. Don't you think we should at least know our Senior class?

Hereafter, at regular Student Body and Student Committee meetings Seniors will appear in cap and gown that the underclassmen may know and respect the degree class of 1926.

MY SCHEDULE
(With suitable apologies)

I have a little schedule that goes in and out with me,
And what can be the use of it is more than I can see.
It is very, very contrary from beginnig to the end,
And I'm realy sure and certain that I'll never call it "friend".

The funniest thing about it is the way it likes to act,
Not at all like proper schedules,—which are always full of tact;
For sometimes it's so full of life,—has seventeen full hours,
And then again it must be changed—'tis dead and calls for flowers.

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD THAT—

A dog turns around several times before lying down? Naturally you have—but have you ever heard why? Naturalists tell us that thedog in his wild state inhabited the jungles, and that it was necessary that he turn around several times before lying down in odrer that he might bend the leaves away from his body. This instinct still survives with the dog—although it is not at all necessary in his present domesticated state(?)

THE PATH TO THE MOUNTAINS

Gold and rose and blue at the end of a winter's day—
A golden path on the drifted snow where fairy feet may stray.

Way out there in the distance, the mountains high and blue
In all their magic splendor call and call to you.

Back of the great blue mountains the golden sun on high
Gathers the clouds about him—the rose-white clouds of the sky.

I hear the call of the mountains, blue with a rosy crown,
And wish that I could follow where the golden sun sinks down.

And now from the foot of the mountain the sunset's trail is spread—
A golden path on the white, white snow from the great sun o'erhead

And my feet would like to follow the golden trail, on to the mountains high,
Where the sun behind those walls of blue sinks in a rose-white sky.

he open roof of the tower from which stern eyds pointed along the barrels of guns, while faithful hearts rose to God in prayer below. The old churchyard, so bright with sunlight, holds men and women and little children that lived and labored and died at Jamestown. The old college we passed so lately is a part of their work; the memorial to the first legislative body in America commemorates a part of their work; and now they sleep here in simple faith to that resurrection morn.

There is a garden, too, in Jamestown sweet with roses, violets, and old lavender. An old gray sun dial watches the shadows of the hours creep away, and birds, in the warmth of spring, sing among the flowers or perch upon the bird bath with a knowing cock of the head in our direction.

We sat on the banks of the broad and lovely James to watch this perfect day die in a glory that is not on land or sea, but is found only in the sunsets at Jamestown.

"PRUNELLA" TO BE PRESENTED FRIDAY NIGHT

"Prunella", or "Love In A Dutch Garden" will be presented by the Dramatic Club on Friday night, January 22 at 8 p. m.

Miss Coulling, Miss Tupper and the Home Economics Department painted the scenery, designed and made the costumes. Miss Barlowe supervised the dances. The music will be furnished by Virginia Potts, Virginia Woodward, and Mrs. W. D. Bowman.

The Dramatic Club has put much time and work on the production of this play and it promises to be a successful one.

Tickets are on sale by members of the Dramatic Club. Seats may be reserved at White Drug Store beginning Tuesday January, 19.

Reserve your seat early!

BOXLEY AND HODGSON NEW MEMBERS OF ROTUNDA STAFF

Virginia Boxley and Virginia Hodgson have been elected to the staff of the Rotunda, filling the vacancies occasioned by the failure of two of the members to return for this quarter. Boxley as assistant business manager, and Hodgson as assistant circulation manager measure up to the qualifications of such an office. Their literary ability, as well as their dependability was taken into consideration in this election

The Rotunda needs new ideas, and the staff is expecting a great many novelties from these recently appointed members.

NEW PRESIDENT OF COLLEGE ORCHESTRA

At a recent meeting of the college orchestra, Josephine Peters was elected president for the coming year. The orchestra, under leadership of Mrs. King as director and "Joe" Peters as president, is expecting to carry out a number of musical programs during the remainder of the college year.

LYNCHBURG VARSITY ENTERTAINED BY SENIOR CLASS

After the Lynchburg College-Farmville game Friday night, the Senior class entertained the two teams and officials. The guests were entertained very informally in the Lounge of the Student Building. Refreshments in the form of sandwiches and hot chocolate were served, after which songs and yells were given for the Lynchburg team. At 10:30 to the tune of "Good Night Lynchburg" the jollity of the evening ended.

RESULTS OF RECENT Y. W. C. A. DRIVES

The grand total of the last Y. W. C. A. drive was one hundred and fifty dollars ($150.00). This sum, of course, helps considerably on the Y. W. budget, but it isn't a beginning of what the Association needs and expects from the Student Body. The chairman of the Finance Committee has an interesting and novel plan which she hopes to put into practice in the near future. So have your money ready!

The newly created Bookroom in the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet room has proved very successful both last term and this term. Twenty dollars ($20) was the Y. W. C. A.'s reward this term for managing such a helpful sale shop. The purpose of such a "store" is three-fold:

1. To aid the Y. W. C. A.
2. To help girls sell used books.
3. To help in the reduction of book prices for those who buy.

THE CLUB OPERA

Under the direction of Mrs. King the Glee Club expects to present an opera sometime in February. The opera is a lovely one, and the rehearsals are being carried on with a great deal of enthusiasm. The entire club is working on the opera—and we can all look forward to its final presentation as one of the best amateur operas which we have ever seen presented here.

YOUR LAST CHANCE

Subscribe to The Virginian! The Virginian is an excellent memory book in which there are pictures of your best friends and a host of others that you may never see again. Freshmen and Juniors, listen! Some of your best chums are Sophomores and Seniors who will not be here next year. If can't have them, the next best thing is The Virginian. The Virginian serves as a collection of the best of the year 1925-1926 at S. T. C.

Don't wait to subscribe—January 26—is your last chance.

The order for the number of copies of The Virginian must be made up by this date.

Thes price if The Virginian is $3.00. One dollar reserves your copy, the rest is to be paid before May. There will absolutely be no opportunity to order copies later on.

A table will be kept in the Faculty room Wednesday, January 20, and Friday, January 22 from 2 to 6 o'clock where you may subscribe, or Alice Thomas, Circulation Manager, will be glad to take your subscription, Main Building, 128.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

ATTENTION FRESHMEN

For the benefit of the Freshmen a word should be said about literary societies. There are six literary societies in school, all of which are active and they are all striving toward satisfying their standards.

Any Freshman has a chance to become a member, providing she has shown some ability along a literary line, and that her English grade is average or above. This is the standard which the literary societies require. The council, composed of all the presidents and faculty committee on literary societies have set this standard and by it we hope that the status of the societies may be raised.

The purpose of the literary societies may be said to be threefold. First they wish to bring out and to discover new talent and abilities, second they wish to improve what talent they already have and to have the whole group concentrate on some one line of study which will mutually benefit it, and third they wish to bring the whole group together in a social way, and to create a social feeling between the groups.

When you consider these purposes, it is not hard to see what value a literary society may have for you, and if you receive an invitation to become a member of a society, do not just take it as a matter of course, but go into it with the feeling that you are going to help raise the standard, help carry out the purpose, and that you are going to be one more factor that will put life into the literary societies.

To those who may not receive an invitation stop and think! If your English grades aren't what they should be try and raise them, if you have hidden literary talent try and show it, so it will be found out. In other words, make yourself reach the required standard.

The names of the six literary societies are: Argus, Cunningham, Pierian, Athenian, Ruffner and Jefferson. The literary society bulletin board is in the hall under the library, right in the midst of the English class room. On this bulletin board is a space for every society. The names of the members and other information is placed here. To read the bulletin board and see by the girls, who are members, just what the literary societies could and should stand for.

If there is any information which you would like to have, go to any member of any society, or to any member of the faculty. You should be interested in these societies—for they are your organization and are interested in you.

VARSITY DEFEATS LYNCHBURG COLLEGE IN CLEAN GAME

Score is 41–21

Friday night the varsity defeated Lynchburg College in the first game of the year with a score that lacked only a point of doubling that of the opposing team.

The first three points were won by the home team by making three foul goals good. The forwards were accurate and steady in shooting. Practically every goal tried from the foul line went into the basket and thus steadily added to S. T. C.'s score.

The outstanding characteristic of both teams was the clean game they played. The opposing team as well as the S. T. C. varsity never once faltered in playing the game in the highest and finest way.

Of our team one member of the faculty summed up the oustanding points in the following words, "I have never seen a team play together as well. The teamwork was beautiful. No one person could be picked out as the best player for the whole team played as one."

At the end of the first half the score was 9—23 in S. T. C.'s favor. Although the score was doubled, the Lynchburg girls fought and proved that they were sports in losing.

The enthusiasm shown by the students proved that the school is behind the team.

Line-up:

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

NOTEBOOKS

Perhaps nothing holds quite such a prominent place as the notebook at S. T. C. There are notebocks and notebooks of various sizes and descriptions thrust upon us during our life as students here. As freshmen, we hear the cry as we fill in our class cards, "Now I want you to keep a notebook"—as Sophomores, we know the cry, as Juniors, we expect the cry and as Senirs, we hate it—because we understand the meaning of a notebook. Of course, some good comes from everything worthwhile; but often I have wondered if the notebook is really worthwhile. As I have said, there are types of notesbooks. One is the type which recalls identically every word spoken by the teacher, another records word for word notworthy passages from library books, and still another is composed of any material seen fit to be thus recorded by a student. The latter type hold for me first place, for in it is placed individual thoughts and compositions peculiarly adapted to the mind of each student. As for the other types—what mean they to us? We complete our notebooks straight from the shoulder as directions demand—but what of the outcome? We, carefully and diligently, arrange out a table of contents, number each page, become weary-eyed with copying upon unruled paper carefully selected subject matter and our notebook is given in at the end of the term to the teacher. We get a grade on the work—but what have we gained—not individuality, not literary taste, for all love and interest has been thwarted by matter of fact directions. What of the notebook which is kept through the spontaneity of our own mind? We place in it thoughts, savings, directions perhaps which are to us worthwhile; we grasp a thought and in our own words record it for future use. This notebook is to us our own, not the words of the teacher, not the words of an author, but the words of an individual for individual reference. The required notebook is distastful; the informal notebook is appreciated. Is not this notebook best after all? Surely, teachers arppeciate initiative and individuality; surely, ability can be best judged by spontaneous effort, and so we hope that S. T. C. may soon graduate from the formal, required notebook.—F. R. B.

START WHERE YOU STAND.

I.

Start where you stand and never mind the past,
The past won't help you in beginning new,
If you have left it all behind at last
Why, that's enough, you're done with it, you're through;
This is another chapter in the book,
This is another race that you have planned,
Don't give the vanished days a backward look,
Start where you stand.

II.

The world won't care about your old defeats
If you can start anew and win success,
The future is your time, the time is fleet
And there is much of work and strain and stress;
Forget the buried woes and dread despairs,
Here is a brand new trial right at hand,
The future is for him, who does and dares,
Start where you stand.

III.

Old failures will not halt, old triumphs aid,
Today's the thing, tomorrow soon will be;
Get in the fight and face it unafraid,
And leave the past to ancient history;
What has been, has been; yesterday is dead
And by it you are neither blessed nor banned,
Take courage, man, be brave and drive ahead,
Start where you stand.

"GOING TO PRAYERS?"

"Going to prayers, Peg?"

"Nope, don't think I will. Too much to do tonight."

And thus the numberless Pegs, as they nightly make such remarks, cause the Goddess of Irony to smile—and smile. "Too much to do"—such a trite, overy used excuse! You and I and all the Pegs and Janes and Mary's—we find time to study, time for hours of confidences, time for the movies, time to write endless epistles, time to play, and laugh, and work; yet when the time comes for the fifteen minutes that we set aside for the lovely little service known as "Prayers" each night we hesitate and ask, "Too much to do?"

We pride ourselves on being well rounded, fair minded, sportsmanlike. Yet—even though we be letter perfect in recitations, noticeably punctual at every type of meeting—are we being the square sport when we forget the little tryst we might spend face to face with our real selves each day? It isn't necessary to be painfully serious or the proverbial star gazer in order to have one daily Christian habit in our lives, is it? Religion should be a happy, lilting, singing thing; it should be the personification of all that is tuneful and lovely. A gentle, considerate act is religion. A master of painting, in its exquisite coloring and thought, is religion. Laughter, sheer, bubbling joy is religion, for the first step in being pious is being happy" sad one of our friends! A poem is nearer religion than a stilted sermon. Friendship, when it forgets self, reaches a place of sacrifice and depth that makes it in itself religion. In all probability, you and I and the Pegs and Janes and Marys are unconsciously having the things that are sincere and jolly and worthwhile. But wouldn't it be "dandy" to see every girl go to "Prayers" as regularly and naturally as she does to Chapel? The "new today" would be a time of rushing, hurrying, mustn't-stop-to-think moods, but one may do quite a bit of thinking and be unexplainably rested in fifteen minutes, don't you think? Most of us love the little service "Prayers" and have found it just an excuse in itself for being Its a worthy custom of our S. T. C.!

"Going to Prayers, Peg?"

"Wouldn't miss for worlds. Wait for me, Jo!" —L. H. B.

JOAN SPEAKS—

Last spring, at the close of school, I sent twenty of my girls to the Y. W. C. A. conference held at Blue Ridge North Carolina.

I have felt and noticed an underlying current of peculiar attachment which has bound these fortunate ones of my number, who attended this conference. Recently at an hour when there was tranquil peace in my Hall, one of these girls crept to my side and said that she wanted to have a confidential talk with me about her visit to Blue Ridge.

How eager I was to hear it! I had waited three months for some outward expression, which I knew would be obliged to come forth eventually.

"Joan," she said, "Have you ever seen so much that was beautiful, have you ever heard so many things which were true, uplifting and inspiring, have you ever felt so deeply moved within, that your very soul seemed to be swelling with love and praise for the Maker of all which is Good? If you have sensed any of these feelings, dear Joan, then you have a clear conception of the spirit of Blue Ridge."

Yes, I recognize this beautiful spirit and it is for this reason that I urge all of you in this large Student Body, who possibly can, to begin now, to plan to attend the next Conference.

ON DIETING

To some, such a subject is vague, to others, it is non-resistent, but to me it is all important, for I am now at battle with the greatest forces in the world, the army of calories, and an attempt to defeat such a battalion is no easy task.

You, who have never undergone the torture of such a process will little realize the true meaning of the word diet, but I can truthfully say that no other word in the English language involves such exhibition of determination, will-power and imagination.

First of all I name determination in connection with dieting, but really deciding is the first step to take. Of course, anyone can decide to do anything. It is altogether a cheap amusement and one which requires not effort whatever; consequently I decided to diet. How simple it all seemed to me then. Well do I remember the occasion. It was after a dinner of roast chilken with all my favorite vegetables and hot rolls, topped with strawberry cream and chololate cake. Naturally I did feel a bit uncomfortable as I arose from the table, and imaginatively viewing quite a few excessive pounds as I gazed into my mirror, I then and there decided to diet. Oh! it was so easy at eight p. m. that night, as, happy and proud if my decision, I traveled to slumberland not with visions of fried potatoes, not chocolate and nut sundaes, but with dry toast, fish and tea with lemon. But at eight a. m., what a different story. I was hungry—and there were waffles for breakfast!

Then came the next step; determination. Having determined to do a thing the ordeal of doing it is no easier. Perhaps you never set before alluring, starchy foods, hungry and yet determined not to eat them. And the most fattening of them are without a doubt always your favorites. There are the pastries covered with chocolate or heaped high with whipped cream, but no matter what charms they hold for the starving dieter they must be passed up by sheer determination to overcome a craving for such fattening delicacies. I guess determination is the greatest force in this mighty trial for none but a person with the strongest will in the world could call for a cocoa-cola with a beaming countenance when his little inner consciousness whispers, "get a chocolate stir." But the waitress has gone with the order. You are glad she didn't linger, perhaps you might have weakened and broken the diet. And then she returns with most inviting cream, fruit and nut combinations in the world prominently arranged upon the waiter, and one wee glass in the middle for yourself. Then and there, I consider the dieter at the climax of his career, for will-power has won the day, and as you sip away with that delightful expression, which is the dieter's greatest attribute, your friends linger over enticing spoon fulls of chocolate sauce and torture you with a "mm—hm—, this is so good," as they devour the "best till last" cherry.

At this point I bring forth imagination, for without imagination dieting

ATHLETICS

PEP MEETINGS

Prior to the Friday night basket ball game the girls of S. T. C., realizing the necessity of their part in the contest, attended various pep meetings which were held in order to learn the new original songs and also the yells of the school.

Three organized songs were written thi year by S. T. C. girls. All of these have expressed S. T. C.'s attitude toward the "sportsmanship and grit" desired at all games. Virginia Potts, Virginia Vncent, and Mary Booker are the three composers of the songs, which we claim as our own.

The pep meetings did much toward Friday nights victory because the team realized that the entire school was back of them in every way. They showed it in their pep, their enthusiasm and their "Graham spirit." Who could instil a cleaner sportsmanlike spirit in the minds of each girl in school better than Miss Graham? To measure up to Miss Graham's expectation in sportmsmanship is the school's highest goal.

WHITE ELECTED CAPTAIN OF VARSITY

Orline White, '27 has been elected captain of the varsity for this year. White has always been noted for her true sportsmanship as well as for the way in which she co-operates with every member of the varsity in every thing attempted. She played on the varsity last year and has not only won her varsity "F" but is also the wearer of her class numerals and the S. T. C. monogram. In spite of her athletic ability she also knows how to effectively transact business affairs. With this rare combination everyone knows that the right captain was selected.

WOODSON AND MITCHELL RECEIVE MONOGRAMS

"Jackie" Woodson and Jean Mitchell are the first two girls to receive the S. T. C. monogram this year. This means that they are the only two up to the present date who have measured up to the all-round athletic requirement which is necessary for contestants of this award.

To win a monogram is an honor. Every girl in all four classes has a chance to share this honor. Why not try it?

Many persons who pass for optimists are merely too lazy to kick.

Even when a man wants the earth he doesn't wan it thrown at him in the form of mud.

Still bobbed hair is much more fair to the suitor. He knows all of it is fastened to one end.

The young lady who danced with the prince will never forget it. Nor allow anyone else to.

Although the motorist may scoff at pedestrians, he must admit that they die with their boots on.

"The easiest thing for an auto to runt into is debt."—Toledo Blade. Ask any pedestrian what he thinks.

Any man who is forced to pay alimony can sympathize with Germany in her unwillingness to pay reparations.

WHAT IS THE MONOGRAM CLUB?

Who were those ten girls dressed in white last Friday? Surely you know they were the Monogram Club girls. Did you say, what is the Monogram Club? It represents first of all 100 per cent sportsmanship; and to become a member one must win a varsity letter or a college monogram and be voted unanimously into the club, by its members. The letter "F" may be won by playing in 40 per cent of the quarters of the varsity games.

To make an "S. T. C." one must be an all-around athlete accomplishing such feats as climbing the rope in form, throwing the javelin, hiking ten miles, and passing the standard high jump. From this short list one can see that the Monogram Club girls have worked. Can you get a monogram? Of course, you can, if you are willing to work and sacrifice your Monday afternoon for practice and tests.

Come on out, join the merry group and wear a monogram with these 100 per cent sportsmen.

The Monogram Club takes great pleasure in announcing "Jackie" Woodson as a new member. They are also proud that one old member, Jean Mitchell received her S. T. C.

DR. WALMSLEY DISCUSSES INTERESTING TOPICS

Tuesday, Dr. Walmsley discussed in his current event talk some of the most interesting topics of the day. His first topic was that of the annual coal strike. The strike still continues with the operators growing desire for control. An agreement between the miners and operators can be reached, but how soon in the future can not yet be determined.

The second topic discussed was our American forestry—today one of the greatest problems of the West. The question to be agreed is whether the millions of acres of great Redwood trees—the oldest living thing in North America—be allowed to stand, or shall all this space be thrown open for agriculture.

The next topic discussed by Dr. Walmsley was that of Mr. Hoover and our present radio condition. Today there are eight hundred radio broadcasting stations in th United States on eighty wave length, and two hundred and fifty new ones waiting to be opened. Dr. Walmsley stated that Mr. Hoover thought the two most vital questions in the radio world new were: How much air do we own? Can we prevent foreign messages from coming thru our air? Mr. Hoover thinks that of the latter question is possible, we should not try to prevent foreign messages from coming through our air as it draws other countries into closer organization with the U. S.

GALOSHES

The snow has brought them forth—these numerous pairs of galoshes. Just as the slickers have replaced the once stylish umbrella, so have galoshes usurped the throne once occupied by the long rubber overshoe. Flippidy-flop they come; sides hitting and buckles jangling—what of the snow drifts when one is installed in a pair of galoshes? There is probably no article of clothing quite so popular at S. T. C. as these would-be boats. There is no doubt as to their popularity. Owners of galoshes are many and their owners love them. But do the owners love them? No—they also hold a place in the borrower's heart for such remarks as, "May I wear your galoshes?"—'May I have them when she returns them?" or "Can't I use them for an hour?" are familar cries at S. T. C. Galoshes are here—are they here to stay? What will be the outcome? Will they remain forever as lovable, black galoshes or will fashion soon change thm into particles of even greater worth—galoshes of various shades and hues; beautiful greens, reds, blues, and yellows to match the well-beloved slickers? The evolution of the world goes on and on—and so perhaps we may live to see the evolution of our dear friends—the galoshes!

is a total falure. You must be the proud possessor of the most wonderful imagination in the world to become a true blue dieter. You must imagine that limeades are better than pineapple sundaes until you convince yourself that they are; you must deny yourself hot, buttered rolls until you can say with a peaceful countenance, "you know, I really don't care for rolls at all." You must imagine that your dry toast is short cake, and then the crowning achievement you have to imagine you are winning the battle, for without faith all is lost.

Ah! the process of dieting is truly a long drawn out fight, but by playing the game you will, from a fairy tale point of view, at any rate, emerge victorious and with flying colors.

HIGHWAY SAFETY CONTEST GIVES $6,500 TO PUPILS AND TEACHERS IN U. S. A.

Washington, Jan. 16—Planning the solution of the traffic problem a generation ahead is the policy of the Highway Education Board, according to a statement here announcing the fifth national safety campaign, open to all elementary schools of the country.

The campaign includes an essay contest for pupils and a lesson contest, in which teachers in elementary schools are to compete. In these contests $6,500 is given for the best essays and the best lessons, the prizes the gifts of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which co-operates with the board in its safety enterprises. The contests close February 24, of this year.

In addition, engraved certificates of merit will be given those schools in each State which comply with certain requirements of the highway organization. These certificates bear the signature of Dr. J. J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education, Department of the Interior, and of the State Superintendent of Schools, or the principal school official. Dr. Tigert also is chairman of the Highway Education Board.

Announced in Schools

The contest is being announced now to the schools of the country. Pupils are requested to write essays of 500 words in length on the subject "My School's Share in Highway Safety." Four hundred and thirty-eight medals and as many cash prizes will be given for the best essays in the several States, while three national awards will be given for the premier essays that are written by the pupils of the fifth, six, seventh and eighth grades in school. The first national prize consists of a gold watch and a trip to Washington with all expenses paid, the winning pupil being under the care of board officials.

In each State a gold medal and a check for $15 will be given for the best essay, and a silver medal and a $10 check for the second best paper. The number of third prizes, each consisting of a bronze medal and $5, varies somewhat in proportion to the elementary school enrollment. New York State, for example, receives 27 State prizes, while the number of Alabama is nine, for California 13, Texas 19, Illinois 20 and other states in proportion.

Teachers' Contest

In the teachers' contest, three national prizes are given, amounting to $1,500, but the first consists of a check for $500 and a trip to Washington for the best lesson. The second and third prizes, respectively, are $300 and $200.

The contests are the fifth of a concerted program undertaken by the board at the suggestion of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, looking toward some ameliora-

IMPORTANT ELECTIONS TO BE HELD IN APRIL

Have you stopped to consider the part you will play in the success of your school when the first week in April rolls around? Perhaps you wonder why anything which will happen in April should be discussed in January. This is why. It is then that the three new presidents of the chief organizations in school—Student Government, Y. W. C. A., Athletic Association and, Editor-in-Chief of the Virginian and Rotunda will be elected. Yes—the elections will take place in April, but what should preclude the elections? Careful consideration of possible candidate must be given by each student. Who can best serve her school in each capacity? Does she show ability to lead in such a way that others will wish to follow? Is she conscientiously fitted for such work? Remember girls—these are your organizations and the votes cast will be your votes. Let us one and all think carefully that our school may grow bigger and finer through our efforts.

TEA FOR Y. W. C. A. AND ADVISORS

Miss London Entertains

It was one of those affairs that no one ever dares miss—not even to pass over History for a coming test. What? Why, tea with Miss Lila and Miss Willie London. Miss Lila London entertained the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, Miss Willie London and Faculty Advisors Saturday afternoon in their adorable home on the hill. A most delightful afternoon it was, too. The last rays of the sun smiled a cheerful welcome through the windows on faculty and girls grouped about an open fire place, chatting merrily over tea cups.

Have you ever been in that home? No Well, you'll just love it when you do. Everything from the dear old brass knocker on the door to the quaint old fashioned furniture fairly breathes and radiates romance. Then too, there is the adorable music-box that emits fruit cake from the top and French music from the bottom. "Dibby" went back to the days of childhood just to play with it, and we all wanted to slip in a voluminous pocket to bring it back with us. But no, it is still there for one to hear—that useful box of melody from over the Atlantic.

And though "Chubbie" insisted that we'd have "five courses for supper," we didn't even care if we had cheese. Isn't that sufficient proof that we did full justice to sandwiches, cakes, almonds, and candy? We leave you to judge.

We went, and such a lovely afternoon
We came away happy, with a smile.
For such a lovely occasion is rare,—
Comes only once in a while.
And dear Miss Lila and Willie too.
We had a wonderful time you know
We enjoyed the tea and each minutes' stay,
Because we love you so.

CURRENT EVENT TALK FOLLOWED BY EXERCISES IN HONOR OF LEE'S BIRTHDAY

After a discussion of current events Tuesday, Dr. Walmsley gave a talk in interesting happenings in the life of General Robert E. Lee. Leading up to the talk Dr. Walmsley gave an account of a measure before Congress now, that United States appropriate two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to restore Arlington, the home of Lee, as it was during his life.

The Student Body honored the memory of this famous Southern general singing his favorite hymn, "How Firm a Foundation." Following the singing of the hymn, Mr. Grainger read Lee's favorite passage from the thirty-seventh Psalm, twenty-eighth to fortieth verse.

ROBERT E. LEE

O great Virginian! true son of the South,
Today we bare our heads to honor thee.
That in our heart may still be kept aglow,
Thy high ideals, thy stainless memory.

O Lee, thou wast the champion of the right,
In love's and duty's paths wast always found;
Although the way was often steep and hard,
Thou ne'er forsook it for the level ground.

O leader of the South, when on thy steed,
Thy gray-clad heroes saw thee pass along
Your presence cheered their hearts, and helped them bear
Their burdens and their sorrows with a song.

O may we ever, keep thee in our hearts
And walk the straight paths thou hadst ever trod,
So when we leave this earth—our dwelling place
We may, like thee, come face to face with God!

VA. PRESS ASSOCIATION MEETS IN FARMVILLE

Editors of the Virginia Press Association were guests of the Lion's Club at a banquet at 7:30 in the Tea Room of State Teachers College on Friday evening, January 15. One hundred places, including fifty Lions and fifty guests, were filled at the banquet tables. The convention of the association was held at Hotel Weyanoke January 15—16. Many speakers of national importance on the program discussed newspaper problems.

Along with such distinguished as J. C. Latimer, former secretary of the Virginia Press Association and now secretary of the World Press Congress, it is interesting to note that an address on "High School Jounalism" was given by Joseph Nettles, editor of the "High School Beacon," Newport News, Va.

At the opening session Dr. J. L. Jarman, President of State Teachers College, was called upon for impromptu remarks. He responded with his usual felicity in part as follows:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Press: We are delighted to have you in Farmville. At State Teachers College just across the street are girls from all over Virginia who have friends everywhere in Virginia. We are glad to have representatives of the Virginia Press in our midst. Representatives of the press are leasers of thought. You are doing a great work for Virginia. The Lion's Club of Farmville, of which I am a member, is especially pleased to greet you. It will be a pleasure to take you through State Teachers College."

The central thought that Dr. Jarman emphasized was that each member of the audience should not only be loyal to his own locality, but that he should be big enough "to think in terms of Virginia" and help promote the welfare of the whole state. He gave as a concrete example the proposed National Park for Virginia.

This is the first of a series of six conventions scheduled for Farmville during 1926.

My far-off dreams have come to earth.

DRAMATIC CLUB PLAY PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE AT S. T. C. AUDITORIUM

On Friday night, January 22, the Dramatic Club presented to a packed house its first play of the season. Granville Barker's and Lawrence Housman's charming and colorful drama, Prunella or Love in a Dutch Garden, was most gracefully performed. The orchestra under the direction of Mrs. King added the finishing touches of melody to the performance.

If exaggeration be an evil it would be, to the critic of Prunella, rather a difficult task to avoid the appearance thereof since all which she wishes to say amounts to but one thing—praise of the performance.

Perhaps a brief mention of individual players might be in order here—though the leads were so well supported that a homogeniety and finish was attained which would have otherwise been quite impossible. Miss Lucy Haile Overbey as Pierrot carried that whimsical role with ease throughout though it might be said that she was at her best in the third act after the realization of the selfisness and conceit of Pierrot had been cast off and instead of the carefree and heartless Pierrot, he became humble and deeply in love with his once lost Pierrette. Miss Frances Sale possesses a delightfully musical speaking voice as well as attributes of grace and charm of appearance not unlikely to attract the attention of a discriminating Pierrot. Her innocent air reminded some of the audence of her fine work as Betty, in "Friend Hannah."

But love, the beautiful and heroic statute, deserves a paragraph unto herself. A SPIDER CRAWLED UP HER ARM AND SHE DID NOT MOVE.

Miss Ada Bierbower, Alumnae Editor;

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

NOTEBOOKS AGAIN.

Fearful that I have overstepped the bounds of fairness in so critical a survey of the required college notebook I willingly open this subject once more for discussion. That I have condemned the required notebook does not condemn its qualities and there must be worthwhile qualities attached to such a piece of work or its prominence would have gradually diminished at S. T. C. Surely this has not happned for at the beginning of each term loose-leafs seem to be more in evidence and so, that my conscience may be clear, that I may not deal unjustly with anything so closely connected with my life here I quote these thoughts from the Degree class of 1925: "In some instances a notebook may be your best friend. It receives the precious pearls of knowledge as they fall from the lips of the learned pedagogue and retains them safely. It may contain interesting bits of information culled here and there from various magazines or papers; all the interesting little incidents that make the acquiring of knowledge a pleasure."—M. K. M.

"Notebooks are very helpful in getting the students to express themselves more perfectly and more clearly. They include all three parts of composition; subject matter, language and organization. and mechanics and can be graded just as composition. Thus you see that notebooks are very beneficial to students.—R. L. B.

"Keeping notebooks in college is very much like owning a Ford in the country. They are awfully hard to get started, they are pretty rough traveling, but after all they are nice things to have and they help you out of many tight places."—M. H.

And now—perhaps I have lost some followers but there are two sides to every question and I feel that the notebook may regard me henceforth with a less critical eye. —F. R. B.

HOME DEPARTMENT NOTES.

In the continuous hustle and rush of our daily activities, we can find only a short period of time, which we can devote to cleaning up our rooms.

When we have eight o'clock classes we barely have enough time to sweep and make up our beds before it is time for us to rush to our classes. The many other little tasks, such as dusting, emptying waste baskets, putting away clothes, and straightening up generally, take even more time than the first two most important tasks. But we must let these go or we will be late for class, and we consider the latter the "greater of the two evils."

In the view of these facts, should the members of the home department be so exacting in grading our rooms? If the student's point of view is taken into consideration, it is believed that they will be more lenient.

We all know that two room warnings mean an E—note, and that the latter keeps one off the honor roll. This misfortune often befalls a hard-working student, who, on account of her many classes, has only a small amount of time which she can possibly give to cleaning up her room. Should such a student, after working hard and earning good grades, have to be kept off the honor roll because of home department notes?

Table absences are often incurred unavoidably. Quite frequently students are locked out of the dining room, or through some misunderstanding they are marked absent when they are only visiting at some other table.

Should home department notes be put on the same plane as class notes in that they keep one off of the honor roll? Since they are obviously not of the same value, then they should not have the same effect.

SMALL COURTESIES AND KINDNESSES

Noah Webster, Esq., when asked point blank for his views on the subject is ported to have exclaimed in no uncertain tones that courtesy is "an act of civility or respect," and whether he spoke from experience or not he certainly had the direct idea. But he should have added "according to the state of mind one is in," which would have been just ambiguous enough to have been oracular.

The first act of courtesy very probably began back in A1. when Adam thanked the Angel for closing the gate behind him instead of letting it bang shut. Now whether Adam was in a pleasant state of mind or not history fails to record, but I am sure that we can picture the thing for ourselves.

And so little kindnesses and small acts of courtesy have come down to us as our heritage. Are we taking them to heart? If there is anything we all hate more than an overly-polite person its a more overly-polite person, yet I do not believe that any one of us has ever seen a person who was really too polite. Oh possibly he had little mannerisms, ways of saying and doing things which were strange to us, but that isn't any reason why we should disdainfully say that he is "putting on airs."

There are thousands of ways in which we girls could make life more pleasant for those with whom we live. For instance, take the teachers, poor souls, they have enough on them already without adding to their burdens! When entering the dining room, stand aside and let the teacher go first—or better still step up and walk in with "the faculty". When one is running the gauntlet, literally, of almost a thousand girls a little companionship is indeed delightful. If a teacher should come to the table, or into a room, or even stop to speak to a girl in the hall, don't you think it looks better, as well as makes her feel better, to rise?

Towards the girls we all know our short-comings — I won't mention pushing, yelling and scrambling, we know about them—but I will say that a friendly smile and a cheerful "Hi!" go a long way toward helping a poor, bewildered girl.

Our conduct in general is—well, fair. I wonder what the members of the faculty would say about it? Just recently we've heard two of the all powerful express their opinions in uncertain tones, and I might go so far as to say that it seems to have helped us a lot, so far. Listen let's make a bargain, among ourselves of course, not to whisper or prepare for a nap when any form of entertainment is being presented to us. Nine hundred girls can raise a heap o' noise even when they sigh.

Don't let's allow Father Adam to put one over on us in such a small, and yet so important, a thing. No matter who started it, nor when, but little courtesies and kindnesses certainly spread a joy over things in general and people, students in particular—V. W. B.

COLLEGE BANQUETS OUR SPECIALTY

A LOGICAL ENDING.

As Mary gazed sadly down at the fraternity pin which she held in her hand she decided that she would never, never, have anything else to do with another boy especially a college freshman.

Of course she was going to send the pin back. She didn't want to wear it anyhow, especially after what had just happened. No, she didn't mind sending it back, she was glad to be rid of it. Over and over Mary repeated these words, trying very hard to convince herself they were true.

But then as she looked at the pin all the incidents that were connected with it came back to her. She had been happy during the months she had worn the pin, and of course been in love with the owner. Yes, Bobby was a nice boy, even if he was a freshman. It was hard not to regret just a little that it was all over.

Would life ever be quite the same? This thought came to Mary as she prepared to wrap up the pin. She had idolized Bobby; she had thought just as every other girl had since time began, that this was different; they would not disagree like so many of their friends and then suddenly to have every happy dream of love and the future shattered! It was a terrible disillusionment, to say the least. Mary was quite sure she would never go out with another man.

Still she gazed at the pin. Meantime her roommate chided with such remarks as these, "Don't be silly. Mary, you are the dumbest ever, to waste a thought over that infant." Well, perhaps she was, but she comforted herself with the fact that she would never think about another boy.

As the phone rang, Mary, continued to pack "his" letters, picture and miscellaneous things in a box. She would send them the first thing in the morning, indeed she would. She would feel better after she had sent them, and she could settle down to a manless life. The phone continued to ring. No she was not going to answer it. No one would call her up. Why should she be interested in the old phone?

"Oh Mary, someone wishes to speak to you."

Well, of all the nerve, to intrude upon the last thoughts she was ever going to waste on a man.

As she went down the steps she repeated, "No indeed, no one ask me for a date; I've had my last one." But as she recognized the voice of Lloyd at the other end of the wire another thought came to her mind. Why shouldn't she go out with other boys? She would show Bobby that it was all the same to her, whatever it cost her to do it. And Lloyd was cute; she had always liked Lloyd. Of course, she was never, never going to love anyone else,—but, she might as well give Lloyd a date.—Alva Drummond.

ATHLETICS

Volley Ball

Can you believe it? Volley ball has started out with a bang. The classes seem to have "picked up" and all are determined to win those ten points toward the cup. Volley ball means just as much to a class as basket ball and the sooner the school realizes that—the better. And the good part about it is that anyone with any grit at all can play volley ball because it is not as strenuous as basket ball and can be learned easily. Many girls have realized this but there is still a place for many more.

The contest for the cup this year is going to be closer than usual. How hard would each class work if it is fully realized that volley ball championship will have lots to do in deciding which colors will remain on the cup? A hint to the wise is sufficient.

Basket Ball

The babet ball team will play a game with Averett College this Friday. Although the game will not be played on the home floor every member of the student body will wait anxiously for the results of the game. Many will do as Miss Graham requested. They will pray that the team representing our school will play a clean game and be a true sport—no matter what the outcome will be. The girls realize that it is not the score of the game that counts but it is the way the yame was played.

Good luck, team!

THOUGHTS

Alone with your thoughts'—not alone
For 'tis thoughts which make lonesomeness gay,
Is there one of us here who would sell precious moments
That come stealing at close of each day?

Thoughts—memories real—of the joys, not the pains,
For the hurts must be banished away,
That the pleasures alone may come hovering 'round,
In our thoughts when the night endeth day.

Our thoughts are our own—they cannot be bought
Or sold—be the price what it may,
They loom up before us and circling o'er us,
Know their masters won't turn them away.

Beautiful thoughts are finer than gold
So keep them each safe tucked away,
That the nights may find each of us thinking of only
The joys which have passed with each day.

Caller: Is your son in college?

Mother: I think so. The authorities haevn't written for a week.

ART CORNER

MINERVA CIUSTINIANI

We have in our auditorium reproductions of some famous pieces of sculpture. The one we wish you to study with us this week is Minerva.

This statue was for a long time in the possession of the Guistiniani family, whence its name. Afterwards it passed into the collection of Lucien Bonaparte from whom it was eventually purchased by Pope Pius VII, and added to the Gallery of the Vatican so it is known as the Minerva of the Vatican, and Pollas of the Vatican.

The original is of Parian marble and is six feet ten inches tall. It was found in the temple of Minerva Medica on the Esquiline Hill, Rime, sculptor not known. When found the right arm, spear and serpent were gone. It was restored as we see it now giving it the attributes of Minerva Medica, the serpent raising its head by her side, a spear in her right hand, the Corinthian helmet and aegis, with mantle over the shoulders. The helmet is not that of the Athene of Phidias, seen on the coins of Athens, but that found on the coins of Corinth.

The statue represents the goddess as the beneficent protector and preserve of health—by her wisdom. The drapery is an espesially good example of the grave dignity given to the figure by the toga so admirably sculptured. Study the statue not only from the front but from the sides and back.

The pedestal is an entique model showing the fluted columns of the Romans.

The statue and pedistal were presented to the college by the graduating class of June.

KINGS OF TURF IN RACE DRAMA "KENTUCKY PRIDE"

AT THE EACO THEATER

Man O' War, Negofol, Fair Play The Finn and Morvich in New Fox Picture

It was not for artistic reasons alone that "Kentucky Pride," the William Fox supreme attraction which comes to the Eaco Theatre on Saturday, January 30, came to be filmed in the picturesque Blue Grass region. The principal actors in this thrilling screen drama are horses, and the cast includes some of the most famous race track champions of recent years, each playing himself. In the list are Man o' War, the world's greatest thoroughbred, Fair Play, Negofol, Morvich and other settled Kentuckians.

The ordinary two-legged screen actor gladly follows the camera to the ends of the earth if such be the orders. Not so with the four-legged stars. No trips to Hollywood and waiting around studios for them. They had to be photographed in the old Kentucky homes or not at all. And that's how it was done.

"Kentucky Pride" is the life story of "Virginia's Future," a royally bred filly, as told by herself. This daughter of Negofol was born on the splendid estate of Roger Beaumont. Beaumont lost great sums gambling. He bet the remnant of his fortune on Virginia's Future in her first race. She did her best to justify her master's confidence, but fell and broke her leg just when the race seemed won.

Beaumont was ruined and disappeared. The crippled filly, useless except for breeding purposes, soon fell upon evil times, ultimately passing into the hands of a peddler, who treated her brutally. Nell, her daughter, Confederacy, grew up and restored the family fortunes by winning one of the most thrilling races ever screened, was she redeemed from bondage and returned to her beloved blue grass pastures.

There will only be one show this night, but there will be a matinee at 3:30 and at this matinee the Hotel Elliott Orchestra of Suffolk, Va., will furnish music. Admission to S. T. C girls 20 cents.

S. T. C. GIRLS SEE "JANICE MEREDITH"

Last Thursday and Friday the girls of S. T. C. had the privilege of seeing "Janice Meredith," one of the most mammoth productions ever filmed More than 7,500 actors including some of the most famous ones on the screen took part in this picture. The costumes alone cost $200,000 and were all exact reproductions, being made of the most gorgeous silks and satins The scene depicting the court of Louis VI and the ballroom scene at Philadelphia are the most lavish settings ever given on the screen.

The most important thing about "Janice Meredith" is its historical accuracy which surpasses that of any other film. It has received the approbation of critics and great men over the entire country. The shots of Washington crossing the Deleware and the scenes at Valley Forge are enough to arouse any true citizen's patriotism. Best of all "Janice Meredith" is deemed "a great American picture perfectly played by American artists."

One caught every minute Florida is establishing a bird sanctuary. A reservation for visiting fish will be established later.

PRIZES OFFERED COLLEGE STUDENTS

South-wide Contest Announced by Interracial Commission Students Eligible

Atlanta, Ga., January 24—The Commission on Interracial Cooperation, with headquarters in this city, announces the following offer of three prizes of $75, $50, and $25 each, for the three best papers on race relations submitted by students of southern white colleges during the present school year. The announcement says:

"Contestants will be free to choose any phase of the subject, though preference will be given to practical discussions of conditions in the South, with suggestions for their improvement. Papers should not exceed 2500 words in length and must be in the hands of the Commisison on or before May 15. The contest is open to all college students in the thirteen Southern states, including Kentucky and Oklahoma and is for the purpose of encouraging study and discussion of race relations. Full information as to the contest, together with a reading list, will be supplied by the Commission to anyone interested."

Dramatic Club Play

matic Club in its selection of plays to choose only those of the "costume" type since all the roles, masculine as well as feminine, are necessarily taken by girls. From the point of view of the audience this is a most happy practice giving a far greater opportunity for the preservation of the dramatic illusion than would be possible in a play in which young women appear in the stiff and tailored garb of the modern man. Sara Bernhardt was supreme in L'Aiglon that sweet and tragic drama of the little son of Napoleon, and it is a wise stagecraft who follows the precedent of the divine Sarah in selecting the "costume" play as a vehicle for the talents of young women performers.

The finish and delicacy of the performance gave evidence of the careful training of the coach, Miss Leola Wheeler, whose sound preparation at Smith College and the Emerson College of Oratory, and whose good taste in things dramatic have fitted her peculiarly for such a position.

The scenery was painted and arranged under the supervision of Miss Martha W. Coulling of the Department of Art. The Home Economics department under the direction of Miss Katherine Tupper designed the charming costumes. The dancing which added so much to the grace and beauty of the performance was directed by Miss Mary Barlow, head of the department of Physical Health Education.

Miss Elizabeth Jarman, who took part in the play was also Property Manager. She did not overlook one single detail of the properties and the stage would have been incomplete without Elizabeth Jarman as the old maid, Aunt Prim, and as Property Manager.

The Colegel Orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Katherine King played between acts and made the time pass swiftly on to the next act.

Why Argue

Prof: "Can you prove that the square of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the squares of the two sides of this triangle?"

Highway Contest

tion of present conditions. It is believed by board officials and many others that the surest plan for relief, both immediate and in the future, is to interest the schools, pupils, teachers, principals and superintendents in a campaign which is broad enough to involve humanitarian principles, and grave enough to affect the foundations of our economic system in so far as it pertains to transportation.

Not Too Far To Plan

A generation ahead is not too far to plan, in the opinion of many students of traffic conditions, who believe there will be fewer traffic accidents proportionally, in 1946 than in 1926. They say it is not too early now to begin to train the drivers of automobiles and the pedestrians of that day and generation. In short, the boys and girls of today, it is calmed, will be taught through these contests to be motor wise and safety conscious, with a resultant decrease in the traffic toll of the nation, which in 1925 claimed approximately 20,000 casualties.

While the campaign is intended chiefly for the schools, it enlists the aid of automobile clubs, women's clubs, civic bodies, public officials, and to a very general degree, the support of teachers, principals and superintendents of schools. Indeed, board officials assert that no single group is doing more in highway safety than the schools through the medium of these contests.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE VARSITY DOUBLES THE SCORE ON AVERETT COLLEGE IN FAST GAME

Score is 42—20

AVERETT TO RETURN GAME SATURDAY

Farmville S. T. C., for the second time, doubled the score on her opponent in a game with Averett College, which resuteld in a score if 42—20.

Farmville took the lead at the beginning of the game when Mitchell got the tip on Pankey. This start cont nue during the entire first quarter which ended with a score of 18—4 is favor of S. T C.

The second quarter was close, both teams scoring six points, making the score 24—10. The third quarter ended with a score of 34—15, while the game ended 42—20.

Hall played a good game, shooting twelve goals from the field. Vincent played an unusual game in center. These two are only samples of the ENTIRE TEAM, which played a clean, fast game if ball with the usual good teamwork. Averett hung on and fought hard but could not keep up with the speed of the S. T. C. [illegible] the flowers

The line-up:

Farmville S. T. C.		Averett
Hall	R. F.	Chappell
Perkins	L. F.	Watkins
Mitchell	J. C.	Pankey Capt.
Vincent	S. C.	Rose
Crute	L. G.	H. Newton
White Capt.	R. G.	R. Newton

Substitutions, Farmville: Jarman for White.

Averett: Bofce for H. Newton, H. Newton for R. Newton.

Field goals: Hall, 12; Perkins, 8; Chappell, 5; Watkins, 4.

Foul Goals: Hall, 2; Watkins, 2.

This Saturday, February 5. Farmville S. T. C. will play Averett College on our home floor.

Last week the varsity met Averett at Danville and S. T. C. was diferred of the opportunity of watching the team win a game. However, this week-end every girl will have a chance to see a game played in the S. T. C. manner, which means cleanliness in playing and cooperation of all.

SENIOR CLASS PRESENTS FACULTY BABY SHOW

Was it a success? Well, I should say so. The audience was kept in a continuous roar from beginning to end. Why no one would ever imagine that that adorable baby with the laughing eyes and golden curls is Miss Tucker, who now teaches us about Washington crossing the Delaware, or the life of the ancient Egyptians. And who was the little boy all dressed up in his Sunday suit, trimmed in gold braid, brass buttons n' everything. No other than Dr. Walmsley! Oh there were babies of every size, some serious, some smiling, some naughty, but all if them were pictures of our faculty taken many (?) years ago. We all thank the Senior class for giving us such a pleasant hours' entertainment. And we heartily agree that as

"Thus endeth our rhyme
It was indeed worth a dime."

The Pi Alpha Club will now be known as Delta Kappa and they wish to announce Phyllis Jones as a new pledge.

PIERIAN HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING

The Pierian Literary Society held a very interesting meeting Friday night, January 22, in Room D. A very appropriate program on Robert E. Lee was given. Ola Thomas read a [illegible] selections on the piano. Mabel Groseclose gave an interesting talk in the "Home of Lee."

RUFFNER LITERARY SOCIETY

The Ruffner Literary Society held its regular meeting January 22. The Standard of Excellence was read, voted upon, and adopted as the standard of the Society. New members were brought up and voted upon, after which the meeting adjourned.

NOVEL PLAN IN PROGRESS

Look! Somebody is starting something now! The members of the higher mathematics classes, under the leadership of Miss Carrie Taliferro and Mrs. Olive Bowman have organized a math club which promises a bright future. Extensive plans have not been made yet, but those which have been advanced are received enthusiastically.

At a meeting held Friday afternoon, the following officers were elected:

President ---------- Pattie Smith
Vice-Pres. ---------- Mamie Daniels
Secretary ---------- Lola Lang

YOU

—o—

The sunset twines with the lonely pines
That border the lonely hill;
And a deep appeal now comes to steal
My heart with a nameless thrill.

What can it be that calls to me
From the vast majestic blue?
'Tis your voice so dear, your eyes, your hair;
'Tis the dream —of—love, and you.

Are you making an effort to study during the week and not on Sunday?

OUR COACH, MISS BLANCH E. O. GRAHAM, HONORED

Miss Blanche E. O. Graham has been appointed chairman of the State committee on woman's basket ball for the year 1926. Miss Graham with a committee which she will select, will supervise all phrases of basket ball throughout the State of Virginia, will settle all problems which may arise concerning basket ball, will certify officials for games, and also collect data to be presented to the national board in connection with its efforts to improve the game.

This appointment was made by the national board under the supervision of the American Physical Educatoin Association. All the students of S. T. C. are glad that our Athletic Director, who has proved so efficient in her work here and who has done so much to make the value of athletics more fully realized in our school, has now been recognized as a State official. We know that she will not only measure up in every line to the expectation of the State but she will surprise them in showing them just what she will [illegible]

COTILLION CLUB DANCE IS BIG SUCCESS

On Saturday evening, January 30, in the College Recreation Hall, the Cotillion Club of S. T. C. gave its first formal dance of the season. The hall was beautifully decorated in gay colored balloons and ribbon confetti. At the hour of eleven, the terpsichorean couples participated in a very attractive figure which was led yy Miss Dorothy Myers and Mr. Burton Deckert. Gold-tipped imitation cigarettes, and paper blow-outs were given as favors. Excellent music was furnished by the Little Bud Gwaltney Orchestra, of Suffolk.

Among the chaperones were: Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Laing, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Coyner, Mrs. W. E. Anderson, Mrs. E. R. Booker, Mrs.

JUNIOR CLASS SOON TO PRESENT PLAY

Cast Is Chosen

On February 12th, the Junior class will present a one act play, "A Yankee in King Tut's Tomb." A beautiful dramatization of James Whitcombe Riley's "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," will also be given. Several other numbers will be on the program.

The casts have already been chosen and work has begun in the two plays. Tickets will be sold by the Junior class and can be reserved in the reception hall on February 11th and 12th.

This program promises to be a good one, and it is for a good cause—The Student Building.

FOUNDERS DAY!

You old girls—Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors, have you thought that Founders Day is only about a month away? Is your spirit up, have you done your part to help your class and other organizations get ready for Founders Day? Have you said anything to the Freshmen about what Founders Day can and should mean, do you think that they are catching the "Farmville Spirit?"

This one day of all the year is a highly important one. It happens this year that it will be Saturday, March 6. Of course, we won't have classes, but we will make it a day of celebration, and of thankfulness, that one day this institution was founded.

We hope that this year, as in the past, many alumnae will be back and that we may have some reports from the various chapters. In one sense "Founders Day" is the link which holds the chain together, that chain between the alumnae and their Alma Mater. It hows us to a vision of the past as well as giving us a vision of what the future may mean.

Since our goal in the last few years has been to pay for our Student Building, the efforts of the classes, alumnae and various school organizations have been concentrated toward doing "their bit" and paying for the bricks in the Student Building. Last year the classes alone presented to Dr. Jarman $1000. This year we hope to beat even that splendid record, so let's get our spirit up and remember that we have only about five weeks to work.

Catch the "Farmville Spirit"; it is an intangible thing—yet it stands for the best that Farmville is. It is the thing which we admire in Dr. Jarman and it is the thing toward which we ourselves are consciously or unconsciously striving. When we have caught this spirit and it becomes a vital part of our being, then, and then only, will we get the fullest pleasure and enjoyment from our social life so remember when Founders Day comes we must all have caught the spirit.

CLASS ISSUES OF ROTUNDA TO START NEXT WEEK

Each class is to have an opportunity to edit one issue of the Rotunda. They will come in four successive editions, starting with the Freshman issue next week, the Sophomores follow, then the Juniors and last (but not least) the Seniors. As far as I can see the Freshman and the Senior class have the advantage—but maybe the Sophomores and Juniors will show them that they can do their best and beat the others. Each class will naturally want its issue to be the best, and with this object in view, two of the classes have elected a staff. These staffs have been elected after careful thought and they are going to do their best to make the paper for which they are responsible, the best in every way—but they can't do it alone, every member of the class has got to be back of them with suggestions and work—so do your part to help make your own issue the best. So far, only the Freshmen and Sophomores, have elected their staff, but the other classes expect to do so this week. There [illegible]

PRIZES FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

The commission on Interracial Cooperation is offering three cash prizes aggregating Two Hundred Dollars for the best papers on race relations submitted by students of Southern colleges during the present school year.

In case the prize winning papers shall have been delivered as orations on some college occasion or published in college periodicals during the present school year, the prizes will be respectively One Hundred Dollars, Sixty-five Dollars, and Thirty-five Dollars.

If prize winning papers have not been so delivered or published, the prizes will be respectively Seventy-five Dollars, Fifty Dollars, and Twenty-five Dollars.

Contestants will be free to choose any phase of the subject, but other things being equal, preference will be given to practical discussions of Southern conditions and attitudes, with suggestions for their improvement. Papers should not exceed 2500 words in length and must be in the hands of the Commission on or before May 15th.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

CONCERNING LYNCHING.

The following telegram was received in our college recently. It concerns a problem about which we as students of the South and of America should be vitally interested. What shall we do about it?

"To Student Leaders of the South:

"Associated Press reports mob lynched Negro after taking him from Sheriff at Ocala, Fla. This is the first lynching of New Year. Since 1900 Florida has had 135 lynchings. In few if any cases has it been possible for authorities to do anything about it because moral support from citiens lacking. South's civilization and Christianity discredited around world until we show vigorous and determined disapproval. Can you interest your student body or any portion of it to assert themselves publicly against this barbarous practice. Have student body and faculty by chapel vote or other poll, adopt resolutions publishing same and sending to Governor J. W. Martin, Tallahassee, urging punishment lynchers and assuring him of your backing under assumption he is exerting his whole influence similarly. Suggest editorials in college papers, discussion groups, etc. Students of South have opportunity to make opinion felt. Mobilizing best student sentiment to stand publicly and unitedly for law observance in this one point will be greatest contribution this generation can make to building of a greater South and America.

ON GOING TO CHURCH.

Going to church? What does it mean to you? Does it mean what it should? Nothing should mean so much and yet it seems that noting means so little in te lives of some students. As there are all classes in every phase of society, so are there all classes of church goers. We have a class who go to church each Sunday because they love the hour of worship. There is another group who attend church through habit and there is another group who go because they feel it a duty. But even these groups do not include the majority of the students, for there is yet another class who do not go at all. To which of these classes do you belong? How do you feel about this question? What does your conscience tell you, for surely you have a conscience. Does the living through weeks of health and happiness completely blot out all trace of spiritual life? Do the commonplace things of life so wrap themselves about you that you feel nothing of the spirtual? Perhaps you may feel that you have excuses, but is there any excuse sufficient to compensate for utter neglect to worship that Divine Creator who has given us life and beauty—all that we have and are today? Let us stop to consider a few of the pitifully frail excuses for failure to attend church services. Some say they are too tired, but are they? Would any social event receive their regrets on such grounds? Perhaps it's "but I haven't a decent thing to wear"—and yet, would these same girls refuse a bid to a Hampden-Sidney game for this reason? Let us remember that we go to chapel to worship and not to criticize or to be criticized as to styles and fashions. There is still another viewpoint to be considered. Let us stop and think of the folks at home. What is their wish regarding our religious attitude? They hope and feel that we are spending our Sundays in the right way—in just the way we spent them before we came to S. T. C. With such negligence on our part can we say that we are playing fair with those who mean so much to us? Think it over girls and let's not only believe but convince ourselves that Sundays which have meant so little may mean everything to us. The New Year is before us; it is not too late to add one more resolution to that list. Are you willing to resolve to go to church every Sunday?

THE MOST DIFFICULT ROLE OF OUR DRAMATIC CLUB PLAYS

Plays are put on here and after the night of the play the curtain is drawn forever. Only a dim memory of familar faces and figures disguised in grease paints and costumes scattering over a stage of beauty is left.

There is one actor who plays the same role from play to play and always with the same patience and infatigueable efforts. No part is too minor for her to work over until it is made as near perfect as possible. The material she has to work with is not the choice of the talented nor is it like clay in her hands, it is more of a concrete nature. When a girl triple the size of this actor comes forth with all audacity, saying, "I would do that if I could but I can't and I'm not," the situation seems hopeless. But from over the footlights comes a snap of fingers and, "Yes you can and if you do not stop fooling with your part I will put you out of the play." The girl leaves, [illegible] it must be done, so she does it.

This actor has a contempt for the word amateur and she couples her muscle and mind and erases it from the criticisms of the audience by hard work night after night.

In short we might say this particular part is all the other parts in one for each part is carefully considered and worked over by the character of this most difficult role. Every detail of the stage and its properties is also considered, instead of a mere coach we find also a general overseer and worker of the whole play in all its details.

And so we owe the success of our Dramatic Club plays to our coach manager and friend, Miss Leola Wheeler. We might also add, though it is not necessary, that Miss Wheeler's interest and work is not only in the Dramatic Club, but in other worthwhile organizations of student activities.

A GUITAR

There it lay, only a broken guitar, kept for memory's sake. The body was warped and there was a deep crack, the result of a blow dealt by a careless child. It had but two rusty strings which creaked and rattled when they were touched. It was a useless thing.

Yes, it was useless, but it had lived. For four years of happy college life it had sung the joy and contentment of a girl's heart. It had accompanied merry groups, who had gathered to spend a night together during a holiday. Its last song was sung at one of these parties, a merry, rapturous song.

It was just a broken guitar, kept because of its memories, priceless memories.

FRIENDSHIP

There's a winding road through a valley of care,
With no one waiting your troubles to share.
By hills of worry on either side
Over which no traveler may ride.
But somewhere in the distance a song's in the air.
And happiness reaches this "valley of care."
For there in this valley the traveler has found
Friendship is blooming in the flowers around.

—Frances Willis

IS THERE ANY REASON WHY

Is there any reason why you should haunt me night and day?
Is there any reason why I remember all you say?
Is there any reason why nothing seems the same?
Any reason why I think of only just your name?
Is there any reason why things shouldn't matter any more?
"Till I met you I was happy, never blue like this before;
Is there any reason why days should be so very long?
Any reason why I hate the sunshine and the song
Of birds up in the tree-tops cooing softly to their mate?
Why the things I used to love I now begin to hate?
Is there any reason why—sometimes I answer "No,"
You have given me no cause and yet I cannot let you go.
You're in my mind, you're in my heart each minute of the day,
But what can be the use if it is more than I can say,
You left me—why oh! Just because you really wished to go—
And I'm a fool I guess—and yet I love you, love you so!

ART CORNER

DIANA GABII

The imagination of the Greeks delighted in sculpture; therefore, the art in which they took precedence of all other nations, was the plastic art.

As a result of the Peloponnesian War, which culminated in the capture of Athens, Greek art of the fifth century B. C. became a meditative art instead of a serene art, Praxiteles was one of the most outstanding sculptors of that age and to him belongs the famous Dianas.

The statue of Diana Robing or Diana Gabii was presented to the State Teachers Colege by the graduating class of 1908. At the present time it is placed in the main auditorium, on the left side as you face the rostrum. Before the time of Praxiteles, the shape of the face in Greek sculpture was round, but in his art the face is oval. The features follow each other with soft transition, yet each is clearly formed and finished. Delicately arched, and rather low and narrow, the brow passes into the marked and prominent nose and so on into the [illegible] of the face [illegible] giving no [illegible] but rather an harmonious combination of mind and sensuous feeling. The large well-cut eye lies in its broad, deep socket, betraying a firm taking hold of reality. The eyebrows are only slightly marked, and eyelids seem to melt insensibly into the adjoining planes of the features. The cheek softly swells sidewards from its lower edge to the ear, and down to the chin, which projects with a strong curve.

The hair, in contrast with earlier sculpture, is freely and loosely modelled instead of holding to a rigorous symmetry, which would have been a servitude for art. It is an artistic symmetry which reveals the perfection of liberty, combining both order and freedom. The whole face shows preoccupaton, with a subdued play of light and shadows, which precludes and vestiges of harshness and angularity.

The drapery which clings to the body in a noble, expressive manner, such that every form and movement is marked by the rich fall of the folds. Simple and natural in style it brings out a quality which is seldom found in the drapery.

In this statue we find a certain freedom of lines as evidenced by the slightly lifted foot and bent knee. This belongs to the later sculpture and gives an idea of youthful lightness and beauty, so that we feel we can truly say with the poet, "Beauty is truth, truth beauty—that is all Ye know on earth, and all ye need to know."

Note: In the article on Art in last week's Rotunda, due to an oversight, the year of the presentation of the statue of Minerva was omitted. It was presented by the class of 1906.

Friday night, Miss Stubbs entertained delightfully a few friends from seven to eight. Bridge was played and later a salad course was served.

ATHENIANS ENTERTAIN

Last Saturday night the old members of the Athenian Literary Society entertained the new members at a most delightful party in the old "Gymn." Gold and white colors floated and streamed in a circular array around Athena, the goddess of Wisdom. Not the statue in the Auditorium oh, no! One of the old members, in all the glory of a crown, staff, and flowing Grecian robe, posed as Athena, throughout the program.

The President welcomed the new girls most cordially. Then Miss Bierbower told the Society something of the origin of the Athenian Literary Society, and how its name was selected. Miss Rice drawing on her mythological knowledge, told of Athena's great power in ancient days, and commended the Society on its motto: "Self-reverance, self-knowledge, self-control." All of the members then sang of their love and loyalty to Athena, and lo—the former cold statue came alive and stepped down from her pedestal.

Sandwiches, "dopes," dancing and getting acquainted finished a most enjoyable and enjoyed evening.

MITCHELL TRIAL DISCUSSED IN CURRENT EVENT TALK

Tuesday, Dr. Walmsley discussed the outcome of the Mitchell trial, during the current event talk. Col. Mitchell is to be suspended from service for four years. President Coolidge approves the court martial, but the question arises as to Col. Mitchell's salary. No citizen under such a sentence is allowed to hold any position in the U. S. And so it has been decided that Col. Mitchell shall receive one-half his former salary which amounts to three hundred and ninety-seven dollars and sixty-seven cents.

Following this discussion was that of the death of Cardinal Mercer, a Belgian, one of the most outstanding Christians connected with the World War.

Another interesting event in Dr. Walmsley's talk was the situation of the four hundred Italians, who are members of the American Legion Post. Because of the present immigration law these Legionnaires are not allowed to re-enter the U. S. The reason for this fact is that these four hundred Italians not being nationalized, volunteered for U. S. service in France. After the war these men returned to their native country. They will doubtless remain there until some change is made in our present immigration law.

NUMBER 16

TO MISS MARY.

Valentines frothy, and frilly, and gay,
Words tender, saucy, daring to say!
Arrows and hearts and Cupids bows
By fate just made for our Jim's and Jo's.
Even a rhyme for Dad, and too,
The soft, white verse that for mother grew.
But where is the one we'd bring—to you?
We gazed thru them all. Not even one
Had the words we would say—begun!
All inexpressive, they were tucked away
And we stole from our hearts the words to say—
"Our Miss Mary, someone means
A glimpsed tomorrow, builded dreams,
Someone means embodiment
Of gentle poise, of life true spent
In its perfect call.
Our Miss Mary, to that someone
We bring our hearts—their depth, their fun.
With a pastel strand we weave all thru
The heart of us each to the self of you,
Valentine of us all!"

FARMVILLE WINS SECOND VICTORY FROM AVERETT

Fast Game Proves Farmville Undisputed Victor

Last Saturday night S. T. C.'s varsity gained a second victory over Averett College in a fast game which ended with the score of 36—23. The game was very exciting throughout, owing to the fact that the teams were meeting for the second time within a week and each was determined to carry away the victory.

The game started off with a bang, Hall making the first field goal. Both teams had dashed into the fray, and the first quarter ended with a score of 8—5.

S. T. C. continued the good team work in the second quarter and rolled the score up to 19 while Averett made one field goal.

Both teams came back with lots of pep at the beginning of the last half, each fighting with all the vim they could muster for the glory of their Alma Mater. It was then that Averett did her best work, pulling up her score from 7 to 23; but S. T. C. was keeping pace with her opponent, the whole team putting up a good fight. At the final whistle the score was 36—23 in favor of the blue and white, and despite a desperate struggle Averett bowed again to S. T. C.

Line-up:

S. T. C.		Averett
Hall	R. F.	Chappell
Perkins	L. F.	Watkins
Mitchell	J. C.	Pankey
Vincent	S. C.	Rose
Crute	L. G.	Newton, R.
Jarman	R. G.	Bayer

Substitutes: Farmville—Reid for Vincent, White for Jarman, Gary for Crute. Averett—H. Newton for R. Newton.

'TODDLE TOWN'

—o—

Musical Comedy to be Presented by Freshmen

—o—

Are the Freshmen wide awake and working? Yes!!! They are to present a two-act musical comedy, that promises to be one of the most noted amateur performances of the South! Delightful song and dance music will be rendered by six different choruses. Not one moment without thrill and entertainment will be lost throughout the two performances of the comedy.

The scenes are laid on a tropical island, "Toddle Town." On this island there lives a princess who can really Charleston. Many other people of interest dwell on this island. There are "Tourists", "Toddlers," "Little Boy Blue," "Mother Goose", and even "Hotel Maids" (who know all scandal). On this island there will be a "Fashion Show" which will even display the latest styles—from everywhere—even Paris.

Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, Faculty, All! Freshmen announce this musical comedy. The class of '29 promises its success and that class lives up to its promises.

Sign in a tailor's shop: "Respectable ladies and gentlemen may come in to have fits."

FRESHMAN CLASS ENTERTAINS VISITING TEAM

The Freshman Class was hostess to the Averett College Basket Ball Team during their stay here the 6th and 7th. A representative group of the class met the train on Saturday morning. On Saturday night the class entertained the visiting team with an informal reception. Some very attractive selections were given by Miss Amanda Gray. Miss Eleanor Bennett sang some popular songs. Delightful refreshments were served by Helen Wilcox, Louise Craft, Carroll Cromwell, and Mary Culin.

The guests were: Miss Olive Her, Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Graham, Miss Barlow, Miss Winnie Hiner, the Averett Varsity and the S. T. C. Varsity. The class was really sorry to see their visitors leave Sunday morning.

JUNIOR CLASS PRESENTS PROGRAM—A YANKEE IN KING TUT'S TOMB, AN OLD SWEETHEART OF MINE

On Friday night at 7:00 the Junior Class will present a one act play, "A Yankee in King Tut's Tomb" and a pantomine dramatization of "An Old Sweetheart of Mine."

The play is the story of the Queen wife of Pharoah waking up and falling in love with a travelling salesman who tries to steal her away from her tomb. King Tut awakes and finds how times have changed in the world since he was King and he finally persuades himself it is better to die. However, the queen wife remains loyal, though the play has a tragic ending.

The cast is:

Queen wife — Bessie Mears Riddle
Pharoah — Louise Brewer
Guards, Rosalind Harrell and Louise Foster
A Yankee Salesman, Lucy Haile Overbey

"An Old Sweetheart of Mine", a lovely pantomine, will also be given. The scene settles around a middle aged man, who was once a gay young tea-hound, and is now shown pondering over the many sweethearts of his younger days. As he recalls to memory those happy days each sweetheart comes back to him but each one passes with the twinkling of an eye. And back in the recesses of his memory, the lover finds the sweet

MISS ILER TO OFFICIATE AT ALL-GIRL MEET

Freshman Classman Honored

How about this? Proud of our classman? Rather! The Baltimore Evening Sun has invited the Farmville S. T. C. girls to participate in its Annual All-Girls Meet, in which college girls of Maryland participate, on February 20th. The reason for this sudden and cordial invitation? The reason is the best and most satisfactory one we know. Miss Iler! Miss Iler has been one of the Executive Committee of this All-Girls Meet, and because of her absence from Maryland this year has been asked to officiate at this event. As many as 5000 girls usually participate, and it is a Meet worked out on a vast and attractive scale. We are proud to send Miss Iler back to Maryland for a week-end, but prouder still that she's ours exclusively afterwards!

RADIO FANS TAKE NOTICE—S. T. C. TO BROADCAST

The Shriners of Farmville have arranged a Farmville night over the radio broadcasting from station WRVA in Richmond—on the twenty-second of February. The Glee Club will sing selections from its operetta, Paul Revere. Solos will be sung by Mrs. King and Dr. Jarman. The Farmville Male Quartet will also render selections. Be sure and listen in on that night.

TRAINING SCHOOL SENIORS DEFEAT JUNIORS

The 1rst inter-class game of the Training School was played Wednesday, February 3, 1926, in the college gymnasium between the seniors and the juniors. Both teams played hard and put up a good fight, but the seniors out-played the juniors by a score of 11 to 4. Their playing showed that both teams had received excellent coaching, the seniors by Jackie Woodson, and the juniors by Elizabeth Crute.

ARE PETTY RULES IMPORTANT?

The prevailing sentiment among a great number of students as to how far you can go as long as you can get by with it," with reference to certain petty rules, such an attitude is destructive not only to school spirit but to [illegible] is an ever increasing contagion who enter [illegible] student [illegible] that she [illegible] to herself, to the reputation [illegible] she keep the rules? This is the attitude which we meet daily.

What shall we do? The girl is pledged to abide by rules, and in backing out she breaks her word of honor. Then we must have a host of dishonorable people in our student body, judging by the study hall crowd and the number of girls who are campused. But our girls are not dishonorable. They are hampered by situations which are not life-like. If there is an inner argument between obedience to a school rule and the natural code of conduct, it is needless to say which will usually conquer.

As long as many rules which we now have are in existence, they will be commonly broken. There are two evils, perhaps, in the balance. On the one side are present conditions; some good is derived from rules by those who keep them, but many ignore them and thus they consciously lower their standards of honor. On the other side, is the removal of these rules in favor of the discretion of the students. Obviously, both situations have advantages and disadvantages. Student opinion and action can practically eliminate the disadvantages of either situation. Are not the students of this college worthy of being placed on their honor and discretion without being disciplined as children?

WHAT ARE VALENTINES?

Do we realize what Valentines really mean? Do we ever stop to consider them seriously? We select Valentines more for their appearance than for their sentiment, and rarely do we bother to send them to the person for whom they are appropriate. We send comic Valentines which frequently do not seem as comic to the receiver as to the sender.

A Valentine should be a message of love, such is a thing never to be considered lightly. There are people—our mothers, for instance—who would appreciate an expression of our affection for them, and yet these are usually the very ones whom we neglect. A Valentine need not be merely a red heart on a sheet of paper. It may be a letter, a flower, or just a word; but it must come with the true Valentine spirit. Let us this year make our Valentines real messages of love, and they will mean more to us and to the one who receives them.

OUR CARE OF THE STUDENT BUILDING.

"For the benefit of the Student Building." How often do we hear words? Even the faculty allow their much beloved and cherished baby pictures to be flashed on the screen—for the benefit of the Student Building Fund. We have the building; it is our own. But do we appreciate and care for it as we should? We are willing to help raise funds for it, but with our own hands and feet we mar its beauty. It is admitted that the "Lounge" is very pretty. We rush our friends down there to see the attractive room. But do we ever think about the carpet and the floors for which we are struggling to pay? Girls run quickly into the building from out in the rain and snow. The useless door mat lies on the entrance floor. If the students would be more considerate, they would not inconvenience themselves, for girls are so destructive to this room that it necessitates the doors frequently being locked. This building is ours; we are paying for it. It is new—but will stay in this condition only with our help and consideration. Let's not be selfish and mess up its halls, furniture and floors. We must remember that the building is to exist for a long time, and after we leave, there will live in these same rooms of ours girls who will love nice things just as much as we do. Yes, S. T. C., each one of us is going to try to protect and care for the Student Building for our own selves and for others!

GOOD GRADES.

Good grades. Just what do they mean? In their proper sense they mean that you have done good work and accomplished something towards your chosen profession. They mean that you have done something to repay your parents for the opportunity they are now giving you. Then, shall we, when we have considered these two points, work for good grades?

Good grades mean hard work and consistent work. If you desire good grades you will have to work for them each and every day. You may say, "There are girls who get good grades without working." Probably so, but are you one of the girls who can get them without seemingly working? You know, all of us know our ability to a certain extent, whether you need to study much or little. remember, however, that the majority of us belong to the group that has to study hard. Just what are we going to do? Go to class from day to day and laughingly say, "I haven't opened a book"? Are you going to do this or work hard? Are you going to show your appreciation? Good grades nearly always come to the perso who has done his very best. Success is invariably the [illegible] of hard labor. When you get an E note or a warning note [illegible] Are you going to sit down and say you can't help [illegible] settle down [illegible] hard work?—F. S.

THE "PEP" ELEMENT.

Do we [illegible] student body [illegible] upon our athletics [illegible] could? Do we [illegible] at a victorious [illegible] reflect [illegible] glory upon [illegible] Alma Mater? Do we realize that no varsity can be victorious [illegible] it [illegible] the whole-hearted backing of the entire student [illegible] who have night after night called pep [illegible] poorly attended; it might easily seem [illegible] that [illegible] of trying to infuse into nine [illegible] which they do not really feel. It [illegible] is now, and has always been, the supreme ambition of our college in athletics to produce a varsity which through clean sportsmanship may be invincible. We have a coach who is giving unsparingly of her time and effort toward this end; we have a varsity squad which does not grumble at the frequent practices; do we have a student body which does not shirk its part? Let us accept the challenge which is thrown to us. Let us show our coach that her efforts are not unappreciated; let us show by our attendance at pep meetings our willingness to do our best; and let us carry our varsity to the very top by the enthusiasm of our whole-hearted support!

RIDING ON ONE'S REPUTATION.

Reports are just out. A girl passes in the hall and you ask someone what she got on a certain subject. The answer is, "Oh, she got A, of course, but she's riding on her last year's reputation." At first you might think this to be a jealous remark but when you make inquiries you find it is perfectly true. The girl is a brilliant student and well deserved her A's last year, but this year she has been resting on her reputation and trusting that it will get her an A without work on her part. One time it worked, but sometime it will fail.

Are you riding on your reputation? Live up to it or, like Humpty Dumpty, you will have a hard fall!

THE PERFECT CLASSMAN

"Miss Iler will help us." "Ask Miss Iler; she will know." How often we hear such expressions as these from the Freshmen! At every class meeting, at every meeting of the Freshman Commission—in fact, wherever we as a class are concerned, we look to Miss Iler for help. When anything seems just a little too hard and we don't know exactly what to do, we know just where to go, for our classman is never too busy to give us a word of advice.

Miss Iler is everything that a classman should be. She understands us and sympathizes with us. She seems always to have ideas for class plays and stunts, and she is willing to help us put them through. She knows them and how much to reprimand us. She is a good sport. The Freshmen find it hard to express their appreciation of Miss Iler; but, we can say that we wouldn't know what to do without her.

THE SPIRIT OF VALENTINES DAY

An old gray-haired man stood fascinated in front of a gay, cheery little shop window. On the other side of the polished glass were displayed rows upon rows of dainty valentines. There were big, gold, red hearts and tiny little hearts all covered with frilly lace. At this sight something stirred in the old man's heart and sent a warm, delicious thrill over the bent frame. Long-forgotten thoughts came trooping up to him and he was lost in a flood of memories.

We thought he saw a tiny golden haired child climb upon the arm of his father's chair and proudly display his first valentine, and later, kneeling at his mother's knee, ask God to bless St Valentine. Then a little eager faced boy sat in a tiny desk in a country school. He watched with expectancy a big box from which the teacher was giving out mysterious little valentines. At the sound of his name he went eagerly forward to receive his share of joy. Next appeared a tall, lean boy standing in front of a window, mentally counting up his savings. Then he went in and bought a beautiful real heart which he blushingly took to a shy-eyed little girl. There next stood in line a grown man surveying with loving eyes a tiny heart cut out of red paper by tiny baby fingers.

A sigh escaped the old man and he raised a knarled hand to brush away the hot tears. Memories—yes, memories all of the days of long ago. Now such joy was not for him. No one would think that he cared for a bright red paper heart. No one could know that the spirit of St. Valentine lived as strongly in him today as in the golden - haired child at his mother's knee so many many years ago.

The old man looked down. A warm hand was slipped into his and an excited voice was saying, "Grandpa, just look at the pretty valentines, and tomorrow is Valentine Day!"

Silently, the old man entered the shop and with radiant face asked for the largest and prettiest valentine of all. Once more he looked forward to Valentine's Day. —C. M. H.

WANDERINGS

A thought, a careless word
From one I love
And life is gone.
For what is life but
Castles in the air,
Dreams and visions
Which are shattered
In the briefest span of time?
But still I live.
For now I know
A spark of God
Lies in my heart
That keeps my ideal
High and pure and true,
Tho my soul is scarred
To its very depths.
How strange is a soul
Whose ideal lives and
Lives—and lives—to eternity!

Go to Prayers.

TO MY VALENTINE

Methinks your hair was spun
From out a Sunbeam's golden ray,
Your eyes are just the bits O' Heaven
Where stars were cut away.
You bought your cheeks from roses wild
That by the wayside grow,
And Cupid kissed your cherry lips
And carved them like his bow.

—Margaret Johnston

VALENTINE A LA PRACTICAL

Geography, geopraphy,
Wilt thou be mine?
My heart craves not romance,
For you it coth pine—
I'm caught in a mr sona,
A river, a bay.
My heart sings of maps.
Not Valentine day!
Whirlwinds and eddies,
Copper and lead,
Where shall I put thee
In this wee head?
I lay aside romance,
This be my rhyme:
Bring me a pass grade
As heart's Valentine!

L. B.

THE LIGHTHOUSE

O strong black tower
Against the wind-swept sky,
The monument of some dead giant,
Built upon the sands
To challenge dashing waves
And winds of time.
You are living, throbbing thing
To guide the weary sailors on the deep.
With your [illegible] light,
A challenge to the waves
And winds of heaven.
With your far-seeing eye,
You warn the victims of old Ocean's trap
And snatch them, breathless,
From his passionate caresses.
Perhaps that's why mad Ocean foams
And why the wild west wind
Lashes against your body
The cruel, cutting bits of sand.

—Carolea Harris

TO YOU.

I'd love to sing a song for you,
A happy little song for you.
To make you smile.
I'd sing of mother bluebird's love,
Of God's and tree's and flower's love,
I'd sing of laughing people's love,
A song worth while.

And you would laugh and sing for me
How happily you'd sing for me
And I would play!
Your song would make the whole world glad;
And no one ever would be sad,
For they would see the smile you had,
The live-long day.

THE JEFFERSON ADDS NEW STARS TO ITS HORIZON

Prima donnas and Oriental dancers! Poets and ageless bards! Dramatists and fervent lovers! All were present at a party given Saturday afternoon by the old members of the Jefferson Literary Society in honor of the initiates. And the above-named celebrities were new members whose talents were challenged and discovered during the process called "initiation"! The Society was supposed to do the entertaining, but it was itself entertained. Then, too, the most delicious "goodies" were served,—ice cream, cakes, and candy—and everyone ate on the daintiest paper napkins with painted hearts.

Miss Coulling, the honorary member carried off a prize offered for the best telegram formed by using words made from each letter of the word Valentine in their original order.

Everyone is ready for more good times and judging by the versatile new element which has been added, the Jeffersonians are pretty apt to have them.

NEXT YEAR

Oh! I feel so weary and so very sad,
Folks don't treat me right any time
And my heart is feelin' awful sad
I've spent my allowance and I have but a dime.
Tests for today and tests for tomorrow.
My life's full of nothing but gloom and sorrow
But there's onething that brings happiness galore,
I'll dance, and I'll study, and I live and sing—
For next year I be a honest and true Sophomore.

AS IT WERE

It was Saturday. Here was an undercurrent of excitement and romance throughout the school. O thrills! O ecstacy! My heart skips a beat even when I recall it. The reason for the excitement and the romance was the arrival of a world-wide celebrity, a [illegible] newcomer a couple of the [illegible] attributes—young handsome, blase, and I was my duty to guide him during the afternoon and evening hours. My heart pounded at such a rate that I feared I should be carried away.

At the appointed time and place I met him. Yo gods! What a man! I had spent hours preparing for this occasion, had read all arts known to man to make a pleasing appearance, and I had carefully planned clever little remarks which would place me at the top of his catalogue of women. But I was not prepared for such as this. Words left me, but a world of thought leaped from my eyes and he knew it!

The memories of those hours together will never leave me! Such a man the world was never before! Every act of his stands alone in my heart. He left me—how can I endure it? He promised to return in a week. But that parting is too [illegible] heart not bear! Yet I do cherish my mind is full of the memories of sacred scenes.

What is the song it never have been? He came and left, and I didn't even see him. I am often all alone a Freshman, who could have spoken to him [illegible] a minute, but what's the use, I'm only

ADVENTURES OF A FRESHMAN

There was a little freshman girl,
Who came to S. T. C.
With wonders large and wonders small,
In her dear young eyes did see.
A friend of hers a sophomore wise,
Met at the train did greet her,
And later tell her that she was,
To bear Jean to meet her.
The freshman young did run around,
To find girl Joan to find.
(But there was no girl of that name—
She almost lost her mind).
One day she asked a Junior old—
For she thought that she should know it)
Where she must take her laundry bag
"Over the Rotunda throw it!"
This reply though very strange,
It really did not daunt her,
She threw the laundry over—
(Thoughts of this deed still haunt her).
Her table hostess told her,
That it was getting time,
That she be told that for dessert—
Folks always brought a dime.
The table hostess laughed in glee,
When to next meal she brought
Her ten small pennies and was proud
Because 'twas right she thought.
Through trials and tribulations,
This freshmangirl still goes,
When smiles and grins she causes—
She just turns up her nose.
For she belongs to the freshman calss
Which surely will succeed,
No matter what the trouble is—
That Class will win indeed.

OUR PRESIDENT PROGRESSES AS USUAL

Advocates Cuts (But Not Class Cuts)

Last week, as all of us know (except the very ignorant), that Virginia was awarded a brand new Governor. The inaugual address was excellent (we hear). And the reception which followed was well everybody had a grand time. Our Dr. Jarman was fortunate enough to be among those present. But unlike our President, he was way, way, down the line, that "governmental" receiving line. Having only a few minutes to spare before returning to "us children", he became terribly worried. Short cuts are just fine when classes are not concerned, and college presidents are concerned, so Dr. Jarman took a short cut. Soon he was greeting all of the nobility of the state, their wives, their cousins, and their wives' relations. After telling them what a splendid event it had been, our President escaped, and came back to "us dears". We're glad to have you back, Dr. Jarman. We want you and need you as much (and we may say more) than even the Governor.

LEADING LADY FROM HAMPDEN-SIDNEY TO HONOR S. T. C.'S AUDITORIUM

Nothing very definite—but a mighty truthful rumor has spread around our school. Hampden-Sidney is to present a play in our auditorium. We know not what, nor when, nor how but it is anticipated with great joy. Already hearts palpitate wildly even at the thought of a Hampden-Sidney heroine actually acting on our school's stage. Already hearts have been lost and crushed at the hero's feet. Anticipation of wonderful love scenes—perfect love from Hampden Sidney excites our interest, and we await the coming day.

THURS.—Babby Peggy in THE FAMILY SECRET, a special production, with a most excellent cast. Here is a picture the whole family will like. It has the combined strength of a great novel and a stage play. It is from the novel "Editha's Burglars" by Frances Hodgson Burnett. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock. We want the children to see this, so all of them under 12 can go to the matinee for 10c.

FRI.—Reginald Denny and Mary Astor in OH DOCTOR. Here is a howlingly funny comedy-drama, as clean as a whistle, chockful of hilarious thrills and a delightful love story—made from the fusniest story Harry Leon Wilson ever wrote. He hated to be sick! But gosh! How he hated to get well! Also Good comedy. Matine at 4. Money refunded if it doesn't please you.

SAT.House Peters, Patsy Ruth Miller and an all star cast in HEAD WINDS a special production. He married her, but she didn't know it—he loved her, but she wouldn't believe it—he tried to tame her, but she ran away! It's a thriller from the word go! Has the most thrilling sea-wreck ever filmed in it. Also 10th episode of THE ACE OF SPADES. Two shows, 7:15 and 9 o'clock.

FARMVILLE LOSES TO FREDERICKSBURG SEXTETTE

Although defeated, the Farmville Varsity played an exceptionally good game on the Fredericksburg court Friday night, February 12. The game as a whole was a splendid example of good sportsmanship and fair play.

Fredricksburg took the lead at the beginning and kept it until the first part of the third quarter, when two successive field goals for Farmville tied the score. However, Fredericksbrug rallied, and ended the game with a score of 32 to 21.

Line-up:

Farmville		Fredericksburg
H. Hall	R. F.	D. Draper
V. Perkins	L. F.	K. Murphy
J. Mitchell	J. C.	J. Squires
K. Reid	S. C.	A. Hogan
E. Crute	L. G.	C. Wilkins
G. Jarman	R. C.	T. Johnson

Substitutes: Farmville—Vincent for Reid, White for Jarman, Jarman for White, Yancey for Perkins. Fredericksburg—Brown for Squires Hatchett for Johnson.

Field Goals: Hall, 5, Yancey 5; Draper 9, Murphy 5.

Foul Goals— Perkins 2, Murphy 1.

Referee, Wells; Umpire, Donohue.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT IN HIGH SCHOOLS

The Women's Intercollegiate Association of Student Government together with the Southern Intercollegiate Association of Student Government employ a secretary for the purpose of extending student participation in government in secondary schools.

It is asked why the colleges should be interested in establishing student government in secondary schools. College students visualize how much Freshman training would be simplified if the Freshmen had experienced the advantages of student government in high schools. This was the first purpose of establishing student govenment in the secondary schools, but the purpose broadened.

College students now see the fine chance of helping secondary school students develop their sense of honor and good citizenship whether or not they enter college.

This work now extends over twenty three states and reaches three thousand secondary schools. It consists of gathering up information about student participation in government and relaying it on to secondary schools. It tries always to get the cooperation of the educational officials before approaching the schools. It attempts thru correspondence to interest principals, faculty and students, and to give specific help where it is needed. The Department is not originating plans, but instead it is endeavoring to share the successful methods of government worked out by some schools with thousands of other schools.

PRESIDENT OF THE SOPHOMORE CLASS

The Sophomore Class takes great pleasure in dedicating this issue of The Rotunda to Virginia Updike, her president.

TO VIRGINIA

Idle words will not the message bear
The message hath old—
All the same a message ever true,
Whenever it is told.

But deeds alone will to you bring
In language pure and sweet,
The love we have on golden wing
To unburden at your feet.

—B. G.

SOIHOMORE CLASS TO ENTERTAIN BALL TEAM

The Sophomore Class is to act as hostess to the Harrisonburg Basket Ball team when they visit Farmville next week. We know that the whole student body will cooperate with the Sophomore Class in making our visitors feel at home.

HOMESICK

It's tough when you are homesick
in a strange and distant place,
It's anguish when you're hungry for an old familiar face,
And yearning for the good folks and
the joys you used to know,
When you're miles away from home
it's a bitter sort of woe.

Keep the Red and White on the cup.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

(Born Febuary 12, 1809)

This man whose homely face you look upon
Was one of nature's masterful men;
Born with iron arms, that unbought battles won
Direct of speech and cunning with the pen.
Chosen for large designs, he had the art
Of winning with his humor, and he went
Straight to his mark, which was the human heart;
Wise, too, for what he could not break he bent.
Upon his back a more than Atlas load,
The burden of the Commonwealth, was laid;
He stooped, and rose up to it, though the road
Shot suddenly downwards, not a whit dismayed.
Hold, warriors, councillors, kings! All now give place
To this dear benefactor of the race.

NOTED ARCHAEOLOGIST AT STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

Count Byron Khun De Prorok is a well-known archaeologist, author and artist. Girls, can you imagine anything more thrilling than seeing a real live French explorator at S. T. C., in the little town of Farmville, Virginia? A real young man too, full of humor and although living among the ruins of the ancient times, has not forgotten the ways of the present day, our likes and dislikes. First of all what was his subject—when we first heard it we said, "I don't want to hear that dry old lecture about Carthage," but lo! it was not dry but extremely entertaining. The count made it seem that we were right there witnessing each great excavation. He spoke of his own personal experiences and then before he finished uttering the words the scene was flashed before our eyes in beautiful colors. The count not only lectured but he had tinted the slides so that we might be able to appreciate some of the real glories and beauties of his adventures.

Everyone who had the privilege of hearing this lecture enjoyed it all immensely and felt that their afternoon had been very profitably spent.

TO THE FRESHMEN

What could S. T. C. do without her Freshman Class? They came here in September but they have already made themselves so much a part of us that we cannot conceive of school without them. They have shown their spirit by entering into all the student activities. They have been leaders in athletics, not only when they were winners but when defeated. Many of them are taking part in our Y. W. C. A. They have proven their willingness to cooperate and their spirit of service and at present are working on a musical comedy, the proceeds of which are to go to our much beloved Student Building.

Although we may not have expressed our devotion to you, Freshmen, in so many words, and at times you may even have thought of us as your worst enemies, we are indeed proud of your pep, initiative, good sportsmanship and your spirit of cooperation—and here is the love of the Sophomore Class!

DRAMATIC CLUB PLAY "MICE AND MEN"

The Dramatic Club has chosen its spring play, the title being, "Mice and Men." Selections for the cast are being made and rehearsals will start soon. Everyone knows what a dramatic club play promises and will wait with great expectancy for the time when it will be shown.

Zeta Tau wishes to announce the following new pledges:

Helen Sturgis, Eastern Shore
Sara Nickels, Gate City.

VIRGINIA CLUB ORGANIZES; SIXTEEN CHARTER MEMBERS

Ten years ago, at Chapel Hill, in the state of North Carolina, a club known as the North Carolina Club, was formed. Dr. E. C. Branson, who had seen similar clubs started in other places, was very much interested in the work and helped the club get started.

The North Carolina Club has had for its purpose the studying of state problems. Each year a specific problem is studied from every phase. At the end of the year a bulletin is published, containing the information and the papers which have been presented during the year. These bulletins are for distribution and anyone who wants one may have it. These bulletins have been of great aid in helping the state, and have been back of a number of the improvements. The University of North Carolna feels that the Carolina Club is an essential element in the school.

There is no organization anywhere in Virginia which corresponds to this. For sometime people in this school have been realizing that we need to come into closer contact with the state and that an organization such as this might make this college a greater asset to Virginia than it now is.

Due to Miss Stubbs, who talked the plan over with different groups, a club has at last been founded, with its main purpose that of keeping the college and the state in closer touch. On Thursday, February 4, Mr. Edgar T. Thompson, secretary of the North Carolina Club, came here and told the group what the North Carolina Club has done and what it hopes to accomplish. After supper in the Tea Room, and an informal talk and discussion with Mr. Thompson, the Club was formally organized. The officers elected were:

President	Mrs. Edwards
Active Vice Pres.	Mess Stubbs
Secretary	Louise Brewer
Cor. Secty.,	Anne Robertson
Treasurer	Daphne Gilliam
Histerian	Elizabeth Bugg
Reporter	Rosalind Harrell

Dr. Walmsley was elected to active membership and Dr. Jarman and Mr. Thompson to honorary membership.

OUR SISTER CLASS, THE SENIORS

Who are they, these figures who haunt our halls in black gowns and caps with tassels? They are the lordly seniors, the leaders of our Student Body. What could S. T. C. do without them? One of the leading factors in our own Farmville spirit is the Senior Class. Would any of us feel the same warmth around our hearts if a week went by without singing 'Alma Mater' for our sisters The repeated singing of this from week to week, brings very clearly to our minds the closeness of our bonds of sisterhood. As the cap and gown is the symbol for preeminence in learning, so the Senior Class

"'TIS A SHAME TO GO AWAY EMPTY-HANDED."

Any spectator who has, by chance, watched a college girl depart "with bag and baggage" would not believe that she could "go away empty-handed." It is difficult to imagine her without an amusing lot of luggage from hat-box to kodak. We agree with the Greek general who uttered these words to his men in a losing fight, "'Tis a shame to go away empty-handed." It is certain that in June the home-going student will have a plenty to burden her hands, but what will she carry in her head? A hat-box may be packed half an hour before departure, but for development, enlarging of outlook, and gain in knowledge, months are required —months in which opportunities should be accepted as liberally as they are given. There are not so many months before June in which we may take advantage of our liberal opportunities. We must begin now packing the real treasure we shall carry home, for it would be a shame to go away without it.

A SPINNER IN THE SUN.

She was spinning, spinning as the sun's bright rays came down. She was humming softly as her golden thread ran through, as her wheel went round and round. I paused upon the threshold and I wondered as I stood why the golden thread ran smoothly and the wheel ne'er ceased to hum. With a smile of golden sunlight and with eyes like dewey morn, she paused in her spinning and made answer to my silent thoughts.

"Oh! you stranger, list while I tell. Through my hands passeth the golden strand of life, which so delicately, so deftly do I weave in characters of right. Behold my pattern. Is it not a charming sight?

I gazed— it was. Doubts assailed me and I murmured:

"Oh, Spinner, spinning in the sun, do knots or tangled threads e'er halt you—life does not run so smoothly, there are tangles everywhere. Tell me do you not ever find it so?"

A cloud rolled o'er the sun but passed as a fleeting thought.

"My pattern is not perfect for beneath it lie the faults of the spinner—but who shall say that it is not beautiful for it is woven in the likeness of One who is perfect."

The sun's rays began to slant. The sky in the west grew soft and the evening stars came out. She was spinning, spinning as the moonlit rays came down. At her feet lay the almost finished pattern, gleaming in the silvery light.

So I left her, humming softly, as she goes spining through the night.

THE TRYSTING PLACE.

What music to our ears are the old familiar phrases—"Go to Gilliams' with me?" "Meet me in Gilliams'." "I'll see you at Gilliams." Never are such appeals as these refused. Who could, in fact, refuse a chance to go to such a place as Gilliams'?

Indeed! What would our school be without that bright meeting place across the way? If you're ever feeling blue go to Gilliams', and you'll surely have a sudden change of feeling. You'll find the place filled within every inch of its floor space, and still the hordes come in. What sighs of relief are heard when about six people decide its time to leave. And speaking of noise. The like of the hubbub in Gilliams' has never been heard. Everyone is trying to talk above everyone else, and everyone wants to be waited on at once. We wonder how Danny Gilliam ever keeps on such friendly terms with all of us.

When we think of Gilliams' we'll all have to admit the truth of "That's where my money goes" but on top of that, we must add —To Gilliams' We Bow.

SOPHOMORE CLASS MAN

T. A. McCORKLE

McCORKLE

Who is it knows when things go wrong?
Who greets each new day with a song?
Who strides along with rapid pace
Meeting his trials with smiling face?
Whom do we love—one and all together?
This man who is happy whatever the weather?
He who will stick through thick and thin,
Meeting our problems, as his, with a grin.
Perhaps you have guessed—would you like me to tell?
McCorkle's the man whom we 'Sophs' love so well.

—Fannie Rowe Brown

THOUGHTS

Days are swiftly flying by—we cannot bid them stay
And yet to think that soon will come the time to go away,
We fuss about our classes—fume about the food we eat,
And even complain because we have to own a chapel seat,
The tests we say are all too hard—the classes are a bore,
The study hour is much too long and bells just make us sore,
We don't see why we have to go to meetings every nite,
We wish the maid would clean our room—its always such a sight,
The building isn't heated right—its too hot or cold
We can't even tell a joke unless its always just been told,
Oh! these and many other things we hate while we are here,
But what will be our thoughts when we are far away next year?
We'll think of all the good old times and long once more to be,
Where we have left our happiness—at dear old S. T. C.

MOTHER

Some of God's infinite patience,
Wisdom mercy and truth;
Some of his great understanding
Of the ways and thoughts of youth.

Some of His tender forgiveness;
Much of His love divine
Lo! 'tis the heart's own image
Of that wonderful Mother of Mine.

Fight, Team, Fight!

The most inspiring message from a head coach to his men is attributed to the football mentor of a North Carolina eleven just about to face Harvard, said he, "I want you to remember boys that every man on the Harvard team is a Republican."

THE TEAM THAT HAS NEVER BEEN DEFEATED

The Sophomore Basket Ball team has the honor of being the only team that has never experienced defeat. Through these two years they have worked and palyed as a unit always loyal to Red and White, and always true to the Sophomore code—good sportsmanship.

No one player can be picked out as the star player; all go to make a perfect whole. The upholders of the Red and White have a wonderful record to pass on to next year's Freshmen, and may their spirit "carry on."

DELTA SIGMA CHI MID-WINTER BANQUET

On Saturday evening, February 15, at six-thirty, the active members of Delta Sigma Chi, together with their advisors, visitors, six old girls, and three new members were guests of the Queen of Hearts at a banquet in the tea room.

The Valentine spirit pervaded the entire occasion, and the decorations and menu were in harmony with the season.

In the center of the room hung a large red heart, from which streamers of tiny hearts were suspended to each plate. Frances Sale was toast mistress, and each of the individual toasts carried out the idea of the Valentine celebration at the Court of the Queen of Hearts.

The following guests and old members of the sorority were present:

Miss Mary White Cox
Miss Mary E. Peck
Miss Mary Clay Hiner
Miss Marshall
Miss Myrtle Grenels
Miss Elizabeth Lewis
Catherine Kemp
Elizabeth Bowdin
Louise Jackson
Tillie Waddell
Katherine Smith

"How unnecessary I feel," said an E, "in a test with twenty "A's"."

FAIRYLAND

World so simple, unassuming,
You are like a garden blooming;
Your heart throbs only simple airs,
In your soul perpetual prayers.

Graceful hills, purple mountains,
Fairy music, gurgling fountains
Trailing off silvery streams
To a wonderland of dreams.

When upon your brow I gaze
I always wonder with amaze
Why the Lord should ever plan
Such realms merely just for man.

I always wonder could there be
A home for fairies in each tree,
Or by each smiling, babbling brook
A home for fairies in each nook.

I am always, always thinking
That the fairies must be drinking
In some dark, secluded dell
Hidden where the fairies dwell.

Mystic whispers from the leaves
O drenched and dripping apple trees
Fill my mind with rainbow showers
Caught from many fairy flowers.

I am always, always scheming
'Bout this fairyland, and dreaming,
When at even'tide I trace
In the west a mystic face.

All of these—and many more—
Things unnamed, unthought before,
Make me drunk with fairy wine,
While at the fairy board I dine.

Would you, could you? hear the things
Harmonies from mystic strings—
That my fairies play for me;
Would you? Could you...tell me.

Would you like my fairyland,
If I took you by the hand;
If I led you to the dell
Where the fairies ever dwell?

Out-of-date shoes leave many a girl without a date

Once there were just two kinds of shoes, men's and women's. Walk-Over created the third kind, Younger Girls' shoes. They are different, correctly designed to fit youthful feet with smart, sophisticated style, and poise to keep your feet inline with youthful beauty. You know that your shoes are new and correct in style when they are Walk-Overs.

THE SWEETHEART OF —?

Every old frat has a sweetheart song
And mine is among the list;
With my sweet mamma the song seems wrong—
Please write a tune like this.

She has late dates with an A. T. O.
After she's told me to roam.
A Theta Chi takes her to a show
And a Delta brings her home.

She wears a star for a Sigma Nu
A heart for an S. P. E.
And a Phi Gam's diamond comes to view
When a Phi Gam's there to see.

The line she shoots to a Delta Sigma Phi
She got from an S. A. E.
Then if it works on a Sigma Chi
She tries it again on me.

She just loves to dance with a Beta
"His eyes! Oh, I just could die!"
She adores a Phi Delta Theta
Until a K. A. comes by.

She will cuddle and coo with a P.K.A.
She holds a Kappa Sig's hand
A dear Chi Phi falls for her
And she thinks he's simply grand."

Every "sweet" frat man that she has met
Now adorns her boudoir wall
And she hasn't found a frat man yet
That wouldn't do his little "fall."

She rides at night with a D. K. E.
Down any dark road he'll choose.
Though she swears that she is true to me,
I've got the fraternity blues.

Although I'm not sure which way is up
Or I fit in the whirl—
I love her; so here's a cup—
And I'm yours, my Pan Hellenic girl.

FOUR YEARS

About the Seniors there's lots to be said
She's reached a goal; she's achieved an end.
The pinnacle of joy she now has reached.
Her memory book is a storehouse complete.

About the Jnuior there's much to be told
She is visioning the June, when a degree she'll hold,
One more busy year at old S. T. C.
To store up memories—to carry out on life's sea.

About the Sophomore, there are some things to be said
She is neither beginning nor yet near the end
She's happy, contented and busy's can be
"She's going to College" is about what you'll say.

Now, about the Freshman there's a story to be told
For coming to her are four years of gold!
Look! There are these.
Freshman curiosity
Soph superiority
Junior importancy
and
Senior-osity complete
For the Freshman Girl.

THE BELLS

(With apologies to Poe)

Hear the ringing of the bell—
Rising bell!
What a day of laboring that clanging sound foretells!
Hear it jangle, jangle, jangle,
In the icy hoar of dawn
And to us it seems to tangle
Yea and ever seems to strangle
All our dreams and they are gone.
Keeping time, time, time,
In a sort of deadly rhyme
To the awful condemnation that so noisily doth well
From that bell, bell, bell
Bell, bell, bell
From the clanging and the jangling of that bell.

Hear the mellow meal-time bells—
Golden bells!
What a world of happiness their harmony foretells!
Sealed up in our class-rooms tight
How they ring! to our delight!
From our strolling outside
Or from our beds.
To the dining room we glide
To the monitors it would seem we are late
No excuse!
Oh, from out the mellow ole bell
What a sign for hurrying
Voluminously wells!
How it swells!
How it dwells!
In our S. T. C.! how it tells
Of the penalty which fell
On the lazy and the sleeping
Oh the bells, bells, bells,
Oh, the bells, bells, bells bells,
Bells, bells, bells
Oh the signal and the warning of the bells!

Hear the startling chapel bells—
Warning bells!
What a tale of bustling now the turbulency tells!
In the gymn teacher's talks
How we're told of our faults!
To much discipline here I shreik
We dare not even speak
To a soul.
In our hastening to obey
All the rules they give to us
We forget to raise the seats
As Mrs. King says we must.
Marching out—we fall in line
And race out—or else a talk
About our leisurely walk!
The next time.

In the halls of S. T. C.
Oh, the bells, bells bells
What a tale their clangor tells of surprise!
How they clang and buzz and roar
What a panic they outpour
On the bosom of the palpitations
Yet the ears distinctly tell
In the jangling
And the clanging
How the pupils run pell-mell
By the hustling and the bustling on account
Of that same bell—
Of the bell,
Of the bell, bell, bell, bell
Bell, bell, bell
In the clamor and the clanging of that bell!

Hear the chiming of the bell,
The light bell!
What a night of peaceful dreams its quiet chimes foretell!
In the work of preparation
How we always hasten
At the tempting invitation of its tone!
For every sound that boats
Thru the hall at these salutes
Is a moan
Keeping time, time, time
In a sort of rhythm'c rhyme
To the summons of the bell
Of the bell, bell, bell
Keeping time, time, time
As it tells, tells, tells
In a happy merry rhyme
Of the rolling of the bells
Of the bells, bells, bells
To the calling of the bells
Of the bells, bells, bells, bells,
Bells, bells, bells—
To the chiming and the rhyming of the bells.

GLEE CLUB OPERETTA COMING MARCH 4 & 5.

The Glee Club Operetta, "Paul Revere" is nearing its completion and will be given March 4 and 5 in the S. T. C. auditorium. From all we can "hear" everything is going over big, and with Mebane Hunt and Lucy Marsellar as the leading characters we are sure that a treat is in store for us.

This splendid work of our college women must not end with their college years. When they are teachers and workers in the secondary schools, they must remember this extension work and personally help the students to take upon their shoulders their share of the responsibility of our school community.

PIERIAN INITIATES NEW MEMBERS

The Pierian Literary Society initiated its new members at the regular monthly meeting Friday night in the Student Building auditorium. The new service was very beautiful and has been adopted as the yearly initiation service. Mrs. Mae Marshall Edwards gave a very helpful and instructive talk on the work of the program committee for the rest of the year.

Cakes candy, peanuts and dopes were served by Anna Leigh Gwaltney and Cornelia Dickinson at the end of the meeting.

At Eaco Theatre This Week

THURS. & FRI.—Rudolph Valentino in the super special production, THE EAGLE. He spurned an empress and her love turned to hatred. Then with a price on his head he became the Eagle, a bandit feared for his daring, cunning, skill at arms. And then came The Girl, caught by the highwaymen only to be freed by the soft glances of half-hidden eyes than win the Eagle's heart and bring him to her feet. A tempest of emotion. It is considered the best production Valentino has ever starred in. Also good comedy each day Matinee at 4 o'clock. Attend matinees and save on admissions.

SAT.—Richard Dix in THE LUCKY DEVIL, a Paramount picture. An action comedy of love, luck and lightning. Written especially for Richard Dix by the author of "The Aair Mail" and the famous Wally Reid auto racing stories. It's a peach of a picture. Also the first episode of BATTLING BREWSTER, a fast action serial photoplay starring Franklyn Farnum and Helen Holmes. Two shows: at 7:15 and 9 o'clock.

S. T. C. CELEBRATES WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Colonial Supper and Dance in Recreation Hall

Had Martha and George Washington stepped into the Recreation Hall on February 22nd, they would surely have thought themselves in their own Colonial Ballroom! For our college girls were not "collegiates" but demure maidens of pre-Revolutionary days. We had gone downstairs to an extra good supper, during which cherries had been served (most excellent idea!). For this, we thank Mrs. Jamison. And we had red and white nuts and the most appropriate red hatchets for place cards. Costumes of various hues dotted the floor and gentlemen, powdered and be-wigged, attended the ladies fair. The Grand March was led by Kate Trent and Gertrude Quinn, followed by the many sons and daughters of Colonial fame. What a sight they were! The prize was won by Alice Carter and her partner, Clara Thompson.

Four couples gave an exhibition of the minuet with such delicacy and grace as to delight the audience. Following this, the entire student body was asked to participate in that lovely old Virginia Reel. Yes, surely Washington would have been pleased to see such an affair. But perhaps that noble gentleman would have been slightly shocked to see Virginia's daughters "step" to "Paddin' Madelin" and "Charleston." On the other hand, who knows but what he himself might have tried it?

To the Y. W. C. A. Social Committee we are gratefully appreciative for such a delightful evening.

To finish it off, the student body was entertained by radio and heard its own Glee Club broadcast from Richmond, Virginia. We only wish that every 22nd were someone's birthday!

BETA PHI

The members of Beta Phi entertained Tuesday evening, February 16th at a delightful supper. The color scheme of blue and gold was carried out most effectively in the decorations and favors. Those entertained were Misses Molly Ferguson, Margaret Chandler, Frances B. Smith, Doris Brauer, Margaret Fowler and Frances Clark.

FARMVILLE - LYNCHBURG GAME ENDS IN TIE

The Farmville and Lynchburg College Girls' Basketball teams tied the score 29 to 29 on the Lynchburg court Friday night, February 19. That the result of the game was a tie is due to the fact that girls' basketball rules prohibit playing extra periods to break a tie.

The game started off slowly and continued in this manner until the latter part when it developed into a rather frenzied fight. Both teams fought hard, keeping the score very close, with neither team leading more than four points throughout the entire game. Excitement and interest, as a result, ran high and strong.

The Farmville forwards exhibited some unusually good shots for goals. The centers' floor work was excellent and the guards backed them with pretty passwork and clean playing. A very novel incident occurred when White was changed from guard to center, her old Freshman position, and played a good, hard game. The high point winners for Lynchburg were Elliott and Hundley.

Lineup:

Farmville		Lynchburg
Hall	R. F.	Elliott
Perkins	L. F.	Hundley
Mitchell	J. C.	Schwartz
Reid	S. C.	Hoge
Crute	L. G.	Eaton
White	R. G.	Gardner

Substitutes: Farmville Yancey for Hall, Woodson for Reid, Hall for Perkins, White for Woolson, Gary for White.

Lynchburg Hundley for Hoge, Gresham for Eaton, Wray for Gardner.

Referee, Rogers; Umpire, Taylor.

WHO WILL WIN THE "BUCKEYE"

You remember the story about the "Buckeye" that Miss Graham told in Chapel one morning? Thursday night will determine the winner when Harrisonburg meets the Farmville Varsity on our court at 7:30 p. m. This is one of the biggest games of the season and is always looked forward to with the greatest anticipation.

The following week on March 5 we return the game. Let's keep the "Buckeye" forever!

"Onward Farmville, onward Farmville,
Plunge right into the fray
Get the Buckeye every time
Victory we'll surely gain today." •

THE SPIRIT OF WASHINGTON.

Each year we celebrate the birthday of our famous Virginian and Father of America, George Washington, but do we from custom celebrate in song and pleasure such an occasion without thinking of the ideals of the man whose birthday we commemorate? In him was a faith that never faltered, though the trying circumstance of the American Revolution weighed heavily upon him. In him was an almost unearthly wisdom, courage that was never dismayed, loyalty to the demands of patriotism and honor, and above all, that "harmonius union of moral and intellectual qualities which has never found its parallel among men." Among the heroes who struggled for independence, he was leader and king, and they gladly testified their love, admiration and gratitude to him as a soldier, man, and President.

There was also a Washington of peace, striving in the aftermath of our fight for freedom to unite the states in an everlasting bond of peace and security. In visions he saw growth, grandeur, and the imperishable glory of one Country, one Constitution, one Destiny—Union and Liberty inseparable.

What a spirit! What an ideal for America to live up to and cherish! How proud Virginia is to claim one whose spirit is marching on and who is

"First in war,
First in peace,
And first in the hearts of his countrymen."

ON BEING COLLEGIATE.

When one signs "Collegiate Collegiate.—Yes, we are Collegiate" just exactly what does one mean? Does one really suppose that collegiates are "seldom in a hurry", "never, never worry!" and all the rest of the popular production. 'Tis true that many fair and golden locks are not shorn until Mary or Jane are college students, and as for saving "Damn"—why it was never thought of until entrance to college. Galoshes and slickers are hailed as collegiate "marks" be those of the older generation who stand on the side lines in the whirl and mad rush of modern life and indiscriminately criticize Youth. We ask, with all deferential respect to such critics, if they are dealing justly with collegiates, and especially, with girls? When one considers the comparatively recent amelioration of educational advantages for girls, there is little wonder that they seem so straightforward, so open-minded, so democratic, so equal to men. Inflexibility of spirit and desire for learning have been ingulcated in girls within the last fifty years and they are holding to—yet expanding—such traits most advantageous.

Again we ask—is wearing galoshes and slickers being collegiate? Is perpetual noise typical of collegiate life as a whole? Because dancing is allowed in most colleges, does that imply a laxity in the morality of students? Is the quintessence of collegiate life "crushing" or "petting"? Ask yourself! On the other hand, does the very word collegiate suggest a "book worm", a grind? A college education, as we of today understand it, means not merely absorbing Latin and Science, and graduating with a cranium stacked authoritatively on Shakespeare. No! Our idea of being collegiate is being a good student, a good sport, a Christian—one who is ever ready for fun, for serious thinking, for sevice; one who gives her best, sharing it freely and willingly with her friends and sister collegiates; one who is trying to glean from her college education valuable knowledge of books and human nature, incite into problems that face humanity; one who is far-seeing, seeking a vision and an ideal to hold before her in her life work; one who is tolerant enough to cling to the best of the past and open-minded enough to accept the best of the present and future. In what sense of the word are you "collegiate"?

THE VOICE

Floating from afar to me
A whispered song;
The living presence I cannot see
(For days are long
And time has passed)—is deadly still.
But it remains against my will!

If I could see you now
Hear your voice!
Could whisper sweet and lowly, bow
Before my choice
As shadows bow—all breath indrawn
TO whispered voices to greet the dawn!

ANCESTRAL HOME OF WASHINGTON RESTORED

Sulgrave Manor in Northamptonshire, England, was, as many people know, the ancestral home of George Washington. It was originally an abbey of Henry VIII and was given to Lawrence Washington by him in 1539. In 1610, John Washington left his home and came to America, settling on the Potomac River.

Eventually the manor passed out of the direct line of the Washington family and was allowed to fall into a state of negelct and disrepair. Throughout the period of neglect and decay the Washington Arms was preserved intact on the stone lintel of the porch.

The British Centennary Cimmittee purchased the house in 1914 as a commemoration of the treaty that marked the close of the American Revolution. During the Great War very little was done except to cement the friendly relations of the two great English spaking countries.

A small sum of money was raised in America, but the largest contributions made toward the restoration of Sulgrave Manor were made by the people of England.

The interior as well as the exterior of the manor has been restored in all its Tudor beauty and charm.

On the 25th of July, the Manor was formally opened to the public by impressive ceremonies, not as a national, but as an international shrine to the memory of the famous Washington family.

COLLEGIATE VERSUS COLLEGIATE

Each year in this college, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A., discussion groups are conducted. All students are invited to join some group and participate in discussions on topics of local, national or international interest. These groups have been both interesting and helpful, but many of the girls have not entered these small groups.

This year, Dr. Walmsley has kindly consented to conduct an open forum on a question of nation-wide interest "Collegiate vs. Collegiate". Are you collegiate and do you wish to be considered as such. Think about it, girls! And come to the Student Building Auditorium on Wednesday and Friday evenings of the first two weeks in March. This is your opportunity to discuss collegiate problems and set forth all of those views you have had pent up in your hearts since entering college. Are your thoughts collegiate, your clothes and vocabularies collegiate Are you collegiate?

CONFERENCE ON INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

On Tuesday, February 16, 1926, a conference on International Relations met in the auditorium of the Woman's Club at Richmond, Virginia.

Men and women of state national, and international repute attended, several making interesting and helpful talks. Among these was D. H. Miller, of Washington, who spoke on the economic conditions of Europe of today. David H. Miller, international lawyer and assistant in framing the League of Nations, made an address on Alternatives to Armament.

Those representing Farmville State Teachers College at the conference were Dr. Walmsley, Anne Robertson, Margaret Lewis Stearns, Mary Linn Petty, and Frances Walmsley.

LETTERS

Dear Sister Class:

We would like so much to tell you just how proud we are of you. You've played the game; you've been true to the green and white, our class colors so fine, and we think you're the best sister class we know. You're good sports, you have worked hard, and in the past half year are great prophecie for the future.

Love always,
Junior Class

Dear Sophomores and Seniors:

Through our college life with its multifold implications and its various round of activities, we have been proud to live and proclaim you "sisters of rivalry." The red and white versus the green and white but inherent in all of us are aspirations for the finest for the blue and white and our beolved Alma Mater.

THE MAGIC OF LITERATURE

Inspiration sat on the doorstep. It was a beautiful doorstep of a beautiful home. Dream children played in the yard among the Fancies. Beautiful. Inspiration was the governess for the Dream Children. She also planted and kept blooming the Fancies Beautiful.

Muse sat on the doorstep across the street. This was also a beautiful doorstep of a beautiful house. Youthful Poets sat and talked among the Dreams Youthful. Muse was the governess for the Youthful Poets and she also cared for and kept blooming the Dreams Youthful.

Inspiration and Muse would often look at each other and sigh. They were interested in each other, but could not speak and become friends, because they had never been introduced. As they lived in a very conventional Community it was impossible for them to speak and become friends if they had not been introduced.

Presently there came a sound of tinkling bells,—or was it laughter that sounded like tinkling bells and babbling brooks? Nearer and nearer it came. Finally Muse and Inspiration saw the person who was responsible for the pleasant sound. This person was beyond description. She was young; she was old; she was happy; she was sad; she laughed, danced, skipped, and sang.

An then appeared an obstacle. In the center of the street was a bull terrier on whose collar was engraved the word Technic.

The little Person was afraid. Technic snarled and the Person shrank back. Inspiration and Muse jumped from their places on the steps and running to the rescue of the Person, dragged Technic to a post and chained him securely. Forgetful of convention they began chatting with each other and with the Person.

"Who are you?" one of them asked the Person, remembering that it was improper to talk to a person whom you did not know.

"Why I—I am the Spirit of Literature", answered the Person who had brought Muse and Inspiration together.

JUNIOR PLAY A SUCCESS

The play, "A Yankee in King Tut's Tomb" and the pantomime dramatization of "An Old Sweetheart" presented by the Junior Class were unanimously proclaimed a success. Indeed, what play would not be a success that could boast Lucy Halle Overbey as a leading character? In "A Yankee in King Tut's Tomb," she made an ideal modern Yankee salesman with her portable talking machine and smooth running tongue. Although from an aeroplane into Old Tut's Tomb she was not a whit phased, but immediately began making love to the beautiful, bejewelled queen, impersonated by Bessie Meade Riddle, who had just awakened from a four thousand years slumber.

King Tut, or Louise Bewer, found himself on awakening to be so very, very ancient that he had not only lost his wife and harem, but also his wine. To the Yankee who was a prohibition officer, Tut is overcome and finally looked for restitution in stabbing himself. The guards stood stoically by their master but were unable to prevent the tragic end.

The pantomime "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" was extremely picturesque. The scene was settled around a bachelor as he received his numerous "affaires de coeur." His sweethearts flit across the stage in quick succession.

JUNIOR CLASS PRESIDENT

MISS VIRGINIA VINCENT

STOP THIEF

Seeking to kill a man who is trying to get [illegible] Moore wrote "Stop Thief." This play is comedy from start to finish. It is one peculiar situation after another. The old father and the English bridegroom [illegible] for the amusement of the audience, while Deegan the true detective poses as a detective. There are three love stories, three weddings, and many robberies in the play. Perhaps the most notable feature of the play will be the work of Willie Williams as Nell the heroine. This "leading lady" is said by many to far surpass Norma Talmage and many artists of the "celelent" drama. The other "ladies" of the cast fill their places well and while the gentlemen [illegible] they add some spots of comedy and action that make the play very attractive.

This play will be presented at the S. T. C. auditorium at 8 o'clock on the evening of February 27, by the Humpdenzodinex Jonglerus.

Cast

(Characters appear in the order in which they are named.)

Jean Carr	Jack Brightwell
Mrs. Carr	Lacey Tynes
Caroline Carr	Roy Randolph
Madge Carr	Dabney Jarman
Nell	Willie Williams
William Carr	Christian Munn
James Cluney	Burton Derhert
Mr. Jamison	Dickie Dudley
Dr. Willoughby	Robert Porterfield
Roy Selvin	Frank Hoffman
Jack Deegan	Charles Keenan
Joe Thompson	T. B. Southall
Sergeant of Police	James Ayers
Police Officer O'Malley	Henry McLaughlin

All of the action takes place in the living room of the Carr home. The incidents occur [illegible] time of the play.

[illegible] the piece was directed by Louise McCormick. Virginia Post was the bachelor and Anne Archer Irving his real sweetheart.

Eleanor Bennett entertained the audience, between the plays, in her usual charming manner.

REMINISCING

Did you ever sit by an open fireplace to [illegible] and watch the glowing logs burn, break, and shatter into a shower of sparks. A fireplace on the outside is a place for dreams, for reminiscing. There dreams and castles long [illegible] come to one and often materialize in a most startling way.

It was the twenty-second of February. The slow beat of rain on the roof, the gray mist and gray twilight were all conducive to—well, anything! The logs in the old-fashioned fireplace burned brightly and cast weird shadows about the darkening room. And I gazed dreamily into the fire.

The smoke that rose up the chimney curled into G. W.—G. W.—A twig snapped off as if cut with hacking, hating strokes, and a piece of bark curled into the shape of a wee boat, a perfect hatchet. The knowledge [illegible] why it must be a bunch of cherries! And I was sure that the stick of wood over in the corner was a powder, bewigged, and satin-coated gentleman of Virginia pointing an accusing finger at the lad. A shower of sparks crackled as the gentleman fell and "I cannot tell a lie, I did it" was the voice I heard.

A [illegible] breeze puffed through the room, curled up a whirling bit of bark and up the chimney flew the unbroken colt to run his last race.

The fire is fitful and though I seem to discern one of those queer looking surveyor's instruments—yet, I'm not so sure! But the North wind blows a call to arms.—I hear it! And, the flames leap up—they are the spirit of '76. A stern-visaged man pledges his allegiance to the colonies and the chaos of burning logs may symbolize something of the raging, surging spirit in the breast of the gerat Commander. The ashes sift on the battlefield of winter's snow, where men are freezing; the gray path between the two logs becomes the ice-blocked Delaware. But how diligent the Patriot's band, how determined his plans. He crosses—noble hero!

A new log rolls into place. The flame dies down and my last glimpse into the past is that of our first President as he leaves official duties to settle peacfully on a Virginia plantation.

Twilight falls——

I wonder what he thinks of the United States in nineteen hundred and twenty-six!

PRESBYTERIAN DELEGATES AT STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

Dr. Bridgman, in charge of the Stewardship Conference, Dr. Reedis, Board of Foreign Missions, and Col. William Kemper, Head of Danville Military Institute, attended our chapel exercises on Tuesday morning. The three members compose a team who are visiting Presbyterian churches throughout the state. From here they went to Roanoke.

Dr. Reedis gave us a brief sketch of his visit to the missionaries in Congo Africa. He described the appearance and a few customs of the savage women, and how, in so many sections, they believe that God hates them. Yet, the Christian influence shows marked [illegible], thousands at school, hospitals, and missions have been built, bringing hope and aid to thousands of people. He stated that the missionaries felt confident that it was only the matter of a few years when the whole twenty million of this great savage race now living in the interior of Africa, will be Christianized.

FARMVILLE GLEE CLUB BROADCASTS FROM RICHMOND

To celebrate Washington's birthday, the Glee Club [illegible] our college broadcasted over radio from the Edgeworth Radio Station, Richmond. The girls came to the capitol city in cars, did a bit of shopping in the afternoon, and finally gathered at the station to boadcast at eight o'clock in the evening. The management and all those connected with the broadcasting station were most hospitable and charming to the company. Severl telegrams were received during the program; while here in S. T. C. seven hundred girls sat perfectly quiet to hear the music and singing of their own Glee Club. They have been invited to re-[illegible] the highest compliment that might be paid them.

"TS"

Act I (1922-24)
We came in the fall of '23,
Eager and ready for work;
Our duty we'd never shirk;
The "Ins" came about Thanksgiving time,
We had to go home for a while;
Twas in Farmville, we heard the Xmas chime
For we stayed here meek and mild.
Act II (1924-25)
Sophisticated Sophomores now were we.
We learned about cooperation;
We learned to be sports, to know how to smile,
To work a lengthy duration.
Our pennies to the Student Building we gave
When Founders Day came around.
The Faculty, Dr. Jarman, smiling or grave
Their glories we'll ever expound.
Act III 1925-26)
We're mid way now in our Junior year
We've "played the game" all thru.
Oaks is the very best Sister Class here;
To S. T. C. we're true blue.
"Life is a picture, paint it well"
Is the motto of our class.
If asked how we do it, we should tell
"Teamwork and love of each lass."
Act IV (1926-27)
To be continued next year!

BLUE RIDGE BANQUET

Principle Organizations In College Represented

Last Wednesday evening, one of the most delightful banquets of the year was given in the Banquet Room of the Tea Room. The guests numbered seventy. Most of the oganizations in school were represented, faculty members who had been to Blue Ridge and who were interested in such conferences were there, ans many girls who, as individuals, are greatly concerned in the success of that great movement of the Southern colleges.

The welcome address was made by Alice Carter, President of the Blue Ridge Club. She stated that the club and the Y. W. C. A. were more than delighted to see so many students already catching the Blue Ridge [illegible] and in behalf of the organization and purpose of the Blue Ridge Club in our college, she extended a cordial invitation of sending delegates to Blue Ridge.

Rosalind Harrell, the first speaker, told of the educational alvantages of the conferences in Blue Ridge, of the friendly contact with students of the southern colleges and with foreign students, of the opportunity of hearing such men as Mr. George M. Collins and Dr. Koo, Y. M. C. A. TravelEng Secretary of Japan. A gusto was imparted to the occasion when Lucy Haile Overbey ran the gamut of the sporting world at Blue Ridge. Riding, (and Lucy Haile's horse stood up most on the time!) swimming, rowing, tennis, and basketball, to say nothing of hiking and trips to Mt. Mitchell and other points of interest, furnished recreation for all. Miss London who was hostess of the Conference last year praised our delegation very highly. (By the way, we had the largest number of girls there!) She suggested and we all agreed heartily that to gather around the fireplace of our cottage there and talk, or toast marshmallows, or sing was heavenly! Lest that most vital thing "food" be omitted, "Bun" Quinn sang its praises. She also explained to the guests something of the spirit of Blue Ridge, of the intensive religious and exalted [illegible] one has while on the steps of Lee Hall and gazing at an indescribably beautiful sunset. Chubby Gray extended an invitation to all organizations to send a girl to Blue Ridge to represent them at that conference.

During the evening, the girls who had been to Blue Ridge sang those familiar songs so characteristic of the place and also some of their original songs.

The end of such a delightful banquet? We sang "Taps" and the Blue Ridge Call! And we were carried back to Lee Hall—to Blue Ridge!

WED.—BETTY BRONSON and RICARDO CORTEZ in NOT SO LONG AGO. A Paramount picture. A romantic comedy of the days when New York was young—when Times Square was a pasture and Broadway just accwpath. Produced with charm and color by the director of "Little Old New York." Also Aesop Fable. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—Carol Dempster and Neil Hamilton in the D. W. Griffith special production ISN'T LIFE WONDERFUL. A simple romance of love and potatoes. The N. Y. World said: "We could write for hours on this picture, but space is limited. Perhaps, however, we've conveyed the idea that this is a great picture and will have to be reckoned with in the list of the best of the year." Also good comedy. aMtinee at 4 o'clock.

FRI.—BEGGAR ON HORSEBACK a Paramount Special production from the noted stage play. The biggest, most spectacular production James Cruze has made since "The Covered Wagon. This is the hilarious hit New York roared at for two years. It beggars discription. It tells one of the sweetest love stories ever screened. Also GOOD comedy Matinee at 4 o'clock.

SAT.—RICHARD DIX in TOO MANY KISSES, a Paramount picture that we have shown before. He swore he would never kiss another girl. Then along came the most kissable girl ever—and smack! went the kiss that started the fun. A jolly, lively love-comedy, 100 per cent entertaining. Also episode two of "Battling Brewster." Two shows: 7:15 and 9 o'clock.

FARMVILLE VICTORIOUS OVER HARRISONBURG

The Buckeye Returns Home!

About five years ago a Buckeye journeyed to Harrisonburg and much to our sorrow and against our will there it has remained for five long years. Now that is past history, for Thursday night we brought our Buckeye home.

The gym was packed to overflowing with sinky yet cheering girls. The game started off with a bang and proved to be the fastest and most spectacular played on the local court this season. Both teams showed coaching of the finest kind, and the entire game was clean and well played throughout. At the end of the first half the score stood 8-4 in favor of Harrisonburg. But the Farmville team came into the third quarter with the determination that the "Blue and White shall wave on high". In the last half Farmville rolled up 11 points to Harrisonburg's 1, making the score at the final whistle 15-9 in favor of Farmville.

We take off our hat to Harrisonburg in that her pass work seemed perfect. Each player knew just where the ball was going and was on the spot when it arrived. It would be hard to pick any outstanding players as they all worked as one machine.

Farmville played a quick, snappy game, teamwork showing here as with Harrisonburg. The passwork in the center was exceptionally good. Our team can surely play ball.

Line-up:

Harrisonburg		Farmville
Rosen	R. F.	Yancey
Nesiman	L. F.	Hall
Mills	J. C.	Mitchell
Nickell	S. C.	Reid
Jackson	R. G.	White
Kelly	L. G.	Crute

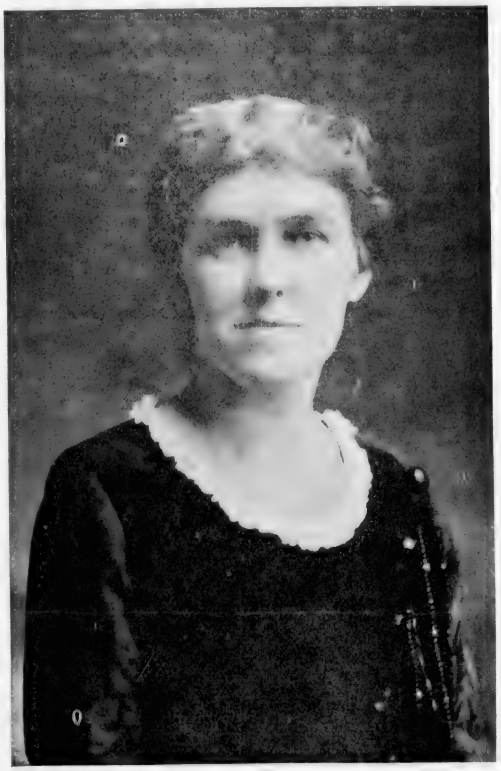
Substitutions: Harrisonburg— for Jackson, Farmville—Perkins for Yancey, Jones for Crute.

Field goals: Rosen 2, Nesiman 1, Perkins 2, Hall 2.

Foul goals: Rosen 1, Nesiman 2, Yancey 1, Perkins 2, Hall 4.

Referee: Wells. Umpire: Venable.

THE BUCKEYE



O the Buckeye shining soft and brown
It will always make you lucky;
And it's come to us in Farmville town
Because our Team is plucky.

The Buckeye! The Buckeye!
'Twill shine on us for many a day
The Buckeye! The Buckeye!
Has come to town to stay!

DEDICATION

When one has passed thru four years of life in our college and has learned to love her graceful collonnades, her stately halls, her home-like atmosphere and her gentle influence, giving incentive to learning and inspiration to service, one looks about to find an ideal of what a true daughter of our Alma Mater should be. Wishing to recognize their ideal of an alumna of S. T. C., the Seniors dedicate their number of the Rotunda to Miss Mary Clay Hiner.

MOSCOW ARTISTS ENSEMBLE

One of the most unique lyceum numbers was given in the auditorium Friday night by the Moscow Artists Ensemble. The work of the whole company was of a high type and extremely original in its nature. The dances and interpretative numbers given by Mlle. Nina Sergeyeva were particularly outstanding. The following program was given to a very appreciative audience.

TEAMS TO ENTER TRIANGULAR DEBATES

Farmville is going to have a reputation in another field—namely, debating. She is already nationally known for her curriculum, she has a national reputation in athletics, as a monument to the never-failing devotion of her athletic instructors, Miss Graham and Miss Iler. And now she is starting out "full steam ahead" to make for herself a place in the debating world.

Plans have already been completed for a triangular debate with Harrisonburg and Radford on April 30. Then in May we are to have a tug-of-war with Hampden-Sidney. And you remember what a fine time we had last year when we debated with H.-S. And now word has come from the Bridgewater College girls that they would like to have a contest with us. Already our fame has spread abroad, for the Bridgewater boys have been debating H.-S. for some time. The student body may help by coming to the try-outs and making an audience for your teams to talk to.

HAMPDEN-SIDNEY JONGLEURS PRESENT 'STOP THIEF'

On Saturday evening, February 27, at 8:15 in the State Teachers College Auditorium the Hampden-Sidney Jongleurs presented their initial play of the season.

The delightfully humorous drama, Stop Thief, a farcicial fact in three acts by Carlyle Moore, was particularly well suited to the Jongleurs' dramatic ability.

The men were exceedingly ingenious in adapting themselves to the women's parts, not only in their dress, make-up, and voice, but in their manner as well.

Charles Kernan, the president of the Jongleurs, who was the thief, was excellent in his role. Willie Williams, as Nell, who was his efficient accomplice, was a genuine girl with "her" boyish bob and feminine ways. Burton Dechert, assisted by his monocle, was a most attractive English bridegroom. The members of the Carr family, their wedding guests, the rector, and the agents of the law were all perfectly splendid, each carrying out his part exceptionally well.

Professor J. G. Roberts, who directed the play, is to be heartily congratulated, for without him it would not have been possible.

The cast of characters who appeared in the order in which they are named was as follows:

Joan Carr ----------	Jack Brightwell
Mrs. Carr ----------	Lacey Tynes
Caroline Carr --------	Roy Randolph
Madge Carr --------	Dabney Jarman
Nell ----------	Willie Williams
William Carr ------	Christian Munt
James Cluney ------	Burton Dechert

BRIEF REVEIW OF THE PRESIDENTS OF COLLEGE

Dr. J. L. M. Curry it was who inaugurated the establishment of Normal Schools in the South and the Virginia School was among the first. He originally drafted its bill, and was President of its Board of Trustees.

On September 17, 1884, the State Board of Trustees of Virginia's Public School System, only established in 1870, ordered the Principal, Dr. William Henry Ruffner, to open the State Normal School at Farmville in six weeks. And on October 30th began the first session of our Alma Mater.

While Dr. John Cunningham was President the school grew slowly and steadily, though not rapidly. In the ten years of his administration there was an increase from 93 students the first year to 250 the last. His motto was "to teach truth and honor by trust, and to punish severely when this trust was betrayed."

Twenty-eight years have passed since Dr. Cunningham last walked down our halls and lest we forget the man who established its present "conspicuous success" it is well to look back upon him who 'saw in it its small beginnings, and him who bore the burdens and heat of the day, who toiled for it and died in its service.—John A. Cunningham."

Dr. Robert Frazer became President of the State Normal School in February, 1898 and for four hard years he worked with an earnestness and zeal and a conscientious devotion to his duty that characterized him throughout his life. "His aim in the conduct of school affairs was, first to provide the best possible advantages for the students; second, to offer those advantages to students at the lowest cost so that the benefits might reach the largest number."

Then in 1902 came our own dearly beloved Dr. Joseph L. Jarman. There is no need to say anything more because we all know all about Dr. Jarman and his administration so far, how in 1902 he had only 13 members in his faculty and now there are nearly fifty of those august members presiding over our already overcrowded classrooms, for the student body has grown in far greater proportions than the faculty. Our library has been enriched, we now have a Tea Room of which we are inordinately proud and the most imposing of Student Buildings. Other wonders have been performed and we are expecting more miracles to unfold any day—for what can not our own dear J. L. J. do? Nothing. Long may he administer the affairs of our S. T. C.

LITERARY SOCIETIES

The Cunningham Literary Society entertained the new members at a party in the Recreation Hall Wednesday night, February 24. A very delightful program was given, all the new girls taking part.

Miss Ada Bierbower, Alumnae Editor;

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that un signed correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

FOUR YEARS.

It has been the privilege of the degree class of 1926 to be at S. T. C. during four very fruitful and colorful years in the life of the institution. Four autumns ago, the Sutdent Building was nothing but a hole in the gound where the first bricks of a foundation were being laid. A foundation, too, was laid in the hearts o the three hundred girls who entered then, a foundation on which they hoped to raise a structure of knowledge, character and worth. The student body, then, numbered only five hundred. It has grown toward a thousand and the class of '26 has hoped to grow in breadth of mind and depth of vision with the rapidity o our school population. The institution was a Normal School when this year's Seniors entered. They saw it attain the dignified position of a Teachers College and they hope to be allowed the privilege of helping it to raise its standards and to realize its ideals.

DO WE NEED A REVISED POINT SYSTEM?

The time comes to all of us when a little self-examination is necessary. Ask yourself a few of these questions: Are you so bus with extra curricula activities that you are neglecting your classes? Do you have time to go out for a breath of good fresh air every day? Do you have time to read good books? Do you hav time to write home? Are you troubled by having three meeting scheduled on the same evening? Do you wonder why Mary has plenty of leisure while you are breathlessly hither and yon? D loathe the word "committee meeting"? Do you belong to abou twelve organizations in most of which you are dead timber? Ar you so busy that you haven't time to enjoy living?

After you have answered the above questions and recovers your breath, consider the cause of your answers. Here it is: Yo are over organized, not the college. What you need is an efficie point system to relieve you of your too heavy burden and to giv a chance for service to some other girl who has not as yet bee discovered.

THE SPIRIT OF FOUNDERS DAY

What Is It?

We hear of "entering into the spirit of an occasion," of "catching the spirit", etc. This would seem to imply something external, a kind of at mosphere that can be entered from without.

The Spirit of Founders Day (which is in reality the Spirit of Alma Mater) cannot be defined thus, for it is a vital, compelling force that comes from within, that radiates from the very heart of the College and reaches out to her children.

This spirit permeates the institution at all times but reaches the utmost height of its expression as Founders Day draws near—the celebration, as it were, of Alma Mater's Birthday; it is the spirit of unselfishness, the sprit of loyalty, the spirit of love and appreciation. To the young hearts and minds within her walls this may seem to be an exaggeration of what Alma Mater means to them; to their care-free youth it appears as visionary and extravagant but to those who have run the race, to those who look back on their school days from a distance, it is the true definition.

An institution is like a human being—it may possess physical beauty it may be surrounded by luxuries and by all things lovely, but if the right spirit is lacking it is not fulfilling the purpose for which it was intended, and its beauty is as that of a rare blossom without perfume.

Alma Mater lives: she not only lives with those who are at present in her care, but she is very close to all who have had the privilege of a sojourn with her in other days, and her spirit is the same that it was in years that have long ago slipped into the past. Her physical growth has been wonderful, but it has not changed her heart; the vital force that we speak of as the Spirit of Founders Day was born with her and she implanted it just as strongly in the hearts of her children of 1886 as in those of 1926. The only difference is that her marvelous expansion has enabled her to reach out and come in contact with numbers that, in the days of her youth, would have been deemed impossible.

As the time of Founders Day draws near the hearts of thousands are burning "home"; Alma Mater broadcasts this spirit of hers throughout the land until it reaches hearts old and young. Her children are "listening in" in Old Virginia, in many distant States of the Union and even in foreign lands, and these hearts throb anew with love and gratitude when they learn once more that they are not forgotten by her. And so generously does she disseminate this spirit that hundreds are fired with their old-time, school girl enthusiasm which expresses itself in the countless letters that find their way to her; and without exception they bear, not only greetings from her absent children, but expressions of warm love, of interest in her welfare and (above all) of a longing desire on the part of the writer to "come home" once more. And in no better way can Alma Mater give expression to her own feelings for them than in the hearty and loving welcome which she always accords them when they can return to her halls.

The Spirit of Founders Day! May it live through the years and fill the heart of every daughter of Alma Mater!

OUR PRESIDENT

Who is the girl whom we love through and through?
Who plans for the Seniors such grand things to do?
Who puts things across with a 'bang,' vim and pep?
Who's won for our class so much honor and rep?
Who, it's Ann!

Who's true to the Seniors' beloved red and white?
Who'll lead us to win, always strive for the right?
Who's inspired each one all the past two years through?
Who's the wonderful girl all our hats are off to?
Why, it's Ann!

AWAKENING

When Nature hears the silent call of Spring
And deep within her heart responses ring
Unheard; when sun and rain upon the earth
Caress the early blossoms into birth;
When birds their love notes trill upon the air,
And brooks begin to murmur everywhere
Their melody;

When through the naked limbs with mighty urge
The sap its strong, invigorating surge
Begins, and trees are tinged with living green;
When resurrection everywhere is seen;
When in the human heart there is a stir
Of love—behold, fair Spring is here;
O ecstacy!

TO MISS JENNIE

For four long years thy love has been
Outspoken in a friendship true
For four long years thy smiles have shown
The courage that abides in you.

Strong is the faith we have in thee,
Sweet poetess, with spirit free.

If e'er we need thy strngth of heart
Like from an oracle there flows
Not just thy heart but thy whole self
And all a silent trust bestows

A partner true, a loyal friend,
To every Senior thou hast been.

Thy song will lead us thru the years
Thy laughter will a poem be,
Dear Silent Partner, loud will ring
The praises that we have for thee.

TO OUR SISTER CLASS

We acknowledge the tributes you've paid to us
We'll try to deserve each one
And we wish to express our love to you,
Our thanks for the things you've done.

It will mean so much to each of us
When out in the state next year
To feel still the tie of friendship for you
Binding us to our college dear.

Dr. J. L. Jarman has just returned from attending a session of the National Educational Association in Washington, D. C. We were delighted to have him tell us some of the chief features of his trip at chapel Saturday morning.

A PERFECT WEDDING

As the chosen friend of the bride her only attendant, I arrayed myself in white and sang blithely as I pressed the dream of a lavender hat becomingly over my eyebrows. I looked thoughtfully at my nose as I powdered it, and reflected that the brim did not quite protect it. And my nose was rather round on the end, too.

A horn honked loudly. I peered out the window and there was Jim, in an open car, of course! He explained that it was for greater speed, and I dashed an extra bit of powder on the exposed nose, and clambed in.

Jim was chewing frantically, seemed to have trouble adjusting his neck to his collar, and in other ways showed that he was a bit nervous. I spoke cordially concerning this, but was informed that he was not the least bit nervous. It was to be a simple wedding, no fuss, no confusion; it had been planned "forty 'leven dozen times." I relapsed into silence, and we bumped merrily along.

Perhaps you should see Jim as I saw him. He was short. I was five feet six and he could walk under my arm. He was fat almost to butterball roundne s. His arms were so short they hardly met across his front and his littlefeet did not touch the floor of the car. However, a head of majestic beauty rose from those fat shoulders. Eyes, brown and flashing lookle out from wide-winging brows, force and power were expressed in the fierce mouth and strong chin. Lou really forgot the rest.

Anne, the bride, on the other hand, was six feet tall. She looked like a Greek goddess, with calm, fine features, and long limbs. I never had understood why out of all the people in the world Anne and Jim should decide each was meant for the other.

In F[illegible] Jim left me to lunch with an old chum while he went to meet the bride. In a short while however, the bell rang, and there stood Jim. He was arrayed now in black broadcloth, and a certain grim whiteness played about his mouth. It had come to say that the local was delayed thru an accident, that the wedding would take place in a certain hotel instead of the church and that he was off to get Anne with a high powered car.

I went down to the hotel. It was a commercial affair. I walked into a lobby of cigar smoke and massive stares, and with dignity inquired the way to the ladies' parlor. I was directed to the floor above. Two large connecting rooms formed the parlor and as a lady was entertaining a friend in one, I went into the other. Out of an assortment of chairs, I selected a large, leather "Turkish" rocker. I sat down, leaned back, and horrors! the thing went over, leaving me with my feet in the air, and unable in any way to help myself. The lady now ran in from the other room crying, "My dear, I was just about to warn you against that chair. It did me the same way the first day I arrived." I recovered my dignity, rescued my hat, and thanked her, all in one breath. I selected another chair and waited.

After what seemed to be hours, the minister hurried in, hot and perspiring, and conducted me down to the station, explaining on the way that Anne and Jim would leave to be married on the train, as time was precious. I thought of the "'leven dozen times" the marriage had been planned and mopped my hot face—by this time I knew my rose was unrecognizable as such, and furtively dabbed it with powder.

From my position on a cinder-pile I watched the train pull out—train that was to have carried the happy pair to New York and the Bermudas. I turned, and in the other direction beheld Anne dismounting with the unruffled mein of a Juno, while behind her was borne Jim. Unfortunate man, he had sprained his ankle in his haste to rescue his bride!

They were married in the stuffy parlor, Jim, literally "rooted to the spot", with his foot encased in a huge carpet slipper. Again I thought of the "leven dozen times" he had planned it and longed to mention the fact to him, but I really hadn't the heart. Of course, he had been placed on the wrong side of the bride and she, with heightened color, must march around him to gain the other side. His eyes were those of a suffering animal as he beseeched me not to notice, so I looked away and my gaze rested upon the mocking depths of a nearby "Turkish" rocker.

CALT-BOWDEN

Mr. and Mrs. William Frank Bowden, of Norfolk, Va., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Bowden, to Carrington Derby Calt, son of Capt. W. Wilson Calt, U. S. N., also of Norfolk, Va., on Sunday, February 21, 1926, at [illegible] Mills, N. C.

Miss Bowden was a graduate of the 1924 class at the State Teachers College, Farmville, Va.

SPANISH CIRCLE HOLD MEETING

El Circulo Espanol held its regular meeting Tuesday, the sixteenth of February in the Student Building auditorm. Miss Hill's students in Rush parish attended their first meeting of this [illegible].

New officers were elected for the following positions:

President ---------- Daphne Gilliam
Vice-President ------ Lillian Rhodes
Secretary ---------- Ida Hill
Treasurer ---------- Martina Henderlite
Reporter ---------- Isabel Macdonald

The new constitution, drawn up by Miss Gilliam, Miss Moore and Miss Henderlite, was read. After the business was concluded a one-act play "La Primera Disputa" was presented by three of the members, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all after which all the members entered into a discussion on "The Manner of Teaching Spanish in High Schools."

Phillip our chief cook has been sick. All of us realize how much he ministers to our physical needs and we wish for him a speedy recovery.

WHAT USED TO BE

Does it seem possible that this school we have today was ever equal to this description? "No factory or warehouse could be more frankly ugly without or artlessly jumbled within. Its bricks stood awry and its boards were rudely matched and planned. It had grown old, not gracefully, but gloomily and grimly". To our scholastic needs the old shell offered a small, primitive assembly hall and two shabby classrooms. Any overflow must go to the reception room or—a bedroom. The dormitory was a series of cubicles, on two floors, lying off crooked, narrow, multi-leveled corridors, much as pig iron lies at the foundry. For our subsistence department there was a dining room furnished with three long deal tables and a supply of plain wooden chairs. Beneath the dining room was a great cavernous kitchen . . . A little reception room and a wide staircase hall completes the tale of our early quarters . . .

The bedrooms had cheap painted furniture, and little shelves saved the cost of dressing tables. Two hundred dollars had been allowed for the reception room, but when a rug and some curtains had been bought it was found that the rest of the money was needed elsewhere, so we rested that case. The deal tables in the dining room were hidden by inexpensive red cotton table cloths, but we were rather vain of our new forks and spoons till William, the general utility boy, took to scouring them with the scrapings of common red brick. The only library was a box of books belonging to one of the teachers; it was most actively peripatetic."

Can you imagine it? Yet that is what Miss Celeste Bush, the first vice principal and a Connecticut Normal School teacher, first saw when Dr. William Henry Ruffner introduced her to the "school shell where she was to manage and he to super-manage". Those are the trials and tribulations that she underwent managing the almost insignificant school that was, in a few short years, to become the pride of Virginia the institution upon which the spotlight of education is so often turned, and a monument to her founders and prersdents.

MY SATISFACTION

Memory still brings them back,
The days that are past and gone,
And sadness would dwell in my heart
Were my memory not flooded with joy.
Joy that increased in its making;
Joy that fled at its height,
Joy that dropped me from heaven;
And left me alone in my plight.
Around me circled shadows of darkness;
They filled my soul with despair,
Till out of the depths of the midnight
A voice rose radiant and clear:
"Weep not for that which has been;
Sigh not that it might have been;
Hope not for what is to be;
But LIVE—and be in what is."
So I folded past joys in a corner
Sacred and safe—all my own—
And I work with new zeal,
And endeavor each day
A new joy to reveal.

—Sue Puckett.

BROADCASTNG

Sherlock Holmes, a holiday at S. T. C, or strawberry shortcake in the dining room have nothing on the shock when it comes to broadcasting! Full-grown Seniors rarely make initial tours but a most notable one was made several days back to that unpunctuated WRVA in Richmond in real cars, i. e., not trucks or trains. Three thin tires subject to change without notice, a tank minus gas, a back seat full of rusty chains and rain curtains are small plagues when visions of the destination flood the mind in those peculiar waves we read about in phychology, and are entirely forgotten when the door to the destination has been actually opened.

For a moment the calm appearance of the lovely reception and dressing rooms soothe the complexion and the ammonia is temporarily slipped into the hand bag. There are still evidences of dalmness and self-possession when the studios are entered preparatory to the rehearsals. The studios are assorted in size and have the usual number of walls covered with heavy curtains except where glass windows and wooden doors have been erected in. The rehearsal of course comes off in a fair style and the Senior sighs with relief at its completion and finds herself accompanied by an exhilirating assurance of notoriety and a feeling of unusual importance. At lunch a familiar air is likely to be assumed indicating a suggestion that the disinterested onlookers do not realize that they are near a very unusual, accomplished prodigy who will that very night bring the world to her feet. It is with removed pride that one sits next to an unknown quantity in the theatre and visualizes the unsuspecting heart close to her own celbrated one. It is supposed that the crowds on Main Street and in Miller and Rhodes must instinctively know they have an important and promising young artist in their midst.

A rush of hours, the silent fall of dusk and the striking of eight o'clock being the advent of the programme. Numbers pass and her name is called. The heart rises and sinks at the audienhe that cannot be seen. The Senior realizes that the world is awaiting her first note and secretly wishes they were waiting for the sunrise instead. Notes follow and not one mistake must be made. The once promising young artist prays that the air will reek with static but arter passing the first line successfully, changes her mind and prays that the folks at home are listening in with the sky clear. She wonders how many souls have heard her voice and if there is not one of her dreams who will send a telegrem that might blossom into the lovely flower of romance—alas! a misinterpreted note! Perhaps the sympathetic, understanding wrold is giving three cheers—three cheers for something they wouldn't give anything else for! A fevered brow, a speeding heart, ten icy fingers and the song is finished. Air! She has disturbed the air but it must restore her. Moments of reflection follow and she no longer wonders why radio artists die young, why their hairs turn grey and their heads grow bald. There is but one hope to regain in the 100 years a hectic night has stolen from her. Cans of sauer kraut must be bought and eaten immediately. She remembered this from an advertisment. Perhaps, by way of conclusion, the lowly cabbage will yet becom a century plant.

OLD TIME SPELLING BEE

On Tusday night, February 23, the old-time spelling bee was revived in all its glory and mirth, by the local chapter of the almunae. It lacked the zest of having sweetheart spell against sweetheart, on account of the dearth of masculinity.

A number of the alumnae, faculty, five from each college class, and a few high school pupils made up the participants. Dr. Frederick Diehl dealt out the bitter dose to speller after speller, until one by one the sides decreased until Mr. Coyner was holding his side seven to one. At 8:15 promptly Dr. Walmsley hurriedly left the room on "conspicuous". Mr. McCorkle, getting tired of standing, preferred a terrestrial" position.

One after another the high school and college girls, along with members of the almunae left the ranks until only Elizabeth Roberts remained to hold up the college fame and to win the $2.50 for the Senior Class Soon "fricassee" proved her "Waterloo."

Finally, Mrs. Wicker Miss Davis and Mr. Coyner held the floor until the lone nut "pistachio" proved too much for Mr. Coyner, leaving Miss Davis and Mrs. Wicker so physically tired but mentally alert that chairs were provided with the prospect of a drawn battle until "statistician" left Miss Davis the victor.

A NEW ELEMENT—'WOMAN'

Symbol—"Wo".

A member of the human family.

Occurrance—Can be found wherever man wishes. Seldom occurs in the free or native state.

Physical properties—All colors and sizes Always appears in disguised condition Boils at nothing, and freezes at any moment. Melts when properly treated Very brittle if not used correctly.

Chemical properties—Extremely active Possesses a great affinity for gold silver, platinum and precious stones of all kinds Violent action when left alone by men. Sometimes yields to pressure. Fresh variety has great magnetic attraction.

Note!: Highly explosive and likely to be dangerous in inexperienced hands.

THE LOOK

Strephon kissed me in the spring,
Robin in the fall,
But Colin only looked at me
And never kissed at all.

Strephon's kiss was lost in jest,
Robin's lost in play,
But the kiss in Colin's eyes
Haunts me night and day.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT?

There are various kinds of girls
Thin, and tall, and fat;
Yet when they come to the library desk
All ask for this and that.
Of books and men galore,
The librarian must know it all—
Where is the "Life of Plutarch,"
And a poet by the name of "Hall?"

Where are the books on "how to sing"
And "railroads"—and oh, yes,
A good book to read on Sunday.
And one for "my English class,"
Where are the "books on business"
Those of "Cowley"—where are they?
"What" (disgustedly) "you don't know?
Well—I should say!"

POEM

Pause for a moment and shed a tear
We have come to the end of a day
We have left undone what we should have done
And said what we should not say.

The beautiful, unclouded, bright blue sky
Some days has a touch of grey
Every lovely fragrant rose
Among its thorns must lay.

Though this day be lost by nothing done
Tomorrow is given again
The chance to live, to honor and give
Our best to our fellow men.

MISS JENNIE MASTERS TABB

"Miss Jennie"

The by-word on the tongue of every studnet who has had the privilege of attending Farmville in the last few years has been "Miss Jennie". A figure familiar to all and one that every girl has grown to love and to admire before her days as a student at S. T. C. end.

This is Miss Jennie's Alma Mater as well as ours and since we have heard so much about the spirit of our Alma Mater, to find a perfect example of what the true spirit can mean to our school, all we need do is to look to Miss Jennie and see what she has meant to S. T. C.

Not only does she keep a record of all our deeds, good and bad, write to prospective students and extend them a welcoming hand, and to the Alumnae and give them aid and news, She has a vital, living interest in every phase of our school life—and she shows it.

Our Alma Mater song was written by Miss Jennie, so are many of our other school songs. She has been our guiding spirit and her help, advice and interest is always there for the asking.

We cannot begin to express our love, admiration and appreciation for the many things Miss Jennie has

FARMVILLE CHAPTER MEETING

There was an enthusiastic meeting of the Farmville Chapter of the Alumnae Association on March fifth. The members assembled in Miss Mary White Cox's sitting room.

The treasurer's report showed that the Chapter has $225 to present to Dr. Jarman on Founder's Day.

For some time the Farmville Chapter has helped some Prince Edward County girl through school. This year a girl is being helped and at the present time -195 toward this fund is in the treasury.

The Chapter will hold a rummage sale within the next few weeks.

A play under the auspices of the Association is to be presented on March 26th in the College Auditorium, and probably a few days later in the Eaco Theatre. The proceeds from both the rummage sale and the play will be used to add to our Founder's Day check.

The committee on nominations presented the following names:

President -------- Miss Alice Carter
Vice-President -- Mrs. Martha King ---------- Newbill
Secretary ---- Mrs. Grace E. Garnett
Treasurer ------ Miss Virgilia Bugg

It was decided that the Chapter give the visiting alumnae an informal tea on Founder's Day. After the business of the meeting was transacted refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

THE HISTORY OF FOUNDER'S DAY

The fact that a freshman was heard to ask whether the stores were open on Founder's Day, their seeming to put the day on a par with National Holidays shows what an important part Founder's Day now plays in our school year. Yet last Saturday was only the fifth Founders Day ever celebrated at S. T. C.

The first Founder's Day program, celebrating the thirty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the State Teachers College of Farmville, was held on March 7, 1922. The program of that first Founder's Day, or rather Normal School Day as it was then called resembles our program. The same songs, which are dear to the heart of every loyal daughter of S. T. C. were sung, many stunts were given and of course a good time was had by all. The chief difference in that first program and ours was that all the money given towards the Student Building was sent by Alumnae chapters. The student body at large gave nothing. This may seem funny to us who have put forth every effort towards raising money for our Student Building. But we should remember that in 1922, the Student Building was only a dream, while now it is reality.

Each succeeding Founder's Day sems to have meant more and more to S. T. C. Every year more and more alumnae have come back to celebrate the Great Day. Of course, we think this is th best Founders Day the college has ever experienced and, of course,we will all come bach each year to enjoy again a Founder's Day at S. T. C.

TO OUR ALUMNAE:

Farmville, Va., March 8, 1926.

My Dear Alumnae:

How we longed for each and every one of you to be here when we celebrated "the" day of the whole year.

In this copy of The Rotunda we are trying to convey to you a vivid picture of the various features of Founders Day and to share with you the joy of the occasion.

We have many reasons to feel that the day was a very happy and successful one. We were glad to welcome more alumnae than ever before. Among the many new chaptrs which answered the roll call with heart-warming gretings and substantial contributions were two new ones, Charlotte, N. C., and Hopewell.

The largest part of the thrill and inspiration of the day however, comes from the realization that there is a peness of purpose in everyone who has ever been connected with the school, and this purpose is; their desire to foster the true spirit of the Founders of our Alma Mater; to serve her with loyalty, love and devotion and to manifest this spirit in a tangible way by contributing to her material development.

I wish to extend the sincere thanks

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE OBSERVES FOUNDER'S DAY MARCH SIXTH

ORIGINAL AND ATTRACTIVE STUNTS MAKE FOUNDERS DAY A BIG SUCCESS

Could the nine stunts, given Founder's Day as a means of presenting the money for the Student Building from the classes and clubs, have possibly been more attractive or original? Maybe they could but the future will have to prove it.

The Senior stunt was the most impressive. Dr. Jarman, accompanied by Miss Hiner as his junior girl, was presented with his LL D, after which the Senior hood was placed on him. L—L—D stood for love, loyalty and devotion while the hood was made of dollar bills. During the entire service the Senior Class sang original and impressive songs.

The magician also arrived on Founder's Day. Then Junior class had him come to extract money from unknown sources. After calling girls from the audience, covering them with a shawl and whispering the mystic words—S. B., the magician found:

"Money in the shoes,
Money in the hair,
Money in the sleeve,
Money everywhere."

The Sophomores, with the aid of Mr. McCorkle, made a mint. By putting strips of paper and green dye in one place, after which a motor was turned on, a long string of dollars was seen issuing from the mint.

The Freshmen had the cutest "old woman in a shoe." And the woman had forty-eight children,—Jack Horners, Mother Hubbards, Miss Muffits, Humpty-Dumptys, and Jacks asd Jills! All these skipped down and put money in the big green shoe. The woman who lived in the shoe had so much money that she gave it to Dr. Jarman.

The Pierian Literary Society sent the Pierian spirit which asked Dr. Jarman to drink deeply from the Pierian well. In drinking, money was found.

Paul Revere, with is beloved Molly, returned to the joy of all and brought a contribution from the Glee Club for the Student Building.

Pierro and Pierrette also returned to life and after finding a check apiece and spying the Student Building, they decided to give the money to that cause from the Dramatic Club. All this was done in pantomine.

The Womans Club sent a wee wee woman with a blackberry pie. When the pie was opened birds began to sing. (Money began to talk). Every bird that flew out was a dollar bill!

State Teachers College High School also contributed. Four girls, representing each year of high school, brought money to Dr. Jarman.

FOUNDERS DAY THE EVENING PROGRAM

Promptly at six o'clock dinner was served, and such a dinner! It was delicious. The Student Body, as well as the Faduty, and Alumnae I am sure, wish to thank Mrs. Jamison most heartily for being so kind to us. The dinner was carefully planned and served and would have done credit to any up-to-date hotel. The dining room looked lovely, with all the girls in pretty vari-colored clothes, and a vase of sweet peas on each table striking the note of color tone. Dr. and Mrs. Jarman, the Faculty and their wives, were guests for dinner as well as the families of many girls and the alumnae.

At eight o'clock there was a program in the auditorium at which Mr. Charles G. Maphis, Dean of the Summer School, University of Virginia, addressed the Student Body and guests. His subject was "Pioneers" and going back to Lewis and Clark he took for his theme the development of educational institutions giving something of the history of colleges. After his talk, Dr. Jarman gave us the figures of Founders Day. The sum received from the sending out of the circular letter to all alumnae was $4,428.28 in cash and in pledges. The total cash result up to the end of the day was $3,784.41.

DR. J. L. JARMAN

Dr. Jarman said he couldn't help smiling on Founders Day. We'd like to tell you alumnae that the cheery smile Dr. Jarman has in this picture is the one we see every day, and the one which inspires us as well as you to put forth every effort to help pay for the Student Building.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of busin ss should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

"THIS IS JUST A PLEA—THE OLD FACES TO SEE."

Sometimes we wonder if they really want to come back—those students of long ago. Joan says that they loved their Alma Mater with such a modern, fine spirit as the students of today—and yet—and yet it seems that they have forgotten. Can we—should we forget so easily that which we loved? Perhaps it is time which has gradually succeeded in erasing fond memories, perhaps it is life which has filled their veins with too great a number of worldly thoughts—ah, perhaps there could be many, many reasons, but should there really be even one cause to forget? Memories of faces of long ago still linger at S. T. C. and Joan still wants to see them. They are not forgotten for the spirit of S. T. C. does not forget. There might be new faces to greet you, but the hand-clasps would mean as much as the old and the welcome would be true.

"Dear Alumni of long ago,
Though the past has faded away,
The doors of your Alma Mater swing wide
To welcome you home today."

—F. R. B.

WE ARE PROUD OF OUR ALUMNAE SPIRIT.

From the time we enter S. T. C. as freshmen we hear, on every side, comments in regard to school spirit. We are told that we are not living up to this spirit until the Alma Mater spirit has become a part of us. Most of us catch the spirit at one time or another whether we will it or not. Yet we can't put our finger on it. It is a part of us and we begin to doubt whether such a thing really exists.

Recently we observed innumerable proofs that there is a very live Alma Mater spirit which stands for our efforts, our love, and our loyalty. It is recognizable but it's there. The very fact that the Freshmen who have been here only six months have caught this spirit enough to make such a splendid contribution in such a unique way is indeed a proof that inside of our school walls the spirit is good indeed.

The thought sometimes comes to us that such a spirit is of little or no importance as even as we leave our Alma Mater. The Farmville spirit isn't forgotten! It doesn't die! It is a loving moving part of the education work. Has any other school such an Alumnae Council as ours? The Alumnae observed Founders Day—with their messages and their contributions, their pledge of love and loyalty, made us realize that the influence of our school extended far outside of its walls.

The Alumnae showed the true Alma Mater spirit and we are proud of them. We appreciate their coming back to their Alma Mater and those who couldn't come, sending messages. In return we send them our love, appreciation and a wish that everyone of them will continue to hold in their hearts a love for Farmville and a little of its splendid spirit.

Best wishes to the Alumnae from all of us at S. T. C.!

—E. C.

OUR ALUMNAE PRESIDENT MISS ADA RANDOLPH BIERBOWER

After her graduation from the Roanoke High School in 1911, Miss Bierbower came to Farmville to begin her special training for the teaching profession. At the end of two years she received a full diploma and began her career as an active teacher in the public schools of Virginia, since 1913 She has had a varied experience in teaching in one-room schools and in graded city schools, and in supervision in the counties of Mecklenburg and Cumberland. During the summer months, she has taken courses at the University of Virginia and the University of California.

In all of her work, whether as a student or teacher, Miss Bierbower has been an active participant in the life of the community. Everything that touches community welfare has her wholehearted interest and support. As an alumna of S. T. C., she has been a tireless worker in furthering the purposes of the Alumnae Association. She has served as president and secretary of the Farmville Chapter and as chairman of some committee every time there has been any work undertaken by the group since her coming to S. T. C. as a member of the faculty six years ago. She has been in turn vice -president, secretary -treasurer and president of the General Alumnae Association, and those who have worked with her say that she has done an incredible amount of work in each capacity. In all these offices she has shown marked executive ability, contagious enthusiasm and an inspiring example of unselfish devotion to our Alma Mater.

All honor to Miss Bierbower, the beloved president of our Alumnae.

NOMINATIONS

At the Student Body Meeting held on March 1, the President of the Student Association asked the students to be considering the making of nominations for the coming election to be held in May. This is a matter not to be slighted, for the making of the nominations is the distinctive function of any organization. It is even more important that the election and a much more difficult task, for after the nominations are made, it is a comparatively easy talk to vote. We want to nominate capable girls and we want the nomination to represent the wishes of the student body. This can only be so if the student body is active and thoughtful in making nominations —I. H.

The Evening Program

After the lecture the Student Committee entertained the Faculty and Student Body with a dance in the Recreation Hall. We all danced to music furnished by our well-known Sensational Syncophated Orchestra, and thoroughly enjoyed ourselves until 11 o'clock, when the last bell rang and the fourth Founders Day became history.

DEATH

With deep regret we announce the death of a loyal alumna, Honor Price Green, who passed away suddenly at the University Hospital, February 23, 1926.

FARMVILLE LOSES TO HARRISONBURG

Friday night Farmville varsity lost a hard fought game to Harrisonburg by a score of 26 to 21. Although Harrisonburg was defeated on our own court only two weeks ago with a score of 44—8, it seems the time were determined to regain the buckeye at the end of the second it was 13—13. During the third quarter Harrisonburg forged ahead and made the score 21—18. When the final whistle blew the score was 26—21.

Yancey scored 10 points, during the game. However, every girl did her part for S. T. C.

The line-up:

Farmville		Harrisonburg
Yancey	F	Heiseman
Hall	F	Rosen
Mitchell	J. C	Herrick
Reid	S. C.	Nicholas
Jones	G	Miller
White	G	Kelly

Substitutions: Farmville Perkins for Hall, Crute for White, White for Reid.

ROTUNDA STATISTICS!

Vote Your Way!

In the next issue of "The Rotunda" we hope to put the results of the ballot of this week. Every student is asked to vote as she thinks and sign her own ballot. The issue is to be a school issue—about everyone and everything at S. T. C. The ballots will be given out in the dining room one day and will be handed in before 6:00 of the next day. Town girls will be given an opportunity to vote

Note: If there is any phase of school life or workings of the school you wish to write on, please do so and drop article in Rotunda box before Monday.

PLEASE HELP BY FILLING THIS BLANK

Maiden Name .....

Date of attendance or graduation ..

Please give us a brief statement of what you have done since leaving Farmville, such as: further study, writing for publication, travel, or any other thing that would be of interest to your classmates.

If you know of any bit of news about any other alumna, please let us know of it also. Use the same form as above.

We ask each alumna who returned for Founders Day to fill in one of the above blanks, thus helping us to get out this Alumnae Issue of The Rotunda. If you will do the same thing and mail it to us we shall be glad to pass the news along. Every bit of information possible is wanted and appreciated. There are many who do not receive mail from the College because we have no addresses for them. The one you send in may be the very one for which we have been searching. We earnestly solicit your cooperation.

ALUMNAE TEA

In the Student Building lounge, between the hours of four and five on Saturday afternoon, March 6, the visiting alumnae were delightfully entertained at tea by the Farmville Chapter. The social committee in charge of the affair was composed of Miss Willie London, chairman; Miss Grenels, Miss Lea, Miss Peck, & Mrs. Coyner. Tea, wafers and candy were served. The whole hour was pleasantly given over to a renewal of acquaintances.

THE ECHOES OF SPRING

Awake to life, oh! sleeping Earth
From out your cold and chilly snow
And give to every blossom birth,
With every plant and tree that grows

You've tarried long, oh, sleeping
Earth,
The echoes of the woodlands bring
A sound of merriment and mirth
Which tells us of the coming Spring

The little birds from tree to tree
Are caro'ing their music sweet,
And now we hear the honey-bee,
And Spring lay smiling at our feet.

Now mother Earth, the shining sun
Has kissed your bosom once so cold,
And brought to birth each little one,
The plants their tiny leaves unfold.

And happy lovers 'neath the moon,
Their sweetest stories oft' repeat.
Sweet summer will be with us soon
For Spring lay smiling at our feet.

--By Jean DuPuy, alumnus of S. T. C., author of "How the Shenandoah Caverns were colored or the Rainbow Maid."

ALUMNAE CONTRIBUTIONS ON FOUNDERS DAY

The Farmville S. T. C. Alumnae Chapters that have been organized in different cities are interested in seeing that our Student Building is paid for. So every year our Founder's Day they send as much money as possible to Dr. Jarman to be used for that purpose.

On Founders Day the following amounts were received:

Farmville Chapter	$225.00
Portsmouth Chapter	200.00
Norfolk Chapter	80.00
Roanoke Chapter	75.00
Winston-Salem, N. C. Chapter	55.00
Hopewell and City Point	46.16
Petersburg Chapter	43.00
Danville Chapter	17.00

GLEE CLUB OPERETTA CREAT SUCCESS

Everyone who had the pleasure of seeing "Paul Revere" enjoyed a finished musical performance. Mebane Hunt and Lucy Marstellar in the stellar roles were splendid. Everyone in the cast took her part well, and the chorus of good looking old-fashioned ladies and gentlemen added much to the music and beauty of the scenery. Frances Clarke, as Phyllis Faxton, deserves special mention although it is difficult to pick out one outstanding actress in a cast where everyone seemed so well suited to her part. Mrs King and the Glee Club deserve a great deal of credit for giving us such a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

Ruth Bartholomew '25 is now a student at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn.

Eveyln Barnes '24 is engaged in work with the Presbyterian Church in Grensboro, N. C. She sings in the choir and assists with the young peoples work.

"KEMPY" TO BE PRESENTED

On March 26th at 8:00 o'clock in our auditorium we will have the pleasure of seeing something different in the way of a play. In our plays, girls take mens parts and in Hampden-Sidney plays, boys take girls parts but in this play "boys will be boys" and "girls will be girls."

"Kempy" is a comedy by J. C. and E. Nugent it is a story of modern American life. It has made a success on Broadway and College Dramatic Clubs have successfully produced it. A review of "Kempy" is in the March issue of "The American" magazine.

The cast will be announced in the next issue of "The Rotunda."

lone for us. Nothing brings to our mind her fine loyal spirit than our Alma Mater song, which she wrote:

All hail, Alma Mater, Dear Mother to thee,
Thy daughters true, faithful and loyal will be;
Thy gentle instruction thy influence so sweet,
Will go with them always—a guide to their feet.
Thy loving protection, thy nuturing care.
Would lead them to cherish things lovely and fair.
All hail, Alma Mater, Dear Mother to thee.
Thy daughters true, faithful and loyal will be.

Thy halls and arcades with their calm classic air,
Thy campus with blossoms perennially fair,
Thy trees and thy fountain, thy vine-covered walls
Will live in their memory, whatever befalls.
Though far from thy care and protection they roam,
They still hold thee dear, as a well beloved home.
All hail, Alma Mater, Dear Mother to thee.
Thy daughters true, faithful and loyal will be.

FARMVILLE'S FOURTH FIRE IN TWO YEARS

One long, awful cry and then dead silence except for the clanging noise of the rushing fire engine and the hooting of automobile's horns as the drivers dashed hither and thither, seeking the scene of disturbance. Then when all was forgotten, nearly fifteen minutes later, the air was suddenly rent with that maddening cry, half human, half demon, such as is beyond the power of human words or thoughts to express. And chaos reigned supreme. First came a cloud of white smoke followed by the leaping flames that seemed continually trying to reach up and clasp hands with the aloof and black heavens. And the sparks in the sky looked like myriads of shooting stars. The telephone operator was busy telling worried townspeople that the fire was in Paulett and Bugg's Hardware Store.

On Sunday morning the sun was greeted with a much sadder face by Farmville town than when she had smilingly said good-night to him barely twelve hours before.

Not one store, but seven were completely gone and five on the other side of the street gave the appearance of gaping with wide open mouths because their plate glass windows had been entirely demonished by the heat and flying debris.

Only the untiring efforts and hard work of Farmville's volunteer firemen kept her from being almost totally destroyed by the fire demons. And it reminds us of just two years and four months ago when the soldiers that are now patrolling Main Street, patrolled our own S. N. S. and the Student Body again send out unspoken but heart felt thanks to those self same firemen.

Our friends among the stores whose faces are now buried among the smoldering embers, are Paulett & Bugg's Hardware Store, Drumeller's Grocery Store, The Hub, Greenberg's, Anderson's Grocery Store, Gray's Drug Store, and Misses Davidson.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The Student Committee wishes to make known to the student body that it is greatly pleased with the way in which the girls discussed the problems brought before it at the last student body meeting. Through this discussion it seems that the girls had a part in the government of their school.

The Committee also appreciates the number of suggestions placed in the suggestion box. They show that you have an interest in your school.

S. T. C. GLEE CLUB PUTS ON PROGRAM AT AMELIA

Did you hear about Miss Orr starting as chaperone and ending up a official car host? And can anyone ask Frances Walthall about the "Joys of motoring" without receiving a substantial black eye? These questions have all of the kids the Glee Club Group I made on April Friday to put on a musical down Midkiff and cold lines, and no little number of laugh-provoking episodes on the way were all amply recompensed when we stood upon the repast the hospitable folk of Amelia had prepared for our favorite young appetites. No great wonder the program later in the night was a success who could sing, read or dance hungried upon chicken and pie salad. It the hospitality of places such as Amelia and homes like the Glee Group I visits worth the effort.

A splendid crowd witnessed the program as Glee Club Group I did itself just as never before. The following numbers were rendered:

Chorus, "Stars the Night Adorning"
Solo, "I Wish I Had Never Known Sunshine" ... McAnne Hunt
Reading, "The Baseball Game" ... "Chubby" Gray
Solo Stunt ... Eleanor Bennett
Dance of Human Dolls, Gertrude Quinn and Eleanor Bennett
Trio, "Absent", Rose Powell, Pattie Smith and Frances Jenkins
Reading, "The Lie" ... Lorah Brewer
Solo ... Lucy Marstellar
Solo Dance ... Gertrude Quinn
Chorus, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia"
Director ... Mrs. King
Pianists Virginia Burks, Mary Lynne Petty, Jack Draper and Virginia Potts

MISS TABB HONORED

Miss Jennie M. Tabb has been appointed State representative of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars; this Association has a membership of over three hundred Registrars from the largest colleges and universities in the United States and Canada—every State in the Union is represented. The annual meeting of the Association will be held in Minnapolis, Minn., this year.

AN APOLOGY

Notices are generally read as they are written and sometimes they are written wrong however I do humbly beg the pardon of the Freshman Class on reading a notice in which the very attractive musical comedy, "Toddle Town," was so carelessly called a stunt. —L. H. O.

DEBATE TEAM HAS INITIAL TRY-OUT

On March 4th in the Student Building auditorium was held the first try-out for the debating club. The following girls were chosen as the best:

Lucy Haile Overbey
Olive Smith Bowman
Alice Carter
Sallie Kate Gilliam
Gadys Huband
Mildred Morris
Pauline White
Lois Westbrook
Belle Bryant
Katherine Bentley

On March 18th will be held the second and last try-out and this will be the final chance the students will have to be selected to represent our school in the three debates to be held in the spring.

On April 20, we will send a team to Hampden-Sidney and they will send a team to Farmville for a debate on this question: Resolved, "That a system of direct primary nomination for State and local office is preferable to nomination by convention."

April 30 we will have a triangular debate with Harrisonburg and Radford on the interesting question, Resolved, "That Virginia should concentrate her efforts upon the development of her rural possibilities rather than upon a metropolitan area around Hampton Roads." Then to cap the climax there will be a debate with Hampden-Sidney on May 14th, but as yet the subject has not been chosen.

Every girl who enters these try-outs automatically becomes a member of the Debating Club which will be officially organized in the next few days.

The Faculty and Student Body are invited to the Student Building auditorium at 6:45 p. m. on Thursday, March 18th. We want a large audience for the girls to talk to, so come out and provide that important factor. The Debate Council is asking for your support and they need it. Who is the Council? Martina Willis, Anne Patterson, Ida Hill and Daisy Mitchell.

The judges are to be the same for this time, namely, Dr. Walmsley, Mr. Fass, Mr. Mellwaine, Miss Marshall, and Mr. Grainger.

OUR PICTURES OF S. T. C.

Dr. Jarman confessed to a start at our applause in chapel on Wednesday morning, March 10. We were simply celebrating his announcement that to each S. T. C. alum would be presented a 15 by 20 inch picture of the college. The buildings and campus are artistically portrayed and complete in every detail. We thank Dr. Jarman for so enduring a gift, one that will keep our Alma Mater so vividly before us.

ELEVENTH ANNUAL STUDENT VOLUNTEER CONFERENCE

Held in Richmond

During the week-end of February twenty-sixth, the students of the Union Theological Seminary were hosts to delegates from the leading colleges of Virginia at the eleventh annual conference of student volunteers.

The convention was held primarily for the benefit of students who had volunteered their services for carrying the word of God into foreign lands. The conference was very fortunate in having present missionaries from China, Kora, Brazil, Africa and India. Messages of the work being done among the heathen people were very inspiring and words of hope were extended to students who in the future expect to do similar work. A profound spiritual atmosphere pervaded the entire conference and the earnstness of students was astounding.

Farmville students attending the conference were Elizabeth Rucker and Mary Markley, Student Volunteers; Jean Vaughn, Elizabeth White, Louise Branch and Katherine Patterson, students interested in the movement; and Rosalind Harrell, representing the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet.

OPEN FORUM CREATES MUCH ENTHUSIASM

The second open forum discussion, "Collegiate versus Collegiate" was conducted last Wednesday night. The girls who attended entered the discussion with frankness and considerable enthusiasm. Everyone is invited to attend these discussions and add her opinion to that of the others.

S. T. C. OUR HOME NINE MONTHS OF THE YEAR.

Our home is very close to the heart of each of us. It may not be as large or as handsome as the people's next door, but it is home and the dearest place in the world.

For nine months of the year we live at S. T. C. Have you ever thought how much like a home our school is? Thereare so many different people to see to our comfort, as there is someone at home; someone to go to when we are in trouble, as there is at home; and such a large family to be with and to love. When you are tired and want to be away from the crowd, your own room is waiting. When you want company, the Recreation Hall with its smooth floors, music and dancers awaits you. Joan receives your guests and you may show them a cozy parlor which is yours, because you are a most important person, at that time. You feel great pride when you walk to the steps of your Student Building and say, "I helped to build that." The pleasure you express when the company exclaims upon its perfectness is just like the pleasure you feel when you have something new in your very own home.

You know well all of your privileges and the things that are yours in this home, but do you often stop to count your blessings? This school is your home for nine months of the year, and when you consider it as such you find that you love it. —M. A. B.

ARE EXAMS ESSENTIAL?

Each year, indeed nearly every term, the rumor goes around, to the effect that next year, or next term we are going to have examinations. Then the arguments begin. Generally they are all one-sided and reasons by the dozen are given why we should not have exams. Once in a great while some very brave student says—"I see the reason for exams, but I don't think we should have them." We all see some reasons for and some against; the question is, which reasons, if really tested, are the stronger?"

Advocates of both sides claim that the examination grade should count for only a small portion of the term's work. All right on point is conceded. The reason given for this is the age-old one. Some students who have done consistently excellent work, get nervous and fall down on examinations, while students who have done comparatively poor work may "cram" and make an excellent grade on their exams. Thus overbalancing the student who has done her work all during the term.

Because of this agrement, those against examinations claim that they are not fair to students and that for this reason they should not be given.

Those who believe exams should be a part of the regular work of the session make their strongest claim that examinations help a student organize the entire work of a term in a systematic way. This is undoubtedly true and without a doubt it is something which should be done. However the first argument that the examination grade will not have much weight in the term grade and this argument do not coicide with each oher. A student realizing that the grade she would make on an examination would have little effect on her average, it is very unlikely that she would study enough or try very hard to get her material in an organized form, while on the other hand the student who "crammed" would probably have her ideas only for the time being and the organization would mean little or nothing.

That a course should be looked on as a unit, rather than in parts, each part to be forgotten after she has been tested on it, is an absolute fact. But there are other better and more efficient ways in which this may be gained. The project method of making the work of a term a project certainly leads to an organization of the whole, while the plan of writing term papers certainly carries some one idea through the course. A teacher who is an efficient one would in any case, through some means organize the class so that the thoughts gained in the first two or three weeks of a term will not be forgotten before the end.

It seems that the nervous reaction of students to exams, the unfairness of them to all students and the additional amount of work and worry on the part of both teacher and student far outshadow the side of organization, a problem which may be solved in other ways.

—E. C.

SHOULD A GIRL BE RE-ELECTED?

Is it fair to the student body at large and to the girl herself to indulge in the habit of re-electing girls to the many offices in school? When considering the girls whom you will nominate and elect as president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, editor, assistant and business manager of all the organizations of schools what principles will you consider as the ones that will guide you leaders

[illegible] overwork one set

[illegible]ortunities of service and develop[illegible]

[illegible]n school of t[illegible]s si[illegible] there [illegible] always more than one girl who [illegible]ll each positi[illegible] A new girl has new ideas and new [illegible]r the offic[illegible] should be elected preference

[illegible] girl has put [illegible] [illegible] her [illegible] and has done all in her power to make the organiza[illegible]n which she holds an office a success. If her best is recognized as good s[illegible] is worthy of advancement or another office. Why tax and overwork her with the same one again? If her best is not so efficient she is not capable of holding the same office. [illegible] elect her just because it has [illegible] in another capacity?

Not only is [illegible] in another capacity and to broaden herself, but it is also better for the organization to have new material and new ideas. A new person coming into office will bring these with her and help the organization to continue advancing, while under the old regime it would practically be a repetition of what had gone before.

Monopoly of office is non-democratic. The United States realized this in becoming a democracy rather than an autocracy. Why not make our school more democratic? A president of our country never devotes more than eight years of his political life to this office. Yet he often denotes his entire life to politics. If the country realizes that change of office is beneficial it seems strange that a girl would be willing to devote more than a fourth of her college life to one office.

The success of our elections depends on two things. First, the candidates should choose wisely the office for which they will run being sure that it is the one to which they can give the most. Second, the elections or student body must vote intelligently and elect those who can best fill the office. What are you going to do? —"D."

DEBATING AT S. T. C.

Among the girls taking part in the try-outs for the debating team on Friday evening of last week were the following:

Olive S. Bowman	Mildred Morris
Mary Fleet	Pauline White
Elizabeth Rawls	Rebekah Liebman
Alice Carter	Lois Westbrook
Sallie K. Gilliam	Bell Bryant
Gladys Huband	Katherine Bentley
Lucy H. Overbey	Joy Burch
Ruth G. Richardson	Audrine Lane
Mildred Folston	Helen Dudley

The girls chosen to represent our school in debating were as follows:

Alice Carter	Olive S. Bowman
Sallie K. Gilliam	Pauline White
Gladys Huband	Lois Westbrook
Bell Bryant	Mildred Morris
Lucy H. Overbey	Katherine Bentley

OPEN FORUM GREAT SUCCESS

Last Wednesday night, the first open forum on the question "Collegiate versus Collegiate" was held in the Student Building auditorium. Dr. Walmsley, with his usual wit and pleasing manner led the discussion. Students were asked to express their true opinions and not what they might be "expected" to think and say. The questions of what is "collegiate" and are you "collegiate" were discussed in an open, straightforward manner, and with a great deal of enthusiasm.

Announcement will be made as to the time of the next forum. The student body is cordially invited to attend.

AN APPRECIATION OF THE TEA ROOM

The flowers without rain would perhaps suffer no more that the students at S. T. C. without the Tea Room. For us it holds so many of the charms of home—just the kind of biscuits and pies that mother makes. When we have money we go to the Tea Room, when we are blue we go to the Tea Room and when we are very, very hungry we go to the Tea Room. No one ever leaves the Tea Room without a smiling face for food that "touches the spot" always brings a smile. But who makes the Tea Room what it is? I sing the praises of Mrs. Gish and Mrs. Smith for it is due to their unirng efforts that we students enjoy the hospitality of that "meeting place." Can any others accomplish so much as these two? I marvel at the preparation of a banquet for eighty in that wee kitchen and yet it is done, and properly done, too—for even the coffee which reaches he eightieth individual is steaming hot. The efficiency of the Tea Room service is all and more than could be expected with such facilities and there it is that we really we are "getting our money's worth."

Mrs. Gish and Mrs. Smith—our hats go off to you, for long will we remember when we have left S. T. C., all the happy moments you have given us in your Tea Room.

"We lope every nook and corner
Of our Alma Mater dear,
But, if the Tea Room would close its doors
We'd all have to leave here I fear."

—F. R. B.

ALABAMA VISITORS AT S. T. C.

We had, as visitors, on Thursday morning, four delegates from the state of Alabama, who were welcomed and presented to the Student Body by Dr. Jarman at chapel. They were:

Miss Mary D. Pierce, Supervisor of Teacher Training, State Department of Public Instruction, Montgomery, Alabama, and a former teacher of this college.

Mr. Tidwell, Assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Mr. Wright, Head of Education Department, Troy Normal School, Alabama.

Mr. Tate, Head of Mathmatics Department Troy Normal School Alabama.

Each member made an informal talk, which was delightful and humorous, after which the Student Body sang, "Alma Mater", "What's the Matter With Jarman?" and "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginny."

The delegates were here for the purpose of observing the methods and curricula used in our college, chosen as the best representative State Teachers College in this section of the country. They hope to carry back with them new ideas along educational lines.

The Alabamian visitors were entertained at a luncheon given in the Tea Room. Other guests were Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Lila Londen, Miss Jennie Tabb, Mr. Gainger, Miss Mary P. Jones and Miss Fleeta Cooper (the two latter are our faculty members from Alabama.)

The presidents and representatives from the leading Normal Schools, and Teachers Colleges of the U. S. attended a conference at Washington last week-end.

POETRY WORTHY OF NOTICE FROM OTHER COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Selected From "The Poets of the Future." Edited by Schnittkind

A FANTASY

Beloved, could I leap across
The great world's outer bars,
I'd walk along the milky way
And bind my hair with stars.

And I would dip my fingers in
The clouds along the west,
And pluck the little silver moon
To wear upon my breast.

Then I would walk across the sky,
And you would see me there—
And ask: "Who is the lady with
The stars bound in her hair?"

Mary O'Kelly—Meredith

SCORN

You took my heart like a letter,
Opened it, and read aloud
So that all about you knew
My heart's thoughts.

Then you laughed
And crumpled my heart
Like a little piece of paper
And tossed it away.

—Marvin Collins—U. of Nebraska

PEACE

Now at length I find my peace
In common daily things;
For there is a quiet in my soul
Since I have cut it's wing.
For it would carry me a way
That was so hard to go—
"If I betray my soul for peace,
I said, "No one will know."

—Frances Harper,—Agnes Scott

VISITOR FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Miss Margaret Vesey, Continental City secretary in South America, visited our college last week. She talked in chapel and also at Prayers about the general conditions of South America. She is in the U. S. on a furlough until May and will attend the National Y. W. C. A. Convention at Milwaukee this spring.

THE LAND OF LOST THINGS

Once I lost so many things,
Childish toys, and pins and rings,
But my mother used to say
I could find them all one day
On a high shelf laid away
In the Land of All Lost Things.

Now I've lost more precious things
Love and Friendship, Heart that sings
Shall I find them all one day
On a high shelf laid away,
Kept by one who loved me gay,
In the Land of All Lost Things

Louise Boyden—Tufts

INFINITY

A thought,
That touches deepest chords
And sets the heart afire;
A wish,
That burns into the heart
With all of life's desire;
A dream,
That circles all the span
Of earth, and sky, and sea;
A life—
A fragment in the plan
Of all enternity.

Blow away the mists
Dry your eyes discreetly.—
Nothing quite exists;
Nothing dies competely.

THE TWAIN

When Beauty goes aroving,
She will not walk alone,
But takes a sad companion,
And names him as her own.

There is some drop of sorrow
In every cup we drain,
And he who walks with Beauty
Must hold the hand of Pain.

—Martha Elmonston—Hiram College

LADY MOON

Lady Moon, Lady Moon.
Up there so high,
Why glide so swiftly
Across the inky sky?

College girl, college girl,
Way down below;
The swifter I move,
The sooner dawn will glow.

Lady Moon, Lady Moon,
Queen o' Romance,
Can't see my love! one
By any chance?

College girl, college girl,
Your loved one is true.
He dreams by my mellow light
Only of you.

—Virginia Harvey, S. T. C., Harrisonburg, Va.

LAVENDAR

—o—

Long years ago I laid my dreams away
In lavendar, so faintly sweet it sickened me.
I went, because I fain would linger for a while
Beside the open casket there.
But I was young; and deeming dreams too full of joy
For one whom grief had claimed her own
I tried to smile—and snapped the cover shut,
And in a while arose from bended knees
And went away.

Today I found my chest of scented dreams
Where I had left it, high
In an old attic, near lost amid the piles
Of other half forgotten memories . . .
The beauty of my dreams had faded not at all,
But oh! alas, my soul had grown so small
And twisted that the dreams no longer fit,
But were too large and free . . .
I had not thought any soul could change so much
In all eternity. . .

I locked the attic fast, and crept away
But in the drowsy air
The faint sweet smell of lavendar
Lingers, and seems to mock and jeer.

—Pauline Timberlake, S. T. C. Farmville, '23.

KRONIC KRACKS FROM KUTE KOLLEGE KIDS

Lucy Hailе Suggests that the old maxim be changed thusly: Laugh and the world laughs with you, cry and your eyelashes come uncurled.

Kitty Reid, upon being accused of two-timing Hugh: "Well, what do you think I'm wearing this Sigma Nu pin for?"

V. Boxley: "I thought you were advertising Balfour!"

Pannie: Say, Ann, don't I look like money in the bank?

A. Smith (serving): Yes, so does this pudding,—plenty of dough.

"Sis" Jordon says her idea of a cript job is being adjunt manager of a chess tournament.

"Belle": What makes Mary Culin walk so funny?

Amelia: Oh, she's got the "charley" hoarse, I guess.

A title suggested for a new song for S. T. C. is, "Why the stream to Shannon's goes."

"Squirt": You know in German the word fast means almost.

Daisy: Huh, there's no doubt about it in English.

During an exciting crap game Miss Shelton was heard to remark that a rolling bone gathers much loss.

Fannie Rowe:: Liz, your voice is good, it ought to be cultivated.

Elizabeth Barrow: Yeah plowed under.

We nominate for the Hall of Fame: Ann Archer Irving, who never created a wrong impression.

Peggy Lou's private opinion is he who would rise with the son must not stay up late with the daughter.

Miss Grenels: No, Sara Cross, the Steppes of Russie aren't made of stone.

Margaret Mackasy wants to know if a picture of the naked eye can be called an indecent exposure.

OUR SCHOOL PAPER

Is about to become a staff's paper except for the remaining faithful reporters who are still on the list.

Again, we say, make The Rotunda yours with what you think especially about the school. This paper should be the voice of the students and just before the splendid class issues, very few spoke. We do not want that lag again. Make it what it stands for—the center of school.

The Rotunda was chosen for special study by a Northern college which picked one hundred papers out of the entire United States. It is a member of the National and Southern Inter-Collegiate Newspaper Association.

PUZZLE

What we want to know is this: why do a number of teachers here advocate not studying on Sunday and then, in making assignments say, "well you can take all of this and write et cetera, because you'll have the week-end to do it in."

Puzzle—Find the week-end.

A PERSONAL IMPRESSION OF S. T. C.

—o—

"My [illegible] girl! What a kind faculty [illegible] to help! But ah what a hub-bub!"

These were the thoughts that were [illegible] my mind on my first day [illegible] S. T. C. Of course, the impression [illegible] to the fact that everything was new and strange to me. From the quiet and peace of "Home Sweet Home," I had been suddenly [illegible] to a veritable bedlam where girls of all sizes, shapes, and varieties ran [illegible] and [illegible]. The thing that worried me was that they never seem to get anything accomplished with all their wild dashes from [illegible] to place. Notices were read out to the effect that everyone should go to some vaguely defined place and sign some sort of document. The entire student body decided to go at once. Various lines were at once formed. What a disappointment to find the [illegible] had been for an hour in a line that led nowhere. After the document was signed the whole process was repeated several time for the purpose of signing other papers. More notices were read that directed everyone to go and pay certain fees. Again the whole student body went [illegible]. Its maxim seemed to be "Safety in numbers." More lines were formed. The arranging of schedules was announced. No girl was quite positive of where she was to go for this or that or at what time. Several days elapsed, during which no classes were attended and general uncertainty reigned.

Of course, I was only a freshman and did not understand. Everything was arranged orderly; there was no confusion; no time was wasted. Such orderliness must have caused an delusion. Yet one same thoughts persisted in my mind.

"What lovely girls! [illegible] a kind faculty so anxious to help! But ah what a hub-bub"

"KEMPY" TO BE PRESENTED

"In the spring of 1922, "Kempy" was produced in New York. It sent its audiences into spasms of mirth; and those audiences, having wiped the tears of laughter from their eyes", recommend it to you. So do the audiences that have seen it successfully given by various College Dramatic Cubs throughout the country. It will be presented in the S. T. C. auditorium March 26 under the direction of Dr. Elizabeth Marshall. The cast is as follows:

Ma Bence ------ Mrs. T. H. Fallwell
Dad Bence ------ J. E. Walmsley
Ruth Bence ---- Mrs. J. Barrye Wall
Jane Wade ------ Meeca Vicars
Ben Wade -------- Dr. W. J. Sydnor
Kate Bence ---- Miss Virginia Venable
Kempy James -------- Willard Hart
Duke Merrill ------ John T. Doyne

BETHEL AND PENIEL

Bethel I passed
In a dew starred hour;
For remembrance I plucked
A half opened flower.

Unreckoned had
Of with pain it part
And some divine ecstasy
Unfolds in my heart.

In vain boil my cheeks,
Pour the bowled rotten
With their bar become toll,
There Peniel waits

TEASDALE FOR MEN

I do not fall in love with Ann.
She had a lumpy neck;
Nor Jane, whose evenings all begin
With "Heck, my hair's a wreck!"

My heart was cold to Hildegrade,
Who talked of demireps;
To Dot, who, seeking my regard,
Taught me new dancing steps.

Charlotte stirred not my peace of mind
Although her feet sought mine
So coyly. (Yes, when'er we dined
She spoiled my nice new shine.)

No love had I for Blanche, whose knees
Were always to be seen;
I did not yearn for Eloise,
Who reeked of Listerine.

In every girl some fault appears
Darling, why did I fall
Into the sorghum to my ears
For you, who have them all?

—Exchange

"Jack is the kindest, sweetest, most considerate man in the world!"

"Why the outburst?"

"He's going to let me get a divorce on the grounds of extreme cruelty."

Mr. G.—"What's the difference between a drama and a melodrama?"

Lucy Haile—"Well, in a drama the heroine merely throws the villian over. In a melodrama, she throws him over a cliff."

Mary: "Here's a good Valentine—'To the only one I ever loved.'"

Marion: "That's fine. I'll take five—no six of those."

Anne Irving: "What was the name of the Unknown Soldier, Aunt Lucy?"

Aunt Lucy: "Lor' I used to know but I've forgotten."

Izzy: "Somebody please tell me what I looked like with bobbed hair?"

Rec: "Sorry, but I've stopped guessing!"

Polly: "And they say he hasn't drawn a sober breath since he matriculated!"

Carroll: "Well, I think matriculating is enough to make anybody get drunk."

Panny: "Shh! Don't answer, I hear footsteps."

Hodgson: "Oh, that's all right, that's just me coming to a decision."

MEDITATIONS OF A RADIATOR PROP

I'd rather be here, than any place I know—beside the radiator."

Don't bother about this A grade so much, because, after all, it's knowledge you're after and not the grade

Some girls here get a book of knowledge but can't tell you a thing about life in college.

Some of our teachers expect us to do all our cramming right before a test—sometimes we do.

Roasting parties will soon be held in every corner—wait until elections come off and every girl will get out a frying pan.

Why do some girls kick while they're here and then praise S. T. C. when they leave? Isn't it strange? We're glad we don't have outside kicking.

MY WEALTH

When the good God gave his gifts to men
He kept from me the gold;
He knew I'd worry now and then
If I had riches to hold.
So the gold he gave to the princes and kings
And to me—the wealth of Nature's things.

Mine is the blue of the mountains high,
The sunset's gold and gleam;
The call of the birds, and the breezes sigh,
The murmur of a cold deep stream
Where the banks are lined with trees and flowers,
And the green grass carpets my bower of bowers.

Mine is the silver of a moonlight night,
The white of the drifted snow,
Mine are the clouds and the stars' bright light—
The ways of the wind know.
And the white fringed waves of the darkened sea
Are Nature's gifts from God to me.

Standard of Excellence

Louise Marsh, President of Ruffner Literary Society. Those serving on the committee were Louise Jones, President of the Cunningham, Ida Hil, Vice-President of the Jefferson, Sara Spiers, President of the Athenian, and Mr. Grainger, Chairman of the faculty committee on Literary Societeis. After two months of work and revision the Standard of Excellence for Literary Soiieties was ready for adoption by the societies.

The Standard involved the efficiency of programs, members and organization. Each term the societies are to be graded on the work accomplished, the benefit of the work to the individual members, and the benefit of the societies to the school. The grading will be done by the Maintenance of Standards Committee, to be elected by the societies, each being represented.

The Standard was adopted by the societies with a vim and eagerness that promises much for the future of ou Literary Societies. Since then new elections have been held, new members chosen and initiated and a program meeting held by each society.

With the Standard as a goal, new members and good material, we have great hopes for our Literary Societies.

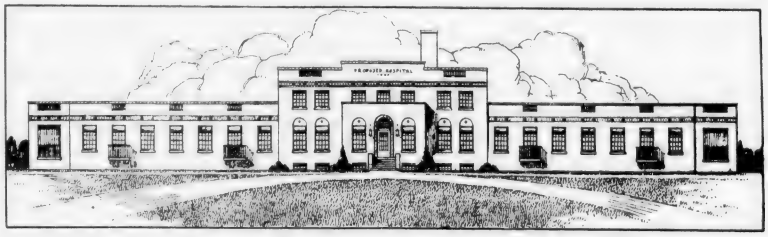
Volume VI | THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24, 1926 | NUMBER 22

ANNUAL PHYSICAL EDUCATION EXHIBIT'N

All Classes Take Part in Program Monday Night

On Monday night, March 22, between 7:30 and 9:30 S. T. C.'s physical education classes gave an attractive, and complete demonstration of their work for the year. The Freshman and Sophomore classes especially were well represented, while the Juniors conributed several dance numbers and a volley ball game, and the Seniors took part in the interclass relay. The members of the Physical Education Department, Miss Barlow, Miss Iler, and Miss Tucker deserve a great deal of credit for the casses' preparedness. Miss Barlow made honorable mention of the squad leaders of her Sophomore classes.

The first number calling forth the applause of the spectators seated in the balcony of the gymnasium was the marching in of the students in their regulation costumes.



The Freshmen held the floor for a series of gymnastics and a straddle relay. Next, sections of the Sophomore class gave story plays, gymnastics and wand exercises in addition to a few games and dances. The Juniors exhibited something new in the way of Jumping Jack Drill. In the six-minute volley ball game the Reds and Blues, both of the Junior class, combatted for the victory which finally went to the Reds. The French Reel by the Freshmen intervened between the game and the Dance Trio by the Juniors.

Perhaps the most unique event on the program was the Croquet Relay of the Freshmen, and the most attractive features, the Dance Trio of the Juniors and Irish Trio of the Juniors and Irish Lilt of the Sophomores.

Enthusiasm ran high during a Touch the Line Relay between the classes, at the close of the exhibition. Each class claims to have the swiftest runners but is Monday night's relay the Freshman Team raced into first place followed by a very close second, the Sopohomores. Their sister classes, Junior and Senior, came third and fourth, respectively.

WEEK-END CONFERENCE TO BE HELD APRIL 9--11

A week-end conference or Cabinet Training Council, will be held in this college during the week-end of April 9—11. This is for the purpose of training the new cabinet members for their work in the Y. W. C. A. next year.

Elizabeth Bugg. Undergraduate Represenative, and State Chairman of the Cabinet Training Council of Virginia, has planned for the conference. Many speakers of note will be present.

About fifty girls are expected to attend the conference from William & Mary, Lynchburg College, Harrisonburg, Randolph-Macon, Fredericksburg, Radford and West Hampton.

EXPRESSION OF SYMPATHY

The Student Body wishes to extend its deepest sympathy to Alice Wimbish, whose father recently died, and to Sara Fox whose brother died last week.

CHARACTER AND FAME

Fame is what you have taken.
Character is what you give;
When to this truth you awaken,
Then you begin to live.

FIGHTING FARMVILLE WILL REBUILD

The Fa[illegible] that one sees as one walks its streets, the Farmville of homes and shops and schools, may be razed by fire, but the Farmville one does not see stands upright in the charred ruins. The spirit of the town is undismayed. One had expected that.

It is recalled that Farmville's fires of the last several years often have aroused the citizenry on a busy Saturday. May it not be, a pyromaniac is indulging his gross appetite there? Perhaps an astute investigator would contribute materially to Farmville's future schemes for fire prevention.

No town in Virginia in the last ten years has been more aggressively progressive than Farmville. It is by no means the sleepy Virginia hamlet which so frequently is described by the feature writer and the novelist. After the recent meeting of the Virginia Press Association there virtually every editor in Virginia tuned his typewriter for a symphony of praise. Farmville is wide-awake hopeful, full of fight.

"We will rebuild," say the people, who shake ashes from their hats and scrape black mud from their boots. They will. They will rebuild in accordance with their best laid schemes. All Virginia will help. The fighting spirit always will lure cheerers to the bleachers.—News Leader.

FARMVILLE LOSES TO FREDERICKSBURG

Score Results 22—21. Farmville Stages "Come-back"

Friday night our varsity lost the last game of the season to Fredericksburg by a score of 22—21.

During the first half of the game Fredericksburg excelled Farmville in passwork, as well as accurate shooting, the score being 14—6. Draper made these fourteen points while Hall and Yancy both contributed three points to our score.

At the beginning of the second half the Farmville girls regained the confidence which they seemed to lack at first. Hall, who is ever dependable and steady, with Perkins as her co-worker, made goal after goal until the whistle blew. The fight exhibited in the last half was the characteristic Farmville fight. White and Crute as guards played hard and always returned the ball to Reid or Mitchell, who took no time in putting [illegible] ball in the hands of the forwards. The team played hard and demonstrated the principle of true sportsmanship in the losing.

The line-up:

Farmville	Pos.	Fredericksburg
Yancy	F	Driefus
Hall	F	Draper
Mitchell	J. C.	Squire
Reid	S. C.	Hogan
Crute	G	Wilkins
White	G	Hatchett

Substitutions: Perkins for Yancy.

SISTER CLASSES OBSERVE CLASS DAY

March 17th and St. Ptarick's Day but was that all? If you were on the campus and could see at all you saw white and gree floating around and you realized that March 17th was also Junior and Freshman Class Day. Green and White predominated on the campus, in the Rotunda and in Chapel.

The Juniors marched in chapel to the strains of an original song sung by the Freshman. Louise Foster read a humorus history of the Freshman Class and the history of the Junior Class was given by Bessie Meade Riddle, Rosalind Harrell and Lucy Haile Overbey.

In keeping with St. Patrick's Day, Mebane Hunt delightfully sang, "My

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

THE HONOR SYSTEM.

All of us are thinking constantly of our college and the great strides forward that it has made in the last few years. The question that comes into our minds is, "Has our college grown consistently?" We see our new buildings, our broadened curriculum, our increased faculty, our growing student body, and think with pride that we may well be proud of our college. And we should be so. However, when we examine our conception of an honor system, we do not speak so loudly in its praise. All of us read with admiration accounts of the strides other institutions are making. One of the first ideas that comes to mind in thinking of the University of Virginia [illegible] Washington and Lee has a store on the campus that is run by the honor system. Everything is open and unwatched. The boys make heir own purchases change their money and [illegible] thinks of such a thing as short change or [illegible] without payment. Such things are effected by a great cultivation of the honor system.

Coming back to S. T. C., we must look into our handbook of regulations. One is appaled by the vast number of petty rules, made necessary by carless girls arousing the suspicion of those in authority. What a [illegible] would be wrought if we could cultivate an honor system that would eliminate the necessity of such rulings! There are hundreds of girls here at S. T. C. capable of attaining such a standard of honor. They are prevented from asserting that power in order that a few girls may be prevented from "getting by" with things. If such a high degee of truth were encouraged as much as possible, the result would be a greater respect for authorty, an utter repugnance for things dishonest and low, that would practically eliminate them, and the deepest love and consideration for Alma Mater that would make the desire to keep her record blameless the chief motive for doing right.

Such a development of course must be an evolution. One can not say, "Go to, we will have a perfect honor system", and presto! have it. Such a state will come about by complete cooperation of the administrative department and the student body. There must be a willingness [illegible] confidence in what seems to be the right path and strong faith in the final outcome. It won't happen in a day but it can come if we are willing to trust each other more and endeavor each to do his part and to do it now.

If we will really put our hearts into improving this phase of our college life, it will be done. And the outcome? Well, to give the whole, would require much space but here are a few results: A faculty and home department, less harrowed and overworked, a student committee receiving the admiration and honor of the girls whom it represents, a student body with higher ideals and better attitudes and a college sending forth teachers who will carry over to their students a far greater gift and more inspiration than any "ology" or "ism" written in books—that is a true conception of honor that does away with watching, suspicion, questioning and restraint and replaces them with self reliance, frankness, trust and freedom in its highest and best sense.

FARMVILLE'S SPIRIT

Farmville is an aristocratic county "capital." It is a highly progressive town yet it breathes the spirit of an ancient and delightful civilization. Living in a vibrant present and looking out upon a hopeful future, it draws its inspiration from a glorious past.

The names that are associated with the history of Farmville belonged to men who had a great share in fashioning this Virginia of ours. The County of Prince Edward was the home of such families as the Venables, the Carringtons, and the Johnstons. It was a citadel of culture, refinement, courage and patriotism. Before this was a nation Prince Edward enjoyed the distinction of offering to the rest of the country a great institution of learning. Hampden Sidney College, located just seven miles from Farmville, came into being coincident with the Declaration of Independence. Its entire student body marched from the campus to fight the battles of the American Revolution. One of those who helped nurture the infant college was Patrick Henry. "The Voice of the Revolution." Another, James Madison, was destined later to be President of the Union not yet formed. Many other great names, including that of John Randolph of Roanoke, are closely associated with the County of Prince Edward and the Town of Farmville.

That is the background of the place that Sunday suffered a heavy loss from fire. It is from this background that the spirit will come to sustain Farmville in its work of rebuilding. Those historical personages associated with the county and the town have passed on, but their courage in the face of disaser still lives as a valued heritage from the past. The sympathy of the rest of the State is consoled at this time in the knowledge that Farmville will recover quickly. Upon the ashes of Sunday it will rise more substanial and more beautiful than before. Cruel adversity will serve but to quicken the spirit that is Farmville's.

THE FARMVILLE SPOTLIGHT

All the world's a stage and, there are many Spotlights. Spotlights of approval, of criticism, of recognition, of public opinion—all playing or the individual players and all working a great influence or their acting. But there is no influence more powerful on our stage than the Spotlight of Main Street in Farmville after 3:30 p. m.

Somehow none of us can resist its lure and all of us, lazy or energetic, tired or busy, happy or homesick, don a frock and dash out down town. Here we find an intoxication in merely being under the public gaze and even the dullest become gay, changing subtly into actors coquettishly courting the public. Such a prismatic array of colors and girls has never been equalled before. The keynots seems to be riot and the most outstanding color for the time gets our vote as leading lady.

Some few of us really have a motive in going down town, and shop busily for ten minuets, but most of us go because we cannot stay away. And why? For the simple reason that the town of Farmville has made itself so friendly and agreeable that we want to give something in return. And isn't the best way to do it dressing up and cooperating with the town socially and otherwise? Besides we would not for worlds forego our little corner in the spotlight and miss perhaps all the fun, talk and gossip of the day. We are received everywhere so cordially and with that make-yourself-at-home air which we cannot afford to lose.

Most of us stared out down here by wondering just how in the world Farmville would get along without us. Of course, there is absolutely nothing original in that thought because every college student in every college town has been wondering that since colleges began. So I've come to the conclusion that we're all wrong and the situation should be stated like this: what would we do without Farmville? Here's hoping we never have to and can continue to pirouette before the kindly, tolerant gaze of the Farmville Spolight.

"VIOLETS."

With soap moistened hands, Martha brushed back the hair from her throbbing temples and drank hungrily the pugent air wafting into the little screened porch. The heavy perfume of lilacs, with its tantalizing suggestiveness of spring, and spring with its tantalizing suggestiveness of "life, and love and laughter" seemed a sham, a mockery to this tired wisp of a woman. True, "love and laughter" had come to her on such a day twenty years ago. Jim, her stalwart, honest Jim, had seemed then the embodiment of those qualities that would make life,—well—just one eternal season of springtime. But the jolly comrade, the sharer of her flights of fancy and laughter loving ways, had long since disappeared, and seemingly another Jim had taken his place—a taciturn being, who talked uncouthly about, and lived only for, his crops and farm interests. From his springtime playmate, she had become a silent drudging playmate.

Queer,—all the long winter she didn't mind so much, and the pent up longings were held in check. But when the earth began to don its new raiment, and the bird's calls seemed for her alone—and the invigorating scented breezes, wafted their way into her heart,—then—the elfin imaginative spirit broke loose from the tired stooped body, and played truant over the meadows and through the inviting woods. And, while the spirit ran riotously free and seeking the body toiled numbly on,—almost unknowingly, in the kitchen, in the dairy, among the humdrum tasks.

"Queer sort of critter I am",—Martha Ann murmured as she laid her head against the door for a minutes relaxation. "Dreamin' about violets and those bright faced little pansies when the wash ain't been put on the line; wishin' I could set by the stream up nigh Martin's place an' watch it ripple an' turn funny colors under the sun, when there's chores to be did and the men's dinner to get. Wish I could stop thinkin'—it hurts awful . . . Yet, if I only et and slept and worked like the rest of the folks around, life would be dreaful empty. I'm reckoning violets an' sunsets was made for folks like me to keep pining after . . ."

Tiring of her thoughts and acting upon a sudden impulse, Martha put the tubs aside, picked up an old shade hat and started to the glen for a few moments freedom before starting the dreaded dinner ordeal. As she passed the farm hands she could hear their loud and unrestrained laughter, or ther mumbled complants. She shuddered as she heard one of them stolidly curse the very weather that she was reveling in,—the air that she was jealously wrapping as a mantle about her fatigued body. Then Jim's voice—"Better have dinner ready in twenty minutes, Ma. We're most finished these rows . . ," Martha nodded and hurried her footsteps until she reached the cool, shadowy little glen. Then with a glad, inarticulate little cry she sank down upon her knees before her most treasured possession, a luxurious bed of purple-blue voilets and saucy-faced pansies. These she had secretly planted, for she was in the habit of keeping her fancies and heart-deep wishes from Jim and the boys these days, to avoid their ridicule, or impatience.

She buried her face in their fragrant bed. She liked the violets because they were delicate, timid appearing, sweetly sympathetic;—the pansies because their elfish, saucy faces seemed to be human . . . Lonely sort of world . . .

An hour later, Martha was her silent, composed self as she placed the steaming dishes — numberless dishes—before the hungry men. As she stood watching them put away incredible quantities of food, she suddenly felt the eyes of Jack, her oldest boy, riveted on the tiny bunch of violets at her throat. With a tell-tale flush she snatched them off. The act amused him, and winking at the other members at the table, he said, "Say, wanna hear a ripping joke? Pete an' me saw a little show today. We finished our rows, and wondering why dinner wasn't ready, walked up past the glen in the direction Ma had gone, what do you reckon we saw? Mom on her knees taking to a mess of violets! Say, Ma do you name the stars or dance with the fairies or goblins at night, too?"

Much laugher was following this witty sally, when an event entirely unforseen and unexpected in that household, occurred. Martha answered back!! Her face was an unearthly white, but her voice was steady and biting as she blazed, "How dare you speak of the stars an' fairies an' violets, Jack Tomlin, and how darest you all laugh at him when you don't know such things exists! You only know how to plant potatoes, and eat 'till you're satisfied and sleep on and on, because you haven't got minds to think with and hearts to feel with, oh, how dares you . . ." her her voice trailed off into a sob and she fled from the room.

Jim found her in the glen. She saw him standing at the entrance, hesitantly holding out the tiny cluser of violets that she had thrown upon the floor, "Violets . . . they sort of make a feller remember, don't they Marthy Remember them I gave you that day and what I said. Of course you remember. It was me that forgot, I've been a fool. Do you reckon its too late to,—to see a bit of spring time together, you and me, Marthy We could make a start by turning over the farm to someone for a while, and—and—following the trail of violets an' dreams like we used to do. Is it too late—Marthy "

The shining light in her eyes answered him. He fastened the violets tenderly at her throat. Then they started down the trail together.

ART CORNER

ALEXANDER'S ENTRANCE INTO BABYLON

We have a reproduction of a portion of Thorwaldsen's beautiful freize in our main auditorium. It is placed over the door on the right leading up to the rostrum. It was presented to the school seveal years ago by the Kindergarten Department of the Training School.

In the nineteenth century the democratic character of modern instruction brought forth a reaction against aristocratic sculpture. A desire was felt for subjects more national in character, and especially for the representation of men distinguished in literature, science, art and history.

One of the first European nations to participate in this revival was Denmark. Bertel Thorwaldsen was one of the sculptors of this age. Although he represented classic spirit in his first works in his later years he caught the naturalistic spirit of modern days.

In 1812 Napoleon was expected in Rome and Thorwaldsen was employed to make the freize for one of the most spacious halls of the Quirinal Palace. Taking the works of Phidias as his model, he produced a magnificent frieze representing "The Entrance of Alexander into Babylon."

The men in the piece of work appear strong, stern and brave, typical of the fighting men of that age. The horses seem to be spirited thoroughbreds, probably from Arabia. It is a flat relief which makes it a fine and valuable piece of work.

His success in this wonderful piece of sculpture made him known among the Romans as the "patriarcci del basso—rilievo."

A PROMINENT CITIZEN

It is interesting to know that one of the greatest surgeons who ever lived was born and reared in Prince Edward County—Dr. John Peter Matteaux. He was a skilled surgeon one hundred years ahead of his day. He was born in 1790 and died in 1878. His father was a French surgeon in Lafayette's army who married in this counry and lived here. He sent his son, John Peter Matteaux to France to study medicine. Dr. Matteaux's youngest daughter is Mrs. Crute, who resides in Farmville.

Recently J. B. Mitchell of Pittsylvania County died. He was the last living patient of Dr. Matteaux. He was operated on by him before the Civil War long before the day of anesthetics.

Dr. John Peter Matteaux's grave is in the Presbyterian churchyard in Hampden-Sidney.

It is the united opinion of the faculty that student is like a kerosene lamp: he is often turned down, he usually smokes and he frequently goes out at night.

No, Mittie, all isn't football that has a kick to it.

Judging by the New York police reports one would be tempted to call this the land of the spree and the home of the knave.

Oh, no, Annie Gris, the habits of natives are not taught at the Custom House.

Jo Lyne would like to know if a great lawyer is a legal light is a great electrician an electric light?

No, no, Zac, Stonehinge is certainly not on the door of Canterbury Cathedral.

Jo Culin was heard to remark once when a certain couple passed that long trouser legs are to boys with big feet what long skirts are to girls with bow legs.

Is there anyone here who still thinks Sandy Hook is a Scotchman.

NICE AND COLD

They were riding after the party,
And the night was very cold;

For fear she'd think him bold.
"Are you nice and warm?"
The laddie asked her twice.

She said, "At least, I'm nice!"

THE "EYES" HAVE IT

There are eyes and eyes and eyes—the calm, placid gray type, the mischievous brown, the innocent blue, the sparkling, dashing black—yet I often wonder if we ever think of what lies back of those orbs of different hues. What tales do they tell What secrets are hidden there? It is said that

"Beauty lies within the eyes,
And lies, and lies, and lies!"

This is true, I think, in the serious sense, for all that one is, is shown to the world through his eyes, and no one is ever judged as ugly who looks upon the world with eyes of beauty. The tongue is held to be mightier than the sword, but the eye surpasses either of these. With one flashing look we may pierce through and through —withered into mere nothingness; with a look of encouragement and hope we are often spurred on to hitherto unattainable heights. Yes, it truly is the eyes of the world which rule our world!

OLD SERENADE

The serenade I sang for you
In those lost, lilac days,
Has spent its sweetness ruefully
Along forgotten ways.
And here, upon a garden wall,
A boy in black and white,
Sits strangely sad and silent,
Remembering a night.

Once you were on a balcony.
Sandalled in silver there,
With moonlight on your lovely face,
With moonlight in your hair;
And I, a graceless Pierrot,
Drunk with deep wondering,
Knelt in the white grass quietly
And sang a little thing.

O dear, my dear, we dallied
In arms of sweet embrace,
Forgetting things were happening
In every other place;
Remember how we mimiced
Aucassin and Nicolette,
And stayed each other's kisses
With sprigs of mignonette.

But, of course, you don't remember.
For the lips you lifted then,
Have felt the swiff seduction
In the lips of other men.
That serenade is shattered,
And a boy in black and white,
Sits silent on the wall,
Remembering a night.

CAREFUL, GIRLS

(Apologies to The Virginia Reel)

Tell me not in idle jingle,
"Marriage is a happy dream,"
For the girl is safe that's single,
And men are not what they seem.

Free you are, then free remain,
Marriage is not woman's goal,
Flirt and kill with every swain,
But do not trust 'em as a whole.

Not in marriage and thence to sorrow
Will you find your destined way,
But to act so on each tomorrow
You'll be farther from that day.

Your days are long, beauty fleeting,
And your hearts now light and brave,
Should each thought of man defeating
Send it bleeding to its grave?

When they court you don't get rattled,
Do not let 'em ruin you life.
Be the victor in the battle,
And keep your best days free from strife.

Trust no man however pleasant,
Let the poor boob rave along;
Don't think only of the present,
Life is not just one gay song.

Lives of single folks remind us,
We can make our lives sublime;
And departing leave behind us
Pleas resisted every time.

Men are never, never perfect,
They are seldom halfway so;
And the girl who stops to reflect
Shall down the road of caution go.

Let us then watch what we're doing,
Keep our hearts against 'em set.
No matter how long they keep pursuing,
Let them not a victim get.

ALPHA DELTA RHO FOUNDERS DAY PROGRAM

Dr. Easter Makes Address

At eight p. m. on Saturday night in the College auditorium, the Joan Circle of the Alpha Delta Rho society had its Founders Day program. The speaker of the occasion was Dr. D. B. Easter, of Washington and Lee Uniersity, Department of Romance Languages and Assistant Dean.

Following is the program of the night:

1. Introduction, Dr. J. L. Jarman
2. Spirit of Joan of Arc, Mr. J. M. Grainger
3. Leadership in action, Dr. D. C. Wilson, Hampden-Sidney.
4. Violin Solo, Olive Smith Bowman
5. Address, ... Dr. D. B. Easter, Washington and Lee

Dr. Jarman in his introductory talk gave a brief history of the organization as well as of our college. He showed us that as any great instituion grows its parts grow along with it and with the better things here must come some one thing that will draw all the parts together. Dr. Jarman said that as the school had grown the need had been felt for an organization which would recognize the highest type of scholarship. This need was met in the establishment of Pi Kappa Omega. As the school enlarged, its leaders became more numerous and for some time students and faculty of the school hae felt that there should be some one organization where the leaders of various groups could come together and discuss and solve school problems, so the organization Alpha Delta Rho was formed. The Joan Circle was added because of the fact that the spirit of Joan is our leading spirt in this school. In closing Dr. Jarman said that he felt the organization would be of inmmeasurable good in the school and that not only would it be of aid to the organizations but to every individual student, since each student is eligible providing she comes up to the qualifications of leadership.

Mr. James M. Grainger, in his talk on the Spirit of Joan, brought out the fact that the first suggestion of this school adopting Joan of Arc as its patron saint was made by Miss Maria Bristow in nineteen fourteen. He sopke of the admirable characteristics of Joan, the leader and the splendid embodiment of these ideals in Alpha Delta Rho. In conclusion he expressed the hope that through this organization the spirit of Joan would be permeated even more than ever into the soul of our school.

In his talk on leadership in action Dr. Wilson said that he thought the Alpha Delta Rho would mean the same thing for girls colleges that the Omicron Delta Kappa has for boys. On showing what very splendid work that organization has done for the colleges in which it has a chapter, Dr. Wilson gave examples from Hampden-Sidney. The organization

VIRGINIA SPRING CONFERENCE MEETS IN FARMVILLE

During the week-end of April 9—11, the Virginia Spring Conference met in State Teachers College, Farmville. The purpose of such a conference is to furnish training, knowledge, and inspiration to new Y. W. C. A Cabinet members who will carry on Association work during the coming year.

We were fortunate in having with us a number of notable personages of national fame. Mr. George Collins, Miss Willa Young, Miss Katherine Alston, and Miss Katherine Newkirk. Their talks were heard with keen and pleasurable interest and many valuable, worthwhile ideas were gained from discussions among the members of the entire conference and in small discussion groups.

Two special features of the conference were a drive to Hampden-Sidney, and a Blue Ridge supper in the Tea Room Saturday evening.

The conference included delegates from S. T. C. Harrisonburg, S. T. C. Fredericksburg, Lynchburg College, William and Mary, and Randolph-Macon Womans College.

HISTORY OF ALPHA DELTA RHO

From time to time different girls in this school have felt a definite need for an organization on this campus which should seek to bring together the outstanding leaders from the various college activities for the purpose of carrying out constructive programs in the field of leadership. To this end the girls have been groping in the dark, as it were, until last spring when a group; after ascertaining that there was a distinct need for an organization of this nature, not only on this campus but on others become organized into what has come to be known as the Joan Circle of Alpha Delta Rho.

This group selected as its most capable adviser and active member, Miss Florence H. Stubbs, without whose help and advice the perfection of this organization would not have been possible.

The rather extensive investigation for the purpose of inquiring into the work of other organizations of this nature on other campuses, was carried on and completed before the end of last session.

The following questionnaire was sent to sixteen colleges and universities throughout the south and east:

I. What society on your campus recognizes leadership?

II. How does it function in connection with your society that recognizes scholarship?

III What scholastic standards are required in your leadership organiza-

"MICE AND MEN" TO BE PRESENTED BY DRAMATIC CLUB

Second Production a Delightful Sequel to "Prunella"

Do you remember the fantastic, delightful "Prunella" that for one night ook us all with a carefree Pierrot and a haunting, sweet Pierrette into a shadow, and laughter land? If you remember that, surely you know how to anticipate the second production of the Dramatic Club, "Mice and Men," to be given Friday, April 23rd. "Mice and Men" is a romantic comedy by Madeline Lucette Pyley—at least it is a comedy in that on the surface it is sprightly, airy, satirical. However, it isn't the laughter moments or contagious chuckles that the play occasions so often, which endeares it to an audience whenever presented. It is the magnetic personality of the unusual Mark Embury; it is the appealing face and pert lonliness of "Little Britain"; it is the depth of emotion that always creeps out of the lines of a dramatically forceful play into the personnel of an audience.

You'll like "Mice and Men" because of its play merit—and it will rather startle you with the amount of subtle understanding and character interpretation the Dramatic Club girls are putting into it. You'll not soon forget Louise Brewer's portrayal of Mark Embury, the scholar, who selects from the lower class a young orphan whom he plans to educate according to an ideal system and

MAJOR OFFICERS FOR YEAR 1926-27 ELECTED

Result of Recent Elections

At no other time during the year does one theme of interest draw so closely together the Student Body as the dates for nominations and elections for major offices. The results of the recent nominations showed that the very best material had been considered, and he elections gave us, one and all, the feeling that each organization would be held together next year by the strength and character. Our organizations hold a most important place in our life at school, and to be really worth while there must be high standards and ideals by which every organization is judged. We have no doubts as to the qualifications of every girl elected in filling perfectly her position—we are satisfied with our leaders and will be ever ready to lend a helping hand to each one of them, that our major organizations may cooperatively fulfill their mission.

HOW OTHER SCHOOLS FEEL TOWARD ORGANIZATIONS OF THE TYPE OF ALPHA DELTA RHO.

"They (the members of Omicron Delta Kappa) have been exceedingly influential in giving tone and character to the student activities and creating a finer spirit on the campus. I regard Omicron Delta Kappa as a highly useful organization. It stands for the right thing, and it is, I believe, held in greater esteem by the student body than any other college organization."

John H. Latue, Dean of College Faculty,
Johns Hopkins University--

"No organization in Center College means more to the best life of the institution than Omicron Delta Kappa. I have noticed that every man asked to become a member counts himself honorde and feels that he is obligated to make whatever contribution he can to the highest welfare of his Alma Mater."

James H. Howlett, Propessor of English,
Centre College

THE SPIRIT OF JOAN.

A poor peasant girl of France became the greatest woman in the world's history. It wasn't just an accident—it didn't just happne, for first thru her love of God and her fellowman she became a devoted Christian. As a Christian she learned to watch and to lisen, in other words, when she was just a child she tuned her thoughts with God so that when He struck a chord it vibrated in her soul. At first she refused to heed the call but at last she gave herself up to God and at His bidding saved her country. Later in life she was forsaken by France and burned at the stake.

But down thru the centuries the memory of her has burned itself into the heart of the world. The Maid of Orleans, the graceful, wirsome figure that she is, stands for gentleness, loyalty, character, strength, bravery and all that is fine and big. Do we appreciate our Joan of Arc who reigns supreme in our Reception Hall. Do we as a school stand for the things that Joan would have us stand for. Allowing the real Joan to influence us we will become bigger and better citizens of a bigger and bettert school.

EASTER HOLIDAY

Wasn't the Easter holiday almost too good to be true? All the girls that went home had a wonderful vacation and the girls who stayed here enjoyed the holiday equally as much. Just imagine few or no street rules to abide by, permission to go to the moives every night and to Shannon's afterward. And some girls, for the first time, visited the post office on Main Street! And the food! Why enough can't be said about it. The girls haven't stopped raving yet. Mrs. Jamison and Mrs. Peery surely must be mind readers for they gave the girls just exactly what they wanted.

It was the grandest feeling to know that when the bells rang they did not mean "Go to chapel" or "Go to class". This may all seem like a fairy story, but really it isn't.

Everybody enjoyed the holiday to its fullest extent and we give our sincerest thanks and appreciation to Dr. Jarman for giving us four days in which we could play, rest or spend in any way we chose.

FACULTY TAKE OFF HOWLING SUCCESS

If you missed it—you missed a good laugh and an evening of real fun. Even the Faculty couldn't resist the temptation to laugh at themselves. Not all of them were represented, owing to a lack of students who were capable of doing them justice, but those who saw it know that Dr. Jarman (Mary Alice Blanton) really got the cooperation he asked for in the teaching of "Little Boy Blue", for Mr. Bowman (Peggy Lou Stearnes) asked his class to find its "propodelic values", Mr. Grainger (Lucy Haile Overbey) looked for the "fundamental message", while Miss Davis (Virginia Graves) found it to be "a real gem." Miss Russell (Jackie Woodson) looked for the details, such as the number of buttons on his coat. Of course, Miss Craddock (Izzy Payne) had her class make direct compact ovale. Miss Wheeler (Lucy Haile Overbey) insisted that the corn must not stand in a straight line, as it spoiled the dramatic effect. Miss Millican (Betty Hopkins) made "Little Boy Blue" the subject of her manual training lesson and Mr. McCorkle (Eleanor Bennett) did his best to analyse the horn according to its chemical constituents. Other members of the faculty did their share towards giving their classes the full benefit of learning about "Little Boy Blue", according to the subject that they were teaching.

POTTS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF SENIOR CLASS

Junior Class Elects Officers for Coming Year

On Saturday, April 16, the Junior Class met to elect the officers for the Senior class of 1927. The elections were held earlier than usual this year as Virginia Vincent, the former president, has been chosen as the future president of the Student Body.

The following officers were elected:

President ..... Virginia Potts
Vice-Pres. .... Cornelia Dickinson
Secretary ..... Ola Thomas
Treasurer ..... Mary Ames
Reporter ..... Sara Spiers

With the whole-hearted cooperation of the class there is no reason why the senior class of 1927 should not be one of the best and finest in the history of his college.

AN APPRECIATION

The Joan Circle of Alpha Delta Rho wishes to take this opportunity to express its appreciation to Miss Hiner, Mr. McCorkle, Mr. Grainger, the members of Pi Kappa Omega and others, who have given invaluable aid, and without whose help it would have been impossible to complete the organization of the circle.

Alpha Delta Founders Day Prog'm

there, Dr. Wilson said had been instrumenal in solving the inter-fraternity problems and making the rivalry fair and friendly, it has helped do away with the problems of hazing by establishing a vigilance committee. Dr. Wilson said that association between faculty and student in solving problems was very necessary and organizations of this type bring his association and help solve problems in the safest, sanest manner. Leadership in action must be brought into an organization of the type toward which Alpha Delta Rho is striving.

Dr. Easter's address was as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen and especially ladies, my subject was not sent to me in the correspondence that I had with you. When I received the honor of being with you tonight I wrote to ask what I must speak about and he answer was 'twenty minutes'; so that's just what I am going to speak about.

My real subject is 'Association and What it Stands for.'

Omicron Delta Kappa, to which Dr. Wilson and I have the honor of belonging, was founded a Washington and Lee University in 1914. Chapters have been installed in various universities and colleges until there are now about fifteen chapters of Omicron Delta Kappa. We cannot get away from the matter of association; don't we each have our own particular friends and those we like to be with? There must be a union to accomplish anything. Most of the organizations that we have in the collegese have been for a very definite purpose, a purpose of their own. That is where I believe Omicron Delta Kappa and Alpha Delta Rho have just a little—if you will pardon me using slang—'edge' over the rest of them. Such organizations as these stand for something outside of selfishness; they bring together the leaders of the various groups; they aid in bringing about a friendly relationship between members of the different groups and thus by knowing each other the members of one group learn to like the members of another group and all work together for a common good. You cannot know a man and hate him. I am so used to being around boys that I will hae to ask you to pardon me everytime I say the word 'man'—just remember that everytime I say 'man' I am embracing a woman.

In associaions like Omicron Delta Kappa and Alpha Delta Rho we should be careful of two things: first, see that the leaders belong; second, see that no one is elected through politicing—if he or she can be useful for the common good, then he should belong to such an organization. Their motto should be 'Noblesse Oblige', Because I am what I am I must be what I can be."

FRESHMEN WIN VOLLEY BALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Just before the Easter holiday the green and white classes gained a double victory over the upholders of the red and white. As a result the two "add" classes had to play against each other for the ten points to be awarded to the volley ball champions. The result of this game was in favor of the Freshman class which gave them ten points toward the athletic cup.

The first game, which was played between the Juniors and Seniors was an easy victory for the Juniors. The next game, played by the Freshmen and Sophomores, proved to be a hard fight which resulted in a victory for the Freshmen. The final game also proved to be a hard fight, the score finally ending 17–16 in favor of the "rats". This victory gave the class of '29 ten points toward the cup.

Track

May the 6th will most probably be field day this year. This will be a telegraphic meet between the teachers colleges of Virginia and Farmville is to be the headquarters! To make this day a success every girl must "come out" and fight for two things. First, the school, second, her class. Watch the bulletin board for announcements of track practice.

Baseball

This year every class is going to have a baseball team. Inter-class games will be staged in this event and ten points can be won toward the cup by the class baseball champion. This event and track will probably decide the final winner of the cup this year. At present all classes are about evenly matched and all have a chance. Which will be the winner? Come out and play baseball and help decide.

TRAINING SCHOOL NEWS

As a stepping stone toward originality in the field of literature the Kindergarten wishes to announce its first attempt. Initiated by the children the following contribution was selected from the material given by the four and five year olds.

NATIONAL Y. W. C. A. CONVENTION IN MILWAUKEE

President-Elect to Attend

Rosalind Harrell, President-elect of the Y. W. C. A. 1926-27, will attend the National Convention which is held in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on April 21-27.

This convention meets every two years and is composed of delegates from leading Associations over the whole United States. The convention or assembly is the legislative body of the Y. W. C. A. while the National Board is the executive body.

Many persons of national and international fame will be present. One interesting feature of the convention will be a Pageant which will be composed of more than three thousand persons.

"The doctor promised to have me walking in three weeks. And sure enough he did. Yesterday I had to sell my car."

KEMPY PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE

"Kempy", a comedy full of unusual humor and life was presented under the auspices of the Farmville Alumnae of S. T. C., and directed by Dr. Elizabeth Marshall. A very mixed cast of school girls, town people and Dr. Walmsley added much unusualness to the play since we are accustomed to seeing plays of a different cast.

The play was full of laughter and fun all the way through and our dignified history professor added much humor to the play sending the audience into gales of laughter at every speech.

The hero, Willard Hart, acted his part well even if he was so undecided in his love affairs. Every part was a leading part and all made the play a very attractive and enjoyable one.

The proceeds of over two hundred dollars went to the Sundent Building Fund. The alumnae and Dr. Marshall as well as the cast are to be congratulated on their production of the very popular Kempy.

BENEFIT CARD PARTY

Although only a few of us have had the opportunity and pleasure of visiting Monticello, many of us have read about this beautiful home or have seen pictures of it. No one can do this without being impressed by the originality and magnificence of its beauty. Then—when we go a step further and study the life of Jefferson, we feel a real love for Monticello, his home.

For the past several years, the ownership of Monticello has been in the hands of a private family and although many people have wanted it to be a national or a state shrine, no definite movement towards purchasing it has been inaugurated until very recently. The State of Virginia did not feel that her financial state of affairs justified the purchase of Monticello. Consequently, this task was left to organizations such as the U. D. C., etc.

It view of this fact, a card party was given on Tuesday, April 13 in the Recreation Hall of S. T. C. Those who attended helped towards the purchase of Monticello and thus the purchase of a national shrine.

GREETINGS TO ALPHA DELTA RHO

Pi Kappa Omega takes great pleasure in extending its congratulations and best wishes to the Joan Circle of Alpha Kappa Rho. We feel that such an organization will be of inestimable and unlimited value to our college, and with such a splendid group of members, which shall include the leaders here, there can be no doubt of its continued success. Be assured of our hearty cooperation,—how and always!

SOCIAL

ALPHA DELTA RHO ENTERTAINS

On Saturday, April 10 from 4:30—6 o'clock, in the Student Building Lounge, the members of the Joan Circle of the Alpha Delta Rho Society were the gracious hostesses at a tea. Those entertained were: Dr. Easter, of Washington and Lee University; Dr. and Mrs. Wilson, of Hampden-Sidney; the members of Omicron Delta Kappa, of Hampden-Sidney College, and the members of Pi Kappa Omega.

SENIOR DINNER

In honor of their class day, the senior class, with their honorary member, Miss Mary Clary Hiner, held a "Dutch dinner" in the Tea Room last Friday night. The room was tastefully decorated with daffodils. Between courses school and class songs were sung, with Eleanor Bennett giving a few of her popular solo selections.

The dinner was so successful that until they part in June, the Seniors hae vowed at every opportunity to have a social gathering.

Zeta Tau wishes to announce the following new members:

Frances Walmsley, Farmville, Va.

Emmie Haile, Ocala, Florida
Helen Hall, Crozet, Va.

'Mice and Men' to be Presented

Eventually marry—but who finds his cold, calculating plans "gang astray" when he loves that ward with a self-sacrificing love not even understandable to himself. And Louise McCormick will bring you the dashing, romantic good—bad "Captain Lowell"—the kind of hero every maiden dreams o'er! Of course, a play without "Chubby Gray would be as a repast without seasoning, so assuredly her Rodger Goodlake furnishes seasoning wit galore! Anna Gris McIntosh, a new member of the Dramatic Club, is the bit of loneliness "Little Britain" who can't help upsetting "he plans o' mice and men." These are just a few of the representative characters—the cast is large and carefully trained.

In other words, if you want to see a bit of real dramatic art, if you want to spend an enjoyable evening, don't miss "Mice and Men." It's a play, once seen, Farmville isn't going to soon forget!

Waiter: "Yes, sir. You see, they are twins and just won't be separated."

The Silver Lining

Police Sergeant: "Is the man dangerously wounded?"

Patrolman: "Two of the wounds are fatal, but the other one isn't so bad."

Captain of Liner: "Hail!" (Long pause)

Gymn Instructor (unable to stand the suspense any longer): "Exhale!"

Dumb: "Don' you just love an open fire?"

Bell: "Sure: wait till the fire bell rings and we'll go to one."

"I just saw that egg who played fullback at Boodler staring at you, darling."

"Please, don't hurt him, father!"

"I wasn't going to darling."

TEN WEEKS

On campus now for weeks
For ten long weeks to stay.
For the impulse of one minute
Of a far past yesterday.

For a poor Chesterfield
That forgot to satisfy,
I pay with a heavy heart
And many a sorry sigh.

Lonely and blue on campus,
I think of late one night
When how easy it would have been
To tell that which was right.

Why didn't I tell it then
And save my poor old heart?
Because it seemed unfair
And how the thought did smart.

I got down on my knees
My prayers, I thought to say
But I saw the path I traveled
That one from God does stray.

Forgiveness I wanted to ask
To tell Him all I tried
But words just would not come
For my heart wanted to hide.

I saw my only way
I took it, I went to Kate
She willingly made it easy
That story I had to relate.

Penace, it is only ten weeks
And that isn't half bad,
They should have given me more
For I had played the cad.

So as o'er campus, I stray
I sorrowfully think of a night
A night I played unfair
Forgot that wrong wasn't right.

IV. What are the leadership qualifications of this society?

Must the members simply possess leadership ability or must this ability ripen to real fruits of service on the campus?

V. What other qualifications besides leadership and scholarship do you require for membership?

VI. What are your society dues? Do they include both an initiation fee and yearly membership dues?

VII Have you succeeded in making your society a real asset to your school?

VIII. Have you found it wise to hide a student during his or her freshman year or to use that year as a sort of probation period?

IX .Can you suggest a significant name for a similar organization?

X. Have you any information in the way of literature which you could share with us?

Below are the colleges to which this questionnaire was sent:

Conerse College, Spartanburg, S. C.
Furman University, Greenville, S. C.
Hollins College, Hollins, Virginia.
Hampden-Sidney College, Virginia.
Louisiana College, Alexandria, La.

Univ. of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va.
Univ. North Carolina, Chapel Hill.
Univ. of South Carolina, Columbia.
Washington & Lee Univ., Lexington.
College of William & Mary, Williamsburg, Va.

Of the replies from the above schools the following letter was one of the most favorable and helpful:

"I prefer to answer your questions in general as follows:

Five or six years ago Washington and Lee originated a perfectly definite local fraternity called the Omicron Delta Kappa in which membership was won by leadership, such leadership falling into four classes.

1. In moral character and moral leadership.
2. Mental ability and scholastic leadership.
3. Leadership in college publications, etc.
4. Leadership in student activities such as athletics, musical, and dramatic organizations, etc.

This combination of varied campus leaders served so useful and valuable that it is now spleading over the whole United States as what might be called a national fraternity of campus leadership.

No student would normally be elected during his freshman year, and practically none or very few during the sophomore year, but there are no distinct laws forbidding the election of genuine leaders at any time ordinarily the junior year is the preferred one.

In some instituions this splendid organization of leaders seems to devote itself to boosting the institution, looking for new students, and endeavoring to increase its enrollment. In others its chief business has been laid out as the moral elevation, behavior, traditions, etc., of the student body. Others have taken as their big job the enforcement of an honor system, the protection and care of the campus and college property, etc. A wise use of such a splendid organization would probably lead to a variation in its efforts and aims from year to year.

Hoping the above will be of some service to you, I am. Cordially yours,
HENRY LOUIS SMITH, President

At The Eaco Theatre This Week

WED. Madge Bellamy, Kenneth Harlan, Ann Pennington and Hobart Bosworth in Peter B. Kyne's story THE GOLDEN STRAIN. This is the romance of a fighting coward. The screen drama of a thousand thrills. A picture that will make the red corpuscles gallop through your veins. Also Aesop Fable.

THURS. Mae Murray in CIRCE THE ENCHANTRESS a special production written especially for Mae Murray by the great author of "The Four Horsemen." Seductive, fascinating, she fired men dangerous love, while she herself, felt no emotion, until 300 tingling thrills! 30 gorgeous gowns! 3 new dances. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

FRI—Betty Blythe, Forrest Stanley, Lou Tellegen, Patsy Ruth Miller and many others in THE BREATH OF SCANDAL. A special production. What happens to a girl when her ideals go crashing down? What comes to take their place? You'll find the answer in this startling picture of smart, American society. A photoplay for mothers, fathers, sons and daughters only. The best society drama of the year. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

SAT. Clara Bow and a fine supporting cast in THE LAWFUL CHEATER In his picture a whirlwind climax tops a rapid fire plot that gives full scope to the remarkable talents of the piquant and dynamic Clara Bow. For the purpose of reforming a gang of desperadoes Clara dons the disguise of a boy and cheats the cheaters at their own game. Also 9th episode of "Battling Brewster". Two shows—7:15 and 9:00 o'clock.

AT THE EACO THEATRE MON. & TUES. MATINEE EACH DAY AT FOUR O'CLOCK.

S. T. C. FACULTY HOLDS INTERESTING DEBATE

"Single Blessedness vs. Wedded Bliss." Well—if any subject could more fittingly decide the fate of the numberless troubled minds in this institution we'd like to have it.

We went, we heard and we were conquered, not by the Affirmative, not by the Negative, but by both sides of this momentous question and so, we are still troubled.

Not until Friday night was I aware of the fickleness of such a great majority of our Faculty members but the switching from Affirmative to Negative and vice versa by the debaters surely proclaimed the truthfulness of the fact.

Not eevn the Rotunda could give space for each notable point brought out by the declaimers but honorable mention, at least, must be given.

Mr. Coyner praising single blessedness states, "single blessedness promotes youthfulness" (imagine this from youthful the married Mr. Coyner), and slandering the marriage state he says that a fitting inscription for the archway of matrinony would be "all hope abandon ye who enter here."

And then Miss Davis sympathetically addressing her "diluted but honorable opponent" said, Heaven forbid that he should lose his job for promoting such a doctrine. And then "without wedded bliss the very foundation of the American home would collapse, S. T. C. would tremble, and even the Student Building would fall." "For the clinging vine to be unsupported would be a terrible state of existence and for the type who likes the phrase "let so and so do it" what would happen? Could one let George do it were there no George?" "Oh! the heavenly bliss of married life—huge branches of red roses fo every anniversary. Contrast such a picture with a sad spinster gazing at a faded rose-bud unable to remember whether the incident is connected with Tom, Dick or Harry." "Perhaps matrimony may mean washing dishes but could this equal grading paper until 12 o'clock every night?" And Miss Davis quoted a love scene from Ethel Dell in concluding her oratorical message.

Mr. McCorkle argued against matrimony from a chemical standpoint. "Marriage", he says, "is like a sugar coated pill—sweet on the outside only." Referring to Kipling's "rag, a bone and a hank of hair", he said a man who even thought of marriage should as quoted from the Raggedy Man "take your dough and run chile run."

Single blessedness was praised by Dr. Walmsley who gave an enlightened and spirited talk on the dangers threatening the younger generation. History formed the basis of his theories and he cited the terrible pitfalls brought about by matrimony by instances of Caesar whose troubles began after marriage, and Washing-

TRENT AND VINCENT ATTEND CONFERENCE

On Wednesday, April 14, Kate Trent, President of Student Government at S. T. C. and incoming President, Virginia Vincent, left to attend the Eleventh Annual Conference of the Southern Inter-collegiate Association of the Student Government. The conference was held at Wesleyan College, Macon, Georgia, from Wednesday morning until Saturday noon. This meeting is an annaul event for both our President and President-elect. We feel sure that they will not only get a great deal from it, but that they will also contribute much to it.

HUNT TO LEAD NEXT YEAR'S SOPHOMORE CLASS

At a meeting of the Freshman class Thursday night, the following officers were elected for 1926-27:

President	Mebane Hunt
Vice-Pres.	Elizabeth Hargrave
Secretary	Gwendolyn Hardy
Treasurer	Maude Baptist
Reporter	Carolea Harris

MR. HENRY WARREN POOR

Travelogue and Moving Pictures

On Tuesday morning, April 6, Mr. Henry Warren Poor, sent to S. T. C. by Mr. Dabney Lancaster, Secretary of the State Board of Education, gave an illuminating account of his travels through the National Parks and a few other colorful parts of the western United States. A series of colored moving pictures illustrated his talk. The wonder and beauty of our own glaciers, geysers, mountains and mountain lakes were shown. He also included some scenes of Golden Gate, Catalina Islands, Pasadena, and the old Spanish missions. Mainly Mr. Poor stressed that fact that we do not have to travel outside of our own country to see great natural beauty. He dwelt upon the injustice to which we have subed the Indians, the race now at "the end of the trail."

ALPHA CHAPTER OF TRI SIGMA CELEBRATES FOUNDERS' DAY

For many years it has been the custom of the Tri-Sigma Sorority for each chapter to observe Founders' Day by carrying out a Founders' Day program at a banquet. Twenty-eight years ago on April 20 Sigma Sigma Sigma celebrated her first birthday.

On Saturday, April 17, members of the sorority and their mothers participated in a "Wishing Banquet." Many good wishes were made on the wish bone, the birthday cake, the four leaf clover, the rabbit's foot, etc. The decorations, favors, programs, etc., were in the sorority colors—purple and white.

The guests were: Mrs. Potts, Mrs. Crute and Mrs. Beckham, of Farmville; Mrs. Willcox and Mrs. Hargrave of Petersburg; Misses Pauline Camper, Marion Sales, Mary Rives Richardson and Mrs. George Kilmer.

SPRING AND THE CAMPUS

With the springtime comes our real interest in our Campus, perhaps because its beauty attracts the eye, perhaps because the warm weather draws us closer to it. At any rate, Spring has wrought its changes and our Campus is becoming more and more beautiful each day. Flowers are blooming, the grass has become a beautiful green, and gay leaves are appearing once more upon the trees. Even the back campus has miraculously changed from ugly brown to velvety green. It seems that Springtime makes us aware of all beauty around us. It has made us appreciate more the beautiful colnnade, probably more noticeable in its whiteness against the green of Spring. It is a passageway of beautiful simplicity during the day, and bright illumination at night. Spring is the season of love and appreciation of all things beautiful. We love our Campus and we do want to keep it beautiful, don't we? Remember, we all prefer quality to quantity, and so our Campus may not be very large but it can be very beautiful.

RUFFNER LITERARY SOCIETY

The Ruffner Literary Society held its regular meeting Friday night, April 9. The new officers were elected as follows:

Lillian Savedge	President
Margaret Ware	Vice-Pres.
Helen Hale	Secretary
Ruth Snellings	Treasurer
Lois Bell	Critic
Lucy Keith	Censor
Frances Haden	Reporter

Virginia Harrell had charge of the program for the meeting. Ruth Snellings read an article on Indian Music and Cora Urquart made an interesting talk on Negro Music.

Alpha Chapter Sigma Sigma Sigma and the members of Delta Sigma Chi extend sincere congratulations to Gamma Theta for being the holder of the scholarship cup for the winter quarter.

FIELD DAY WILL BE OBSERVED MAY SIXTH

On Thursday, May 6, S. T. C. will hold its regular annual field day at which time our girls will show the opportunity to do two big things if they participate in any of the twelve events offered. First, they will help their class win points which result in ten additional points toward the class cup. Second, they will help place Farmville State Teachers College in better standing in the eyes of other schools. Either thing is enough to induce every girl to do her part in order to make this year's field day more successful than the preceeding ones.

This year's track meet is a State Telegraphic Track Meet. All teachers colleges of Virginia will send the results of their meet here after which the results of all meets will be tabulated and announced. To make Farmville the winner of this meet is our goal.

The tweleve events which will be scheduled are as follows:

Hurdles, discuss throw, 50 yard dash, baseball throw, relay race, standing broad jump, shot put, hop-step-jump, javelin throw, basketball throw, running high jump, and, running broad jump.

AN EXPLANATION

There seems to be quite a misunderstanding among the Freshman class as to what nominations and a nominating committee means. In electing new officers the student body is asked to nominate girls for the various offices. Every nomination is carefully considered by the nominating committee which has the power to eliminate and elect the candidates to be voted upon. The committee is made up of girls who know the work of the office to be filled and are capable of judging the nominated girls. Nominations are not votes and the two should not be mixed. A few nominations can place a girl as a candidate as well as a great number.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

THE ALMIGHTY "A"

The frenzied chase by the modern American Midas of the almighty dollar is no more determined than that of some of the present-day students is pursuit of he almighty "A".

A mere "B" or "C" has not the same satisfying effect that a dime or nickel from father had, when you and I were young. Now the aspiring youngster is not satisfied with less than fifty cents and usually demands the greenback.

Can we blame him when we know that the other children stand in awe of him when he is the proud possessor of a dollar? But, they are not the only ones, for his parents and older relatives all encourage him to revere the god, money; and this reverence begins with a delight in obtaining possession of the almighty dollar.

So it is with those students today with reference to their "do-or-die" attempts to get a grade—and that grade must be an "A".

Not only their classmates, but also their teachers bow down and worship the "A" pupil.

Would that some change might be brought about by which that type of pupil might want to work in her classes for the satisfaction of the "fouht-good-fight-and-won-feeling" which is gained through taking a sheer delight in her studies with no thought of a grade entering in. This is the true recompense, rather than that artificial reward, the almighty "A".

TOO MUCH PUNCH

"Why Ann! The very idea of such a thing—you know I've often wondered why you are always trying to feature the impossible!" That was the remark I received from Dick, as we rattled along home from the dance, when I had attempted to tell him that I couldn't get into the house and into my own little bed without waking a member of the household.

"Two a. m. and all is well!" he called out softly as he left me at my door. And then I closed the door—oh, ever so softly—and listened to the rattle, bump and knock of Dick's old Ford as he drove away into the night.

On the first step I paused to remove my slippers—for all precautions were to be taken. This fete having been accomplished—I proceeded upward in the dark, for I had turned out all the lights on the lower floor and the house was in total darkness. I clung to the rail with one hand and with the other I clung to my shoes. Goodness! had it ever been so dark and still before? Wait! what was that—far far out in the stillness of the night I heard a "who-o-o-o, who-o-o-o." I stopped—I hadn't realized I was cold before, but now funny little shivers began to run up, and then down, and then up again. It was strange it was so still and dark. But how absurd for me to be afraid. Why all the family was there! Yes, there but miles away. Two steps up I paused again and closed my eyes to shut out the dreadful images that awaited my arrival at the top of the stairs. It was then that I heard the long, lonely howl of some poor pup—and then I recalled all the old superstitions of such night howls.

It was with great effort that I opened my eyes to proceed on my upward journey. And then—I saw above me—two huge fiery eyes looking straight at me! I screamed and turned to flee down the stairs, but missed my step and rolled down instead. Bump! Bump! Down I went hitting every step, and after me came rolling my shoes and my shrieks. By the time I had reached the bottom, the family had assembled at the top of the stairs, and some one had been thoughtful enough to switch on a lower hall light. Then I looked around and there sat "Gump," the family cat, looking curiously and guiltlessly at me—his victim. And then there was Mother coming down the steps to me. "Why Ann—Ann dear, are you hurt? What in the world were you trying to do?" And rubbing my bruises and bumps, I answered, "Oh! —nothing—trying to feature the impossible!"

ALUMNAE NEWS

On February 21, Mary Elizbeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Bowden, was married to Mr. Carrington Grigsby Galt. They are now at home at 721 Yarmouth Street, Norfolk.

Elizabeth Anne Jester (24) was marired to Mr. Clement S. Piping on Thursday, March 18. They are making their home at Colonial Park, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Daniel C. Ralston announces the marriage of his daughter, Ruth Dorothea to Mr. John A. Stuart on March 19. The wedding occurred in Washington whre the couple will make their home. They live at 1009 Eleventh Street, N. W.

Elizabeth Blanche Barrow (25) was married to Mr. F. Clifton McDowell on Wednesday, April 7 in Petersburg. At home after April 12 at Alberta, Virginia.

Delma Conway (23) writes that she is a stays-at-home-in-bed. She amuses herself by having an occasional poem or article published and working at prize contests. She has won several this year and last among them being the 85 prize offered by "The Southern Planter" of Richmond for a Health Slogan. She says "The Alumnae Issue of the Rotunda was simply perfect and Miss Jennie, bless her! a sight for old grad eyes. Thank you for the news and cheer, the spirit of Alma Mater that it bore."

Delma is at her home in Brydton, Va., and would enjoy a message or letter from any of her classmates or friends.

"The Misisonary Voice" contains the following notice: The seniors of Scaritt College were entertained by the junior class with a colonial reception Saturday evening in the Kirby home, one of the oldest colonial houses in Nashville and now being used by Scaritt College. The feature of the evening was a play in which characters of colonial days figured. The play was written by Miss Ruth Bartholonew, a member of the junior class.

The same number of "The Missionary Voice" gives an account of the Spring meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council held in Raleigh, N. C. It says, "the crowning night of the session was when nineteen young women, cultured, beautiful, consecrated, stepped out and pledged their lives to the service of God in a service of humanity and were commissioned to fields at home and across seas." One of the nineteen was Birdie Reynolds, a home missionary.

Third Woman to Serve in House

Woman is not out of place in Virginia politics according to Mrs. Sallie Cook Booker, the delegate from Henry County, third woman to be elected to the General Assembly of Virginia. She says she has found the members of the Assembly helpful and willing to cooperate with her.

Mrs. Booker was educated at Piedmont Institute and the normal schools of the University of Virginia, Farmville, Stuart and Martinsville. She is a member of the Business and Professional Womans Club and of the Parent-Teacher's Association. "Woman's highest achievement," she says, "is in the making of a home."

WINDOWS

Along the street at dusk we feel
The warmth of windows aglow
With scintillating light all radiant
Or rose-hued lights turned low.

These windows reflect the life of the Home
And we pause a bit to dream;
For the eyes are the mirrors of the soul,
We must be as we wish to seem.

A DAY CAME

A day came when she failed to smile,
Her eyes were wondering and sad;
Something was gone from her childish heart,
A thought, perhaps, once glad.

Sunshine gone, beauty spent . . .
I know—
Once I felt disillusionmnt.

ATONEMENT

I woke in the night,
I was afraid!
For something whispered
"A price must be paid!"

"For what?" I asked,
My voice a-ring;
Something whispered,
"For everything!"

I prayed that night
In the dark, alone,
For peace to come—
For a way to atone!

A breeze
Blew over the sod,
And I fell asleep—
'Twas the breath of God.

ton who fell into the widow's snare all on account of a swollen river. Dr. Walmsley blamed the crime wave here on matrimony, and he decisively stated that marriage was unconstitutional because the constitution forbids severe cruelty and punishment of the men of the human race.

Points for and against wedded bliss were brought out quite forcibly by the orators and there could be no decision. Each side held its own against the other and the audience is left wondering yet as to the advisability of Single Blessedness or Wedded Bliss.

SPRING HAS COME!

Shelley, P. B., was certainly right there when he came out with the statement, "Oh, wind, if winter comes can spring be far behind?" Well, Winter has come and gone leaving the stage to the Wind—and Spring.

Spring has come!

You cannot fool a hoosaity is a statement about as enlightening as that old axiomatic quip and its running mate, the one about In the Spring a young man's fancy. But what about the young girls' fancy? Fancy! Fancy what? Old, worn-out winter clothes, the latest thing in shoes, new ways to shingle hair, worries about the "best" colors this year, and whether or not the new spring bonnet is becoming; there are perhaps some doubtful ruminations in the back of her mind about Tom, Richard or Henry.

Spring has come!

Who made those remarks about "long, lazy afternoons" and "soft balmy evenings"? We're laughing at him! What about the dull, damp, drizzly afternoons, the rough March winds, and the cold, disagreeable evenings?

And so many of the modern realists feel about it. But who wants to be a continual thrower of the proverbial cold water and see only the Main Street manner of living all his life? Perhaps this old world we're living in is a pretty bad place after all, but who gets any thrill out of emphasizing the fact? Good old R. L. S. had about as hard a time as any and saw perhaps more rough spots; he didn't continually sob about it. And how we love him for it!

Who wants to be a cynic and a pessimist anyway? A little realism goes a long way in these days we are living in. Spring HAS come! And the young girls' fancy! Why not? With all nature fairly bursting with the sheer joy of coming to life again and all Life thrilling to the call of Spring. Why should we scratch the paint from our beautiful new picture and expose with sardonic pride and pleasure the rude canvas beneath? Why not dream a little, loaf a little, work a little, play a little and enjoy the bright side of life?

V. W. B.

ON BEING SMALL

My height being exactly 4 feet 11 3-4 inches, it seems to me that I am at least "fitted" to discourse at great length On Being Small. However, the discourse may be, the length will not be very great. In fact I'm going to leave "length" out altogether.

But think of being less than five feet tall. I think all my fellow cohorts will agree that most of the time, "we" are at a terrible disadvantage. Continually "we" are knocked about here and there because someone much larger didn't happen to be looking at the ground when she was walking or running along. It isn't such a good feeling, either, to have people looking around everywhere for "us", and "we" are right there. It makes "us" feel rather "little."

And just try to go to a dance. Did you ever see a thing? The only thing I've ever seen was the lapel to a boy's coat—and I never did think they were particularly beautiful.

Buying clothes is another terrible ordeal for "us". "Oh—what a lovely dress—I think I'll try that one on." And after it is on, do you ever want to see a worse looking fright? The sleeves hung loosely without any hands and the hem always drags the floor with the waist line just touch-

GAMMA THETA FOUNDERS' DAY BANQUET

The Gamma Theta Sorority held its fifteenth Founders' Day banquet in the banquet room, on the evening of Saturday, March 27. The room was decorated in blue and white. Lileis of the Valley were hung from the lights which were covered with blue paper. Streamers from all parts of the room were drawn to the center. The center was filled with ferns in the middle of which was a birthday cake with fifteen candles.

Toasts were gien to Gamma Theta Colors, Past, Future, Alumnae, Faculty Advisor, Head, Patrons and Founders.

The alumnae present were: Irene Elizabeth Priggs, Louise Parsons, Molly Friend, Virginia Cowherd, K. T. Thompson, Mary Eggleston, and Ethel Hughes.

The following girls attended the Easter Dances at V. P. I.:

Dot Myers
Aylwin Hughson
Alice Thomas
Polly Smith
Margaret Mackasey
Ruth Barron
Kitty Reid
Helen Shields
Elva Hedly

Martha Chapin and Helen Hodges attended the Easter Dances at the University of Virginia.

Among those attending the Easter Dances at V. M. I., were:

Marion Grimes
Phyllis Wood
Panny Willis
Mary Alice Blanton
Bessie Meade Riddle
Polly Riddle
Anna Jones
Martha Chapln

THE DAY'S PHILOSOPHY

The pleasantest way to spend the hour between 6 and 7 A. M. is to take another nap.

"Marrying well" means marrying a degree of luxury one hasn't the wit to earn.

If all of the feeble-minded were locked up, where would some of these magazines get their circulation?

Hint to France: A mandate is a responsibility not a target.

It isn't necessary to kill the weaklings. Just lay on a few more taxes and let nature take its course.

No intelligence test yet devised beats the ballot.

About the best test of personality is the effort to get laundry from a Chinaman without the ticket.

It is better to hunt rabbits. Then your fool companions seldom place shot above your knees.

When genius lived on scant fare in the old days, the idea wasn't to reduce.

Science has determined the freezing point of almost everything except the feminine knee.

COLLEGIATE

Two dazzling eyes with baby stare,
Two ruby lips and shingled hair.
Two dancing feet, a shoulder sway,
A rippling laugh, a vamping way,
A crowd of boys, a social whirl.
And there you have
The College Girl.

The above is the N. C. State's Technician conception of that well-known menace to college men' habits of study, the college co-ed. Below is the Keyhole's conception of the typical collegiate:

Two sleepy eyes with mannish stare,
A moustached lip and larded hair.
Two Charlestoning dogs and a cunning way,
A horsey laugh with bills to pay.
Strings of broken hearts but profound joy.
And there you have
The College Boy.

On Being Small

ing the knees.

There are always two sides to a question though—and there are a few adantages in being small. It's the best feeling in the world to be able to "hide" behind the girl on the next row when the teacher asks a question "we" can't answer. It's a better feeling than that when "we" have to buy only three yards (instead of four) of material for a dress when the material is $4.00 a yard.

We are told that "looking up" is a good habit to form. If practice aids any in forming a habit—and it certainly does—"we" practice always if "we" want to see anything.

Would you like to be small?

At The Eaco Theatre This Week

WED.—Glenn Ellison assisted by Alta Hill will make their personal appearance this night. Glenn Ellison, famous for his voice the country over will appear in a specially selected program. This is a treat for the real music lovers of Farmville, who are so fortunate as to receive tickets of admission. Performance starts at 8:15.

THURS.—James M. Barrie's A KISS FOR CINDERELLA a special Paramount production featuring Betty Bronson, Tom Moore, and Esther Ralston. An altogether charming Cinderella story that only Barrie could have written. The kind of a gorgeous spectacle everyone enjoys. It is a vivid, appealing, modern day romance. Also good comedy. Mat. at four.

FRI.—Madge Bellamy, Charles Jones, Zasu Pitts and Jane Novak in LAZYBONES, Owen Davis' stage success of a lovable idler's triumph. This is the tale of an idler who was oo lazy to meet cupid halfway. You will enjoy this special production. Also good comedy. Matinee at four o'clock.

SAT.—Clara Bow, Lou Tellegen and a fine supporting cast in PARISIAN LOVE a colorful drama of a love that is fiery and tempestuous—jealous and revengeful—the strongest in the world. Here is a picture to surprise and delight you. Paris—its glittering boulevards, its sordid by-ways—lives before your eyes, a thrilling reality. 10th episode of "Battling Brewster" Two shows at 7:15 and 9 o'clock.

"It Pleases Us To Please"

A Firm like an individual is always happy when its work pleases its customers, and this is the case with the pleasant dealings we have enjoyed with the Rotunda Staff this year. We feel, from some expressions made to us, that we have really accomplished something in our efforts to make the ROTUNDA better than ever before.

In some cases we have made mistakes, it is only human to make mistakes, but we have enjoyed the job of printing the Rotunda and "IT PLEASES US TO PLEASE."

At all times we solicit constructive criticism and appreciate our customers advice and wishes when we make up the job.

EIGHT ANNUAL OPEN MEETING OF PI KAPPA OMEGA

The eighth ennual open meeting of Pi Kappa Omega was held in the auditorium on Saturday evening, April 24, at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Olive Smith Bowman, President of the society, presided and after extending a hearty welcome to all present she read a list of the various projects on which the members of the society have been working throghout this year.

Those who sat on the platform with Mrs. Bowman were Miss Mary Dinwiddie, National President of Pi Kappa Omega; Dr. J. L. Jarman; Dr. Paul N. Garber, the speaker of the evening; and Mr. James M. Grainger, who introduced the speaker.

Dr. Garber gave a most excellent lecture on the foreign policy of the United States during the past twenty-five years.

As a background for this subject, Dr. Garber cited the various foreign policies of the U. S. from 1776 up until 1900. Among these he discussed, isolation, open door, arbitration, and the Monroe Doctrine.

In conclusion he showed how, during the past twenty-five years, America has trampled down all of her policies, which she has formerly maintained.

Immediately following the open meeting there was a banquet in the tea room attended by the members of Pi Kappa Omega, visiting alumnae, visitors from Beta chapter, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Jarman, Miss Mary White Cox, Dr. Paul N. Garber, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Grainger, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. McCorkle, Miss Mary Clay Hiner, Miss Winnie Hiner, Miss Jennie M. Tabb, Miss Mary E. Peck, Miss Pauline Camper, and Miss Myrtle Grenels and Mr. W. D. Bowman.

Miss Evelyn Beckham was toastmistress and the following toasts were given:

Dawning ..... To Our Founders
Margaret Lewis Stearnes

Morning Hours, To Active Chapters
Audrey Chewning

Noon ..... To the National Officers
Anne Robertson

Afternon ..... To the Alumnae

THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT CONFERENCE

We had all heard of Wesleyan College, Macon, Georgia, but it never seemed so close to us as it does now since our outgoing and incoming Student Government presidents attended the Student Government Conference held there. And now that we have heard about their trip we envy them because we could not go. Stopping off at Atlanta, Kate and Virginia had the wonderful opportunity of viewing Stone Mountain, that pure granite mountain to be carved as a memorial. Then on to Macon and Wesleyan, that beautiful old Methodist college situated on a high hill overlooking the town of Macon. There were about one hundred girls present at the Conference representing the leading colleges and our girls were among the proudest because Virginia sent delegates from eight of the conference. First of all there was a reception at the home of Dr. Guillian, the president of Weslayan. Then there was a talk by the head of the History department regarding the essential characteristics of a Student Government leader and by Dr. Green, a prominent lawyer of Macon, discussing the judicial side of Student Government. There were personal interviews; the meeting of different schools to solve common problems. Farmville found that installation services which means so much to us means little in other colleges. Our representatives told them about our beautifully impressive service and imbued them with a desire to install their officers in such a manner. There was a Conservatory Recital in the auditorium of the college, a swimming party, a supper on the campus when school songs were sung, and a garden party on the site of greater Wesleyan where the ground will be broken in June for a greater Wesleyan college. Our representatives enjoyed their trip—they met girls from other colleges—heard of their joys and sorrows, but they love old S. T. C. best of all.

INTER-CLASS BASEBALL GAMES TO BE PLAYED

Next week inter-class baseball games will be played. This sport, like basketball, volleyball and the others, offers the victorious class ten points toward the class cup. Which class will win this contest?. This decides largely just what colors will hang on the cup. Will they be red and white or green and white? Back the team, come out and decide!

DEBATE CLUB

The Debating Club announces the following new members:

Edith Asher
Eleanor Bennett
Jean Mitchell

Attend Prayers—you will enjoy it.

INTERESTING DEBATES ARE SCHEDULED

April 27th, April 30th and May 14th

Next week come two big debates—the double debate with Bridgewater on Tuesday, the 27th, and the triangular with Harrisonburg and Radford on the 30th.

In the first one, Catherine Bentley and Adrienne Richards will uphold the affirmative while Evelyn Beckham and Jean Mitchell will uphold negative of this question: Resolved "That the System of Direct Primary Nominations for State and Local Offices is Preferable to Nominations by Convention."

In the triangular, Olive Smith Bowman and Elizabeth Hutt argue for the affirmative, with Mildred Folston and Lois Westbrook standing up for the negative of: Resolved "That Virginia should concentrate her efforts upon the developments of her rural possibilities rather than a metropolitan area around Hampton Roads."

On Tuesday a team representing the negative will arrive in Farmville from Bridgewater, and a team representing the Farmville negative will arrive at Bridgewater; the affirmative being the receiving team in both cases.

On Friday one negative team will arrive in Farmville from Harrisonburg, one in Harrisonburg from Radford, and one in Radford from Farmville. And again the affirmative will stay at home. At both times the results will be telegraphed from one school to the other as soon as determined so the winners may be announced at the end of the program.

Then to cap the climax comes the debate of the year on May 14th when Hampden-Sidney and S. T. C. meet in our auditorium to find out whether "The increased freedom of the modern youth is the hope of society" or not. That night Hampden-Sidney will stand up for the affirmative, represented by Mr. C. W. Kernan and Mr. R. B. Randolph and our S. T. C. will fight for the negative with all the power and vocal ability of Eleanor Bennett and Gladys Huband. Hampden-Sidney's alternate is to be Mr. J. B. Southall while ours is Edith Asher.

Mr. Kernan represented Hampden-Sidney against us last year and has had considerable experience in debating. Mr. Randolph is a freshman but has been in one inter-collegiate debate already. He is a descendant of the John Randolph and is a native of Kansas.

"The Tiger" says that Hampden-Sidney is expecting to repeat their victory of last year, but if the student body will back up the representatives of our school there will be a chance for "The Rotunda" to talk about making a repetition next year.

Come on, turn out Tuesday and Friday night, Student Body, if you want us to win.

And then come and bring everybody else on May 14th.

OPENING OF PI KAPPA OMEGA REUNION

The annual reunion of Pi Kappa Omega formally began with the installation of Virginia Graves, Mabel Groseclose, Bessie Gordon Jones, and Marion Chewning, the four newly elected members to the society.

The business meeting was then called in the Faculty Room and at this time Miss Mary Dinwiddie, National President, was installed. She immediately took her place as presiding officer to hear all business to be brought before the national organization.

As the representatives of Beta Chapter had not arrived at this time, further business was postponed until later in the day.

Alumnae members of Alpha Chapter back for Pi Kappa Omega reunion were:

Julia Alexander
Freda Crockin
Peggy Moore
Mary Stevenson
Elizabeth Paylor
Mrs. E. W. Smith
Christine Armstrong
Mrs. Harold Brown

Those attending the reunion from Beta Chapter were:

Virginia Simpson
Mary Lacy
Edith Ward
Rosalind Brownleigh

ARGUS LITERARY SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

JOAN SAYS—

These beautiful spring evenings when our campus is so lovely it is only right and natural that we should want to walk up High Street and enjoy the sunset. But I wonder if perhaps we wouldn't enjoy it more if we stop for a moment before our walk to go to Prayers. Prayers last only a few minutes and in this busy life of curs there are so few minutes we find to spend with God. The Y. W. C. A. gives us a wonderful opportunity for a minute or two of quiet with God. I wonder do we appreciate it? The number of girls attending prayers is steadily decreasing just when we should want to be spending more time on thought and prayer. With all of the beauties of nature around us—flowers and trees—we should feel closer to our Maker and want to thank Him for His gifts. Let's go to prayers and help ourselves by helping others. If we go our best friend will go.

BIGGER THAN "A".

Although we will not be in the Hall of Fame if we make an all "A" report and although the sun will not stop shining if we do fall down, we strive to do our best work. And rightly. But do we not sometimes think a little too much about whether the grade is an "A" or "B" and forget too easily that we are here for something bigger than a letter?

It is not the grade, nor even the information gained, but how well we learn to use the knowledge we get that counts for the most, that will count for the most. It is not likely that Poe even remembered the grade he got on a literature course at the University of Virginia when he wrote his short stories and poems. What is learned, in proportion, can mean as much to us as to the genius. Ten years from now we will have forgotten just what we made on the course in Roman history, but maybe we will remember something of the Roman influence on civilization—which is more important.

—Breeze

SCHOOL ORGANIZATION.

The organizations in our school belong to us. They should play a vital and important part in our lives, and not only in our lives but in the school itself. Are we making them do this? Do you feel that the organizations such as the Student Association, Y. W. C. A., Athletic Association or The Rotunda belong to you? If not—why not?

We have just elected our officers, they are ours because we elected them. Now that they are at the head of the vital parts of school life are we going to leave them with no aid—no suggestions—and worse yet are we going to tear to pieces what they try to do by criticism?

Why can't we start right by giving suggestions. If we feel that the Y. W. C. A. does not make each girl feel herself a part of it don't just criticize it and say so, look around for the reason, go to the President or some other representative, talk it over and say just what you think. If we feel that The Rotunda is not representative of the school—then say so and do your bit to help make it representative. So on with each organization.

Your class is yours—make it so. Don't skip every meeting and then say: "I didn't know what was going on. I don't approve of that."

Next week the new officers go into office and it is the duty and the privilege of every girl in school to help make the organization which these representatives are going to be in charge of really school organizations. They are ours and we have a right to feel bad if we can't seem to have any part in them, but first make sure that we can't and then find the reason.

The year 1926-27 should be one on which every S. T. C. girl will look with pride—just as she can 1925-26—but in order for it to be so, the girls who hold the responsible positions in school must learn to hold them, from now until June they are learning but we've got to help them, so don't forget that it's our place to make our organizations ours.

OUR TULIP BED

Spring has come—at last—to S. T. C. Evidences of it are everywhere the trees, shrubs, warm days, summer frocks and tennis. But to me the thing that proclaims spring the most is the gorgeous tulip bed half hidden in a corner by the tea room.

No one but Miss Mary was aware of the possible beauty that lay hidden in some bulbs and that small plot of ground. Her love of flowers and beauty led her to take advantage of the possibilities and as a result we have a bed of tulips which are a riot of color, red, yellow, white, pink and combinations. They are a spot of color which brightens not only the whole campus but also the hearts of the many girls that pass it and enjoy the beauty. To the Freshman it is especially pleasing since this is their first opportunity to enjoy its beauty. We are very grateful to Miss Mary and those who helped in the making of it and we wish to take this opportunity to thank them.

DRAMATICS AND THE MEASLES

Measles is not very pleasant under the calmest, most desirable circumstances, and certainly as a means of prohibiting the production of a play such as "Mice and Men" it is to be greatly scorned. And yet—the fault lies where? No one knows and so measles has no fear. Confident that no punishment will be inflicted it wraps itself unmolested about the most promising victims and plays havoc with the social life of great institutions. To our leading man we wish a speedy recovery and we console ourselves with the following lines of the play, "The best laid schemes of mice and men gang oft agley."

VIRGINIA CLUB HOLDS MEETING

On Monday, April 9, the Virginia Club had a very interesting meeting. The various committees gave reports, and Miss Stubbs gave an outline of the work the club hopes to complete this year. Committees were appointed to take charge of the various phases of the project and a definite program was planned.

The club decided to have its regular meeting on Monday night. At the next meeting they hope to be able to report that the material for the Prince Edward Bulletin is well on the way.

MISS MARY'S SUPPER

Tuesday night? Oh, no, we're not speaking of the Gov't meeting—something far more pleasant. Didn't you know that Miss Mary is entertaining our table tonight?

This is one of the most enjoyable affairs we girls have, and one that is looked forward to from the first of the year. All of us are anxious to be entertained, and as the Tuesday nights roll by we hear glowing reports from the girls. But no wonder! Miss Mary has invited us and what a lovely time we do have! As hostess we all agree that she is a charming one; she knows just what interests everybody. She seems to knew that although we're big girls now, we still enjoy the games we loved when we were very small. And while having supper we can see, from the many delightful dishes, that she has discovered, what appeals to everyone of us. We certainly admit that an hour can not be spent more pleasantly, and the few words—"I had a lovely time"—"I enjoyed myself so much"—etc., —can't begin to express the real joy we experience when Miss Mary entertains.

Attend Prayers—you will enjoy it.

KATE TRENT

To try to picture Kate as a Senior and then as president of the Student Government would be an impossibility, and so I combine the two to characterize this individual. As a member of the Senior class she is just what she is in the committee room—sympathetic, just and efficient. Kate's optimism is one of her greatest attributes, and as President of the Student Body carries her troubles and responsibilities and yet she neither praises her position nor burdens others with troubles. She keeps all worries hidden beneath the surface and shows to others only happiness and smiles. In the committee room Kate is not the Student Government president but The Friend. For every girl her consideration is the same and there is always with her a thorough understanding of all things. This year's work has been a terrific strain on Kate—she has been faced with problems which have never before come to the notice of the school and she has unflinchingly solved each one of them satisfactorily. We—the Student Body owe much to you Kate—you have been our friend in gladness and sadness—always the same.

"You were true for there were those who trusted,
You were pure for there were those who cared,
You were strong and there was much
to suffer,
You were brave and there was much
to bear."

ANN SMITH

Get Ann Smith to do it and you will get it done. She has taken the place of "Let George do it." Not only has she done things herself but she has guided a class for two years and made it an outstanding class each year. Ann's originality in getting up stunts, shows and programs has been at the call of her class. She has never tired of work and has been thrououghly unselfish in all that she has done.

Ann has worked on The Virginian for two years and has been a very capable member.

Her untiring patience as costume mistress in the Dramatic Club has been appreciated by the casts of each play. Without a person like Ann as costume mistress the plays here wolud certainly be lacking in style. Ann has always watched every costume grow to perfection.

What would S. T. C. be if she had a hundred workers like Ann Smith?

TO THE STUDENT BODY

It has been not only an honor but also a pleasure to work with you this year and now that my term of office is drawing near an end, I want to take this opportunity to thank you for your cooperation and help during the past year.

Without your willingness, your loyalty, and your never failing aid, I would have accomplished very little.

THE HYMN BOOKS IN CHAPEL

We girls, young ladies, students, or future teachers (whatever term may seem most suitable) at S. T. C. are a very sound, sane, and sensible lot in many respects. Our conduct on the street is unimpeachable, our attitude in the classroom is admirable; we conduct ourselves at all times with perfect dignity, propriety, and decorum. We consider ourselves highly civilized, broadly cultured and deeply intelligent young women. We have a profound respect for the property of others and a proprietary regard for our own belongings.

Yet somehow we are sadly amiss in one respect. We do not protect our common property. A very noticeable instance of this neglect is the case of the hymn books in chapel. There are enough books for everyone to use in singing when they are kept in the holders at the back of the seats proivded for that purpose. But they are not kept there. Hardly one book can be found in a whole row in the back of the auditorium, while at the front there are books in abundance. They are lying in the seats, on the floor and crowded into the holders in any slovenly manner so that anyone passing may knock them to the floor. They are being worn out by the rough treatment we submit them to.

This condition is a disgrace to our sense of neatness or the fitness of things and is entirely due to carelessness. I am sure that we have never really given this matter any thought. It is only a small matter but it means a great deal in the life of the books and in the appearance of our auditorium.

Let us try to erase this fault from our record. When we have finished with a book let us place it long side downward in a holder by itself and when we find one on the floor let's pick it up and place it also in an empty holder.

If everyone will do this our books will last much longer, our auditorium will look much nicer and our habit of orderliness will be strengthened.

THE CALL OF THE VIOLIN

Silence,
Expectancy,
And then—
A sound,
A far, faint, plaintive cry
That grows and dips
Into the very depths,
And my soul,
Answering its call,
Follows down, down
Into an agony of despair.
I sit tense,
Every nerve strained
Listening,
Harkening to the call,
And parched
For tears,
And then—
A melody
That grows and swells
Into an overwhelming tide
Of thankfulness
And glory!
And I,
Borne on the flood,
Fly higher, higher
Until I touch
The stars, themselves,
And catch
A glimpse of God—
And Eternity.
Only a glimpse,
For a cloud
Passes before my eyes.
The violin ceases—
And I weep.

THE SPOTLIGHT

Ann Smith and Pannie Willis have been troubled lately by nightmares, in which they chased innumerable lanterns and wigs that would not be caught in time for the Dramatic Club play.

The truth will out—so will the measles. Ask Louise Brewer.

Runt Hargrave was heard to say that she was glad that a man's grasp could exceed her reach.

Why couldn't Mattie Rogers have found a better place to fall for her date than down the church steps?

BOY AND GIRL EDITORS AT NEW YORK CONVENTION

Scholastic Press Association Awards Prizes for Best School Newspapers and Magazines

More than 800 high school boys and girls and normal school students attended the second yearly convention of the Scholastic Press Association of Columbia University, in New York, recently. As editors of high school and normal school magazines and newspapers they represented schools in seventeen States, the District of Columbia, the Canal Zone and Canada. Their ages range from eleven to nineteen.

Silver cups were awarded as first prizes for the best student publications. The high schools were divided into three classes—schools with more than 1,000 students, schools having between 500 and 1000 sutdents and schools of 500 or less. The awards were as follows:

Magazine Awards

Best magazines edited by students of senior high schools—The Quest, published by Central High School, Minneapolis, Minn.; The Lit, published by Lawrenceville School, Larwrenceville, N. J.; The Homespun published by Central High School, Greensboro, N. C.

Best magazines edited by students of junior high schools—The Nor'easter, of Northeastern Junior High Broadcaster, pubished by the Nashua Junior High School, of Nashua, N. H.

Best normal school magazine—The Norm, published by the Philadelphia Normal School, Philadelphia, Pa.

Newspaper Awards

Best senior high school newspapers —The Polaris Weekly, of North High School, Minneapolis Minn.; High Life published by the High School of Greensboro, N. C.; The Rerserve Record, published by Western Reserve Academy, Hudson, Ohio.

Best junior high school newspapers —The Review, of Junior High School No. 2, Trenton, N. J.; The Magnet, of Parkersburg Junior High School, Parkersburg, W. Va.

Best normal school newspaper—The Junior College Journal, published by Junior Teachers' College, Cleveland, Ohio.

Ford Truck Helped

The delegates from the Greensboro, N. C., schools made the trip to New York and back in a Ford truck loaned by the Greensboro Daily Record. Gasoline was suppliesd by the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce. The trip was worth while, for the Greensboro schools won two prizes.

A crowd on a date night doesn't worry Alice Jackson. It just means that she and ——— will have to sit closer together.

When Bessie Meade goes elsewhere people get the idea she is fond of intoxicating liquors. At S. T. C. we know that it's just Bessie Meade.

Phyllis Wood, Margaret Mackasey, Marion Grimes and Helen Wilcox have formed a club with the slogan: "To the Last Man".

Peggy Lou was caught in the act of singing "Some Sunny Day." We wonder if she was refering to Saturday and Sunday nights.

At TheEaco Theatre This Week

TUES.—HOOT GIBSON in THE SAWDUST TRAIL a stirring drama of the Wild West. It is the wildest romance of his screen career. Between love-making and taming the wildest women in the Wild West Show, he finds time to perform some of the funniest stunts you have ever seen. Also Pathe News.

WED.—Jack Hoxie in FIGHTING FUY with the famous Ranch Riders. A heart gripping romance of the great out-doors, set in a matchless background of snow-capped mountains. Big with dramatic power. Big with spectacular sensations—a thrilling chapter right out of the life of the West. A love story that will enthrall you. We also start a new serial THE WINKING IDOL, this night.

THURS. & FRI.—GLORIA SWANSON in STAGE STRUCK a special Paramount picture, part of which is shown in beautiful colors. What young girl hasn't dreamed of fame and fortune behind the footlights? "Stage Struck" is the story of a girl who tried to make the dream come true. It is Glorious Gloria's greatest character role. Her richest comedy role. Her flashiest fashion role. It is luxusiously produced with many gorgeous scenes in natural Technicolr. She took a correspondence course in acting—and thought shed'd make the Barrymores jealous. Good comedy each night. Mat. THURSDAY ONLY, at 4 o'clock.

SAT.—CLAA BOW and DONALD KEITH in THE PLASTIC AGE from the very popular novel by the same name. Here is a production that will entertain and appeal to all. An American college is the scene of the story, the moral development of a modern boy is the theme. The novel has been so widely read, it is useless to tell about the story. Don't miss it. Mat. at 4 o'clock. Two shows at night. 11th epside of "Battling Brewster also.

NATIONAL Y. W. C. A. CONVENTION HELD IN MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

Harrell, President-elect Returns May 1st

Rosalind Harrell, returning from a twelve-day trip to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where she attended the National Y. W. C. A. Convention, reports a time wonderful beyond comparison.

She left here Monday, April 19 and went to East Radford. From there on she was accompanied by Julia Gunn, East Radford's delegate to the convention. They travelled through the mountains of West Virginia, through Ohio, stopping over in Cincinnatti, and through Indiana and Illinois, staying a few hours in Chicago. From there they went to Milwakee arriving at noon on Wednesday, April 22.

After registering and getting settled in an hotel, they plunged into the convention, for the sessions were in order morning, afternoon, and evening from the first day until the last. Rosalind says she lost all count of time and of her own small self among three thousand women and college students. The morning sessions were conducted in an open forum manner, resolutions for the coming year were brought forward and discussed, amendments to the constitution were made, and the general business program ensued. Afternoons were given over to discussion groups and assemblies. (Student, Business and Industrial.) Evenings brought reports, various speakers and the generalities derived at from discussion groups.

One of the most important amendments to the National Y. W. C. A. Constiution was that of putting membership on a personal basis, similar to that of student constitutions. Church membership is no longer a requisite for Y. W. C. A. membership.

The spiritual force of the convention was accentuated by the devoted exercises conducted by Dr. Gilkey. His dynamic personality and unbounding Christian energy were a real power. One of the most interesting and entertaining features of the convention was a Pageant "Forward Through The Ages," in which eight hundred persons participated. It was a panorama of the use of women through the ages, their sufferings, strugglings and success attained.

The delegates were entertained by the Milwaukee Association in the Elk's Home at a reception where they met the president and national board. Another and most charming affair—an international luncheon was held in Hotel Pfister. There were seventeen foreign women guests present.

The delegates were most fortunate in having the great privilege of hearing Paderewski play before an audience of fourteen thousand in Milwakee auditorium.

TRIANGULAR DEBATE

Farmville Wins over Harrisonburg, 3—0; Loses to Radford 2—1

On the evening of April 30, at eight o'clock, a portion of the triangular debate was held in S. T. C. auditorium where a debating team from Harrisonburg State Teachers College met one from Farmville. At the same time, Mildred Folston and Lois Westbrook were representing Farmville at Radford and one of Radford's teams was debating at Harrisonburg. The subject of the triagular debate was, Resolved, That Virginia Should Concentrate Her Efforts Upon the Developments of the Rural Possibilities Rather Than the Development of a Metropolitan Area Around Hampton Roads.

At Farmville the affirmative was upheld by Olive Smith Bowman and Elizabeth Hutt with Marian Kelly and Georgie Brockett of Harrisonburg supporting the negative. Both teams supported their sides with a great deal of sound arguments and enthusiasm. Mainly the negative side stressed Hampton Roads' capability of producing great immediate revenue, while the affirmative gave a program for improvement of Virginia's poor rural sections and showed how commerce through Hampton Roads would be developed through agriculture. Dr. J. E. Walmsley presided. The judges—Mr. T. J. McIlwaine, Dr. W. Twyman Williams and Dr. R. M. Waite—gave their decision unanimously in favor of the affirmative.

Saturday morning in chapel a telegram from our team at Radford was read as follows: "Lost to Radford two to one. Hope Farmville won there." Radford also won at Harrison burg so that makes the former the final winner in the triagular debate.

The chief advantage of Farmville's recent debates, as Dr. Jarman pointed out, has been to stimulate an interest in literary activities. If this interest continues to grow, next year our teams cannot choose but win, backed as they will be by the student body.

Remember that this year one more debate will be held—Farmville versus Hampden-Sidney, May 14. A chance to show your loyalty and support!

A TRAGIC COMEDY

You have often heard of those incidents which come so near ending unfortunately but some little fairy godmother takes her and at the proper time. Previous to the triangular debate last Friday, a figure on the dining room roof was seen to draw near the back wall and glance ove. it time after time. Such conduct looked so suspicious that an observer in the Training School departed a fas. courier to prevent the person from jumping off the roof. Up to the third floor panted the rescuer, pushed open the door to the roof and gasped! A girl had simply chosen the roof as the field of attack upon her debate.

HAMPDEN-SIDNEY GIVES MAY DAY FESTIVAL

Dutch Roberts Makes Charming Queen

Last Saturday afternoon at precisely four o'clock the great event to which the students of Hampden-Sidney College had been looking forward to all the year took place. This event was none other than their very own May Day Festival. Everyone was given a holiday on Friday in order to go into the woods and pick armfuls of lovely wild flowers to decorate the queen's throne.

All day long Saturday the students went around in a frenzy of excitement. They skipped to and fro across the campus, clapping their hands.

At last the magic hour of four rolled around and everyone gathered (thrilled to death) to witness the procession. First of all came the dear little pages, Lacey Tynes and Gordon Clarke. They were dressed in adorable Lord Fauntelroy suits. To the accompaniment of their trumpets they executed a few graceful steps. After the pages came the nymphs. Leading the nymph dance was none other than Ridley Alexander. All of them were dressed in track suits which looked too cute for anything trimmed in bright bits of tulle. Grecian bands were worn around their heads. The nymphs were Sonny Robinson, Bill Broach, Wilkes Peery, Geter Scott, Slick Strader and Frank Kinser, Parke Leckie and Neff Nance attired (or rather disguised as butterflies appeared next in line, singing a sweet little song about the spring time and the bunny rabbits. Bob Porterfield caused many hearts to flutter as she skipped gracefully out as Diana the Huntress. Alex Hamilton and Jimmie Ayers were perfectly dear as flower girls. They gave every single person a rosebud and scattered buttercups and daises carelessly around.

After this there was a slight pause. Everyone held his breath. The queen was coming! Oh how dainty she was as she swept up with her attendants! Dutch wore a dress of palest red trimmed with royal purple. The maid of honor, J. B. Sparrow, chosen for the place because of her rosy cheecks followed close behind. Carrying the queen's train and dressed in suits of pink satin and lace were Mike Brinser and Spritter Adkins. The ladies of the court made a beautiful assemblage. Such famous beauties as Billy Williams, Red Richardson, Flem Hurt, Emmett Morrison, Lewis Holladay, Joe Cox, Nick Carter, George Cootes and The Maben graced their number. With many groans and much hoisting and heaving the queen was finally established on her throne.

Then came the most exciting part of the entire program! A dancer glided upon the scene—a vision in yellow jonquils and lavendar tulle. The vision began dancing. She swayed rythmically to the strains of the soft music. She bent like a desert

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE VS. BRIDGEWATER COLLEGE

On April 27, 1926, Bridgewater College met the State Teachers College of Farmville in a very interesting debate with Dr. J. L. Jarman as presiding officer. The subject for the debate was: Resolved, That the system of direct primary nominations for state and local officers, is preferable to nomination by convention. The negative side of this question was ably argued by Misses Ethel Cosden and Ruth Fike of Bridgewater while Misses Catherine Bentley and Adrienne Richards creditably represented Farmville on the affirmative. After much deliberation the judges rendered their decision in favor of the negative.

Before the debate, three delightful numbers were rendered by Miss Claire Black, contralto soloist.

DR. GEORGE F. PRESTON SPEAKS

On Thursday evening, April 29 an interested audience heard Dr. George F. Preston, psychiatrist of The Children's Memorial Clinic in Richmond, speak on the every-day problems as applied to psychiatry by the non-technically trained parents and teachers.

He gave many helpful suggestions and he brought out very forcefully the characteristics that a person using mental hygiene must have. Patience, common sense and imagination are the three qualities which are best understood but the task of acquiring the right point of view is a little more difficult," said Dr. Preston. "We must ask ourselves why the child acts as he does instead of what to do with him," continued Dr. Preston, as he applied his subject to the needs of teachers.

The speaker concluded his lecture by giving us the work of the whole field of "Mental Hygiene" or psychiastry as follows, "Mental Hygiene" deals with human behavior of all types and the treatment of the normal person plays just as large a part as the treatment of the abnormal."

The lecture was valuable in that the teachings can be applied easily and may well be adopted because of the reputation of the speaker, Dr. Preston as a widely known and efficient psychiatrist.

"ODDS AND ENDS OF 1926"

Saturday afternoon the members of Tri-Sigma Sorority went to Amelia to give to present "Odds And Ends of 1926" an original collection of songs, dances, impersonations, and musical performances. During the short time spent in Amelia the girls were treated royally, indeed; and the play was supported heartily by the people. Much of the success of "Odds and Ends" was due to Eleanor Bennett and "Jack" Draper, who very kindly assisted in the performance, and to Louise McCormick, who acted as Right Hand Man.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

SUPPORT THE DEBATERS CLUB.

I wonder if every student is really aware of the fact that there is a Debaters Club at S. T. C. For years the school has felt the need for just such an organization and now, our desire has been gratified. We have a Club of which we should be proud. It is answering a hope for greater achievements along a literary line and the finest material in college is being developed through the Debaters Club. Every girl has worked hard to become a member; not only for herself has she tried to make the team, but for her school. The Debaters Club represents our school. What should be our attitude toward this new organization? Surely we want success to follow every member of the Club, surely we want the Debating team of S. T. C. to know only victory, but can they come out with flying colors alone? No, they need the backing of every member of the Student Body. They need the cooperation, understanding and interest of the school. Perhaps you little realize how much a little of your time and interest counts. Come to the Debates and you will want to come to come again—show the Club that you are a "true blue and loyal supporter." Remember its the links in the chain that count, so be a link in the chain of backers and do your part that the chain may remain secure and unbroken.

BI-WEEKLY NOTES

Since our teachers have always desired to help those students who have shown a marked deficiency in their class work, there was established, some time ago, here at S. T. C. what is known as the note system. The teachers send notes only in a spirit of kindness, because they wish to help the students who are falling down on their work, and who, in nine cases out of ten, are perfectly capable of doing better. Suppose our teachers just did not care whether pupils continued to get low grades or not. Suppose they were not interested enough in them to take the trouble to keep up with their grades and send notes to those who should be warned. It is easy to guess what the consequences would be—a much larger per-centage of failurese and many more discouraged and disheartened students than really are.

The benefits of the system are immediately recognized when we realize how many students appreciate the warnings, which give them a chance to pick up, and consequently work harder, so that by the end of the term they may get a better grade than they would otherwise get.

Perhaps there are some students who resent getting notes and fail to see any good to be derived from them. Of course, these students will never profit by them as long as they have this mistaken attitude. Notes are not sent with hope of benefitting these students. On the other hand, they are sent because the teachers know that the majority of girls will take them in the right spirit, and will profit by them.

The number of notes sent on last note day was somewhat alarming. But if you stop to think that there was a possibility of approximately forty-five hundred notes being sent, the number does not seem appalling. However, this number was much larger than it should have been, and it is sincerely hoped that the results of next note day will not be so discouraging.

Since most of the notes were sent to underclassmen, freshmen in particular, there must be ome very big reasons for this fact.

Are teachers inclined to be too exacting in their requirements of the freshmen? Perhaps they forget the gap which exists between our high schools and colleges. It is an alarmingly big gap, and it usually takes pupils some time to bridge it.

In many cases it is the pupil's fault that she falls down in her work. She is much too apt to, at first take her work lightly, and to fail entirely to exercise any seriousness of purpose or earnestness of endeavor.

Other students become entirely absorbed in outside activities to the neglect of their studies. If these students would only wait to get well established in their class work, before allying themselves with outside activities, they would, in the end, be far more able to do both more creditably.

Another practice, which may serve to remedy the situation, is to give in "Freshmen Fundamentals," which will take in methods of efficient study, the use of the library, the best use of their time in general, and something of what is expected at all times of the students her at S. T. C.

It is believed that such a course will help students to become adjusted to our systems of doing thing and habits of study.

In other words, a student will "come to herself", for, as Woodrow Wilson said, "The ease of a perfect adjustment is what a man gains when he has come to himself."

VISITORS FROM COLUMBIA

Mr. De Forest Stull and Mr. Upton spent a few days of last week in and around our college. Both men, of Columbia University, are making a study of the Teachers Colleges and Normal Schools on the Atlantic seaboard. While on our campus they commented upon our fine group of buildings and the remarkable taste displayed in their furnishings.

In chapel on April 28 the visitors were given an opportunity to talk to us students. Mr. Upton, whose specialty is arithmetic, gave us the modern viewpoint of arithmetic with its more practical problems and smaller fractions which replace the old 'mental jaw-breakers." "Arithmetic", he stated, "change just as women's styles change." He illustrated this by the present vogue of the decimal.

Mr. De Forest Stull, the second speaker, claimed that he had not prepared a speech as Mr. Upton had. So in place of devoting his entire talk to his especial interest, geography, Mr. Stull gave us a few of his impressions of our college and town. He saw at once that the college received the cooperation of Farmville. Everyone who knows something about geogrphy need not be considered a "perambulating atlas." Geography is something more than location which is a very unimportant phase. Climate and soil are far greater portions of geography need not be considered a mentary school subject, but also a high school, a college and a university one.

We should like Mr. Stull and Mr. Upton to have extended their visit.

THE UNROMANTIC

Rose trees encircled us
The air was calm and sweet,
The moon shone softly
And our lips—they did meet.

Then, you fool, such a question:
"Do you think it will rain?"
You careless silly lover
I'll never love you again.

AMONG THE CAPS AND GOWNS

GERTRUDE QUINN

"A dainty maiden beyond compare;
Pretty, petit and debonaire"

Yes, that's "Bun"! There's not a person here at S. T. C. who has not felt the charm and delightful personality of our tiniest Senior.

Her capable judgment and leadership which she has shown throughout this year as vice-president of the student body, have won for her the highest esteem of the students and faculty.

"Bun's" presence as assistant supervisor in the kindergarten has meant a great deal to that department and when one sees her among a crowd of tiny tots, one knows that she has won the heart of each.

AUDREY CHEWNING

Audrey has been with us only two years, but her excellent scholarship, her rare ability as a leader and her attractive manner and sweet disposition have won her a place in the hearts of that student body. It's hard to tell just what we will do without her for if it's got to be done, Audrey will do it, if you need a friend Audrey is there in fact whne we think of not seeing Audrey with her sweet, serious smile walking down the aisle in her cap and gown, a lump comes in our throats that's rather hard to swallow. Not many girls have to their credit a record so fine as has this Senior. Socially, morally, scholarly, she has measured up to the finest things for which S. T. C. stands. Our love and best wishes that the success which has been hers through her college career will go with Audrey always.

SONG

Watch the evening sunlight,
Catch the yellow gleam
Slanting o'er the tree tops
Falling on the stream—
Beautiful the vision
As a golden dream.

GRAY MIST

A gray night, misty, dark and drear,
Tonight the stars neglect to shine,
And yet, beyond, the dawn is near,
A light—radiant, divine!

So is it in the path of life,
When hope and faith seem well-nigh gone,
A light upon the road appears,
And love brings in the dawn.

NEIGHBORHOOD GOSSIP

The Spring has stolen Robin's suit—
You see, she's garbed in green—
And you should hear the birds protest
About this robber queen.

"Spring tries to fool the world", they cry,
"To think she's seventeen;
"We know she's passed a million times
And still, she dons her green."

The entire school took part in the last number which consisted or romping on the green, making daisy chains and tossing dandelions. After this tea and ice cream cones were served. Then, everyone went happily away to look forward to the next May Festival.

ATHLETIC NEWS

Basketball Varsity is Presented White Jerseys

Friday in chapel the basketball varsity composed of Hall, Perkins, Reid, Mitchell, White and Crute and the coach, Miss Graham, were presented with white slip over jerseys by the Athletic Association in appreciation of the work done by the varsity this year. In every game played the varsity gave to the school a demonstration of good sportsmanship put into actual practice. Every game was clean and fair and every victory as well as every defeat was taken with the grace and dignity of a true sport.

Field Day is Approaching

Only ten more days and preliminary try-outs for field day will be staged. This means that there are only ten more days of practice before time for the track meet. This also means that every girl who wishes to participate in any event for the preliminary meet or for the final meet must come out and practice. There are two other things that must be done.

1. Every girl who expects to compete must be weighed and measured Friday.

2. Every girl who is going to participate in any event must sign up by Saturday.

This is Baseball Week

This week all of the interclass baseball games will be played after which the best team will contribute ten points toward the class cup. The schedule for the games is as fololws:

May 4—Freshmen vs. .... Sophomores
May 6—Sophomores vs. .... Juniors
May 8—Freshmen vs. .... Freshmen

Numerals to be Awarded for Track

An amendment has been added to the Athletic Association Constiution which enables girls to win numerals for track if a girl measures up to the requirement. If a girl wins a first, a second or three third places she is qualified to win a numeral.

Rotunda to have Athletic Issue

There will be an athletic issue of the Rotunda the week following Field Day. At this time a resume of every phase of this year's athletics will be published. The staff selected for this is as follows:

Editor-in-chief ..... Evelyn Dulaney
Assistant editor .... Eleanor Zacharias
News Editor ..... Edith Asher

Reporters

Tennis ..... Gwendolyn Hardy
Basketball ..... Virginia Perkins
Volleyball ..... Orline White
Baseball ..... Lucile Wright

VARIETY

We're having changes in the menu in the dining room—why not have a few in the Tea Room menu. We understand the menu of the Tea Room is fixed by the dining room. "Variety is the spice of life," and a little variety in the Tea Room would certainly be aprpeciated.

The jazz craze is definitely on the decline. Another minister has found some good in it.

MARRIAGE OF OLD S. T. C. GIRL

The recent marriage of Lady Jean Moore to Mr. E. Runt Hargrave of Petersburg, Va., was one of the most interesting social functions of the season. It is not known where this young and delightful couple will spend their sugar moon, but several attempts, on the part of their friends, have been attempted without success.

The church was decorated with horsehair and lavendar garters hung from the cobwebby rafters above. The preacher behind the altar was playing a game of billiards with the mice while waiting for the dainty groom and buxom bride. Miss Meban Hunt opened the ceremony by delightfully rendering that old ditty "Daddy get the mower there're onions in the milk." Then the Sensational Syncopaters struck up the wedding march in too flat. First to come was "Cheerful Chubby" Gray who did a spring time dance on several feet besides her own. Then Miss "Sookie" Volk toddled up the aisle rapidly demolishing a lolly-pop. The next to perform was Overbey herself, who rode a broncho to the altar carrying a butterfly in one hand, and wearing riding boots fashioned from back issues of The Rotunda. Nellie Baber and Helen Wilcox, who crawled and scrambled to their respective stations completed the wedding party. And such a party!

Suddenly all eyes were turned to the rear of the church. There walking sedately and slowly down the aisle was Miss Moore herself. She was on her escort's arm, but her eyes were on the ground as she daintily chewed her gum. She was dressed in yellow tights and an exquisite 25 cent straw hat. Around her neck was hanging an old family heirloom of false teeth, which had been in her family for generations. On her dainty feet were dainty, fur-lined galoshes, number 9 in size, and flapping vigorously in the gale she created as she swept up the aisle. Altogether she made a striking picture as she wended her way to her future mate.

Then young Runt himself, showed up. His best man was E. Zacharias, who had been through the asylum with him, and best understood him in his frequent digressions. Young Runt himself, wore a handsome diamond-studded nose guard, and a fur-lined cigar holder. A pair of lavendar garters to match those on the rafters were about his arms holding up his gloves. His spike-tail coat drug the ground, while a broad grin of surprise plastered itself over his features

As Miss Moore took his arm, he blushed furiously and stared rigidly at his best man's smallest toe. (The wedding party was shoeless). After an awful struggle the preacher pronounced them man and wife, and a few minutes later they set out on their honey drippings.

The congregation, which obligingly accompanied every movement with snores of various notes, yawned three times and discourteously left the church. As usual the bell was tolled during the ceremony.

MR. ARTHUR JAMES

Represents State Board of Public Welfare

On April 29, in chapel, Mr. Arthur James, of the State Board of Public Welfare, talked on the various corrective and charitable institutions of Virginia. She maintains four hospitals for the insane, costing over $1,000,000 a year. Her three thousand delinquents are housed in convict camps and the State penitentiary, while four industrial schools are provided for juvenile delinquents. This is only a part of the State's social problem. Whereas in former days of curative agencies, reformatories, etc., today a preventive system is being instituted. Examples of this are the juvenile and domestic relations courts. In the work of saving citizens for the State, we find improvements in the almshouses and jails.

SENIOR STUDENT COMMITTEE REPRESENTATIVES ELECTED

The Junior class at their last regular meeting elected their student committee representatives for next year. From the present view it looks as though next years Senior class will be the largest one in the history of the college—they are entitled to fine representatives.

Those elected were:

Betty Jernigan
Louise Brewer
Harriet Foster
Elva Hedley
Helen Thomas

At TheEaco Theatre This Week

TUES.—Hoot Gibson in HIT AND RUN a smashing, crashing, rough riding story of a cowpunching slugger who busted the ball over the fence every time he came to bat. A picture for every man, woman and child who loves to see a good man win. IT IS A HOME RUN SHOW, FILLED WITH FAST ACTION. Also Pathe News. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

WED.—Jack Hoxie in DARING CHANCES. A dynamic thriller, featuring a thunderous, heart gripping rodeo steeple chase and a breath snatching fight at the brink of a sheer, treacherous cliff. With wild riding, fast action, stirring scenes and an Exciting finish. One of the most thrilling wild west pictures ever made. Also 2nd episode of THE WINKING IDOL.

THURS. & FRI.—Lon Chaney and Pricilla Dean in OUTSIDE THE LAW, a big special production. She hated him--she ovwed vengeance—she cast caution to the winds, took the law into her own hands and out of this welter of crime came love. A marvelous melodrama of black revenge—a tremendous hate--a triple double cross and honor amongst thieves. We recommend this is an unusually good picture. It has thrills—chills and suspense; it is the greatest crook melodrama ever screened. It has a powerful climax that will leave you limp with excitement. Also good comedy with each now. Matinee each day at 4.

SAT.—Edmund Lowe and Betty Compson in THE PALACE OF PLEASURE a special production. It is the love story of the world famous dancer LOLA MONTEZ. Her love affairs were the gossip of all Europe. Her beauty and fascination left a trail of broken hearts among kings, statesmen and common soldiers. A most excellent and interesting picture. Also 12th episode of "Battling Brewster." Two shows, at 7:15 and 9 o'clock.

BEAUTIFUL MAY DAY AT STATE TEACHERS COLLLEGE

Audrey Chewning, Queen

May Day at S. T. C. has come and gone but has left behind it memories which will not be easily discarded. After all the many beautiful things that took place who, of those that saw it, could ever forget it?

The long awaited day, Saturday, May, 8, was finally ushered in at S. T. C. with sunshine and warmth. There was a stir and air of expectation all over the campus while all were eagerly awaiting the afternoon.

The program began at four o'clock and by that time a large crowd had assembled around the quadrangle in front of the school where the May Court was to be held. The balconies were filled; the street and both sides of the roped-off ground were crowded with people.

The program opened with a graceful dance by Sprites of May which was closely followed with a solo dance by Mary Culin. After this introduction the Court made its appearance. There were twenty-eight girls as attendants, all of whom, were dressed in long organdy frocks of different pastel shades, each carrying a ha of flowers. The attendants were:

Elizabeth Casey ..... Gwen Hardy
Eleanor Zacharias ..... Gwen Edye
Elizabeth Diehl .... Elizabeth Scott
Jeannette Johnston .....
Margaret Chandler
Florence Riss ..... Lucille Wright
Virginia Hodgson .... Mary A. Blanton
Jo Culin ..... Mary Johns
Helen Hodges .... Katharine Owens
Ruth Barron ..... Marion Grimes
Louise Foster ..... Alice Jarvis
Virginia Vincent ..... Sylvia Siegel
Aylwin Hughson, Annie G. McIntosh
Polly Smith ..... Mary Duncan
Helen Wilcox ..... Harriet Booker

As the last attendant took her place the maid of honor, Miss Emma Mebane Hunt, came out preceded by two small flower girls. Miss Hunt was dressed in a pink gown and carried a beautiful shower bouquet of sweet peas.

The came the Queen of May, Miss Audrey Chewning with her small pages and flower girls. And was there ever a more beautiful Queen or one who looked more queenly with her white dress, veil, train and bouquet of lilies of the valley? She was a queen which S. T. C. was proud of and happy to be able to claim as her own. After Miss Chewning had taken her seat on the throne a garland of white sweet peas and greens was placed around her shoulders by the maid of honor.

The flower girls were Martha McCorkle, Ann Cocks, and May Cecil Bynum.

The pages were Henry Logan Newbill, Blanton Hanbury, Robert Gilbert, S. B. Upton and Walter Jones.

Next came the entertainment of our beautiful Queen and Court and the majority of this was done by the

On the evening of May 5, a very delightful and appropriate musical program was given by local talent in the State Teachers College auditorium. This concert, held under the auspices of the Music Department of the Woman's Club of Farmville, carried out the sloagn of National Music Week, "Give More Thought to Music" in a manner most entertaining and uplifting to a large audience.

The Farmville Silver Band, under the remarkable direction of Mr. Cataldo, opened the program with an overture from Princess of India. Later on it gave an equally enjoyable number by Laurenbeau. S. T. C. artists took prominent parts, Dr. Jarman singing "Sunset," and Mrs. Katherine King, "Ave Maria". They also sang in group numbers. The Grainger Instrumental Quartette gave a selection. The Rosary was very beautifully sung by a quintette from the Conservatory of Music, with Mrs. Warren Bowman as violin accompanist. Misses Virginia Potts and Virginia Vincent played a duet from "Il Trovatore." Hampden-Sidney was effectively represented by Dr. Wilson sining Mandalay and Mr. Roberts and Mr. Dabney Jarman giving a violin duet. One of the closing numbers was Beethoven's "The Heavens Resound", sung by Prince Edward Music Club Chorus. The piano accompanists of the various selections were Mrs. Gills, Dr. Williams, Miss Vaughan, Miss Willis and Miss Booker.

Attend Prayers—you will enjoy it.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT INSTALLATION SERVICES

Vincent and New Committee Take Reins

Last Tuesday evening at seven o'clock, the old and new Student Committees moved slowly down the center auditorium aisle to the strains of "Alma Mater."

After they were seated on the rostrum, Kate Trent, retiring president, gave a short talk thanking the student body and faculty for their loyal support and cooperation of the past year. Virginia Vincent, the new president was then sworn in. She expressed her unbounded appreciation of her new honor and pledged herself and her new committee to the best of their ability to uphold the ideals of the college and the wishes of the student body. The remaining officers, class representatives, and members ex-officio then took their oath.

After a very beautiful and appropriate solo, "Dawn", by Mebane Hunt the two committees of 1925-26 and 1926-27 again marched out of the auditorium. This time, Virginia Vincent wore the cap and gown, a symbol of her presidency.

The new officers and committee members are now serving the student body of the college, and they earnestly beseech each girl to feel a vital part of the student organization, to live honorably the life of a loyal daughter of Alma Mater.

Virginia Hodgson says experienced couples do not fall out of hammocks because they know the ropes too well.

Annie Gris told us she knew the golden rule but she was afraid he would think her forward.

NAMES OF FOUR HONOR STUDENTS ANNOUNCED

In chapel, May 7, the names of the honor girls of the Senior and Sophomore classes were announced. Of the Seniors—Olive Smith Bowman, First Honor and Audrey Chewning, Second Honor. Of the Sophomores—Mary Alice Blanton, First Honor and Polly Riddle, Second Honor.

CHORAL CLUB PRESENTS OPERETTA

On Monday night the Choral Club under the direction of Mrs. Katherine King entertained the school with a delightful operetta, "The Lady of Shalott". The entire group showed splendid talent and training and the solos which were rendered by Misses Alma Smith, Lucy Marstellar and Florence McIntyre were enjoyed by all who heard them. We wish to thank Mrs. King and the members of the Choral Club for their delightful program.

RUFFNER LITERARY SOCIETY

The Ruffner Literary Society held its regular meeting Friday, May 7. Brooke Hughes had charge of the program for the meeting. Iren Halpin, Mattie Duling, Jacqueline Noell, and Carolea Harris made interesting talks on Scotch, Irish, English and American Folk songs. The society was favored with solos by Louise Pond, Lillian Savedge, and Florence Savedge.

SOPHOMORES WIN FIRST BASEBALL GAME

Interest Runs High

The first baseball game of the season was played to an enthusiastic crowd Thursday afternoon on the athletic field. The Sophomores came out ahead with a final score of 28—21, raising their score from a tie in the 3rd inning of 15—15. The game was interesting from start to finish. The Freshmen were weak in the first inning but after the beginning of the second inning they warmed up with a resolve to raise their score and made 12 runs to the Soph's 1. The 3rd inning ended with the score tied at 15—15 and Claud broke the suspense by knocking a home run, which brought in other men on bases. After this the Sophs kept their lead although the Freshmen ran the final score to 28—21.

Both teams played well and showed much practice, and the remaining games are expected to be even better, so everyone is looking forward to a big crowd and a close game Monday when the Sophomores will meet the Juniors.

Y. W. C. A. INSTALLATION SERVICE HELD

Charges Given by Old Cabinet to the New

On Wednesday night, May 5, the new Y. W. C. A. Cabinet members took their oath of office from the old. The candle light installation service was a lovely one. The candle light glow was the only lighting effect, and the old cabinet officers carried their candles lighted to give the flame to the unlighted candles of the incoming cabinet. A choir of girls sang appropriate music as the two cabinets entered.

Lucille Wright, the outgoing president, gave the charge to the new president, Rosalind Harrell, and lighted her candles the symbol of transferred service and spirit. The retiring president appealed to the student association for their sympathy and cooperative service under the new president. Each retiring girl gave a simple, challenging charge to her successor. 'Hold Thou My Hand' was rendered by Helen Hodges and Virginia Potts.

MISS IDA BIERBOWER, Alumnae Editor

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

A WORD OF THANKS.

It was just about this time last year when people began telling me what an awful time I would have trying to edit The Rotunda. The year has passed and my hair is not grey and my disposition is not any worse than it was. This and any sucess the paper has met with is all due to the cooperation of a very kind and thoughtful staff. The staff has always been on the job and ready to do more than its share.

The Reporters Club has been better than ever before and their work is appreciated by the Staff.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the Staff for its splendid support and all those who have contributed to the success of our school paper. I wish all sucess to the new editor and staff.

MAKING THE MOST OF OUR OPPORTUNITIES.

We've heard this statement so often that it simply goes over our heads, but we really should stop once in awhile and check up on ourselves. Have we made the most of our opportunities this year? Have we entered into school activities, have we put ourselves into our class work, have we worked for what we could get out of it, or have we simply done what we've had to do? If we've bluffed through, taken our classes as a duty rather than a pleasure, staged outside of the school activties and merely criticized—then an opportunity has been lost. Those of us who are graduating will walk into a new field, full of opportunities to improve ourselves and to help others improve. Here will be a chance to start again, a chance to really make the most of our life. Those who are coming back will have a new year to begin—a year that we may make the best of our lives and one we may make count for our Alma Mater. When we lose a chance to make the most of an opportunity we do not hurt ourselves alone, we hurt those with whom we associate. We surely ought to think of this now if never before, and as we begin a new year whether in S. T. C. or in some other part of the country, let's remember that if we "Give the world the best that we have the best will come back to us."

MARTINA WILLIS

Martine has been working hard to put Farmville on the map, forensically speaking. It has been due largely to her efforts that we have organized a debating club and engaged in intercollegiate contests. Her efforts along this line, as well as her willingness to serve, her general spirit of friendliness and loyalty, and her quiet pleasing personality have made her a very popular member of the class of 1926.

STUDENT COMMUNITY STUDY

That the Y. W. C. A. may be better fitted to help college girls meet the needs of life as they actually find them in rural communities, Miss Gladys Taylor, Secretary of Student Community Study of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A. paid a visit to Farmville last fall. She solicited the aid of our alumnae.

She writes that the seven alumnae from our college who agreed to keep diaries and to assist in this work have been very faithful and have sent in quantities of invaluable material.

The study is being made among the graduates of only four colleges in the United States and it is gratifying to know that the Farmville girls are rendering such valuable assistance.

VIRGINIA CLUB MEETING

The Virginia Club met Monday evening at seven o'clock in Room R.

The most important business was the appointment of a nominating committe for officers of the coming year. Accounts of specific work on certain reports were given and a definite decision was reached concerning finances for the remainder of the term.

The following new members have been invited to join the club:

Betty Jernigan
Margaret Ferguson
Pauline White
Mrs. Davidson
Fannie B. Shorter
Thelma Woodfolk
Bessie Meade Riddle
Elise Anderson
Hallie McCraw

TENNIS

Tennis is "the thing" these days. Those who have been playing are giving the courts a grand rush and it anyone wants a court it is get out before six o'clock or there is no tennis. All the courts are filled by six a. m.—and stay full until old Sol's service is too hot for even the greatest tenis fans. The afternoons are popular but after supper is the favorite time and many who go to play stay to watch those who beat them to it. It's the early bird that catches the courts.

MEASLES VERSUS MICE

The infirmary doors were opened last Wednesday and such a scampering! Out rushed all the mice who had been confined for three weeks with the measles. There was much joy in S. T. C. when it became known that the mice were out.

Now that everything is ready for action once more, the Dramatic Club has again started rehearsing for 'Mice & Men.' The play will be given May 21. Those who have already reserved their seats are asked to re-reserve them with the old tickets.

"Mice and Men" will be repeated during Commencement Exercises, so those girls who are remaining for Commencement are asked to wait and see the play then.

MATHEMATICS CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Mathematics Club held its regular meeting Monday afternoon. A very enjoyable program was presented by which it was revealed that mathematics is not such a severe subject that it cannot hold something of wit and even beauty. The first number was an essay on "A, B and C" which was read by Jean Vaughan. Hazel Saunders read a paper on "Famous Women Mathematicians." The calculus class demonstrated a math garden in which blossomed all kinds of roses and even bleeding-heart. This garden was inclosed by an ivy-covered fence and guarded by a witch. An interesting talk on cycloids by Miss Carrie B. Taliaferro concluded the program.

Our idea of a kind-hearted man is one who orders a ton of soft coal when the cat insisted on sleeping in the coal bin.

Why Miss Iler refuses to wear her Yale sweater to classes when it is the envy of the school already?

No Arrangements Made

The professor was calling his roll in a sort of haphazard manner one Friday afternoon. Each member of the class, as his or her name was called, responded with the usual "here" or "present".

The name, Jenkins was called. No one answered.

Finally the professor said: "Hasn't Mr. Jines any friends here?"

A Receipe For Flunks

Take a pound of bluffer, and stir in a few exercises, add an ounce or two, flavor with parties and much playing, adding dates regularly. Stir before using and serve with tears at the end of the term.

As the railroad train was stopping an old lady hailed the passing conductor, and asked, "Conductor, which door shall I get out by?"

"Either door, ma'am—the car stops at both ends."

I kissed her in the vestibule
Alas, alack!! I hate to tell
That I was such an awful fool!
I kissed her in the vestibule.
And got a kick like from a mule—
From daddy, who came down pell mell
I kissed her in the vestibule.
And leaned against the Bell!!

Student (at church, to visiting friend as collection plate comes around): "Keep your money, Jack; this is on me."

One On You

Did you ever
Go to a party
Not feeling especially well
But when you got there
Everyone greeted you
With a smile
And you felt better
And made wise cracks
And everybody laughed
So you pulled all your good ones
Together with some not so good
And they laughed heartily
Till you found yourself
To be the life of the party
And your cranium
Expanded
And continued expanding
Till you reached home
And found
You had not tucked in all your shirt?
I thank you.

And now we have the sad case of the college boy who spent six months in over coming halitosis only to discover that he was unpopular any how.

HAMPDEN - SIDNEY PRESENTS MINSTREL SHOW

Songs and Witticisms Delight Large Audience

On Saturday night, May 8, in the State Teachers College auditorium "Tiger Minstrels" was presented by the Hampden-Sidney Jongleurs. Jimmie Ayers filled the role of interlocutor to perfection. Chris Munt, Fritz Hamilton, Charles Kernan, Carl Lacey, Slim Wright, Joe Clark, Dickie Dudley, and Squat Palmer, as the end men, sent the audience into hysterics. Songs, both sentimental and otherwise were met with the utmost approval. Alex Hamilton executed some new and surprising steps to the Charleston. The first act ended with the singing of "Old Hampden-Sidney."

In the second act an amusing sketch was given by Dickie Dudley and Squat Palmer called "The Deuce of Spades." Much interest was added by the insertion of certain names into the conversation. Chris Munt gave a short monologue bringing in much local color. The Harmony Trio: Jimmie Ayers, Bob Grover and Alex Hamilton gave some banjo and voice selections.

The third act consisted of a brief play. Richard Richmond, Fritz Hamilton, Macon Randolph, and Chris Munt contested valiantly for the hand of Princess Berlinda, Joe Clark. Of course at the crucial moment of the contest Hamp Sid appeared on the scene and claimed the fair lady.

MAY DAY AT S. T. C.

Training School.

The kindergarten and first grade took it upon their tiny shoulders to amuse the Queen. Each had a balloon of different color and led by Gertrude Quinn they danced about the lawn.

Then the sixth grade presented a Wind Dance which was gracefully done. The third grade in entertaining the Queen gave a Daisy Dance. The second grade came out on the lawn and not only did they dance but they also sang "How You Do My Partner." The fourth and fifth grades gave a dance, Sellinger's Round. In costumes of different colors the seventh grade girls did an attractive dance. Then to vary the program and also to entertain the Queen further the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grade boys, led by a competent leader, did a Dumbell Drill. The High School girls, all in white, gracefully danced around the May Pole weaving the colored streamers in and out.

The college girls next came forward. The Freshmen, in costumes, did a Barn Dance. The Sophomores, in attractive Jester costumes, gave a Jumping Jack Jubliee. The Junior and Seniors gave a Trio Waltz which was a beautiful gracegul dance.

The came the Recessional during which the Queen, Maid of Honor, and attendants retired and May Day for this year was over.

The music which was furnished by the College Orchestra was enjoyed by all.

The committee in charge of the whole program was:

Evelyn Beckham ..... Mebane Hunt
Evelyn Peake ..... Virginia Boyd
Gertrude Quinn

May Day this year was more beautiful than it has ever been and we all look forward with much pleasure and anticipation to next year's May Day.

We nominate for the Hall of Shame:

Marion Grimes, because she talks more than Bessie Meade;

Ellen Robeson, because she struts more than "Sis" Jordan;

"Skinny" Watkins, because she switches more than Ann Archer Irving.

Polly Smith, because she's more in love than Peggy Lou Stearnes;

Mittie Quarles, because she stammers more than Dat Myers;

Virginia Hall, because she two-times more than Kitty Reid;

Rosalind Harrell because she's more dependable than Ann Smith.

LINES

Oh, the day's been long and dreary,
And I've sat me down to pine;
The subject of which I've grown weary
Is the modern college line.

The game is fun, and it's thrilling
To laugh, dance, flirt, and play,
But not to be in at the killing
Is tough!—what else can I say?

When your heart's tied up in a boy,
And you've loved as never before;
Can you see him flirt with some other
Keep cool, and not get sore?

Can you meet him with smiles on the morrow,
Speak gently, swear solemn love?
If you can you're different from others
On earth, or in heaven above.

Sweet Childish Innocence

"Did you make that face at me? roared the schoolmistress."

"No ma'am," said the little boy, "you just happened to walk in front of it."

Freshmen

She: "Let's do something unusual."

He: "All right, you pay for the tickets."

At The Eaco Theatre Next Week

MON.—William Desmond in THE SUNSET TRAIL. A stirring melodrama of hard riding and rough living—thrills aplenty—a true blood outdoor picture—The life and love story of a man who won out with all the world against him—and Love's Old Sweet Song in the person of a dainty miss from the East. Gareth Hughes is in the cast. Also 4th episode of SCARLET STREAK.

TUES.—Jack Hoxie and Francis Ford in THE ROARING ADVENTURE A big, clean, rousing melodrama of the cattle country. In this picture you will see Jack Hoxie leap from an overhanging boulder on the back of a galloping horseman. See him rescue a girl from the back of a runaway horse, at the very edge of a canyon. It is exciting and thrilling. Pathe News also.

WED.—Hoot Gibson in "LET 'ER BUCK." In this picture you will see the world's greatest rodeo, of the 1924 Pendleton Roundup. You will see real broncho busters, bareback riders, red Indian Chiefs and cowboy experts of every kind. Ben Hur didn't have anything on Hoot Gibson when it came to a chariot race. Also 14th episode of THE WINKING IDOL.

THURS. James Kirkwood, Harrison Ford, Carol Dempster and a great cast in THAT ROYLE GIRL a big special Paramount picture, directed by D. W. Griffith. A great story. The finest Griffith has had in years. Melodramatic, heart-throbbing, flashy, funny, pathetic, gripping! A story of a daughter of today from the Cosmopolitan Magazine story. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

FRI.—Norma Shearer and Lew Cody in A SLAVE OF FASHION a big special production. Here is the greatest picture of its kind ever shown! Women love it, men will be fascinated by it .An amazing production, the tale of a girl who started for the big city to make her own way and was literally hurled into adventure that will make you hold tight to your seat with suspense. It is luxuriously produced. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

SAT.—THE FIRST YEAR the motion picture of John Golden's great stage play enacted by a special cast of stars. A comedy drama of two kinds of people—those who are married and those who are not. Don't get a divorce until you have seen this picture. Cheer up! It's the first year of marriage that's the hardest—after that it's a habit. This is a special production. Also 14th episode of BATTLING BREWSTER. Two shows, 7:15 and 9 o'clock.

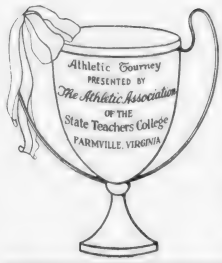
"It Pleases Us To Please"



A Firm like an individual is always happy when its work pleases its customers, and this is the case with the pleasant dealings we have enjoyed with the Rotunda Staff this year. We feel, from some expressions made to us, that we have really accomplished something in our efforts to make the ROTUNDA better than ever before.

In some cases we have made mistakes, it is only human to make mistakes, but we have enjoyed the job of printing the Rotunda and "IT PLEASES US TO PLEASE."

At all times we solicit constructive criticism and appreciate our customers advice and wishes when we make up the job.

ELIZABETH CRUTE WINS INDIVIDUAL CUP

—S. T. C.—

Elizabeth Marshall Crute has been awarded the individual cup, being the highest point winner for 1925-'26. This shows a high degree of sportsman ship on the part of the winner. Congratulations "Crutie."

The points won by "Crutie" are as follows:

Field Day	10 points
Old English Letter	10 points
Varsity Letter	10 points
Monogram	10 points
Track Numeral	5 points
Basketball Numeral	5 points
Baseball Numeral	5 points
Volley Ball Numeral	5 points
Total	60 points

Next in scoring are:

Gwen Hardy	50 points
Helen Hall	47 points
Jackie Woodson	45 points
Kittie Reid	45 points
Mary Smith	44 1-2 points

FRESHMEN WIN FIRST PLACE IN FIELD DAY EVENTS

—S. T. C.—

Tuesday, in a close race between the Freshmen and Sophomres, the "rats" won first place in Field Day events by three points. The total score for the Freshmen was 51 1-2 while the Sophomores won 48 1-2 to their credit. The Juniors claimed third place by winning 16 points and the Seniors gained 3 points.

The individual scores are as follows:

First: Juliet Jones	16
Second: Kitty Reid, Ida Wells	15
Third: Jettie Talley	11
Fourth: Elizabeth Crute, "Gwen" Hardy, Gladys Huband	10

HAMPDEN-SIDNEY—S. T. C. DEBATE

—S. T. C.—

Last Friday evening at 8 o'clock the champion debaters of Hampden-Sidney met those of S. T. C. The auditorium was filled with expectant people who came to see if "The Increased Freedom of Modern Youth is the Hope of Society."

The well-known orator, Roy Randolph, and the fiery Charlie Kernan of Hampden-Sidney spoke in glowing terms of the progress and advancement of society under the leadership of modern youth while Catherine Bentley and Jean Mitchell threw the spotlight on the weaknesses of the life of today. Roy Randolph and Catherine Bentley dealt in moral and psychological terms, with the strength and weakness of youthful intellects. Charlie Kernan proved himself a connoisseur in modern dress by his (familiar?) knowledge of masculine and feminine array. Jean Mtichell, presented a world of facts and figures which caused her audience to gasp as they realized the costs in manners and morals of modern progress.

The youthful judges were not convinced of the weaknesses of modern youth and gave their decision to the affirmative. After the debate many of the audience went to Tavern Inn to discuss again over punch and sand wiches the question of the evening.

SOPHOMORES ARE BASE BALL CHAMPIONS

—S. T. C.—

The Sophomores took the second tilt of a series of three baseball games being played between the Junior, Sophomore and Freshman classes. Much interest is being displayed in these games, as the champion add points toward placing their colors on the Athletic Cup, which is in the Reception Hall of S. T. C.

One game is yet to be played between the Juniors and Freshmen. This game, however, will not determine the championship, as the Sophomores have defeated both the Junior and Freshmen teams, leaving the Red and White team undefeated champions.

The Junior-Sophomore game was most interesting, the final score being 34—17 for the Sopohomores.

We dedicate this issue of the Rotunda to Miss Blanche Edith Olive Graham, who has put her heart in our athletic standing and has instilled in all of us the meaning of true sportsmanship.

BLUE RIDGE PAGEANT IS PRESENTED

—S. T. C.—

Realistic Scene Written By Rosalind Harrell

—S. T. C.—

A typical, true to life scene of Blue Ridge was brought to us Friday night in the form of a pageant Rosalind Harrell had written into its very lines the spiritual depth, the outward beauty, and the wholesome sport and good time element of Blue Ridge. The scene was written around actual people present at the conference last summer—with a side panorama of particular meaning.

The Smith's Glee Club group formed the background of Blue Ridge girls and the following cast participated:

Miss London	Miss London
Spirit of Youth	Lorah Brewer
Or Koo	Lucy Haile Overbey
Chines Girls:	Virginia Moore, Helen Lane, Cladys Moses.
Brazilean:	Sara Spiers, Sue Puckett
Korean:	Alice Carter, Elizabeth Bowers
Bulgarian	Elva Hedley
Spirit of Blue Ridge	Mebane Hunt
Sports:	Anna M. Ellis, Mrs. Graham

LAMBS DEFEAT KITTENS IN BASE BALL GAME

—S. T. C.—

Thousands Grouped on Farmville Hills to Witness Game

—S. T. C.—

In a brisk game of baseball last Friday afternoon the Lambs overwhelmingly defeated the Kittens with a score of 13 3-4 to 13 1-2. The action took place on the training school playground and was witnessed by thousands of people. The custom of having the best baseball players in school divided into two teams, the Lambs and the Kittens was inaugurated this year by Miss B. E. O. Graham. She thought that it would be so sweet for her girls to have a little contest among themselves.

Those paying for the Lambs were Mabel Cross, Mary Vaughan, Phyllis Wood, Aylwin Hughson, Helen Hodges, Elizabeth Scott, Margaret Mackasey, Mebane Hunt, and Polly Smith.

Those playing for the Kittens were Frances Sale, Bun Quinn, Helen Hart, Margaret Ferguson, Sis Jordan, Ellen Robeson, Amelia Johnson, Carroll Cromwell and Lucy Haile Overbey.

The Lambs were at the bat in the first inning and Lucy Haile pitched for the Kittens. The action was started vigorously when Mabel Cross hit (?) the ball and sent it flying away while she scampered to first base. Phyllis Wood was next at the bat. The ball had scarcely left Lucy Haie's hand when Phyllis shrieked that her sweetheart was coming down the street. When everyone turned to look she made a two base hit. (At least she was on second base when everyone turned around). At about this time Bun Quinn broke into tears because she wanted so badly to hit at the pretty ball. Nothing else would appease her so the Lambs had to go out in the field and the Kittens came to the bat. Bun went about hitting the ball in a very systematic manner. By long division and trigonometry she came to the conclusion that the ball would be two inches on the other side of her nose at the time she desired to hit it. However, by the time she decided this, it was too late and she had three strikes to her credit. She desired to have more but they were refused her.

Sis Jordan next came to the bat. She declared that she wouldn't play any more 'cause she didn't even want to hit the ole ball anyway. She was just waving at her boy friend. The other members of her team sided with her and the game was called off for the day. Miss Maude K. Taliaferro as umpire decided the score much to the satisfaction of everyone.

FIELD DAY RESULTS BREAK ALL S. T. C. RECORDS

—S. T. C.—

We are mighty proud of the results of field day this year, disregarding entirely the class element or who won the most points. We are proud for S. T. C. This year is our record-breaking year, in every event the score was better than we have ever made before. How we will compare with the other colleges who entered the telegraphic meet,— has not yet been ascertained—but as far as we compare with ourselves we've taken a long stride forward. We feel quite a thrill over our athletes.

THE FASHION SHOW

—S. T. C.—

Charming models! Lovely frocks! Attractive girls! Slender silk-clad ankles! Surely every modiste of Paris and Fifth Avenue lent his combined skill and effort to the fashioning of the beautiful models which were exhibited in the auditorium Wednesday evening at seven-thirty. The occasion was the annual Fashion Show of the classes in sewing. This included the work done by the training school classes as well as the college classes in sewing.

The range of dresses was wide, in-

ATHLETIC'S CONTRIBUTION.

——S. T. C.——

Are athletics essential or beneficial for the development of a girl or the standing of a school? Is an athlete only physically developed while the other phases of life are neglected? So after these two questions are asked and quite often the answer is given by one who has made no investigation to verify his conclusion. But, let us look at our own school and see what athletics have done for us.

In order to give the best and in turn receive the best from life we must be mentally, physically and morally efficient. An athlete has practical training in all three of these lines. He isn't merely told how to meet situations and is then given one situation after another and told us just how to meet each one as it comes. His lesson doesn't stop at this. He is given final tests—tests in experience in which he is thrown into many situations that demand immediate action. He has to apply in a practical and life situation what he has formerly learned.

Is mental training fostered in athletics? Well, if one's mind isn't developed when he has to decide quickly and clearly just what should be done every time immediate action is necessary, a better example cannot be given. Every time the body works the mind has decided how to work. Athletes are mentally developed. When looking over athletes it will be found that they are the ones who are the most practical in classes and that they get good grades. In fact, if they don't get an average grade they are not allowed to participate in athletics.

Moral lessons are also given an athlete. He is taught fairness and squareness of play, the necessity of grit and of consideration for others, and in general, the advantage and necessity of absolute true sportsmanship.

It is needless to tabulate the contribution made by athletics to the body development. This is the greatest and most evident contribution. To be physically fit is one of the blessings of life. No one can be physically fit without training of some form. Therefore athletics, by developing one mentally, morally and physically, are beneficial not only to the individual but also to the school.

——S. T. C.——

DON'T KNOCK—BOOST!

——S. T. C.——

If there is anything that makes co-operation, spirit and athletic backing impossible it is continuous knocking and nagging. It is just as disasterous to a school as water is to fire. No team, no student body or no individual is likely to improve under knocking blows. It is just the wrong method at the wrong time. If any one or anything need "jacking-up" any method is better than knocking. If one is dissatisfied with something a change can be obtained in any way better than by nagging. Try it.

There are so many things in athletics that we can boast of but there is one thing that deserves special mention. We have one of the best athletic equipments in the state. The athletic supply, which was practically nothing two years ago, now lacks nothing. Everything necessary for basketball, track, field events, and monogram practice is on hand. Not only are the supplies present for these things but there is also an A-1 place on which all these things can be played; tennis courts, a gymnasium and an athletic field. We also have the girls so why kick—boost!

THE FRIENDLY HEART

—S. T. C.—

Friend, universal, everlasting; supreme gift to man!
A spirit gropes in darkness
Seeking utterance to some human ear.
Thoughts are born and visions soar
But die or fall lest someone
Lends an understanding mind.
If no one's ear were e're attuned
To vibrations of a heart, panting
With its burden of overwhelming consciousness
Of love of man and thoughts of man-
The world would give no balm to bleding of enraptured souls.
Tho, far and wide I seek, I never should reach
The consolation of my grief, the inspiration of my life!
Thou, friendly heart, who comfort give to burdened mind,
Thou art the ruler of this universe!

BASKETBALL RESUME

—S. T. C.—

The slogan of our Basketball team this year was "A Victorious Varsity". As we look back upon our season—we see that we did have a victorious season.

The girls winning thir letters this year were:

Orline White (Guard). Orline played a steady game througout the season, in spite of a bad ankle. She defended the opponents goal so that it made it practically impossible for them to roll up the score.

Elizabeth Crute (Guard). Crutie helped to make our season a victorious one her outstanding work in the Harrisonburg game was noticed by all.

Jean Mitchell (Center). Jumping Jean would be a good nick-name for Jean. She did not only jump, but she showed some beautiful floor work. We wish that we were going to have Jean with us again next year.

Kitty Reid (Side Center). That streak of lightning that just passed was Kitty Reid. The passing in our center was the best in the State. Kitty was always just where she should be.

Helen Hall (Forward). Our steady forward, who rolled up the score for old S. T. C. Little Iris played a hard, steady game the whole season. We

INTERCLASS VOLLEY BALL RESUME

—S. T. C.—

Freshmen Champions

—S. T. C.—

Volley ball was introduced for the first time in our school last year and they who thought they could never make a class team were surprised to find a hidden talent that could serve and volley the balls over the net very easily.

The inter-class games were played after the basketball season just before the Easter holiday. The Juniors proved a too strong foe for the dignified Seniors, winning two successive games with scores 15 to 11 and 15 to 6.

The Sophomores and Freshmen clashed for the second time in their athletic career. The Sophomores who had never known defeat faced it when the Freshmen won two victories, 15—6 and 15—13.

The finals had to be played between the Juniors and Freshmen, sister classes. The green and white fought green and white but the Freshmen downed their older sisters the first game, 15—4. The Juniors realized that it wasn't such a joke to let their younger sisters beat them with such a score and put up a hard fight for the second game. This was the most exciting game of the season, the teams tieing the score 14—14. The side winning two successive points first would determine the winner. Luck seemed to be with the Freshmen and after a hard fought battle they achieved the coveted two points, thus winning the championship which gave them ten points toward the class cup.

TENNIS

—S. T. C.—

Each year the Athletic Council adds a new phase to its life. This year a tennis tournament was scheduled in which anyone in school could participate. It was decided that only singles would be played and a loving cup would be presented to the winner. Everyone had an equal chance, and everyone wondered who would "walk away" with the honor.

There were about thirty contestants in the tournament, and it took about three weeks to play off the preliminaries. The final tennis game was staged and the contest was a hard fought battle between Vincent of '27 and Morris of '29.

The first set was won by Morris with the score of 8—6. The second set was a game of endurance which finally ended in Morris' favor with a score of 6—3. Each girl proved more efficient in her "returning" than she did in her "serving".

Mildred Morris was the champion! She is the owner of the individual cup which the Athletic Association offered to the tennis champion of S. T. C. Who will be the champion next year?

The Athletic Association has decided to schedule an inter-class tennis tournament next year besides the indiivdual tournament. It is hoped that this will cause much enthusiasm and each class will try to produce the best team. From the appearance of the tennis courts now we foresee a very brilliant future for the tennis tournaments at S. T. C.

"When Issy appears on the court the crowd bursts into cheers," boasted a proud friend.

"Wonderful!" ejaculated the other. "Is she captain?"

"No,—the cheer leader."

"Mother", asked little Willie, "Is it wrong to pray for rain?"

"Of course not," she replied. 'Why?'

"I promised to take the girl next door to a ball game Saturday and I've just found out she doesn't know what an umpire is for."

VARSITY DEFEATS BEATEN-UP COLLEGE

—S. T. C.—

Last Friday night the Varisty Basketball team defeated Beatem-up College in a very interesting game. From the first minute of the game, when the referee, Miss Grace Russell, blew with excitement.

The entire team played a remarkable game, but the floor work of Mrs. Edwards was one of the most outstanding features. Her agility in covering the floor and her eye for the basket have not been equaled on the floor this year. Her co-worker, Anne Robinson, also played a good game, showing remarkable head work.

When the whistle blew the ball was easily tapped by our jumping center Kitty Moffitt to the side center, Rosalind Harrell. It was then quickly passed to Mrs. Edwards who gracefully and carelessly tossed a goal.

Our guards, Mary Booker and Katherine Dashields displayed excellent team work, throughout the game.

We are proud of our team, and we will back them to the bitter end.

Jackie Woodson then said a few words, expressing her appreciation of the honor given her, and her determination to give the best of herself to the Athletic Association and to carry on its work to the best of her ability. The record books were given to the new secretary and treasurer by the secretary and treasurer going out of office. The student body then arose and sang "Onward Farmville."

On leaving this office, "Zack" may carry with her the satisfaction of a job well done. She has done excellent work as president of the Athletic Association and has done much to build it up and place it upon its present high plane. In her place comes one who is thoroughly capable to carry on this work, and who will not fail to give her best to the Athletic Association and its work. She has the backing of a good corps of fellow workers, and with the support of the student body as a whole, we may hope for the fine work of this organization to be carried on efficiently throughout the coming year, and it is also hoped that athletics may be participated in by a greater majority of the school during 1927-'28.

THE MONOGRAM CLUB

—S. T. C.—

The Monogram Club is an organization which has come into its own for the first time, this year. Much interest in its activities has been shown throughout the school in all classes. Due to Miss Graham's work and interest the club has risen from something vague and unknown, to a real tangible factor in the athletics of the school. For the first time, also, a college monogram really means something to strive for, because to become the winner of one, a person has to attain a certain standard, which marks her as excelling in physical ability. The persons who have attained this standard and have won their monogram this year are:

Jackie Woodson
Jean Mitchell
Juliet Jones
Elizabeth Crute
Mary Smith
Elizabeth Epperson
Mary Jane Wilkinson

With the addition of these as members, even greater and better things are expected from the Monogram Club during the coming year.

"It Pleases Us To Please"

A Firm like an individual is always happy when its work pleases its customers, and this is the case with the pleasant dealings we have enjoyed with the Rotunda Staff this year. We feel, from some expressions made to us, that we have really accomplished something in our efforts to make the ROTUNDA better than ever before.

In some cases we have made mistakes, it is only human to make mistakes, but we have enjoyed the job of printing the Rotunda and "IT PLEASES US TO PLEASE."

At all times we solicit constructive criticism and appreciate our customers advice and wishes when we make up the job.

"MICE AND MEN" SHOWS TO CAPACITY AUDIENCE

The old saying to the effect that all things come to those who wait was amply justified in the estimate of a large an l enthusiastic audience which witnesse l on Friday night the delayed and long anticipated performance of "Miec and Men" by the Dramatic Club.

The production of this rather old fashione l and somewhat stereotypeu romance was charming in costume, pleasing in setting and entirely delectable in its presentation of a lovely heroine whose beauty and grace and natural ease and charm did much to compensate for her want of any great dramatic talent.

Miss Louise Brewer in the role of Mark Embury handled her inherently, somewhat monotonous part with remarkable ability. Her movements were marked by as much masculine dignity as it would be possible for a woman to attain and her voice was particularly pleasing in quality.

Miss Louise McCormick and Miss Amanda Grey in the roles of Capt. George Lovell, the dashing and romantic young lover and Roger Goodlake, the rheumatic and splenetic old gentleman, played their respective parts in a manner quite convincing.

As the beautiful coquette, "sweet sister Joanna," the spoilt and vain young wife of the doting Roger Goodlake, Miss Mary Morton Riddle measured well up to the high standard of beauty of person and charm of manner set by Miss Annie Griswold McIntosh in the role of Peggy, the naive and irresponsible 'foundling" who turns out to be her rival and the heroine of the play.

Miss Eleanor Bennett as Mrs. Deborah and Miss Virginia Graves as Peter performed their task of supplying the comic interludes and the explanation of situations with great success.

Miss Lucille Wright as Sir Harry Trimbletone showed considerable facility in the manipulation of a monocle. Miss Katherine Reid as Kit Barniger made a graceful dancing master and Miss Isabel Payne was a mirth-provoking kitchen maid.

Though they stand ast in the catalogue of characters, the orphans with the monitors, the Matron and the Beadle, were far from least in their share of the entertainment afforded

It would be indeed a gross oversight if mention were not made of the beautiful new curtain and charmingly decorated screens which made possible the effective settings of the play. To Miss Coulling assisted by Misses Carrie Sherin and Frances Willis our thanks are due for the artistic decoration of the screens.

THE FACULTY AND FINALS

The Seniors feel that their finals this year will be especially successful because of the cooperation of everyone who has been requested to help. For a long time each senior class thought that the Faculty should have a greater part in the exercises on the morning of Comemncement. As the candidates for degrees walked slowly by, they thought how much happier they would feel if the professor who had guided and instructed them thru four years were wearing the robes, their achievements entitled them to don. The Seniors of 1296, knowing the hearty spirit of enthusiasm anu cooperation always shown by the Faculty, requested that they wear caps and gowns on the morning of commencement. With bated breath they waited for a reply and—they were not disappointed!

One of our dearest dreams will come true: On the morning of June eigth, there will leave from the Student Building, as dignified a scholastic body as ever walked the grounds of an educational institution. The Faculty of S. T. C., in academic procession, will lead the graduates of 1926, down the stately colonnades of the State Teachers College toward the commencement of their professional life.

MISS LONDON RESIGNS AS Y. W. C. A. SECRETARY

It is with more regret than we know how to express that we learn of Miss Willie London's resignation, to take place in June. The school's record of Y. W. C. A. work for the past several years has owed its best to her. Not only the Cabinet girls have felt her influence, but her talks at prayers, her plans for the coming of new girls, her general attitude of comradeship and fellowship, have endeared her to the student body. She has been particularly competent and efficient as a Y. W. C. A. Secretary because she understands girls, how to work with them and how to bring out the best in them. Whatever her plans are for next year, she takes with her our love and our appreciation for the standard of Y. W. C. A. work she has modeled and is leaving us.

LETTERS TO THE GRADUATES

Dear Girls of 1924:

Don't you think you have been away from home long enough? We who are still at your Alma Mater feel that it is high time you were returning—returning for a visit at any time you can come, returning for Commemncement to see your sisters receive their degrees, and (best of all) returning as students for next fall so that these same sisters will have a good excuse for their own return in 1928 to see you receive your degrees.

With best wishes for each and every one of you,

Yours very truly,
J. L. JARMAN

Dear Girls:

Do you remember that when you were Freshman and Sophomores you had a "Silent Partner" who promised you that she would always be interested in your wefare and in all that concerned you and your happiness?

Whether you remember her or not, she remembers you and sends to you her best wishes and the hope that you will soon return to complete your course. A large number of your Class is going out this year—capped and gowned and hooded—and your Silent Partner hopes that from year to year some of you will come back to your Alma Mater so that she will, even in the years to come, still have some members of the Class with her.

She sends each and every one of you her love and best wishes and would love to see you back at any time.

COTILLION CLUB HAS PICNIC AT FARMVILLE LAKE

On Monday afternoon, May 24, 1926, the Cotillion Club had a glorious picnic at Farmville Lake. The girls left about four-thirty and returned about seven-thirty. They went out in a Ford truck and took a great deal of delicious food which was enjoyed by all after much scampering and playing around the lake. One of the best assets of the picnic was our ideal chaperone, Miss Iler. Everybody had a wonderful time and they are all looking forward to next year's picnic.

COLLEGE DAY

College Day at S. T. C. was Saturday, May 22, when all girls coming for their degree marched in after the Seniors, in chapel. Lucille Wright told, in a short talk, how her four successive years at college had been of benefit to her. On Thursday, May 20, Pauline White, a Junior, had pointed out some of the marked advantages attending a four-year college career.

On Tuesday afternoon, Miss Mix and Miss Stubbs entertained the members of Gamma Theta Sorority at a delightful picnic at Lithia Springs from five to seven-thirty o'clock.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

ARE YOU COMING BACK FOR A DEGREE?

From the present reports it seems that out of the Sophomore class of over three hundred girls only about fifty are returning for a degreee. This means that the Junior class of next year will fall below the standard, in number, of this year's Junior class and break our record of having a large degree class each year.

Have those girls who have decided to end their school days now, considered what this means? Have you thought of the advantages of having a degree and of the delight of two more years in college?

The time is soon coming when the teaches in every grade will be required to have a degree in order that the most proficient work may be done, because you are not taking Course IV does not mean that you have to change your course. A girl may get her degree working in any course now. Stop just once or twice and think what this degree will mean to you. Not only will a degree aid you materially in your life work, but the time that you spend here at S. T. C. working on a degree will be filled with the joys of school life, and in the making of life-long friendship. The first two years of college are bound to be adjustment periods to a great extent and when you return your third year, you will already feel that you have become adjusted.

Ask any junior or senior or any other student anywhere who holds a degree and see what they advise you to do. S. T. C. is an Alma Mater to be proud of and she wants to continue her record of an ever increasing number in the degree class. The class of 1928 can't be the one to let this record fall—so before you make up your mind to leave here forever as a student consider the thing from every standpoint and see if the greatest sacrifice will not be rewarded.

OUR ALUMNAE

As commencement draws near and all hearts turn to our Alma Mater as the soul center of thoughts, actions and interest, our alumnae will return in large numbers to witness again the final exercises of our school year. We look forward to their visit and are glad that this anticipation will soon be a realization.

It is a pleasure to see girls and talk to girls, who have had the same work, experienced similar joys and counteracted the same kind of tasks that we have had. We have so many common interests, that commencement without our alumnae would be incomplete. They are a necessary part of every big thing we do. They are "us grown up."

As we, who are now college students, are designated in large numbers each year to fill our places as worthy alumnae, we hope that the magnetic force which draws the present alumnae to us, will not only continue its influence in our lives, but will also give us the benficial influence over the future college students that the present alumnae has had over us.

DID YOU PARTICIPATE IN FIELD DAY?

"Hurrah! for Field Day, we're going to have holiday." Yes, that's the way more than half the school spent the day—as a holiday, disregarding what the holiday was given for. About a hundred girls, including contestants and spectators, were out on the field. Where were the other seven hundred? In bd, down town, loafing—enjoying "the holiday" in a purely selfish way. Dr. Jarman gave holiday Field Day in order that students of S. T. C. might participate or be spectators at the Inter-Collegiate telegraphic meet. There were only about sixty girls participating in any of the events. What kind of a Student Body have we that there should be only sixty students to uphold the athletic standing of their Alma Mater? Certainly more than 10 per cent of our Student Body are capable of entering some kind of athletic event. Perhaps some girls cannot enter any event, but at least all of our girls are able to stand up long enough to watch the meet. Those few girls who did watch the meet seemed to enjoy it immensely. The spirit of the few spectators was fine. Next year girls, let's show Dr. Jarman that we are interested in athletics by coming out 100 per cent strong. As either a contestant or a spectator, we can show our loyalty to S. T. C.

SECOND-HAND

Peg, big sister, had the choice of everything. She was not selfish, but it seemed always to fall to her lot to be the one to be suited. Then too, she was four years older than I, and that makes a bit of difference in having the choice of everything.

Billy, who was none other than I, had the choice of everything—everything that was left or handed-down by Peg. Sometimes I felt slighted. Sometimes I felt that Mother was unfair to me. Just because it happened to be my luck to be four years younger than Peg, was no reason why it should be my luck to get all the left-overs and hand-me-downs.

Peg was pretty. Somehow or other, "big sis" always is pretty or attractive in some way. The younger sisters and brothers always admire and copy her. But always secretly, by all means, never let "big sis" know that you really admire her or think she is pretty. Oh no, that would make her conceited. It there is anything little brothers and sisters detest, it is "prissyness." Anyway, Peg was a blonde with big blue eyes, and just about five-feet-two. Her red-rose mouth curled up in the corners with merriment. But those same blue eyes and red-rose mouth could make you shiver with fear. Peg was always the belle of the party. Boys liked her and would quarrel over the somehow-mixed-up-date. The best debater was the winner and the envied. Peg was sweet and lovable, a bunch of beauty and merriment.

Poor little me! I had none of these lovely characteristics. The best of families always has a black sheep and it was my luck, to be the black sheep in mother's family. I had only one freckle and that was all over my face; hair that never would stay straight; teeth that came in crooked; and legs that were all out of proportion with the rest of my body. That was I!

I shall never forget the dance Beverly Bell gave. It was in that springtime and someway or other (I don't exactly remember just how this did happen) I was invited to the dance given by Peg's friend, Beverly. Peg, of course, wanted a new dress. (I did too, but I never had any luck, so why want?) And Peg got the dress.

Peg had a beautiful little blue satin. I had always loved it and loved Peg in it. Why couldn't Peg wear it and let me have a new dress? No, after much persuading, Peg got the new gold lace dress and I got the remodeled blue.

Peg primped for that dance more than she had ever primped. (And that is saying a lot) It did not take me ten minutes to dress, I know. Mother fussed over me, but it was hopeless. I was made plain and plain I must be. I envied Peg. She was so adorable-looking in the new dress. I had learned by this time that it was needless to fret about my well-being I always got there and got back, so it was needless to worry about anything happening to me now.

Bob Harding was at the dance. He was the ambition of every female member of the younger set. Peg of course, had first choice. He "fell flat" for her.

* * * * *

That's been more than three years ago, now. Peg's married, but not to Bob. Oh, no, that was one time I liked Peg's hand-me-down. Bob is mine, all for "keeps."

PORTSMOUTH CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

On Friday, May 20, the Portsmouth Club met for the purpose of electing officers for 1927. After discussing some very important business the following officers were elected:

President ..... Grace George
Vice-President, Marjorie Westbrook
Secretary ..... Virginia Hanrahan
Treasurer ..... Marjorie Codd

We regret to say that some of our best members are leaving us, but with the whole-hearted cooperation of the old and new members we hope next year the Portsmouth Club will be one of the most successful clubs at S. T. C.

JAMES McNEILL WHISTLER

Someone has said, "Pictures make the personality of a home." Then we have much to be thankful for because our school is a home and a home with a personality. We have many, many beautiful pictures but one of those we love best is found in Miss Mary's sitting room. It is "The Portrait of the Artist Mother," by Whistler. I think the reason we love this picture is because of its simplicity. A figure of an old lady against a soft background, who from the folds of her black gown to her tiny lace cap gives one the feelingof tenderness and dignity. Charles Caffin in describing the picture says, "It is not the first blossoming of motherhood, but the ripened form of it that the mother feels as she looks back with a traveling gaze along the path of hopes and fears of joy and pain that she has trodden.

The artist of the picture—James A. McNeill Whistler—was an American. From the time he was twenty he made his home in foreign lands traveling from Japan to France and England. Thus we see the influence of the various schools in his painting. From the Japanese he learned the art of simplicity—that of the value of leaving out rather than putting in. However, he is so cosmopolitan in his art that American and European schools claim him.

Whistler is recognized as the most artistic of all modern artists and America is proud to claim him as one of her sons.

BEAUTY'S KINGDOM

I Dawn

The fairy maids of Princess Beauty
Are gathering dew drops,
To paint the morning sky.
Swiftly they scatter them, violet and gold.
A vaporous, misty cloud.
Now rises in the hazy distance.
Water lilies bloom on the shadowy lake.
Violets peep above a sea of blue.
Her crimson chariot rushes through the sky,
Scattering golden pollen.

II Moon Rise

The Princess Beauty summons her archers
To shoot spangled arrows into a dark blue canopy.
Slowly, yes, slowly the pale Queen rises from her throne
And stands looking through the trees,
And all is still.

PROMISE

I saw a rainbow upon the sky
A thing of color
Whose exquisite beauty
Was alike a pain and a caress
To my tormented soul.

The colors therein spreak,
Rose, green, and violet,
Flame, and molten gold
Glowed 'cross my vision bleared
By stains of worldliness.

Rose for promised joy, and green
The tender hope of youth;
Violet, exuisitely sad, the Pleasure—pain of transient grief
That gladdens life.

But flame—the color of a hurt,
A love-torn heart,
The ardent passion tint;
Last, gold—the vision held steadfast
Through the maze.
Divine light, divine promise,
Fulfilment.

Beginning Wednesday morning the classes, as is the usual custom, take part of the chapel hour to sing farewell sings to each other, the Faculty their honorary member, Dr. Jarman and the school. The sentiments expressed in these songs bring tears to our eyes and a pull on our heart strings, or else they bring laughter and mirth. However, they are beautiful and the sincerity with which they are sung truly makes us realize that school is drawing to a close and we have only a few more days together.

It is a beautiful custom and there surely can't be a more sincere and truly effective way of expressing love and arppeciation than through song. The songs are original ones written to familiar tunes. This old custom seems to be being carried out in its most beautiful form this year.

PICKNICKERS OF H.-S. C. AND S. T. C. HAVE JOLLY TIME

"In the Spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of . . . ." well, in this instance to weenies and marshmallows toasted over an outdoor fire, and to fun galore that always goes with an informal, truly picnic supper. It all grew out of the delightful invitation of the Hampden-Sidney Y. M. C. A. cabinet to the S. T. C. Y. W. C. A. cabinet girls, asking them to an outing to Farmville Lake Saturday afternoon. Of course, Miss London was chaperone and you know how her smile sort of gives everybody that holiday feeling, don't you? Even the weather could not daunt the crowd, for when the rain started to fall, they removed themselves and the fire to the pavilion and staged an "indoor outing." The minor casualties such as pushing one stubborn car up the hill, and "Cille" Wright and Dickie Dudley suffering a collision in the strenuous game of "cat and rat", and our opposing debate of the night before, eating innumerable and countless potato chips haven't resulted in any dire results. Pannie Willis' memoirs on 'My First Atempt at Fire Making' ought to prove interesting reading some day.

It may be original to have a picnic under any roof other than the sky—but the suggestion is passed on as a good one to any crowd that hopes to have a thoroughly jolly time, as the two cabinets had Saturday!

AMONG THE CAPS AND GOWNS

OLIVE SMITH BOWMAN

Olive hails from the sunny South, Georgia, to be exact, and we are here to say that it was a happy day for S. T. C. when she decided to become one of her daughters. She has the honor of possessing the most well-rounded personality on our campus. Her versality is astonishing for she excels in every line, athletics, literary, artistic, musical, forensic, and commercial. She excels or should we say precedes in still another line, that is matrimonial. Her happy and contented mein this year has caused even the most misanthropic senior to resolve not to teach long. Finally, she is a leader, spiritually, intellectually and practically, one whom her class mates, as well as the Faculty, delight to honor and praise.

ELEANOR ZACHARIAS

"Zac" is an ideal girl. She is one who can play as much as she wants to, work as hard as the most busy, study as well as the most studious, and get the biggest results from all she does. When a girl puts her very best into her work, she cannot fail to get good results from it; and we all know that "Zac" has gone at everything she has done with a zest.

Everyone loves to be with "Zach", she is refreshingly different and very lovable. When some one said "To see her is to love her" we had no idea that those words applied to one Eleanor Zacharias—but they do and we are glad that we've had the pleasure of knowing her and of loving her.

ANNE ROBERTSON

Anne is our most intellectual Senior,, also one of the most capable and dependable girls in school. She has served her Alma Mater in many capacities during her four years here, and the school will feel her departure keenly in the years to come.

The Freshmen are especially dependent upon Ann, since she possesses untold knowledge of birds, flowers, trees and bugs—any time you see Anne she is surrounded by a group of Freshmen clamoring for advice concerning the weed or questioning the singing of some bird heard in the grey dawn. For Anne we wish success and greatest happi-

MON.—Hoot Gibson in THE SADDLE HAWK. A picture for all lovers of the great open spaces. Full of real, honest-to-goodness "He" man action and all the other things to make it a real Western picture. Filmed in the real Oregon cattle country—against nature's most beautiful settings. Also 6th episode of THE SCARLET STREAK.

TUES. JACK HOXIE and FRANCIS FORD in RIDIN' THUNDER supported by the famous Ranch Riders. A strong western drama, chuck full of breathless thrills, suspense and a beautiful love story. A strange telephone message! A secret letter! A mysterious shot! A man found dead on the floor of a ranch house. Who killed him. Also Pathe News.

WED.—William Desmond and Ann Forrest in RIDIN' PRETTY. He was an innocent, trustful millionaire cowpuncher in love with a beautiful city adventuress, until she reformed and ran away with him. And then what did he do? see the answer in this picture. Here's a big laugh and a big thrill for everyone. Also 6th episode of THE WINKING IDOL.

THURS.—Bebe Danies and Harrison Ford in LOVERS IN QUARANTINE. A Paramount picture. It happened this way. He was handsome and didn't like her. She was a go-getter and liked him. So when he thought he was eloping with another girl—he found himself on shipboard—along with her. Then complication, and th epidemic of fun spreads like wildfire. Also good comedy. Matinee 4 o'clock.

FRI.—Claire Windsor, Eugene O'Brien, Claire Adams, George Faucett, and Eileen Percy in SOULS FOR SABLES. A special Paramount Production. What would you do for a Sable Coat? Her insatiable desire for beautiful things wrecked Alice Garlan's bark of love on the rocks of extravagance. This is a lavish production with beautifully gowned women. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

SAT.—Baby Peggy and Clara Bow in HELEN'S BABIES, adapted from the world's greatest seller by John Habberton. This novel has been read by millions in amost every home in the civilized universe. It is the story of a "Wise" bachelor who wrote articles on how to bring up babies and then fell down miserably when he found himself up against the real thing. Also first episode of a new serial THE FLAME FIGHTER. Two shows 7:15 and 9:00.

SPLENDID LECTURES HOLD STUDENTS ATTENTION ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS

Messrs. Thomas Skeyhill and Hindus Speak in Chapel and at Night

When S. T. C. awoke Wednesday morning, May 26, it was unaware of the pleasant surprise which awaited it. The students got up and went thru the daily routine and things happened as they had daily until chapel time. Then our surprise came. Yes, on the 10:26 train in the form or rather forms of two men, Mr. Skeyhill and Mr. Hindus. Dr. Jarman had asked us in the beginning of chapel to wait a few minutes until he came back. We did wait,—some rather impatiently. Finally he came back with a man, which was nothing unusual, since we have many men to come with Dr. Jarman to lecture to us. After a small introduction by Dr. Jarman, the man, Mr. Skeyhill, arose and began to talk to us; not to lecture to us, not to speak to us but to talk to us; to tell us things we would be interested in.

Five minutes after he began the student body realized this was a different kind of speaker and ten minutes after, he had every person interested and eager to know what he was going to say next. He began with a short and very informal introduction and then passed on to his subject, which was, "Three Attempts to Reach the Top of Mount Everest." He told not only about the people that organized these expeditions and about their efforts on the mountain but he also brought in something of the people and country of Tibet, where Mount Everest is located. His description was detailed to the extent that everyone in the audience had a clear picture in her mind. He brought before us the courage and endurance of man and also some of the old world. His talk was very good and the time passed almost before anyone knew it.

Not only was his talk interesting but he had a personality, which on the stage, reached out and held the audience, until he had finished what he was saying. His stage manner was unusual and much to be admired. He stood erect,—never shifting from one foot to the other,—never gesturing but speaking right to his audience in a straight-forward, clear manner.

All day long the school buzzed—buzzed about Mr. Skeyhill,his talk and the man he had brought with him, a Mr. Hindus. Mr. Skeyhill is an Australian and Mr. Hindus a Russian.

Mr. Skeyhill was to give a lecture at seven in the auditorium and at twenty minutes to seven the girls began to fill the seats. By the time he was here the auditorium was filled. His subject that night was "Mussolini and Fascism." How many in that audience knew about Mussolini and Fascism when they came in is not known but how many knew when he finished is known. Everyone did.

Mr. Skeyhill's lecture began with Mussolini as a boy, his life until he began to fiddle with politics and express his radical ideas and then along with his life Skeyhill brought in Fascism, what it was, what it did and what it accomplished. He developed the whole movement for us and showed us, by first explaining Mussolini's character, how Mussolini was the only man in Italy to head and carry out this rebellion. He described for us so vividly the Fascists as they came to Rome that we could feel tense excitement and sympathy for them. Then when he told about Mussolini's entrance and exit from the legislature house of Rome we felt as though Mussolini was right there in our midst. Finally he drew his speech to a close by comparing America's democracy with such an autocratic form of government and why Mussolini is able to carry on this government. After he finished we did not care to leave the world of imagination about Italy for the very realistic study of our commonplace subjects.

The next morning, Thursday, chapel was filled, every seat possible being taken. You ask why.-Mr. Skeyhill was going to talk of course. That morning he told us the lecture he was to give was one of his favorites, "The Young Elizabethans." He depicted the men of England that went to fight in the World War as adventurers of Queen Elizabeth's time. He said that many of these adventurers were poets. He compared the poets of the World War with those of other wars and one striking point he brought out was the fact that the verse-makers of former wars were not men who went to fight while the poets of the late war were men who were out on the front lines. Then he gave us all a treat by repeating some of the poems of the World War. He brought to us that day something which we will never forget.

The next and last time Mr. Skeyhill spoke was Thursday night. He had been here in March and had given a lecture called "The Trojan Way." This had, unfortunately been on a Saturday night and in comparison with the number of students in school only a few attended. At the request of Dr. Jarman Mr. Skeyhill consented to repeat the lecture that night. Again the auditorium was filled and that night his speech turned out to be one of the most graphic, vivid, and interesting descriptions ever given in this auditorium. It was about the war on Turkey which took place in Dardanelles section of south eastern Europe. His description was so vivid, his words so well chosen that every one in the audience could not only see the scene but the wonderful coloring of the water, land, sky and objects in that semi-tropical setting. His purpose was, I believe, to show

Sophomores Hold Cup For Another Year

Tuesday morning was a joyful time for athletes and friends of these athletes—in other words, for our school. For on this morning at chapel the final awards were made by the president of the Athletic Association to the following:

Numerals for Base Ball

Headley 1927	Woodson 1928
Cloud (R) 1928	Putney 1928
Dulaney 1928	Pugh 1928
Snyder (L) 1929	Rucker (V) 1929
Lane 1929	Wells 1929

Whitehurst

Monograms Were Awarded To:

Bowman	Smith (A)
Wright (L)	Rucker (F)
Asher	Daniel
Pugh	McClenny
Jarman (G)	Snyder
Burch	Euban
Talley	Hardy
Wells	French

And finally, the points toward the cup.

Seniors—Monograms	10
Juniors—Old English F	10
Freshman—Field Day	10
Freshman—Volley Ball	10
Sophomore—Basket ball	10
Sophomore—Class Day	10

This gave the Sophomores a lead over all other classes and gave them the privilege and honor of having their colors on the cup for another year. Long live the Sophomores—may they come back 100 per cent strong to defend their colors next year and try again to put their colors on the cup in 1927!

CLASS SONGS IN CHAPEL

Beginning Wednesday morning the classes, as is the usual custom, take part of the chapel hour to sing farewell sings to each other, the Faculty, their honorary member, Dr. Jarman and the school. The sentiments expressed in these songs bring tears to our eyes and a pull on our heart-strings, or else they bring laughter and mirth. However, they are beautiful and the sincerity with which they are sung truly makes us realize that school is drawing to a close and we have only a few more days together.

It is a beautiful custom and there surely can't be a more sincere and truly effective way of expressing love and appreciation than through song. The songs are original ones written to familiar tunes. This old custom seems to be being carried out in its most beautiful form this year.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM

PROGRAM FOR ALUMNAE DAY, JUNE FIFTH

The annual business meeting of the Association of Alumnae of the College will be held in the Auditorium of the Student Building on Saturday morning, June 5, at 10 o'clock. At this time the returning Alumnae will be welcomed by Dr. Jarman and the business and other activities of the Association will be reported upon.

At one o'clock luncheon will be served in the Tea Room. All Alumnae wishing to reserve plates are requested to do so as soon as possible by notifying Miss C. B. Taliaferro or Mrs. M. B. Coyner. The price of the plate is $1.50.

At eight o'clock in the Main Auditorium the annual address to the Alumnae will be delivered by Dr. Fannie Wyche Dunn of Columbia University. Dr. Dunn is Professor in the Department of Rural Education in Teachers College and has made notable contributions not only in her chosen field but also in that of Elementary Education. She is a speaker of note, having delivered addresses in many colleges of many states. It is also of special interest to know that Dr. Dunn was a former resident of Farmville and a member of the College faculty. The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Following the address, the annual reception given to the graduates and alumnae will be given in the parlors of the College.

AN APPRECIATION

Regretting Miss Willie London's resignation as secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association and wishing to express our appreciation of what she has meant to the spiritual life the college, we, the Advisory Board of the Association, adopt the following resolutions:

First, that we value highly her sympathy, her understanding and love of people, especially of girls, her kindly judgments, and her tact in dealing with the varied problems of the Association;

Second, that we aprpeciate her untiring devotion and singleness of purpose in deepening the spiritual life of our college;

Third, that we recognize her success in leading students to high Christian standards.

MU OMEGA PICNIC

On Wednesday afternoon, June 2, 1926, the Mu Omega Sorority had a picnic at Farmville Lake. The girls left about four-thirty and returned about seven-thirty. They carried a great deal of delicious food. Miss Wheeler acted as an ideal chaperone for the occasion. Every one had a lovely time.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES HELD FROM JUNE 5 TO 8.

Commencement festivities will be opened on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock with the Senior-Sophomore dances on the front campus. "Springtime in Hellas," a fantasy covering a period of one day, from early morning to night will be presented. The principal characters will be:

Daphne	Gertrude Quinn
Apollo	Evelyn Peake
Pan	Evelyn Bell
Aurora	Helen Hodges
Diana	Virginia Boyd
Night	Gertrude Quinn
Butterflies:	Elsie Gibson, Katherine Reid.

At 9 P. M., following the alumnae reunion a reception will be given to the Seniors and Sophomores. They are permitted to invite two guests and all alumnae will be cordialy welcome.

Sunday, June 6, at 6:45 P. M., the Seniors will hold a very impressive Vesper Service led by Ann Smith. At 8 P. M. the Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Dr. H. H. Covington, of Norfolk, Va.

Monday will be observed by both classes as Class Day. The Sophomores exercises will take place in the auditorium at 10:30 A. M. At 4:30 P. M. Senior exercises will take place on the College campus. They will be opened with the beautiful custom which has prevailed for some years in the College, the Daisy Chain precession of the Seniors accompanied by their Junior girls. At 8 P. M. "Mice and Men", will be presented for the benefit of the visitors and the half of the student body that were unable to see the first production.

The graduating exercises at 11 A. M. Tuesday, will close 1926 Commencemnt. Dr. Wilson Gee of the University of Virginia will deliver the address. Miss Mary Alice Blanton will be Salutatorian and Mrs. Olive Smith Bowman, Valedictorian. The conferring of the degrees and diplomas will close the pragram and bring to an end the college year.

VIRGINIA CLUB MEETS WITH COUNTY COUNCIL

On Monday evening, May 31st, the Virginia Club, and two of the sociology classes in school met with the Prince Edward County Council in the Lion's Den of the Weyanoke Hotel.

Mr. Taylor, president of the council presided and welcomed the College girl on behalf of the Council. A delightful musical program opened the meeting. The program consisted of three numbers. Miss Mebane Hunt, accompanied by Miss Virginia Vincent sang two numbers and Miss Florence Crawley gave a piano solo.

Afterthe musical program Miss Stubbs, active vice-president of the Virginia Club and Secretary of the County Council presented Mrs. Ed-

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

SENTIMENT AT GRADUATION.

Sentimentality is not considered good taste. In fact it has come to be looked upon as connoting something of the insincere; and maybe its frequent corruptions have justified this tendency toward that reaction. However, we feel that the sentiments coming to the minds of us at S. T. C. this June have a basis which cannot be called softness.

Let us review briefly the springs from which these sentiments rise; for after all that is what counts.

It is natural after living in one home for nine months, to become attached to that domicile, even though one may abuse and revile it at times. And in the rather emotional stress of parting with best friends perhaps forever—or so our thoughts are apt to run—a sentimental feeling for the dear Alma Mater springs suddenly into existence. The halls and columns of our stately college seem the happiest of settings for the happiest years of our lives—the carefree, jubilant college years. After all what is it that makes the throat clog and the eye moist when Finals come and those who are leaving for good walk up and down the campus for the last time? It is more than the thought of friends to be separated; it is even more than the mere thill of a period in our lives ended. It is above all a certain something that subtly radiates from every arcade walk, every classic column, and every graceful tree. It is the background of the past in which pain and pleasure have played such a big and inspiring part.

"Thy halls and arcades with their calm classic air,
Thy campus with blossoms perennially fair,
Thy trees and thy fountain, thy vine-covered walls
Will live in their memory whatever befalls.
Tho' far from thy care and protection they roam
They still hold thee dear as a well beloved home."

Finals and the end of the year may ever take away a rich stream of the young womanhood that has been maintaining the life of S. T. C. for years; and yet the following fall brings new women who, with inspirations left by those gone before, do "carry on." Commencement is truly for those leaving; the beginning of their life work—yet how real also is it a commencement for those remaining; a beginning of their responsibility in carrying on the life of the college.

So those of us who remain feel this and realize our responsibility and privilege. It is for us to keep faith, "to lift it high!"—V. W. B.

GREETINGS TO ALUMNAE!

It is with great pleasure that we welcome the alumnae back for Commencement. They are always welcome and it does us all good when we realize that the girls who have left have not lost interest, but still come back. Our alumnae are a vital part of the College and the more who return the more we feel like rejoicing.

Perhaps this is as good a time as any to express our thanks to the alumnae for the many ways they have aided us. The spirit which they keep up throughout the State, and the large sums that they have sent us for the Student Building have spurred us on to work in order to feel worthy.

The Sophomores and Seniors of this year will soon be among our alumnae and we are counting on them not only to help keep up the spirit but to make it even finer.

We're mighty glad to have every one of the alumnae here, and we hope that the inspiration they may gain from seeing Commencement and by noting our progress, will draw them even closer to us and encourage them to come back more often.

AMERICAN LEGION DANCE

A number of S. T. C. girls, chaperoned by Mrs. Laing, attended the dance given by the American Legion, at the Armory on Thursday night.

The hall was beautifully decorated with flags, and punch was served by Mrs. Garland throughout the entire dance. There was round dancing and square dancing, while the figures were called by Mr. John Stokes. The girls who attended declared it a perfect success.

LECTURES HOLD STUDENTS

the horror and futility of war. From the time he began he held the audience in a breathless spell. When the abrupt end came silence reigned and no one seemed to realize that the world that they had been allowed to peep at had been cut off.

This was the last that was seen of Mr. Skeyhill on the stage but he was often on the campus and between signing annuals and playing tennis he was talking to the girls in a friendly manner.

His friend, a Russian named Hindus, came with no intention of making any speech whatsoever but he gave in and talked in chapel. His subject was "Adventures in the Old World." By the way of introduction he told something of his own life, a few incidents which took place when he was living in a tenement house in New York City. His speech covered some thing of Copenhagen in Denmark, also Denmark's countryside, Stockholm in Sweden and then he passed on to Finland. He brought out many of the customs and idiosyncracies of those people. He had to bring his speech to a close rather abruptly because of lack of time since the chapel period was nearly up.

Saturday morning he also spoke and continued his subject of the day before "Adventures in the Old World.' He dwelt on or rather built up his speech around Russia and the Russian peasants. First, he told us of the difficulty of obtaining permission to enter Russia. Then he informed us of many of the conditions existing among the peasant class and also of many of their customs and their manner of living. As before he had to stop because of the brevity of time although we would have liked to have heard more. Mr. Hindus, we understand, is leaving for Russia in two weeks and along with him go our wishes for a great deal of success in his trip.

Never have any lectures at S. T. C. been enjoyed as much and this week-end will remain long in the memories of all the girls.

PICNIC AT WILLIS MOUNTAIN

On Saturday aftrnoon, May 29, the girls of Cottage K had a delightful picnic at Willis Mountain. The girls left soon after dinner and went in a truck. Much pep was shown in the songs on the rides, but the real test of sportsmanship was shown when every girl climbed to the top of the mountain. Many pictures were taken of the girls "Sitting on Top of the World." The appetite which resulted from the climb up the peak was satisfied with the most delicious picnic food to be had.

PEGGY REVERSES STUDIO ETHICS IN HER NEWEST

"Stepping out of your char- is a pupular bit of witticism in the flapper language today. Flapper phrases flap and like the forty-inch width for the cuffs of men's pants, they are the rage of today and ancient history for the "morrow."

acter" has and always will be a vital part of the mental equipment of every actor and actress who aspires to success. They have got to "get into" the part they play. For instance, if an actor, fond of snappy attire in real life, were to appear in that outfit in a part in a picture which necessitated his resorting to the mannerisms of a stevedore there would be no such things as serious pictures . . . everything would be burlesque comedies.

In "Helen's Babies" appearing at the EACO theatre Saturday, June 5, Baby Peggy, who is starred in this Principal Pictures Master Production, just reverses studio ethics. She is just her own self since the part she plays is that of "Toddie" and, as "Toddie" is a genuine, fun-loving and affectionate youngster, the reason is quite obvious. Adv

PICNIC FOR BIOLOGY CLASS

On Wednesday afternoon, May 26, a delightful picnic was given by Mr. and Mrs. Fattig to the students majoring and minoring in Biology. Two cars and a large bus conveyed the "picnicers" to Farmville Lake where, about six o'clock, a delicious sandwich supper was served, which included everything one could possibly desire or had ever associated with picnics, from pickle to ice cream. They returned about seven after the most enjoyable of picnics. The members of the Biology Class wish to express their appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Fattig for such a wonderful afternoon.

ON FALLING

I've always had the highest respect for babies because they are the only people in the world who can fall all over themselves without seeming to feel the slightest humiliation. They fall on their sides and have to be picked up; they fall on their backs and roll; they sit down heavily and scramble up themselves; but the only time when they seem to object at all is when they fall on their heads, and then I don't think they feel at all humiliated. Their equanimity excels that of older persons.

Have you ever noticed how very much irritated a man is when he slips on a banana peel or loses his balance on an icy street? He hastily collects himself, rises, and rushes off, with many agonized backward glances, hoping fervently that nobody he knew saw him, and cursing violently to himself. But perhaps we should class adults as extremists in this behavior.

Little girls don't like to fall down, mainly because it soils their nice, fresh dresses. The effects of the fall itself receive no consideration whatever, as long as the dress is not hurt.

But the ideal way to behave is to behave as little boys do when they fall. They don't have to be picked up; they don't curse; they don't cry; and they don't care if their clothes are dusty. They "grin and bare it," beautifully, to all outward appearances, but I've always suspected that deep in their hearts is a firm determination to get it back on the fellows who tripped them. Since everybody does, I suppose it's human nature to resent a fall, but I wish somebody would please tell me why.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN SENIORS

The Seniors were entertained by the Juniors Tuesday afternoon in the recreation hall at a charming tea. The hall was artistically decorated to represent a Japanese tea garden and tea was served by pretty Japanese maidens.

Music was played during the tea. A few solos were rendered by Miss Mebane Hunt and a recitation by Miss Lorah Brewer.

The afternoon was made more enjoyable by the presence of Dr. Jarman, Miss Mary, and the Junior class man, Miss Grenels.

Everyone fully enjoyed the hour which was concluded by the singing of "Alma Mater."

Y. W. C. A. WELCOMES NEW GIRLS

The Y. W. C. A. Cabinet entertained between bells on Thursday night at a delightful party in honor of the girls who entered S. T. C. in March. The social committee served delicious refreshments. Misses Lorah Brewer and Alma Trafton entertained the girls, Lorah Brewer with a short, but humorous reading and Alma Trafton with several piano selections. Everyone apparently had a lovely time and left reluctantly when light bell brought an end to the party.

ROTUNDA STAFF TREATS ITSELF

Gives Itself a Very Good Time

At daybreak somewhere around six thirty o'clock on Wednesday, June 2 the Rotunda Staff ate breakfast. Eating breakfast isn't such an unusual occurance to the staff, but breaking their fast in the meadow among the birds, and wide open spaces may be considered "different" at any rate. Habits are difficult to break, so these intellects simply continued their fixed habits. Instead of folding Rotundas, the folded nice delicious dark-brown black spotted, bacon into rolls. The dogs barked so they gave them some dog like attention and immediately consumed them. The staff is original to the fullest extent; therefore, they would not be so commonplace as to have muddy coffee. They became frivolous and drank dark liquid out of a bottle which made them all somewhat "dopy."

Then a terrible thing occurred and it isn't even news for the reporters. A large size cow, and a mammoth horse rushed on from both sides. But the staff did not elect an editor-in-chief for nothing. She showed her executive ability as soon as possible, ordered the grand cows, and obtrusive horse to go away. The animals fled. The staff ate on!

A clear call sounded in the distance, not the "Call of the Wild," but the call of the intelligent, so grabbing a dish, a spoon, a coco-cola top each after telling everybody else of the grand time she was having, each member answered the call, better known as the bell.

Lucy Haile—"Lordy—Eleanor has eaten a whole can of plums."

Dolittle—"Gosh—call the plumber—quick!"

VIRGINIA CLUB MEETS

wards, president of the Virginia Club. Mrs. Edwards stated the purpose of the club that of serving the State in the most constructive manner possible.

The Virginia Club has been working on a servey of Prince Edward County. The work has been carried on by various committees. Every member of the club being on some one committee. These various committees appointed chairmen to give a brief digest of the work done by that committee at the meeting with the Council. The folowing digest was given:

1. History of Prince Edward County ..... Alice Anderson
2. The Counties' Towns, Elizabeth Bugg
3. Counties Natural Resources Audrey Chewning
4. County's Industries, Bessie Gordon Jones
5. The County's People, Anne Robertson
6. The Schools of Prince Edward County ..... Daphne Gilliam
7. The County's Food, Gertrude Quinn
8. The Library Committee, Grace Chambers
9. Report from Sociology Class ..... Eleanor Bennett

Most interesting facts were gained from these reports, and the committee reported that they had found the people of the county not only willink but anxious to aid in the research work.

Nearly every committee felt that their work had only been begun and that there is stil a wide field to be covered. The county's towns and the county's industries seemed to have been more nearly completed than had the others, owing to the availability of the material. Some very interesting historical facts were given and some interesting statistics in regard to schools and population were quoted. As a result of the reports everyone interested was avahind and we are looking forward to a completion of the survey next year.

After the reports from the Virginia Club had been completed Judge Watkins thanked the girls on behalf of the County Council, and assured them that they had the sincere thanks and cooperation of the entire county.

The members of the club and of the sociology class enjoyed the opportunity of meeting with the Council, and they all hope that as our work is done they may again have the chance to share their results with this interested group.

"THE POWER THAT LIES BEHIND THE THRONE"

To Miss Barlow, an indispensable power, the Sophomore and Senior classes wish to express their appreciation. Without her aid and ready assistance May Day would have been impossible and the artistic dances to be presented during Commencement would have been a failure. It is hard for an audience to realize the work that is necessary to make such an undertaking possible. Miss Barlow has given her time, energy and enthusiasm to make such activities a success and it is with grateful hearts we express our appreciation to her.

We also wish to thank the committees assisting her.

Music—Helen Hodges, Margaret Wilkins.

Dance—Gertrude Quinn, Virginia Boyd, Evelyn Peake.

Costume—Clara Thompson, Hattye Blankinship.

DRAMATIC CLUB GIVES PICNIC

Much to the delight of all the dramatic ability in school, last Saturday proved to be a delightful "picnic day." At four o'clock William was ready with the truck. All of the "dramatics" placed themselves within the truck, leaving large, wide spaces for packages of food. And such food! The party went to Farmville Lake, the Dramatic Club had the honor of having Mr. Skeyhill and Mr. Hindus as their guests. After playing, joking, and talking intelligently a few minutes, food was suggested. A suggestion of food on a Dramatic Club picnic means action! Everyone helps to unwrap sandwiches, open "dopes," discover special choice pieces of pickle, see how much cream one cone could hold, and in general, tried to find out how much one member could consume. After having a very delightful time, they piled into the truck again. This time no room was left for food? The picnic proved to be an excellent rehearsal of happiness, much to the satisfaction of Miss Wheeler, whom everyone was so glad to have on the party.

At The Eaco Theatre Next Week

MON. Hoot Gibson in TAMING THE WEST. Here is the swiftest romance that was ever put on the screen. Just one continuous whirlwind of bucking brocs, fist fights, love-making, speeding automobiles and galloping hoofs. Adapted from "The Range Dwellers" by N. M. Bowers. It's about a wild riding cowboy who stepped on the gas. Also episode 7 of SCARLET STREAK.

TUES.—Jack Hoxie in DON DARE-DEVIL, a picture of fiery Spanish beauties, quick action outlaws and a big gang of devil-may-care ranch riders galloping hell-for-leather in a big gun battle behind their reckless boss, Don Dare Devil. Just one big whirl of exictement and romance. Also Pathe News.

WED.—William Desmond in STRAIGHT THROUGH, a clean, rousing drama of the catte country and filled with the thunder of flying hoofs and spectacular fights, with the famous ranch riders. Talk about fight! If you want to see a real "he" man scrap don't miss the tremendous battle between the gambler and big Bill. Also 7th episode of THE WINKING IDOL.

THURS. & FRI.—Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery in THE PONY EXPRESS, a Special Paramount Picture. The Pony Express rides the trails of thrills again. Pony hoofs thunder across the continent from Missouri to California, and East and West are linked again as they were in 1860. Across 2,000 miles of unblazed tract. Thru scortching sun andblack of night. Through ice and snow and raiding Indians. Eight days and nights of perilous riding and unmatched heroism. From this thrilling page of history, the screen's greatest director of epic romances has wrought his successor to The Covered Wagon. Not for a day, not for a year it will live in the heart of America forever! Also good comedy.

SAT.—Kenneth Harlan, Helen Chadwick, Mary Carr and Rosemary Theby in "THE RE-CREATION OF BRIAN KENT from the famous novel by Harold Bell Wright. There is sweetness and irrisistible power in this play with a man who lost faith in himself by trusting a frivolous woman, and who "found" himself through his love for a loyal woman. It will play on your heart strings and bring forth the music of better emotions. Also second episode of THE FLAME FIGHTER. Two shows at 7:15 and 9 o'clock.

NEW GIRLS ENTERTAINED AT OPENING RECEPTION

Friday evening found the Recreation Hall the scene of one of the most enjoyable receptions the school has ever had. The faculty, town ministers and students were all present and everyone seemed to enjoy the delightful program. Of course, the new girls were guests of honor, and the first part of the evening was given over to dancing and "getting acquainted."

Mebane Hunt sang several lovely selections and Alice Davis of Norfolk, a new student, proved herself a 'find,' in the songbird line. Lorah Brewer gave a musical reading with a musical accompaniment by Virginia Burks. Eleanor Bennett pepped up all with several songs and Virginia Vincent and Virginia Potts rendered a piano duet.

After refreshments were served, the Farmville Band entertained with selections out on the campus. All in all, it was a jolly gathering—this first affair of the year for making Freshmen at home and acquainted.

DRAMATIC CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The Dramatic Club held the first meeting of the year on Monday night, at which time officers were elected.

The club decided to have "try-outs" for membership on Monday night, October fourth at seven-thirty. A "try-out" committee was elected, which consisted of, Lucy Haile Overbey, Louise Brewer, Louise McCormick, Miss Wheeler and Miss Lewis.

Officers were elected to serve during the years 1926-1927. They were:

President	Lucy Haile Overbey
Secretary	Anne Ferree
Business Manager	Evelyn Dulaney
Stage Manager	Frances Willis
Property Mgr.	Louise McCormick
Costume Mgr.	Racheal Patton
Musical Director	Virginia Potts

THINK IT OVER

Due to the fact that Sara Fox, and Marion Chewning did not return to school, the positions of Editor-in-Chief and Assistant Editor of The Virginia are vacant. We are more than sorry that these girls aren't with us, and we will miss them many times. However, we must have someone to take their places. An election will soon be held and we will be asked to nominate a girl to take the places. So, think it over, don't have to nominate on the spur of the moment, be prepared to vote intelligently.

Besides these vacancies there is a most important position on the Student Committee which must be filled. Pauline Stallard, Chairman of Campus League has decided to live in town this year, so we must elect someone to take her place. We'll have to think again, let's have our motto, "Be Prepared" and have a 100 per cent intelligent election.

LARGEST ENROLLMENT IN HISTORY OF COLLEGE

FRESHMEN VIEW THEMSELVES

Monday night, the Freshmen were afforded an excellent opportunity to view "themselves as others see them," and the old girls saw themselves as they used to be.

"Red" Foster and Eleanor Bennett represented two types of Freshmen—the one, happy, laughing, ready and willing to serve, to grow and develop; the other,—bored, "griped to death," sour on the world. One joined the Y. W. C. A., was eager to respond to the call of Jackie Woodson seeking Freshmen for Athletics, to offer her services for our college paper, The Rotunda, and to start the year right by keeping all rules.

Eleanor was truly bored, tired, and weary, because she had not entered into the various activities; she had not caught the spirit of S. T. C. After talking with an old girl, she finally decided that she was missing something and that she would give her best and try to be the ideal Freshman.

She could lead cheers and songs, as she afterward proved. Now, we're expecting all the Freshmen to fall in line, catch the Farmville spirit, and spend a glorious year in the best place in the world!

PATRONIZE THE TEA ROOM

Freshmen, have you seen the Tea Room? No? Well, just ask any old girl to show you the way to it.

Of course our dining room food is excellent, but occasionally one does like to order exactly what one likes. Then again, you may have special guests you want a private talk with—take them to the Tea Room. The student's families always seem to enjoy a meal there and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Gish have gone to extra trouble this year to make it unusually attractive. Show them your appreciation by patronizing them, and remember that the proceeds go toward the Student Building.

TO THE ALUMNAE

Dear Alumnae:

Are you interested in your Alma Mater? Would you like to be informed each week as to the happenings at S. T. C.?

We know you are interested and anxious to know all the many things we are doing and we too are anxious for you to know them. Now show us that you are interested in what we are doing by mailing your subscription of one dollar and a half to Katherine Hatch, for the college paper, The Rotunda.

Circulation Manager

NINE HUNDRED AND FORTY STUDENTS REGISTER

More Students Candidates for Degree Than Ever Before

S. T. C. record has been broken again and broken in three ways. There are nine hundred and forty students registered, one hundred more than last year. Out of these students three hundred and eighty-six are candidates for a degree this year—which beats all former records by thirty-five. There were forty-one last year.

The freshman class this year is indeed a large one in size, they have at present a total of four hundred and forty members.

The sophomores aren't so far behind, in fact they have the unusually large class of three hundred and thirty-five.

There are not quite so many juniors this year as there were last, due to the fact that every other year the sophomore class is larger. Last year we had a small sophomore class and a large freshman class. So that this year we have a large sophomore class and not quite such a majority of freshmen. Out of the sophomore class of last year there are sixty-nine back for a degree.

With such a large student body, there is no doubt but what wonderful things may be accomplished. It is very gratifying to realize that more girls are entering each year with the idea of continuing until they have acquired that invaluable degree.

Athletic and all other contests between classes should be unusually even this year—since in the senior-sophomore classes there are a total of four hundred and thirty-one students, while in the junior-freshman classes there are a total of five hundred and nine students. Giving the red and white an advantage of seventy-eight girls.

Contests were close last year, and the cup came near staying neutral, the red and white won, but watch out for fireworks this year. With the very new division we should have some close contests, that will show up all our best sportsmanship.

DRAMATIC CLUB "TRY-OUTS" TO BE HELD

On Monday night at seven-thirty o'clock the Dramatic Club will have "try-outs" for membership. At this time all Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, and Senoirs will be given an opportunity to see if their talents can be used this year. The club needs "men" as well as girls and character parts so practically every type has a chance.

"Come out" for the Dramatic Club and be a wide awake, enthusiastic S. T. C. Student.

MISS IDA BIERBOWER, Alumnae Editor

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

BEGINNINGS.

We are beginning a new year. Not only are the new girls making a beginning but the old girls as well. We have a governing body in our school which is trying to help us make this beginning. They are not only going to help us start right, they are willing and anxious to keep us going right and see us end right.

The old girls know the Student Government regulations. We know the rules, and its up to us to help start the freshmen. What shall be our attitude? Have we stopped to consider the fact that if we take the proper attitude the freshmen will follow suit. The Studen. government is ours. We run it. We have elected the girls who are to lead us, who are to represent us. The election was a student affair. Then since we have placed these girls in the positions they hold, it's up to us to cooperate with them and help them keep things going properly.

There is an attitude in every college that has become foolish. It is really childish and more than that it is dishonorable and selfish. It is the attitude of "getting by" with things. Is it smart to break a rule, no matter how small, and "get by" with it? Have we stopped to consider when we brag on such an attainment that while the rule may be of no importance whatsoever, we have broken our honor. We sign a pledge which gives our word to uphold the student committee. We break our honor just as much when we commit a small offence as when we commit a large one. "Think before you act"—you old girls—and don't try to help the new girls break rules, rather encourage them to uphold the rules.

You who are new girls. Make the right kind of a start in school. Habits are the easiest things in the world formed and the very hardest to break. Our Student Government rules are not unreasonable. There is a good reason why every single one of them has been made. Don't start out by breaking rules. Make it a part of your "schedule" to follow the student government regulations just as you attend class. Your record here will then be one of which you are proud, rather than ashamed. Girls will consider your friendship an asset and you can go about with a clear conscience.

We have a chance to suggest changes that we wish about which you will be told. Give our governing system a fair trial and then go about in the proper way to help make it more perfect. The only way to make good is make a proper part of upholding regulations.

TO THE NEW GIRLS.

Since you new girls have arrived at S. T. C., ther is no doubt in the world, but what you have heard numerous times, and from numerous places, that we are glad to have you! We are! You're going to keep on hearing it, because all the old girls, the faculty and the home department are glad to have you with us and we hope that if we can really make you feel this you'll like us and be glad to be with us.

Some of you are homesick, you miss familiar faces and places. You feel lost among so many strangers. You haven't found your places yet. Let us help you. Do you know that in a way the old girls are homesick too. Perhaps not for home—as you are, but for girls who are not at school this year. For their best friends and perhaps for their worst enemies. So here is one way we can help you and you can help us: Fit into these places, try and find a girl you like and besides this, be willing to do your share toward building up S. T. C.

We are a family and we're living here. Consideration for each other is one thing we must have—so let's try and follow Dr. Jarman's advice of finding someone else to serve.

There are more students at S. T. C. this year than ever before. We expect great things from the Student Body and from the Freshman. Please try and help make this the banner year at S. T. C. We're ready to love you, freshmen, and we hope you'll help us by returning the love.

HELPFUL HINTS ON ETIQUETTE FOR NEW GIRLS

The Faculty and Home Department of the State Teachers College have asked us to write a few Helpful Hints for the new students. This lowly effort on our part is to prevent a great many breaches of etiquette that might otherwise occur in and around the college. The correction for a few of the most obvious "faux pas" may be found here.

In the Dining Room: When thanks have been returned, begin at once to go quietly about eating your food. If the bread is passed your way first, do not take three or four pieces; that is ungenerous. Dump the whole plate in your lap. The pieces can later be proportioned to your friends rather than have the inconvenience of passing the plate every time someone is hungry. Do not under any circumstances get discouraged and leave the room when there isn't food enough to go around. Remember that we too were once freshmen. In passing Miss Mary's table, shift your load of food to your right hand and smile sweetly as if you had enjoyed your meal. Every little thing will help to show them what a lovely child you really are.

In the Class Rooms: When in the class room don't speak too harshly to the teacher; it creates a feeling of superiority in your fellow student toward the frightened instructor. If you feel drowsy do not waste your time nodding in the luxuriously upholstered seats, but politely inform the teacher that you feel sleepy. He will be only too glad to let you retire to your apartments. Do not allow the professor to keep you here over the week-end if you have a desire to go away. He is here for your benefit and certainly cannot expect to deprive you of all pleasure. These hints will surely do wonders to help your term average.

In the Bed Rooms: Upon arriving in college, rush at once to your room where, if you are lucky, and your roommates haven't arrived first, you will be assured of the biggest closet and the best bed. If she has been inconsiderate as to have appropriated them for herself, inform her, oh, very politely, that she is selfish and take them yourself. Sometimes force is necessary when arguments have failed. Don't put your books on the bookshelf, throw them on the floor. The shelf might break. Don't leave a borrowed note book face upward on the table; the owner might return and it would be extremely embarrassing. Be sure to take all the blankets from the other beds and put them on yours. It sometimes gets cold. Every Sunday night take your laundry bag and carefully drop it over the Rotunda. Such an old custom must not be neglected, besides the vari-colored bags give such a cute effect around the reception hall.

With these few Helpful Hints you can easily be saved from embarrassment, and when you go home you will be self-possessed in the presence of anyone who "ain't" been out much!

MISS M. K. TALIAFERRO ILL

Miss Maude K. Taliaferro, our post mistress, has been quite sick. All of the old girls have missed Miss Taliaferro. While we have had excellent service in her absence, we shall one and all be glad to have her back again. We hope you will soon be well, Miss Taliaferro.

CHANGES ON THE CAMPUS

The old girls have come back to chool this fall to find many changes. Not only that Juniors of last year are dignified Seniors now, that the other classes have moved up one step, that there is a new crowd of Freshmen, but also that we have many things this year which we have not had before.

First, there is the new dormitory between White House Hall and the Student Building, which is growing daily, and which seems to say, "Here I am. Just what you need and have been wanting. Could you ask for more?"

We couldn't and didn't ask for more but we found it.

New paint has been applied lavishly which makes things look freshed and better.

Then we have in the Junior parlor lovely, new furniture which makes it yearn for company so we can go in there and show it off.

Our Miss Mary White Cox, who deserves the best of everything, has new furniture in her sitting room. It is so pretty and seems to "belong" there.

There is a sun dial on the campus which reminds us as we go by that we must make every minute worth something to us while we are here at S. T. C.

As we look about us we see how much S. T. C. grows each year in beauty and numbers; in numbers because of the spirit, attitude and beauty of the school, and in beauty because of Dr. Jarman and the others who are trying to make our lives fuller, not only by studies butby placing beauty around us so that we may learn to appreciate what is beautiful in life.

We love it and thank those who are responsible for it.

ATHLETICS

HEADS OF SPORTS

The constitution of the Athletic Ass'n. has one clause which states that there shall be an executive committee, composed of the officers of the organization and the heads of sports. The following have been appointed as Heads of Sports for the coming year.
Head of Tennis .... Katharine French
Head of Basketball .... Madeline Gary
Head of Hockey ..... Ida Wells
Head of Volleyball ..... Sookie Volk

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

This year for the first time a formal tennis tournament will be held among the four classes. There will be a double tournament and a single tournament. Each class will run off its preliminaries, the winners meeting the winners of the other classes to decide the championship. There will be a match in both doubles and singles, Freshmen playing Sophomores. The successful two teams in these matches will meet to decide the tennis championship of the school. The champions receive for their class ten points toward the cup, as in other sports. Class numerals will be given in tennis as in volley ball, base ball and other sports.

CHANGE IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

The Physical Education department has several new additions this year which will interest the girls, both old and new. We have a new teacher, Miss Thomas, and we wish to extend a hearty welcome to her. She has some Freshman Physical Education and the two new courses in this department, Anatomy and Corrective Gymnasium. These courses are open to Sophomores, Junoirs and Seniors and were formed especially for those minoring in Physical Education. We are very proud that we have the courses offered for those who wish to minor in Physical Education, and in a few years we hope to have all the courses and facilities necessary and can offer a degree in Physical Education. Another new course offered for Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors is one in Natural Dancing; this is to be offered in the Winter and Spring terms and may be elected by Juniors instead of Physical Education 8 and 9. Freshmen may elect this if approved by Miss Barlow, the instructor in this class.

Miss Barlow has all Sophomore gymn this year. Miss B. E. O. Graham has Health Education and all athletics—of which we hope to hear great things this year. Miss Iler has two Junior courses, four Freshman courses and has the supervision of all Physical Education in the Training School.

CURE FOR HOMESICKNESS

The first essential in the destruction or the underdevelopment of homesickness is to always have a "girl friend." There are no real requirements for this girl—she may be long, short, wide or round, and well—she just must be a girl. Play with this girl until she insists upon playing "All Alone" on the Victrola. Leave her immediately "All Alone" is dangerous. It sends some kind of a feeling from our toes to our hearts that just won't get along at school. Another necessity for abolishing this feeling is that a girl must have a sense of humor. For instance, if your dearest boy friend seems to forget to remember to write to you, you should immediately hurt her sense of humor and laugh—yes, just laugh, for she should realize that the "boy friend" has probably written to another girl. Now this seems an absurd reason to cause an outburst of laughter, but the reason is because you know positively that the boy is her own sweetheart simply because he has told her so and he is too fine to tell you stories. A girl should be an optimist. The word "optimist" always reminds one of some species of a fish. 'Tis better to be a fish then, for fish scarcely think of mother, father, little brother, Jack, or cousin Susan. Just believe that everything is coming O. K. and sometime eventually everything will be K. O.—for everything can't go wrong all the time—so smile!

GO TO PRAYERS

Every night after supper, the Y. W. C. A. conducts a short service known as "Prayers". The service lasts only about ten or fifteen minutes. Everyone is invited. Go! If you once do, you'll go again. Special music is very often included in the program. Here in our whirl of college life it is very hard to find a few minutes to devote to worship. This time is set aside. These few minutes make a sweet ending for a full day and very often we may find relief for a troubled heart here.

SOCIAL

Miss Mary Rives Richardson, former student at S. T. C., spent the week-end in Farmville.

Miss Louise Parsons of Petersburg spent the week-end as the guest of Misses Willis, Grimes and Cromwell.

Miss Polly Riddle of Norfolk was the week-end guest of her sister, Miss Bessie Meade Riddle and Miss Nancy Cole.

Friends of Miss Ruth Paulette will be sorry to hear that she is ill at her home in Farmville.

Miss Marie Ely has returned to her home in Suffolk after spending several days in Farmville.

Miss Virginia Boxley has returned from Charlottesville, where she spent the week-end.

THE FACULTY

It is always of interest to know how great people spend their oft hours, so we are very interested in how our faculty spent their vacations.

* * *

Miss Grenels and Miss Peck spent some time in Boston and then toured the New England states.

* * *

Miss Tucker, having just purchased a little home in North Carolina, spent the summer there entertaining her friends.

* * *

Miss Penny taught in the Asheville Normal Summer School.

* * *

Miss Mary Clay Hiner taught in George Peabody College for teachers.

* * *

Miss Waters had a lovely trip to Colorado Springs to see her sister.

* * *

Mrs. Jamison and Miss Camper toured through the Valley of Virginia and the tidewater section.

* * *

Miss Craddock had a most enjoyable vacation at Niagara Falls.

* * *

Miss Stubbs, Miss Sutherlin and the Misses Hiners made a very extensive tour of the Valley of Virginia, up to the New England States and Canada.

* * *

Dr. Jarman and Miss Mary both stayed at home and made our school clean and beautiful for us this fall.

SORORITY RUSH RULES

There are six sororities in school, Tri Sigma, Gamma Theta, Delta Sigma Chi, Mu Omega, Delta Kappa and Zeta Tau. The members of these sororities and the girls whom they are rushing are expected to abide by certain rules made by the Pan-Hellenic Association. Some of the rules are: There must be no financial rushing. There must not be any dates made on Monday, Wednesday or Friday. Dates may be made only between the hours of 4—7:30 on Tuesday and Thursday 2—10:30, Saturday 9:30—2:00, 4:00—10:30 on Sunday. Girls may not spend the nights with rushees, and vice-versa. Long conversations must not take place between rushers and rushees, except during rush hour. For the breaking of any of these rules, a fine or penalty will be imposed by Pan-Hellenic upon the sorority guilty of the offense.

P. O. BOXES

The old students are delighted with the fact that in the near future we are to have Post Office boxes. We are all very willing to put up with waiting at the table for mail when we have this new treat in store for us.

DEAR GIRLS:

We wish to extend to you a sincere welcome as S. T. C. Students, and to place at your disposal the service and conveniences of our store.

You are cordially invited to make this store your down town home. Every facility, every service and every courtesy that we are in a position to extend, we wish to extend to you.

JOKES

Rejected Athlete: "I have a chance on the football team."

Joe: "Are they going to raffle it off?"

Caller: "There ain't no Santa Claus."

Freshie: "Why there must be. How could they make pictures of him if there weren't?"

Frosh: "Are they very strict at Farmville?"

Soph: "Are they? Well, when a co-ed is dozing during a class, they prop her up in there until the end of the hour.

A great nation is a lovely girl ready to wed.

Father: How is it a young man that I find you kissing my daughter? How is it, young man?

Lover: "Great! Great!"

"When the roll is called up yonder"
I may find with remorse
That to form again I have been Dropped completely from the course!

"Why do you work so hard?"
"I'm too nervous to steal."

And old favorite: "They called the baby woody because he shrank from washing."

Old Girl: "You mustn't ask so many questions. Don't you know that curiosity once killed a cat?"

Now Girl: "What did the cat want to know?"

Our co-ed friend says that the board of curiosity is paying $1000 to see your appendix.

"What' your roommate like?"
"Gets nearly everything I've got!"

"Let's play college, what d'say?"
"All right. I'll get a pipe and you get Daddy's check-book."

He: "I'm going to kiss you every time a star falls".

She (two minutes later): "Say, we must be standing lightning bugs."

S. T. C. Girl: "Do you college boys waste much time?"

Hampden-Sidney Romeo: "Oh no, next girl are reasonable."

"You tickle me, Joe."
"Me! What a strange request."

The heavy crack of the bat on a heavy ball is now all but drowned out by the roller. Sounder third of the toe on the football, which is as sure evidence that summer is past and fall is upon us as the coloring of the leaves in the forest. There are all kind of ways of announcing the changing of seasons.

TRUE STORY OF THE FIRST AMERICAN FLAG

A second grade teacher on the East side in New York, after having told her class the story of Betsy Ross and the first American Flag, had them dramatize the incident. The following paper was handed in:

Betsy Ross and the First American Flag

Act I.

1st American Soldier: "Gee ain't it fierce we ain't got no 'merican Flag?"

2nd American Soldier: "It shure is fierce we ain't got no 'merican Flag."

Act II.

1st American Soldier: "George, ain't it fierce we ain't got no 'merican Flag.

G. Wash.: "It shure is fierce we ain't got no 'merican Flag."

Act III.

G. Wash.: "Betsy, ain't it fierce we ain't got no 'merican Flag?"

Betsy Ross: "Here, George, you hold this baby and I'll see what I can do about making you a 'merican Flag."

Proctor—Night walker that keeps awake.

As much as all Americans and lovers of sport may regret Tilden's loss of the tennis championship after holding it so many years, the passing of the title to France is not an unmixed evil. In the first place Americans are not without danger of becoming proud to the extent of irritating boastfulness at this country's wonderful achievements in the realm of sports as well as in its commanding position generally. It is probably well for us to find out at time that skill does not obtain wholly on this side of the Atlantic. Then too, this victory may tend to lessen the bitterness of France toward us, for it removes a cause of envy.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TO THE CONSTITUTION OF ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Several amendments to the constitution of the Athletic Association have been formulated. The constitution provides that proposed amendments must be presented to the student body through the Rotunda, and then a vote taken. Therefore we recommend for your consideration the following amendments:

Article III Section 2

The heads of sports shall be appointed by the officers of the athletic association, each class being represented in at least one sport.

Article III Section 4

Duties of the Vice-President

2—The Vice-President shall act as chairman of the publicity committee, which is composed of the Heads of Sports.

Amendments to By-Laws

Section III

Every woman who plays in the third from the last round in the Tennis Singles Tournament shall receive her class numeral.

Every woman who plays in the semi-finals in the Tennis Doubles Tournament shall receive her class numerals. The class championship in Tennis shall be determined in the same manner as in the other sports.

In awarding points for the class cups

In case of tie in field and track sports the points shall be equally divided.

In case of tie for the individual cup no cup shall be awarded.

Section V

At preesnt, the class receiving the highest number of points throughout the year has its colors put on the cup. The proposed amendment is that the competition be between the colors rather than among all four classes—that is, Freshman and Juniors versus Sophomores and Seniors. The games will be played between classes as always, but in the end the points will be counted for green and white or red and white, rather than for the individual classes.

The interpretation of By-Law 5, Section VI, which pertains to scholastic requirements shall be left to the discretion of the officers of the As-published in The Rotunda.

Optional Points for Monogram

Several additions have been made to the optional points which may be got toward the monogram. They are:

Class Hockey	5 points
Class Tennis	5 points

A girl shall be permitted to earn a sum total of fifteen points in class teams.

6TH ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW THIS WEEK

Large Number of Entrants Expected at Annual Charity Affair. Supper Served

The sixth annual dahlia show epens next Thursday, and Friday, September 30th and October 1st. The show will be held this year under the auspices of the Associated Charities and all proceeds will be used for the relief of the suffering in the community during the coming winter.

A large number of entries are expected according to statements made by those in charge of the show. Among the Farmville exhibitors will be Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Miller, W. C. Duvall, Mrs. W. F. Burger, Mrs. Garland Wilkerson, all of whom have beautiful flowers and were prize winners last year. It is stated that a number of out-of-town exhibitors will enter, including those from Richmond, Crewe and Burkeville. The management sincerely hopes that all persons having dahlias will enter them for the show.

Supper will be served each night at 6:00 o'clock. The show will be held in the Armory which will be attractively decorated for the occasion.

Red Cross Helps Florida Victims

The Farmville Red Cross Chapter yesterday afternoon sent a check to be used to relieve the suffering in the hurricane stricken districts of Florida. The amount of the check, according to the treas., W. C. Fitzpatrick was $404.15. The local headquarters are still receiving contributions to this end and will be glad to have those desiring to contribute.

A UNIQUE STORE.

In the town of Waller, Texas, is a strange kind of store called "God's Mercy Store." When merchandise comes in the proprietor puts it on display with the invoiced wholesale price marked on it, and no other. Customers are allowed to examine the goods, and fix what they think is a fair price at retail. About 99 per cent set a price which gives the proprietor a fair profit. The store is drawing so large a trade that it is becoming to be recognized as a community center. Each year the turnover shows large increase. By any practical standard the store must be judged a success. According to Mr. Babson American business demands a retail price of one dollar for an article which cost twenty cents to manufacture. What does the so-called hard-headed business man think of the Waller store? Yet it makes good. It was the founder of modern business who said: "he who gives more than is expected finds the way to success." The Texas store appears like an illustration of the saying. How would such a store fare in our town?

At the Eaco Theatre Next Week

WED.—Raymond Griffith and Virginia Lee Corbin in "HANDS UP" a Paramount Picture. Ray and his high hat have hit home again with another hilarious comedy, "Hands Up". Laid in the Civil War period. And, shades of Robert E. Lee, what a comedy it is! Also 8th episode of Strings of Steel.

THURS.—Jack Holt, Florence Vidor, Noah Beery and Mary Brian in the Special Paramount Picture THE ENCHANTED HILL, from the novel by Peter B. Kyne. A fast moving colorful story of action every minute. Wild rides, airplane flights, gun fights, plenty of comedy-relief and romance. Here is a big special in every sense of the word. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

FRI. & SAT.—Jack Holt, Noah Beery, Billie Dove and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., in the special Paramount production WILD HORSE MESA from Zane Grey's great novel. Swifter and swifter they raced across the wilderness—a pack of fleet-footed wild horses—the "death trap" ahead—and hard-riding outlaws sweepingthem on. Then the stampede and a human life in jeopardy to save them. Just a sample of the dramatic thunder rumbling all through "Wild Horse Mesa." Filmed in the Arizona wild horse country—a new and fascinating background. The story of two brothers fighting for the same girl. Also good comedy each night.

MON.—Conrad Nagel and Renee Adoree in THE EXQUISITE SINNER from Alden Brook's novel "Escape." Here's romance! The love story of a man of wealth and a gypsy maid. With gypsy cunning, she planned to betray him. But when the moment finally came—love had crept into her [illegible] life. The romantic picture sensation of the year. Also Pathe News. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

TUES.—Norman Kerry, Henry B. Walthall and Lionel Barrymore in "THE LAIRIER" from the famous Rex Beach novel. A big all star cast in an epic of the Yukon. Terror stood at the window—a sinister figure out of the past! Even into these frozen wastes, the code of the blood-feud reached. If you are strong for stories of love and adventure, don't miss this. Also 4th episode of the RADIO DETECTIVE.

S. T. C. girls admission prices, if tickets are bought at the school Friday and Saturday 25c. Other days 20c. Merchant club tickets good on Mondays and Wednesdays.

"WHEN WE WERE A COUPLE OF KIDS"

Freshmen Entertained at Kiddie Party by Organizations

Well, formality and Freshman aren't a good combination—and appreciating the fact that the children might want to play a bit without being embarrassed, the three organizations, Y. W. C. A., Student Committee and Athletic Association conceived the idea of entertaining said children with a "kiddie" affair. Upperclassmen were unduly amazed Saturday night when they saw hordes of short frocked and beribboned maids being escorted to the Gym by perfectly attired little gentlemen escorts!

Jackie Woodson disappeared for the night and little Jackie Coogan with the bravest eyes and the bestest knife to cut with, came and took his place as "Leading Playmate." He made so much time with the little ladies, that the "mamma's boys" contemplating nabbing him, but refrained because of the fatal jack-knife.

Martha Lee Moomaw sang a lullaby to her dolly, and all the playmates. Virgina Potts sang "When we were a couple of kids" and clogged. Gertrude Jarman recited "Twinkle Twinkle," and Lorah Brewer told about "Her Sister's Beau." One of the newest playmates, Gwendolyn Seldon, contributed some really lovely dancing to the occasion, and Jackie Woodson—beg pardon, Jackie Coogan—topped off the program with "The Bear Story." Then came the grand march, and Peggy Barham, in green rompers, won the coveted prize of a huge bundle of colored lollypops!

After dancing, and lollypop tea refreshments, the playmates had to leave, because little boys and girls can't stay so very late to parties, you know. And all the Susey's and Jo's said it was the "biggest party" they ever went to!

THE CAMPUS LEAGUE

Do you know that there is an organization in our school known as the Campus League? Perhaps you do, but do you know for what it stands?

Every year the student body elects a girl to be chairman of this league, which is a part of the Student Government Association. This girl, together with the members of her committee, has to see that the campus, the halls, the classrooms and the library are kept in good condition. You can imagine how the campus would look with a trail of paper bags all the way from Gilliam's, or how thrilling it would be to be reading a story in the library and find half of the magazine gone.

Girls, the Campus League is going to do its best to keep our campus neat and clean, our halls and our walls free from disfiguring marks, and our magazines whole. What are we going to do about it? Let's all give our Campus League one hundred per cent support.

THE DRAMATIC CLUB

Many people have the wrong idea about the Dramatic Club in our college. The Dramatic Club is not all work and no play. When we do work, we work hard, and put our best into it; and when we play, we play just as hard.

The Dramatic Club has two plays a year. The first one is usually given in January. The second one is given in the Spring, and is put on as a lyceum number.

These plays are ably directed by Miss Leola Wheeler. Miss Wheeler as director and advisor, of the Dramatic Club, devotes unlimited time and talent in making the club a worthy organization in the school. As a member of the Dramatic Club, I would like to say that the most pleasure I have had at S. T. C., has been in connection with the work of the Dramatic Club.

TEA DANCE A BIG SUCCESS

Teachers College High School Gives Tea Dance

On Saturday, October 2, the Athletic Association of the Teachers College High School gave a Tea Dance in the Recreation Hall. Sandwiches, drinks and candy were sold by the High School girls. The dancing was greatly enjoyed by various college students.

The following attractive program was given:

The Maid Dance ..... Sophomores
Selected Songs ..... Mebane Hunt
Claudia Fleming
Merry Widow's Waltz
Elizabeth Munn

GREETINGS FROM THE Y. W. C. A.

To the Freshmen entering our college this year, we extend a most cordial welcome. We're delighted to have you, and you're glad to be here, aren't you?

Now, girls, don't wait a month or a year to enter the spirit of State Teachers College! Certain of our "pet" words will, in time, become very familiar to you, such as 'cooperation' and 'service', to say nothing of Dr. Jarman's creation, 'smile.' It's the smile that wins, and the determination to think in terms of the student body,—to lend a helping hand.

The Young Women's Christian Association here, is yours, and at your service. During this week, you will be given an opportunity to join and count yourself among those whose purpose it is to live a finer, better life here in college. We want you to attend Sunday School and Church regularly, to go to Prayers in the evening, and Morning Watch on Sunday morning. We want to help your spirits grow and develope into nobler finer attributes of character.

To the old girls as well as the new ones, we again extend an invitation to become a member of our organization that stands for the all-around Christian woman. When you go out into the State to teach, you will have gained a finer conception of Life and of Living, and can truly say:

" 'Not by might, nor by power; but by by spirit,' " saith the Lord of Hosts."

ROSALIND HARRELL,
President Y. W. C. A.

Memory books, made from copies of the Rotunda, serve as reminders, after leaving school of the happiest days of your life.

DEBATING CLUB TO BE ACTIVE ORGANIZATION

The Debating Club is a new organization. The first debate held under its auspices was the double debate with Bridgewater College last March. We are expecting Bridgewater to debate us again this year and we are hoping for a quadrangular debate with the other teachers colleges. The debating teams expect to be as active this year as the athletic teams and it is up to the student body to help us.

More than half of the Debating Club membership graduated last June and we need new members to take their places as well as additional ones because the scope of the club has been broadened. There are many girls in school, both old and new, who are capable of debating and we extend to you a cordial invitation to "try out" on Friday night, October 8, after prayers in the Student Building auditorium. You will find further instructions on the bulletin board.

The personnel of the club and council is as follows:

The Debating Council

Evelyn Beckham, Chmn. ... Club Rep.
Catherine Bentley ..... Club Rep.
Edith Asner ..... Club Rep.
Olive S. Smith ..... Alumnae Rep.
Martina Willis ..... Alumnae Rep.
Dr. J. E. Wamsley Ex-officio Member.

The Debating Council has charge of all inter-collegiate relations.

The Debating Club

President ..... Elizabeth Hubbard
Vice-president ..... Alice Carter
Secretary ..... Mildred Morris
Reporter ..... Gladys Hubard

We wish to express our appreciation of their services to our coach, Dr. Walmsley, and his assistant, Mr. Bowman. We wish also to thank Miss Wheeler for her help to us from the very beginning.

Wait—Look—Watch. The Debating Club has a surprise in store for October 22.

THE COTILLION CLUB

Everywhere, in this day and time, girls love to dance. It is an activity that nearly everyone derives pleasure from. S. T. C. does not differ from other schools in this respect and so we have an organization called the Cotillion Club. Of course the first requirement is that one must be able to dance. At least once a year we procure an orchestra and have a large dance in the Recreation Hall. Not only do we dance, but we have other things, such as picnics and a general good time.

A meeting of this Club was held Saturday, October 2, in order to elect a new leader, since the leader of the Cotillion Club did not come back this year. Margaret Mackasey was chosen.

PROCLAMATION FOR S. T. C. FRESHMEN

We, the Sophomores of S. T. C., Farmville, Virginia, do decree that the Freshman Class shall conform to the following rules:

The rat caps, which will be presented at the formal initiation shall be worn between the hours of 4:30 and 7 until notified otherwise by the Sophomore Class.

Each and every Freshman is at the command and bidding of upperclassmen.

The following are duties which Freshmen will be expected to perform for upperclassmen:

1. Scraping of dishes at the table on dessert days.
2. Carrying of laundry.
3. Running of errands.
4. Sweeping of floors.
5. Making of beds.
6. Pouring of water at the table.
7. Carrying of books, packages, etc.

Freshmen shall treat upperclassmen with utmost respect on all occasions.

Freshmen not complying with the above rules shall be duly punished at the Sophomore Court which will be open for all students.

THE FRESHMEN HOLD THEIR FIRST CLASS MEETING

Last Thursday night the first meeting of the Freshman class was held. At this time the Junior class president, backed by the entire Junior class, told her sister classmates of the welcome and love the other class of red and white" held for them and of the things that were expected of them during the year. The importance of electing the right type of girls for the various offices was stressed. Capable, efficient and broad-minded girls are the ones that should be considered above all others.

The spirit of cooperation and willingness to participate in all activties, can already be seen in the Freshman class. They have the athletes, the scholars, the literary talent and those with leadership. What else could be expected besides a year of success for the class and for S. T. C.?

BECKHAM EDITOR OF "THE VIRGINIAN."

Last Wednesday morning at a student body meeting, Evelyn Beckham was elected Editor-in-Chief of the Virginian. This left vacant the place of Literary Editor and Anne Archer Irving was appointed to fill it. Due to the fact that the assistant editor did not return to school this year, there is another vacancy. This office will probably be announced in a few days.

Evelyn Beckham has had plenty of experience in work of this kind and has unusual ability, so under her leadership the Virginian staff is expected to put out an exceptionally good annual.

MISS IDA BIERBOWER, Alumnae Editor

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

ARE YOU AN ALL-AROUND STUDENT?

Have you asked yourself this question? Or have you thought about it? Did you let bashfulness keep you from "trying out" for the Choral Club? If you haven't thought or haven't "tried out," it isn't too late. Start now.

One girl can't do everything but each one of us can do one thing. Perhaps you can't sing, but are you interested in dramatics, in writing for publications, in serving on a Y. W. C. A. committee, in playing basketball? There are so many new girls in school that it would be impossible to look you each up and find out what you are interested in. Each girl will have to help herself.

We come here to prepare to teach. Do you think that getting our subject matter is the only preparation we need to be the finest teachers? It isn't, almost more important is the knowledge of human nature. Can you think of a better way to learn human nature, of a better way to learn how to work with students than by working right here side by side with our classmates, through some one activity.

Practically every organization in school, has its purpose and its opportunities stated in this issue of the Rotunda. Read your Rotunda. Think over the organizations. "Try out" for what you are interested in. Don't say that there are too many better than you are—just do your best. Then don't stop if you don't succeed in your first "try out." Try something else, but remember that the "all-around girl" must have initiative and willingness. There is one old, old quotation, but one which every new girl and every girl for that matter, should keep in mind, namely: "Give to the world the best that you have and the best will come back to you."

DON'T FORGET YOUR RELIGIOUS TRAINING.

There are doubtless many girls among the upper classmen that would be ashamed for their mothers to know that they had forgotten her diligent labors and her most sacred teachings. But let's hope that they will remember these things when next Sunday comes and give Famville a big surprise by having all S. T. C. girls at Sunday School or Church.

I wonder why girls go off to college? Needless to even think about that for it is to gain more knowledge—intellectually! Did you ever stop to think that you need spiritual training, also? Well, you do—and you know it only too well! How about it girls? Then, too, we are not the only ones that need training, there are those children that we teach every day that need our teaching at Sunday School.

I'll bet there are few girls that realize that our Church cards are given to a principle when he is here about teachers! So girls, don't forget those cards—just because you may be a little bit sleepy on Sunday morning.

Three cheers for the Freshmen!! Our Church attendance is greater this year than it was last year. Is it all due to the Freshmen, you upper classmen? I hope not! Yet it seems that they must set us the example of attending Church!

Let's not forget to give Farmville her big surprise by having a 100 per cent attendance of the S. T. C. girls next Sunday!

THANKS FOR THE NEW DORMITORY

The Student Body as a whole, as well as those students rooming on Gym "hall", should be very proud of our new dormitory. The rooms are very cozy—just right for two girls. And just imagine, each girl has a closet, all her own.

FLOWERS HELP CHEER US UP

It is useless to ask us old girls if we have noticed the wonderful addition to our tables in the dining room. Of course, we have, and furthermore the new girls have admired the lovely flowers so much. They do make our tables look very attractive and homelike. It used to be that the food was the first thought as we entered the dining room, but now we are impressed with the loveliness of the vases of flowers. Since it is quite difficult for each girl to express her appreciation we take this opportunity in letting Miss Mary and the members of the Home Department know how a few flowers can brighten not only the tables, but also our dispositions.

FROM THE NEW POETRY

GIFT TO A JADE

For love he offered me his perfect world.
This world was so constricted, and so small,
It had no sort of loveliness at all,
And I flung back the little silly ball.
At that cold moralist I hotly hurled
His perfect, pure symmetrical, small world.

—Anna Wickham.

THE SILENCE

When I meet you, I greet you with a stare;
Like a poor shy child at a fair.
I will not let you love me, yet I am weak:
I love you so intensely that I cannot speak.
When you are gone, I stand apart,
And whisper to your image in my heart.

—Anna Wickham

PIERROT

Pierrot stands in the garden
Beneath a waning moon,
And on his lute he fashions
A fragile silver tune.

Pierrot plays in the garden,
He thinks he plays for me
But I am quite forgotten
Under the cherry tree.

Pierrot plays in the garden,
And all the roses know
That Pierrot love his music,—
But I love Pierrot.

—Sara Teasdale

FAULTS

They came to tell your faults to me,
They named them one by one;
I laughed aloud when they were done;
I knew them all so well before,—
Oh, they were blind, too blind to see
Your faults had made me love you more.

—Sara Teasdale

MISS MIX ENTERTAINS

Thursday afternoon Miss Grace E. Mix entertained her kindergarten teachers with a delightful tea at her home on High Street. The cold, rainy day outside was forgotten by the fortunate ones in the cosy room, and altogether it was a charming party. Besides the student teachers, Miss Hanes, Miss Betty Hopkins, and Miss Margaret Cobb were present.

COUNTY CLUBS AND OTHER ORGANIZATIONS

Among the various organizations that are open to Freshmen are the County Clubs and the Educational Clubs. If one takes Spanish, she is invited to become a member of the El Circulo Espanol; if she takes domestic science she should join the club that is exclusive for these girls. Then, the county from which you came invites you to become one of its members. You will enjoy being with girls who have something in common with you, so join these clubs.

ALPHA DELTA RHO

For a number of years there was a need felt, in this school, for an orgnaization in which the outstanding leaders of the school could meet in common and discuss the various problems, confronting them. Last year a group of girls, together with faculty members formed an organization whose aim is to meet this need. This organization is known as the Joan Circle of Alpha Delta Rho.

A certain degree of excellency in scholarship must be obtained before any girl is eligible for membership, however the organization stresses outstanding service and leadership. There are both faculty and student members.

Any girl may have the opportunity to work for the betterment of S. T. C. by being an Alpha Delta Rho. By filling her place and by helping in some way to serve, either through athletics, class, dramatics, glee club, publication work, student commitee work, Y. W. C. A. work, or any other form of activity.

This organization is a school organization, it belongs to the school and its object is to help foster the spirit which we stand for. It is here for service, and you may serve through it, if you will only start in time.

Attend Prayers and Morning Watch!

PI KAPPA OMEGA

In 1918, as the result of a very definite need felt by the faculty and student body, Pi Kapap Omega was founded. The purpose of the society is to encourage and recognize such students as have shown abilty to lead or influence their fellow students, who have shown their willingness to serve others, and who have attained the definite scholarship average of being among the highest ten per cent of averages for four consecutive quarters.

Freshmen, begin now and work for Pi Kappa Omega!

PROSPECTIVE ATHLETES

Just what would become of athletics at S. T. C., if there wasn't a Freshman class? Not even the "Noble Rats" realize how important they are. Four hundred and ninety possibilities. We are hoping that we have enough material to make this year our biggest: snappy class games, numerous "monograms" and "Old English F's" awards, an undefeated varsity, but above all we are aiming for four hundred and ninety true Farmvillites.

Save your copy of the Rotunda each week and at the end of the school year, have them bound into one volume. These volumes make good memory books.

DEAR GIRLS:

We wish to extend to you a sincere welcome as S. T. C. Students, and to place at your disposal the service and conveniences of our store.

You are cordially invited to make this store your down town home. Every facility, every service and every courtesy that we are in a position to extend, we wish to extend to you.

Please feel that every member of this organization, including the writer, will deem it a privilege to meet you personally, and help you solve any problem that you may have as a student, in Farmville.

Very truly yours,

JOKES

She: "Do you love me like you used to, John?"

He: "Don't you think I've improved a little by now, dear?"

"I got my letter," said the athlete, as he reached for his special delivery.

Freshman: "Is there any variety to the meals at Farmville?"

Eleanor Bennett: "Yes—we have three a day and each has a different name."

"Darling," he cried, falling in his knees before her, "can't you see that I love you?"

She drew herself up to her full height. "Well", said she, "I should hate to think this was just your natural way of behaving in company."

"Mary, dear, let's set our wedding date for next Friday."

"Oh—but we can't. I got a date for that night."

1st Drunk: "Watcha filling the bathtub for?"

2nd and 3rd Drunks: "Got two gold fish—goin' to race 'em and see who wins."

Liquor must have been scare in the olden days, for the whoe town followed the Pied Piper.

"I had a narrow escape from drowning," said the fat man. I fell into the water where it was just over my head; then I tried to wade out, and my stomach caught on the bottom when I tried to swim out."

Mebane: "Your face is dirty. Why don't you wash it?"

"Red": "What's the use? It'll get dirty again."

One of life's little mysteries: Is the straw that broke the camel's back the same one the drowning man clutched at?

A MAN WITHOUT A WOMEN

Oh! A man without a woman,
Is like a fish without a tail;
Like a boat without a rudder,
Like a ship without a sail.
Oh, A man without a woman
Is like a wreck upon the sand,
But the worst thing in all this world
Is a woman without a man!

THE SINGER OF SONGS

I.

There's always a singer of songs about love,
There's always a dreamer of dreams;
So sing to me songs of the worlds up above,
And dream me a wonder of dreams.

II.

Oh sing me songs the Wonder-Bird sings,
Woven with flame and with gold;
And dream with me dreams of far-away things,
Old dreams forever retold.

—V. W. B.

MANY THANKS

Due to an inexplicable error[a very important feature was left out of the article on appreciation in last week's Rotunda. That most important omission was—the new bells! Think of it, a bell for the beginning and ending of every single class period! Why it is too good to be true. And yet it is true, for we have seen them with our eyes and have heard them with our ears. It is such a, well—secure feeling to go about your business without the bother of looking at friend watch every five minutes, but to work confidently on to be warned at "five after" that class hour is near at hand.

Then, too, there is still another "improvement" on foot. Have you noticed the library walls? They are being painted and fixed over again and it won't be long now before they will closely resemble the proverbial new pill.

Again, we give to those who are responsible, many thanks, and we want you to know that your thoughts of us and "our" college are most highly appreciated. Merci beaucoup.

THE COLLEGE MONOGRAM

We are all students of S. T. C., Farmville. The Athletic Association has made it possible for everyone of us to wear the symbol of our schooi, a symbol that means that the wearer is an all-round athlete, and a daughter of whom our Alma Mater is proud.

Up to this time the number who have had the privilege of wearing the monogram has been small. We want to swell that number until it includes all who have the desire for it backed by the willingness to work. We know that there are plenty of 100 per cent girls in school and we want to give each one a chance to wear its outward indication. If you can't do one thing, you can do another, and your points will add on up toward the required number. Class spirit demands that you try for this honor. Win your monogram, and give your colors one more chance to wave on the cup. And second, to the pride, which we all cherish for our colors, there is the feeling which you will have when you go down the Aisles of Assembly to receive your S. T. C. You seekers after thrills—here's your chance!

So come out every Thursday evening and show off your prowess before the eyes of your admiring fellow-students, or if it be not prowess, show that you have the "stick-to-it" kind of character that will certainly get you there! We had a fine start Thursday; let's keep it up!

Attend Prayers and Morning Watch!

ARGUS LITERARY SOCIETY

Who can imagine S. T. C. without literary societies? Or can anyone thing of it without Argus? The societies give us the opportunity of learning things, in a sociable way, that all of us come to school to find out. In a very interesting and instructive way, by becoming a member one may become acquainted with the best of literary material.

Rules are one of the foundations of our school. Thus, in order to be among the best, Argus, also must have rules. Any Freshman, or anyone else, must be able to keep up the standard in order to become a member of this organiaztion. So let's all work for the best of grades always!

WHY?

Why do we do like we do,
How come we are like we be?
Why are you just you,
And why am I just me?
Why do we walk on our feet,
Why do we sleep lying down?
Why can't we work while we sleep,
And why can't we swim when we drown?
Why do we walk on the earth,
Why can't we hike to the sun?
Why have some of us mirth,
And some other never have fun?
Why do we eat any food,
Why not drink water instead?
Why do we have to wear shoes?
Why can't we all live in bed?
Why do we go to school,
Why don't we study hard?
Why are we all such fools,
Why don't we flunk out our card?
Why do we love all the boys,
Or just a particular one?
Why do we all make so much noise,
When it really shouldn't be done?
Why do we read such stuff as this,
Why do we live and die?
Why do you think this a myth,
The question is—just "Why?"

THE VIRGINIA CLUB

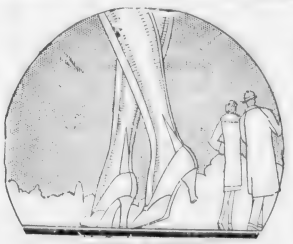
The Virginia Club was organized in order that the advanced students in our college might have the opportunity to do constructive work toward the development of a greater Virginia. The club has been dedicated to the state. The students feel that not only will they be able to benefit the state, but that by learning more about the state and its problems and possibilities, they will make far better citizens and teachers.

The Club is composed of Juniors and Seniors, only. The majority of these members have done work in the school which has caused them to be of value to the organization, or they have had definite service in the state.

DINING ROOM COURTESIES

For nine months out of this year S. T. C. is to be our home and it is the duty of every girl in the school to conduct herself here in just the way in which she would conduct herself if she were in her own home.

Would most of us bang upon the table with the silver and read the Rotunda or any other publication while the blessing is being repeated in the dining room of our homes? It is extremely doubtful. Girls, let us all strive to be as quiet as possible during meals, reverent during the blessing, and attentive while the announcements are being read.



Save your copy of the Rotunda each week and at the end of the school year, have them bound into one volume. These volumes make good memory books.

Poem by UNCLE JOHN

TAKE HEART

When the breezes blow contrary, an' you're stranded on the beach, where there ain't a sign of light-house, or a harbor in yer reach.—When yer haversack is empty an' you can't produce a dime.—Remember that we've all be there—many a time!

When you think yer lot is harder than yer mortal frame can stand. . . . An' it's plainer every minnit that you're runnin' out of sand.—It makes me want to cheer ye with a soul-inspirin' rhyme.—Remember that we've all been there—many a time!

We got to have a sperit that is able to contend, if we'd reach the crown of glory that is jest around the bend. . . . There never was a mountain-top that courage couldn't climb.—Remember that we've all been there—many a time!

NAMES OF PLACES ON THE CAMPUS

Are you familiar with the various terms used for places on the campus? Sometimes we hate to stop and ask questions when we are being told something, but unless we learn the names given to various spots we can't understand anything.

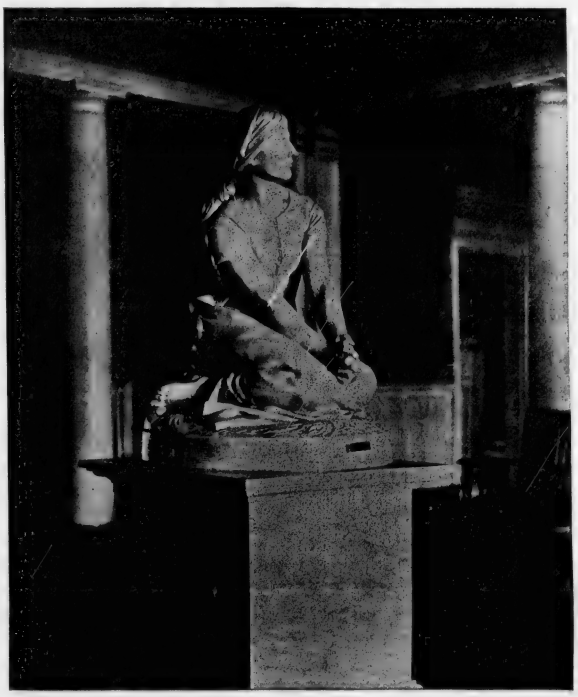
Of course, everyone knows what is meant when we are told to meet at "Joan." That is the statue in the center of the reception hall. "Joan" not only sits in the center of our reception hall, but her spirit permeates our entire school.

Does everyone know that "Infirmary Hall" is the next wing, and that this name has been given to the dormitory over the library? The infirmary used to be here before we had a separate building and that is how it acquired the name.

"White House Hall" is another familiar term. The second and third floor over the auditorium have been captioned 'White House.' Why I don't know, unless somewhere in the past they were the residence of one of our noted characters.

Then there is "Spookie Alley." This is the second floor wing on the west side. Perhaps so called because of the darkness of the halls, which are a little spookie in the daytime.

Above "Spookie Alley", we have "Tackey Alley"—why I cannot imagine. Maybe in the dark ages the rooms up there were much less attractive than now, this is my only available reason.



Of course there is no use to mention "Main Hall." We all know that second and third floor main includes all the rooms over the parlor, offices and over the class rooms on the east side of the building.

Have you found the infirmary? We hope you won't have to find it on account of illness, but it really is a delightful place, between the Student Building and the main building.

The library, parlor, gym, lounge and recreation hall have become terms which we know without even giving them a second thought. They are essential places in our school life.

JUST VESPERS

We didn't think that anything could be more satisfactorily satisfying than the fifteen minutes of Prayers—but Vespers Wednesday evening was something different; something to feel and to think about. From five-thirty to six, the auditorium was open for a silent Vesper service. Soft music was played, candles illuminated the room; and girls were at privilege to come in any few minutes of the half hour and have that wee time of meditation. Just Vespers —yes—but different enough, and soothing, also self helping enough to make us want more such services!

JOAN OF ARC

EPISCOPAL GIRLS ENTERTAINED AT PICNIC

A hay-ride, eats like only mother can cook, and a wonderfully good time—all this was included in the Episcopal Church picnic, and then something else—an afternoon spent in that secluded spot with those congenial companions we've all thought about these last few weeks.

Many is the time our thoughts have wandered back to home and fried chicken. But who has thought the dream would be so bountifully fulfilled, with the addition of sandwiches of all shapes and varieties, pickles, biscuits, and vanilla, chocolate and pineapple ice cream cones? There was plenty of everything and all you could eat was yours, so "choking" wasn't necessary in order to get the other piece.

Wednesday, October 6, was a lucky day for Farmville. The large number of girl, which proved to be Episcopalians, the spirit and the appreciation of the picnickers, was shown when everybody, after saying that familiar picnic phrase, "I'm so full," cheered the entertainers and sang songs.

Save your copy of the Rotunda each week and at the end of the school year, have them bound into one volume. These volumes make good memory books.

WHY WE HAVE JOAN OF ARC IN OUR RECEPTION HALL

Many people wonder why Joan of Arc has the central place in our reception hall, in fact the very center of our campus. The answer should be very obvious to the old girls, but since we have some doubt and because the Freshmen haven't been here long enough to realize the significance of the statue, perhaps we shall all be interested in knowing the story of how we happen to have it.

When Maria Bristow, first honor graduate of the class of 1914, was deciding on a theme for her valedictory, she decided on "The Spirit of Joan of Arc," because she felt that the spirit of service, which this French girl typified, was the spirit that S. T. C. was trying to attain.

The valedictory which she gave was full of the spirit and so very vivid was her comparisons that the class decided S. T. C. should have a constant reminder of this woman's service, consequently they gave to the school the statue of Joan of Arc, which stands in the reception hall.

Every student should know the story of Joan's life in order to appreciate that "thinking statue" and its significance to our school. We are sending out into the state, every year, hundreds of girls who are to be teachers and who are trying to serve their state. Not one of these girls could find a better person to use as

DRAMATIC CLUB ANNOUNCES NEW MEMBERS

The Dramatic Club takes pleasure in announcing the election of the following girls to membership:

Beulah Jarvis of Virginia Beach.
Mabel Fitzpatrick of Covington.
Blanch Overbey of Chatham.
Alice Wiley of Saltville.
Frances Davis of Clarksville.

FRESHMEN TRAINING CLASSES

"Ignorance is bliss" is an old saying that is often true, but here at S. T. C. ignorance is not a popular thing. Especially do we find it so about the Student Government rules. To insure peace, order and happiness, there must be government and everyone must keep the laws. Sometimes a law is broken and when the girl is brought up before the Student Council she pleads that she did not know the law. This is indeed an unfortunate state of affairs and it is realized that everyone must be given a chance to become acquainted with these rules. In order to give the Freshmen and new girls this chance, some of the old girls willingly gave up their time to hold classes to study the "rules and regulations." These classes have gone off very successfully and we hope that the new students feel more at home and at ease now.

Y. W. C. A. INSTALLATION SERVICE HELD FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday night ushered into the Y. W. C. A. numerous new members from the Freshman class, and from old students also. All girls who had signed membership cards were installed at the singularly lovely candle light service. Rosalind Harrell, president, led the Y. W. C. A. cabinet members in, all bearing lighted candles and singing "Lead On, O King Eternal." As the cabinet girls stood with lighted candles, they were passed by the new members, who took from the lighted candles a light for their own unlighted one. The purpose was repeated, a word of inspiration was given by the president, and a soft prayer song was given by Lucy Marstellar. Then the entire group left the auditorium singing "Follow the Gleam" and made an arc of lighted candles around the walk. It was the most unusual and impressive service of installation remembered here.

HONORARY MEMBERS NAMED

Grenels, Honorary Member Senior Class. McCorkle Honorary Member Junoir Class

Of course everyone had taken it for granted that these two classes could not possibly do without their same honorary member this year. Everyone took the proper thing for granted, because that is what the classes thought. However each class feels that it has been highly honored by having honorary members who have displayed so much interest in what they were doing and given them such able assistance. With such aid these two classes can hardly help be the best Junior, Senior classes in the history of S. T. C.

LIONS ENTERTAIN

The Lions Club of Farmville entertained the members of the Municipal League—the city managers of the state—at a delightful banquet Tuesday night in the Recreation Hall of S. T. C.

The program rendered by S. T. C. girls was as follows:

Solos, "Last Night," "Bye-Bye Blackbird."
Mebane Hunt
Piano Duett ..... "Il Trovature"
Virginia Vincent, Virginia Potts
Solos ..... "Always," "Sometimes"
Alice Davis
Trio "The Rosary"
Mebane Hunt, Alice Davis, Virginia Vincent

The Lions also sang several selections.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

CAMPUS TALK

Some three thousand years ago a certain old tertiary Comstock chiseled out the remarkably familiar statement that this old world of ours was "going to the dogs." In fact he even added that manners were on the decline, that the younger generation was less moral, less polite, less respectful—in short that something was radically wrong with the social picture of his day. And since that day each generation, yea even unto the present one, has lamented the failing of its youngsters.

This is a remarkable state of affairs indeed. Just consider how thoroughly bad, utterly indecent, and absolutely unmoral we of this younger generation of the twentieth century must be since we are on the very bottom-most rung of the ladder of degeneration that extends all the way back to the time of the above-mentioned pessimist. Certainly we are "in a bad way."

But let us see just how much truth there is in all of this. Much of the disrepute each generation falls into is due to an entirely different point of view on the part of the people concerned. There are no two people in the world, who think alike, talk alike, and understand just exactly the same meaning of a word written or spoken. If that is the case, and it most certainly is, just think how much difference can be made by "only" discussing and talking about a thnig.

Everybody in school will agree that more evil is done in and around the buildings and on the campus by discussion of affairs pertainining to the people with whom we are thrown into daily contact, than should be. But to my mind, it isn't a question of "evil-doing" so much as it is mere gossip and everyday slander. A small and harmless thing it seems to criticize or "kid" among a group of girls - yet how wide-spreading and embarrassing the result! There has never been an excess of that kind of thing here at our college, but we want to be careful to guard against having it crop up.

And while we're on the subject of campus talk there is something else which should be watched for. That is, an excessive use of slang. Of course we all know, or think we know, that slang is necessary; and very often it is most appropriate. But just consider what a great number of howling, slang-using girls would sound like and we will all be more careful of our voices and our speech. For isn't it just that very thing that our parents and teachers have been remonstrating against since we can remember? It surely is—and if we are careful of our talk around the campus we will go a long way towards refuting the argument of the short-sighted Comstock.

OUR CAMPUS.

"Work as a member of a group," Dr. Jarman has said, in ither words cooperate and so make yourself and others happier. One of the best ways we can show our group spirit is to cooperate with the Campus League chairman. Our Campus League cannot be held responsible for the looks of our campus. Each one of us must do our part if we wish ours to be the best campus in the state.

Don't get the mistaken idea that by campus we mean only the college grounds. Campus here means grounds, dormitories, classrooms in other words our physical environment while at college.

Do we realize that for practically nine months this campus is our home. And of course we all want our home to be beautiful. How can we do this? First make our own rooms as attractive as possible. Then the class rooms should receive our careful attention—for here we spend much of our time. And lastly let each individual one of us do our part in making our grounds something we are proud of.

THE COLLEGE MONOGRAM

The Monogram really means something to the girl who wins it, and those who have already made it are anxious that other girls who can meet the requirements should win it

Seven required points and thirty-five optional points are necessary for a girl to win her S. T. C. The first required point includes walking the balance beam, making her four basket ball goals out of six trys, and the potato race. The others are: a basket ball distance throw of forty-five feet, six good tennis serves out of eight, four consecutive hits at the baseball target, a high jump of three feet six inches, a ten mile hike, and above all one hundred per cent sportsmanship.

The optional points may be made by additional high jumping, hikes, target throws, basket ball distance; going through the stick, elephant walk, chinning the bar, javelin and discus throws, and making any class team on the varsity.

The variety of things that may be done for optional points makes it possible for any girl, who, if she is physically whole, really tries for this honor. We hope and expect that many of the Freshmen class will soon be wearing this monogram, and we want the upper classmen to keep up with our very progressive Freshmen.

AN APPRECIATION

Have you noticed the campus closely enough to see that a sun dial and two stone seats have been added to help beautify the school since last year? Don't they improve the campus more than you would have imagined? It seems as if they give the school an artistic touch that it lacked before—a touch that isn't altogether necessary, but that makes our school stand out from the others as even more different. This 'individual touch' is one for which we all wish to express our thanks.

The sun dial, which is located on the campus between the auditorium and the Student Building, was given by the Senior Class of '26 to the school. Dr. Jarman gave us the two stone seats, which are placed on the campus to the right and to the left of the main entrance. These gifts will make the "givers" live forever in the eyes of the school.

RAINE APPOINTED ASSISTANT EDITOR OF "THE VIRGINIAN"

Virginia Raine, a former student at Agnes Scott, has been appointed as assistant editor of the Virginian staff.

While at Agnes Scott Virginia was on the school paper and elected advertising manager of the 1927 annual of . Virginia ' considers itself very fortunate in securing her services.

LET'S SAVE THE WALLS

We have some new walls around school, as every single one of us has observed. Wonder why we noticed them so quickly? Most probably because they are cleaner, there are no pencil marks, no erased places, no finger prints, or other marks which would help to mar them. Let's try and keep them like this. Paper is made to write on, and not the walls. Why not keep these walls so clean that next year when we come back and there are actually new walls, they won't be so very obvious. Each person should make this her responsibility, so that we can carry it through. Our new slogan might be. Save the walls!

LIGHTS OUT!

There is a rule in our handbook which says lights must be out at 10:30, except in the rooms of Juniors and Seniors. Some of us have taken this rule to heart, we have evidently come to the conclusion that lights must not be turned out before 10:30. The electric light bill here is enormous, and its up to us to try and lessen it a little. We can do it this way, when you go out of your room at night turn the light off. Don't go to supper and leave the light burning. In your own home, do you go down stairs and leave all the lights burning? No! of course you don't—then consider. Instead of a family of six or seven, here we have a family of over nine hundred. If we would each think of this as our home and abide by the same type of rules, we'd remember, I'm sure, to turn off the lights when going out. Let's reduce the "light bill" by a big margin next month.

FROM THE MODERN VERSE

THE MODERN WOMAN TO HER LOVER

I shall not lie to you any more,
Flatter of fawn to attain my end—
I am what never has been before,
Woman—and Friend.

I shall be strong as a man is strong,
I shall be fair as a man is fair,
Hand in locked hand we shall pass along
To a purer air.

I shall not drag at your bridle rein,
Knee pressed to knee shall we ride the hill;
I shall not lie to you ever again—
Will you love me still?

—Margaret Widdemer

LOVE FAITH

Now that you would leave me
And another woo,
Was it you that told me once
Lovers should be true?

Was it you that told me
Lovers should be true?—
Dear, I still believe in love
But no more—in you!

—Hardy Kemp

THE WANDERER

He's such a wanderer in his thoughts
That no one can keep pace;
So strangely he will talk of Crete
Of Candia and Thrace!

He will not take me where he goes
He's deaf to me and blind,
Always I am left at home,
Sitting in my mind .....

—Amanda Benjamin Hall

MEN ARE THE DEVIL

Men are the devil—that's one thing sure.
Close your windows and lock your door,
Shut your eyes and shake your head;
Get your fun somewhere else, she said.

Men are the devil, they all bring woe.
In winter it's easy to, say just "No."
Men are the devil, that's one sure thing,
But what are you going to do in Spring?

—Mary Carolyn Davies

WHY WE HAVE JOAN OF ARC

her example than Joan of Arc.

Here in school in our class work and in our various activities when we "think in terms of the group" we are bound to think of service, of unselfishly giving of our time and energies in order that the whole school may be better off and may reach more nearly the idol which we all cherish for our Alma Mater.

Don't we feel more than Joan belongs to us? That her rightful place is in our midst where she constantly attracts our attention and thought. When we pass by, let's make it a point to look at her and think of what she stands for, then see if we don't find ourselves developing along a higher plane.

INK

I had just turned my ink bottle over; an accident, of course, for I ask you who would purposely mess up the manuscript over which they had worked laboriously. I angrily asked myself what good ink bottles were anyway. There certainly wouldn't be ink bottles if there weren't any ink so I suppose the blame should be put on the ink instead of that aggravating round bottle. But is ink any use except to mess up one's fingers and paper. I wondered how long ink had been spoiling people's hands and work and then suddenly came to the realization that ink was centuries old.

The origin of ink was way back in the time of the Egyptians. Then we come to the Greeks—why they were the earliest highly civilized people in the world! They had great astronomists and philosophers whose works are praised and repeated to this day. If that were so long ago how do we happen to have their works. Why, certainly it was handed down on sheep skin on which these words of wisdom were written, not in the ink of our days, but in a dark fluid which was the beginning of our ink. Then we come to the Romans who wrote much which has been preserved. Can't we see a Roman who was a great poet thrust his pen in the scarce fluid and hurriedly write on parchment the thoughts which he possessed? Of what did he write? War and love, both of which make history. Quickly the pen carried the ink over the sheet and by the marks it left carried on to the succeeding generations a story which should not be lost. Stories of war, battles, love, hate and politics were recorded by the black liquid which was so carefully preserved. Stories of how nations were formed developed and fell have been handed down to us to revel in and by which to learn the progress of man through the centuries; all because some man thought of putting a black fluid or white paper. What innumerable treasures would have been lost to us. What countless men would have died never to have their name proclaimed because of their works being lost and mixed up in the process of telling from tongue to tongue. Even today, how helpless the world would be without ink. There would be no newspapers, magazines or any written communication whatsoever. All communication would be by means of mouth. How far would we have progressed in civilization? Certainly not this far for each part of the world would have the greatest difficulties in learning the ideas, inventions and new thoughts of the other parts of the world and would derive so little benefit from their neighbors that their advancements would be seriously retarded. But that is only a "suppose," because ink is here and that has not happened.

I had suddenly become conscious of the fact that my fingers were wet with ink and my paper completely ruined when the thought came to me that ink was like fire. Fire, when controlled and used properly, is one of the necessities of life without which man could not live, but when it gets beyond control it becomes a demon of destruction and will ruin all man's works. Thus it was that the ink had gotten beyond my control, by an accident, which was perhaps fortunate in the fact that it destroyed a worthless piece of writing. It had also messed up my fingers, which were, I suppose, sufficiently punished for endeavoring to dabble with what they could not accomplish.

BALDWIN'S
DEPARTMENT STORES
LYNCHBURG VA DURHAM N C RICHMOND
Farmville Va

DEAR GIRLS:

We wish to extend to you a sincere welcome as S. T. C. Students, and to place at your disposal the service and conveniences of our store.

You are cordially invited to make this store your down town home. Every facility, every service and every courtesy that we are in a position to extend, we wish to extend to you.

Please feel that every member of this organization, including the writer, will deem it a privilege to meet you personally, and help you solve any problem that you may have as a student, in Farmville.

Very truly yours,
F. G. BALDWIN CO.

JOKES

Everything comes to him who waits. Except if you wait long enough and you aren't particular as to what you get.

P. P. man: "Hey, you, where are you going with those nine buckets of water?"

"Huh, I'm going to drown a cat."

Carroll: (teaching at John Randolph) "I 'o 'de-pair' in a sentence, George: We had a flat tire today, a Pop had to 'ave de-pair."

"Pete" says that if she saw a girl with the heel of her shoe coming off could her name be Lucile (loose heel)"

Conductor: "Change for Marietta!"
Buck Passenger: "Don't know who the girl is, but I'll chip in a dime."

It seems there were two Irishmen until somebody discovered the egg butter and egg men from the West.

Bookworm: "If I said, 'I am handsome', what tense would that be?"
Friend: "Pretense—pretense."

Modern Efficiency
Little Girl: "Is my Daddy in there?"
Proprietor: "Certainly. He's in seat number two, table number three—customer No. 144 G-2. Will you take him with you, or shall I have him sent?"

Sue: "Why did you take a yardstick to bed with you last night?"
Lucy Haile: "Ha—old girl—'twas to see how long I slept."

"What do you get if you don't boil your drinking water?" asked the teacher.

"Typhoid fever", replied the pupils.

"And when you boil your water," began the teacher.

"Soup", cheered the bright youngsters.

"I'm like a new hunt. When he's swimming with a girl, he tickles the sole of her foot."

"What does he do that for?"

"He says he always gets a kick out of it."

"That girl you dated last night was the homeliest thing I ever saw."

"Now, darling, you are forgetting yourself."

"I've got a terrible crush on the prom lead," said the steam roller.

"Sis Hopkins" song: "Hanging out with the bunch."

First Cannibal: "Is supper over?"
Second Cannibal: "Yes, everybody's eaten."

FALL AND A RAINBOW

Fall and a rainbow
Are both alike to me.
They both have lovely color
And a thousand things to see.

But though lovely a rainbow
'Tis far away as I sigh
While Fall I touch and feel
Because it is close by.

MAUD MULLER

(According to Traffic Regulations)

The judge came riding down the line,
Stroking his horse's chestnut mane.
But ere he reached Maud Muller's hay,
Some traffic came the other way
A limousine, a Ford or two,
A motorcycle tearing through,
A ten-ton truck, with such a load
It shoved His Honor off the road.
And last of all a traffic cop,
Who told the judge forthwith to stop.
Informing him with a show of heat
That "this here lane's a one-way street,"
And "couldn't he read the sign he saw?"
And didn't he know (blank dash) the law?"
The judge, obliging, turned around
And led his horse to lawful ground.
Maud Muller never sighed, "Ah me,
That I the judge's bride might be!"
She never gave the judge a drink
From the wayside brooklet's friendly brink.
Maud Muller raked, and raked the hay
Her friend, the judge, rode far away.
And not in tranquil mood just then—
A card read: "Traffic Court at ten."

THE RUN OF SILAS DEER

(Humble Apologies to Mr. Longfellow)

1.

Harken, football fans, and you shall hear
'Bout the sixty yard run of Silas Deer.
The season was good in twenty-five,
But now 'twill be forever alive
In the memory of every fan.

2.

The day was cool, the sky was clear,
And crowds had gathered from far and near;
The two college colors floated on high,
And rousing cheers rose to the sky
As the teams ran out on the field.

3.

Both teams fought; but neither could gain,
The men all struggled with might and main
To capture the ball and win just one goal.
Cheers rent the air, not even the cold
Was felt by those in the stands.

4.

Three quarters were over, the game 'most done,
The ball passed to Silas, who started to run
From the forty yard line of the enemy team.
With ball under arm as a man in a dream,
He ran the length of the field.

5.

The game was over, the whistle had blown
And swift Silas Deer is much better known
Than the author of some great story or rhyme;
Because it's the custom in this day and time
To honor the shrine of the sports.

ATHLETIC NEWS

With the change in weather and that "Fall" feeling in the air that just fills you full of pep and energy, there has come the inevitable zest for out-of-door sports. It is with great pleasure that we watch the school rise from the spell that the warm weather seems to have cast over it and enthusiastically prepare to participate in the various sports.

A large number of girls reported for monogram practice on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, and hereafter, every Tuesday and Thursday monogram practice will be held at 3:30 in the "gym". A ten mile hike is one required point, and the first hike will be Saturday, October 15. Miss Graham will leave from in front of the auditorium at 2:15 that afternoon. Clayds Huband has been appointed "Head of Monogram."

The preliminaries for the Tennis Tournament will be wound up this week, and the interclass games will start, thus deciding the school championship in Tennis.

Much interest is being shown in hockey, which promises to make good progress in spite of the fact that it is a new sport in the school. Practice will be held every Monday and Wednesday on the athletic field.

Are you good sports—start right now, to come out for tennis, hockey and monogram practice. Upper classmen, show the Freshmen what we do at S. T. C.—and Freshmen, show the old girls what you're going to do at S. T. C.!

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ATHLETIC ASSOCATION CONSTITUTION

The proposed amendment to the constitution of the Athletic Association, which concerns the academic requirement for participation in athletics is:

"Any woman who has failed in one subject, may be eligible for any athletic sport, provided that the rest of her work shall average C."

GREENHOW PARKER IS ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF CAMPUS LEAGUE

Last week Greenhow Parker was elected chairman of the Campus League for 1926-27 in place of Polly Stallard, who has moved into town. Greenhow has always proved to be "true-blue" in everything she attempted and everyone knows that this will be no exception because Greenhow's heart seems to be with the school. She will make a success of her "new position" not only because she will do all she can do, but also because every girl in the student body is behind her.

Miss Louise Shoffner spent the week-end at her home in Roanoke.

Miss "Jo" Lyne has returned from Durham, North Carolina, where she spent the week-end.

See These At the Eaco Theatre

MON.—Gertrude Olmstead in THE BOOB with an excellent supporting cast. A city dude had stolen his girl away! How was he to win her back? The answer is here in the picture you've been looking for—a tale of surprising twists, riding a gale of laughter and a whirlwind of action. Also Pathe News. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

TUES.—Jack Hoxie with "Scout" the wild horse in "THE WHITE OUTLAW". Clever, cunning, fearless the "White Outlaw" roamed the limitless plains—the lord of all he surveyed! Defying manmade traps, savagely defending himself against all the beasts of prey. A fresh original idea that will delight and exhilirate you. Also 5th and 6th episodes of "The Radio Detective.

WED.—Glenn Hunter and Edna Murphy in "THE LITTLE GIANT" from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Once a Peddler." Glenn Hunter as the pompous, go-getter taking the skids on the toboggan of conceit. Yet he'll win your sympathy and move you to tears. It's a high pressure mirth provoker that you can't afford to miss. Also Aesop Fable. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—Mae Murray, and John Gilbert in THE MERRY WIDOW. This is the greatest romance ever screened, the gorgeous tale of the Merry Widow and Prince Danilo, which as a stage marvel captivated the civilized world. It has been here before. Also Aesop Fable. Mat. at 4.

FRI. & SAT.—Norma Talmadge, Ronald Colman and Gertrude Astor in the Special Production KIKI. Here is the kickiest picture you ever saw. You'll love KIKI—you can't help it! Because Kiki is Norma Talmadge. That's the finest thing than can be said of any actress—in any part—and there isn't anything too fine to say about Norma Talmadge. This picture cost more than any other Talmadge picture but when you see it you will agree that it is worth the price. Good comedy each night. Come Friday, if you can.

Admission to S. T. C. girls: 35c Friday and Saturday; 25c Thurs., and 20c to other shows, if tickets are bought at school.

IF you want to see something marvelous, that is different, and more entertaining than anything you have ever seen upon the screen before, BE SURE TO SEE "THE LOST WORLD" when it is shown at the Eaco Theatre, Friday and Saturday, October 15th and 16th. This is a picture you never will forget. Adv

It's a good thing for most people that a looking-glass can't laugh.

THE TELEPHONE BOOTH

Girls, have you seen it? Why, the telephone booth, of course. Isn't it wonderful to get a long distance call and not be disturbed by a dozen or more people?

To whom it may concern we give out most earnest thanks for our nice new telephone booth.

Absence makes the marks grow rounder.

FACULTY ISSUE

THE ROTUNDA

DON'T MISS THE DEBATE

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1926 Number 4

S. T. C. GRADUATE MEMBERS OF ADMINISTRATIVE DEPT.

Have you ever stopped to think how many members of the graduating classes return to Farmville? Of course, we have our week-end visitors and over-night visitors from these classes, but do you know how many of our faculty are graduates of S. T. C.? Coming down the alphabet we have: Miss Ada Bierbower, Supervisor at John Randolph; Miss Elizabeth Bugg, assistant in Nature Study; Miss Pauline Camper, Supervisor at the Training School; Miss Alice Carter, Supervisor at the Training School; Mrs. M. B. Coyner, Supervisor at the Training School; Miss Helen Draper, assistant in French; Miss Myrtle Grenels; Miss Mary Clay Hiner; Miss Elizabeth Lewis; Miss Willie London; Miss Bessie Gordon Jones; Miss Anne Meredith; Miss Mary Peck; Miss Carrie Sutherlin; Miss Carrie B. Taliaferro; and Miss Mary Vaughan of our faculty in the college. Mrs. Olive S. Bowman has also been added to our faculty as assistant in biology.

Then look at our Administrative Officers. All three in the Registrar's office are graduates of S. T. C., Miss Jennie Tabb, Mrs. Holladay and Miss V. I. Bugg. The Business Office has two: Miss Winnie V. Hiner, Treasurer and Miss Margaret McCoy, and in the Home Department there are two more, Miss Mary White Cox and Mrs. Warren.

Doesn't all this prove that S. T. C. is one of the finest places on earth? Those who leave want to come back, and those who hear of it want to come to see for themselves. We are mighty proud of our faculty and wish to express our love and thanks to them for their untiring service they give to us; may we do our part to deserve it.

THE VIRGINIAN

If we didn't know what workers Evelyn and Virginia and 'Squirt' are, it would be hard to believe that the annual is well under way, but it is. Already pictures are being taken for it, and we are beginning to look forward with great anticipation to its publication in June.

The Virginian staff worked on our annual all summer when our minds were on anything but Farmville; and they have been working even harder since September twenty-third. Doesn't it seem as if this time that we put in some work on it, too?

If we will be on the lookout for suitable material, and, above all if, we will be prompt about having our pictures taken, we will be able to say, when the Virginian comes out next Spring, that it represents not only the work of the staff, but also an effort from us.

OUR SENIOR FACULTY MEMBER

MISS MARTHA W. COULLING

MISS MARTHA W. COULLING SENIOR FACULTY MEMBER

Our senior faculty member! Who is she? Miss Martha W. Coulling, of course. Miss Coulling, our drawing instructor, has seen our school grow from a small institution with an enrollment of a few hundred to one of the largest women's colleges in the state with an enrollment this year of almost one thousand. She has seen it changed from the State Normal School for Women to our State Teachers College. It is partly through the efforts of Miss Coulling, who is vice-president of the school, that these changes have come to pass.

Miss Coulling has studied at George Peabody College and Teachers College, New York, and has taken summer courses at Martha's Vineyard School, Chautauqua Summer School, Applied Arts Summer School in Chicago, and at the University of Chicago. This summer she taught at Emory and Henry College.

Miss Coulling has been one of the school's most faithful committee workers. he has served on the schedule committee for years. This year she is serving on the committee on College Course of Study, the Advisory Committee to P. K. O., the committee on the Annual and the Entertainment Committee. Also, she has worked faithfully in the Virginia Normal League, of which she is the president.

We appreciate the faithful service which Miss Coulling has given our school in the past, and hope that she will be with us a long time to continue her good work in the future.

MONOGRAM CLUB

The Monogram Club announces Mildred Lohr as a new member.

THE HOME DEPARTMENT

Although not considered a part of our faculty, the home department has a most definite connection with our school lives. They keep the conditions under which we live pleasant, they see that we are well and comfortable and in fact act as our family for our nine minths here. The members of the Home Department and their positions are:

Miss Mary White Cox, Head of Home
Miss Frances Shelton .... Asst. Head
Mrs. J. E. Warren Asst. in H. Dept
Mrs. James K. Laing, Asst. H. Dept.
Miss Blackwell, ... Asst. in H. Dept.
Mrs. W. L. Blanton .... Nigth Matron
Mrs. Bessie C. Jamison House Keeper
Mrs. Alice Peery, Asst. House Keeper
Mrs. Nunn, ... Supervisor Laundry

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE TO HAVE FIRST DEBATE

On Friday night, October 22, the Debating Club will hold the first debate of the season. The program will begin at 8 o'clock in the auditorium. It is to be a real debate under the Oxford method. If you don't know what the Oxford method is we have a surprise in store for you. This debate is purely an S. T. C. debate and the query is one in which every student is interested. The student body, the faculty and the general public are most cordially invited to attend S. T. C.'s opening debate.

Below we are printing the program. Save your Rotunda and bring it with you.

CLASSES IN TERMS OF MONOGRAM

All Seniors are proud to wear caps and gowns, because they represent the culmination of four long years of work. All Seniors should likewise be proud to wear the college monogram, because it represents the attainment of a certain athletic standard.

And you, Juniors, remember that in the admiring eyes of the Freshmen, you are a pattern and example of what they want and expect to be. So win your monogram and add still more prestige to your elevated position in school.

Between the Sophomores and Freshmen there is always a friendly rivalry. Are the Sophomores going to allow the Freshmen to completely outstrip them in this activity? The proper answer to this question means that a number of Sophomores will be out for every monogram practice.

Honors may come thick and fast to the Freshmen, but there is certainly no one of them who would not want this honor, for the wearer of the monogram has entered into the spirit of S. T. C. and is part and parcel of her being.

STUDENT STANDARDS COMMITTEE

The Student Standards Committee held its first regular meeting Thursday night, October 14, in the Faculty room.

This committee consists of five faculty members, two members from each class, and the heads of the five main organizations in school. It has as its purpose the upholding of the standards of the school and the solving of problems that will be of benefit to the school.

FACULTY AT WORK AMONG THE STUDENT ACTIVITIES

We have all heard it said time and time again that to be a really worthwhile teacher one must do more than merely teach. Right here in this college of ours the truth of the matter is most forcibly brought home to us, and for ourselves the veracity of the above statement.

Look around among our faculty, or better still take a short inventory of the activities which are promoted here in college, and you can see very easily another reason why we could not "do without" our faculty. First of all, take the class men. The interest which they take in the welfare of each separate and individual class cannot be surpassed. They are ready to help, advise, and work for the betterment of their class potege and toward such an end their efforts are tireless. With just such tireless and interested work does advisory board of the Y. W. C. A. function. There are twenty members of the faculty on this board and each of these stands behind the committees of the organization and the organization as a whole.

What would the Dramatic Club be without Miss Wheeler, or the Glee Club and Choral Club without Mrs. King? They are truly the power behind the throne in their respective clubs and have put these clubs where they are in school life. Not one of us is capable of so much as imagining these organization minus those two most necessary and important factors. The same thing can be said concerning Mr. McCorkle, the guardian spirit of The Virginian staff; he is absolutely indispensable to that publication. The Rotunda is fortunate indeed in having the faculty advisors it has. They have made themselves necessary adjucts to its existence and their aid in various matters has been invaluable. We hate to think it, and to admit it, but the Honor Society—Pi Kappa Omega itself,—cannot do without its faculty advisors!

As a clincher this is enough in itself But we cannot resist adding this small post-script, even though it is self-evident, and say that the way in which the faculty "co-operates" with student activities is an inspiration to every would-be teacher here.

MRS. STEELE VISITS SCHOOL

Mrs. Steele of the Methodist Board, was in town Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and her visit was a real pleasure and inspiration to the girls here. She spoke at Prayers Tuesday and Thursday nights, in chapel Wednesday, and held individual conference with the Y. W. C. A. cabinet members. Many girls availed themselves of the opportunity offered, of talking with her at sometime during her stay.

Mrs. Steele is a speaker of individuality and force, and her talks were welcomed.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

WHAT DO WE WORK FOR?

"—By the way
The works of women are symbolical.
We sew, sew, prick our fingers, dull our sight,
Producing what? A pair of slippers, sox
To put on when you're weary * * * *
Or else at best a cushion where you lean
And sleep, and dream of something we are not,
But would be for your sake. Alas, alas!
This hurts, this —— that, after all, we are paid
The worth of our work, perhaps.

—E. B. Browning

Perhaps——of all uncertain, unpleasant undertakings, to labor under a condition with an existing proviso is the worst. Perhaps, yes, just perhaps, after our work is done will we get our "just desert." But what does this include? Is our desert self-satisfaction because of self-accomplishment or self-satisfaction because of service rendered others?

While working for "straight A" reports isn't there another side to be developed other than the ego apparent in many of us? Having obtained the long-sought-for grades, is there any great satisfaction in the mere fact that we have brought glory for ourselves through self-service? Think! Would not it be more beneficial to others, and to us, were we to bury the now-existent self and give the fellow-travellers a chance? No, don't just let the grades "slide" and spend all of your time running around apparently busy when you are really doing little or nothing. There is danger in either extreme.

There are innumerable ways of living in a world larger than your own: Think and feel the presence of the other; live to consider the community a unit; submerge your own desires beneath those of the persons with whom you associate. By living with and for the community, satisfaction of a different nature will be attained. Not only will you grow but your neighbor will be better for having associated withyou. With Holland——"Work is the means of living——but it is not living."

JOAN SAYS—

Freshmen, are you surprised that I can speak? Well the old girls are use to hearing me. Though I haven't talked much this year I have thought a great deal. If seems to me, judging from what I see and hear, as the girls gather around me, that we have the finest student body we have ever had. The old girls are true to the S. T. C. type and the Freshmen are stepping in and making a place for themselves. Girls, it is not of you I'm thinking of the most today, though, it is the faculty. You have no idea what a large part the faculty plays in making the beautiful spirit of Farmville ring clear. They not only teach you in your classes, but they take part in every campus activity. Without their interest and cooperation where would our Dramatic Club, Y. W. C. A., Student Government, Debating Clubs, Literary Societies and Virginian be? With all of this, there is still another greater thing that the faculty gives my girls—it's the wonderful feeling of fellowship which they create. I'm sure I can easily say there is not one girl who has not a real personal friend in the faculty.

Faculty, dear, I can't thank you enough for what you have given my girls. It is your time, energy and loyalty that has made S. T. C. the school that it is. I thank you.

MR. GORDON MOSS

Mr. Gordon Moss, our new government teacher, was born in Lynchburg, Va. He attended the grammar and high school there.

Mr. Moss graduated from Washington and Lee University in 1921 receiving his B. A. degree.

The next three years he was a member of the faculty at Episcopal High School.

In 1924 Mr. Moss entered Yale and and was a student there for two years, when his M. A. degree was conferred.

The student body and faculty welcome Mr. Moss and hope he will soon feel quite at home.

It is quite a jump from teaching a bunch of girls at S. T. C.; so it is up to us to prove that girls study much more than boys and that girls are easier to teach.

MISS BARNES

S. T. C. has been very fortunate this year in securing as one of the teachers in the English department, Miss Mary Helen Barnes, of Staunton, Virginia. Miss Barnes is a graduate of Mary Baldwin Seminary and has her M. S. degree from the University of Virginia. Before coming to us Miss Barnes taught for several years in Beverley Manor High School, Staunton. We, the student body, sincerely hope that she will feel at home among us, and that her stay at S. T. C. will be a pleasant one.

MORNING WATCH

Every morning we have in the lounge of the Student Building a service which we call "Morning Watch." It is just a few minutes of quiet in which we can offer a prayer and sing to God before the day really begins for us. It seems to start off the day, God's Sabbath, in the right way and makes us feel better.

The service begins at quarter to eight and lasts about fifteen minutes Let's go next Sunday and start the day off right.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The preliminaries of the tennis tournament have not yet been completed, on account of the rainy weather. We hope that they will be finished by the end of the week.

The class games will begin the last of next week or the first of the following. Watch the bulletin board for notices of the class games.

Those playing to the fourth round in the semi-finals are entitled to their numerals. The numerals count eight points towards your monogram.

Come out and support your class team!

MR. JEFFERS SUCCEEDS MR. FATTIG AS BIOLOGY INSTRUCTOR

Among the new teachers at S. T. C. this year is Mr. George W. Jeffers, who succeeded Mr. P. W. Fattig as instructor of Biology. Mr. Jeffers was born in Fresh Water, Newfoundland, where he received his education through high school. He then attended the Methodist College, which is located at St. Johns, the capitol city of New Foundland. Having completed the work at Methodist College, Mr. Jeffers taught high school for five years, after whcih he attended Boston University. During part of the time at Boston University, he did demonstration work in Biology at Harvard. After getting his B. S. and M. A. degrees here, he attended the University of Toronto, where he did graduate work.

For the past two years Mr. Jeffers has been a member of the Biological Board of Canada. This year he made his first trip south as far as Virginia to accept the position offered him in this school. Already Mr. Jeffers has impressed his students with his up-to-date method of teaching, his ready knowledge, and his interest in his work.

MISS BUGG

For many years Miss Stubbs has been at the head of two separate departments, that of Sociology and that of Nature Study. The school has grown to such an extent that a Nature Study teacher was necessary. Dr. Jarman was fortunate enough to secure Miss Elizabeth Bugg of Farmville for the position.

Miss Bugg received her B. S. at S. T. C. last year and studied this summer at Chautauqua, N. Y. We are mighty glad to have Miss Bugg back on the campus as she took a very active part in the school life.

SENIOR CLASS CHANGES PRECEDENT

Last year the Senior class chose for their Junior girls, Juniors only. This was perfectly possible because there were twice as many Juniors as Seniors. This year there are more Seniors than there are Junoirs, so that it would be impossible for every Senior to have a Junior girl. Because some Seniors would have to be left without Juniors and because these Seniors would have to chose girls from the lower classes to be their Junior girl, the Senior class has decided to chose their "little sisters" from any one of the lower classes, Freshman, Sophomore or Junior, and instead of having Junior girls they will have "little sisters" and they will be "Senior sisters."

SONGS BY SARA TEASDALE

WILD ASTERS

In the spring I asked the daises
If his words were true,
And the clever clear-eyed daises
Always knew.

Now the fields are brown and barren,
Bitter autumn blows,
And of all the stupid asters
Not one knows.

THE SONG FOR COLIN

I sang a song at dusking time
Beneath the evening star,
And Terence left his latest rhyme
To answer from afar.

Pierrot laid down his lute to weep,
And sighed, "She sings for me."
But Colin slept a careless sleep
Beneath an apple tree.

BURIED LOVE

I have come to bury Love
Beneath a tree,
In the forest tall and black
Where none can see.

I shall put no flowers at his head
Nor stone at his feet,
For the mouth I loved so much
Was bittersweet.

I shall go no more to his grave,
For the woods are cold.
I shall gather as much of joy
As my hands can hold.

I shall stay all day in the sun
Where the wide winds blow,—
But oh, I shall cry at night
When none will know.

BECAUSE

Oh, because you never tried
To bow my will or break my pride,
And nothing of the cave-man made
You want to keep me half afraid,
Nor ever with in conquering air
You thought to draw me unaware—
Take me, for I love you more
Than I ever loved before.

And since the body's maidenhood
Alone were neither rare nor good
Unless with it I gave to you
A spirit still untrammeled, too,
Take my dreams and take my mind
That were masterless as wind;
And "Master!" I shall say to you
Since you never asked me to.

THE FLIGHT

Look back with longing eyes and know that I will follow,
Left me up in your love as a light
wind lifts a swallow,
Let our flight be far in sun or blowing rain—
But what if I heard my first love
calling me again?
Hold me on your heart as the brave
sea holds the foam,
Take me far away to the hills that hide your home;
Peace shall thatch the roof and love
shall latch the door—
But what if I heard my first love
calling me again?

THE KISS

I hoped that he would love me,
And he has kissed my mouth,
But I am like a stricken bird
That cannot reach the South.

For though I know he loves me,
Tonight my heart is sad;
His kiss was not so wonderful
As all the dreams I had.

DOUBT

My soul lives in my body's house
And you have both the house and her—
But sometimes she is less your own
Than a wild, gay adventurer,
A restless and an eager wraith,
How can I tell what she will do—
Oh, I am sure of my body's faith,
But what if my soul broke faith
with you?

QUIET IN THE TEA ROOM

Have you been in the Tea Room after chapel, or at supper time? If you have, you've noticed that we aren't keeping it quite so quiet as we might. Of course we go to the Tea Room for pleasure and recreation, but so does everyone else. Perhaps some people like to have a few minutes of quiet while they drink a cup of tea with friends, if so let's help them by not making quite such a fuss ourselves. We can easily remedy the confusion and get our orders filled quickly if we'll sit down and talk in an ordinary tone, instead of standing up and using high-pitched voices. Its only because we haven't stopped to think that we've had so much noise lately, so let's try and make our voices just a little lower. You see other people help support the Tea Room by coming in for meals. We couldn't get along without the Tea Room and perhaps the Tea Room couldn't get along quite so well without some of our friends from town. These people don't live in school, they aren't used to hearing all the girls together at one time and we'll have to think of them. We can help ourselves and most of all the Tea Room if we'll just be quiet while we are enjoying ourselves down there.

SING SATURDAY NIGHT A BIG SUCCESS

Saturday night more than half of the Student Body attended a most delightful Sing. Some new talent has been discovered in the Freshman Class in Elizabeth Sawyer, who introduced many new and interesting dance steps. Virginia Burks—enough said—then played several popular songs. Eleanor Bennett appeared singing her old favorites "I Love My Baby" and "Baby Face." She was accompanied by Sue Sebrell. Then Alice Thomas, an old S. T. C. girl consented to sing several selections for us. It is useless to say that this Sing proved one of the best ever.

In case some of the Freshmen have not been told, the Y. W. C. A. would like to announce that these Sings are held every Saturday night after supper.

JOKES

Why I Flunked in History

I thought that:

The Battle of Tours was fought when I wanted to go to Terre Haute and my girl wanted to go to Indianapolis.

Joan of Arc was Noah's wife.

St. Bernard was a dog.

Monks had tails and lived in trees.

A fife was a musical instrument.

The Scotch Highland was a drink.

I also slept in class. Now History is repeating itself—I'm taking it over again!—Yellow Jacket.

The Ward-Belmont Hyphen, published by the students of Ward-Belmont has listed a few of the 1925 crimes:

Highway Robbery: Holding up a Senior as a good example.

Murder: Killing time during the exams.

Money under false pretenses: Ten dollars from Dad for dues.

Bribery: Offering the teacher a good excuse for poor work.

Perjury: Telling your parents how hard you study.

EXCELSIOR

(With All Necessary Apologies)

The shades of night were falling flat
As at the mess hall table sat
A youth who strove with all his might
To eat a biscuit stuffed with white
Excelsior.

His brow was sad, his eyes were weak
They dripped the teardrops on his beak;
He held within his doubled fist
A sausage as he loudly hissed
Excelsior.

He spied upon a nearby plate
As if left there by kindly fate,
A croquet lying all alone;
He bit it and we heard him groan
Excelsior.

"Try not the hash," his comrade said,
"'Tis stuffed with grass and rancid bread."
"Not grass, but something just as punk,"
The youth replied, "They call this junk
Excelsior.

Then homeward went the weary lad,
His stomach ached, his heart was sad,
He went to sleep in his own bed
And clutched the mattress as he said,
Excelsior.

The morning dawned clear and fair,
The breakfast bell rang on the air;
The youth prepared his breakfast food
And murmured as he softly chewed
Excelsior.

At dinner time his tired mind
Was more to soup than meat inclined
And as it trickled down inside
The youth most gratefully replied,
Eureka.

See These At the Eaco Theatre

WED.—Glenn Hunter and Edna Murphy in "THE LITTLE GIANT" from the Saturday Evening Post story, "Once a Peddler." Glenn Hunter as the pompous, go-getter taking the skids on the toboggan of conceit. Yet he'll win your sympathy and move you to tears. It's a high pressure mirth provoker that you can't afford to miss. Also Aesop Fable. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—Mae Murray, and John Gilbert in THE MERRY WIDOW. This is the greatest romance ever screened, the gorgeous tale of the Merry Widow and Prince Danilo, which as a stage marvel captivated the civilized world. It has been here before. Also Aesop Fable. Mat. at 4. Friday, if you can.

MON.—Clara Bow, Allan Forest, Wallace MacDonald and George Fawcett in TWO CAN PLAY. She was a flapper—1926 model—and she believed she could play with fire and not be burned. She tried it with two rival lovers in a lone cabin on a deserted island. She wasn't burned but she came near being badly singed. Also Pathe News. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

TUES.—Buck Jones and Diana Miller in THE COWBOY AND THE COUNTESS. Thrilling battles, red-hot action, riotous humor, a pulsating love story—that is the theme. If you miss seeing Buck Jones in this picture, you'll miss the thrill of a life-time. Also 7th episode "The Radio Detective."

FRI. & SAT.—Norma Talmadge, Ronald Colman and Gertrude Astor in the Special Production KIKI. Here is the kickiest picture you ever saw. You'll love KIKI—you can't help it! Because Kiki is Norma Talmadge. That's the finest thing than can be said of any actress—in any part—and there isn't anything too fine to say about Norma Talmadge. This picture cost more than any other Talmadge picture but when you see it you will agree that it is worth the price. Good comedy each night. Come and there isn't anything too fine to say about Norma Talmadge. This picture cost more than any other Talmadge picture but when you see it you will agree that it is worth the price. Good comedy each night. Come

THE ROTUNDA

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 27, 1926 Number 5

EXAMINATIONS AT STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

The student body of Farmville State Teachers College arose en mass to sing a song of loyalty to President J. L. Jarman, after he announced the installation of a system of comprehensive examinations in addition to the regular tests.

The faculty has been considering the installation of examinations as a means of raising the standard of the school for two years, Dr. Jarman announced. The report of the committee of investigation read by him favored examinations for both pedagogical and administrative reasons.

At the first mention of examinations a low moan, as of an approaching cyclone, was heard, but the President predicted no nervousness over exams because of their comprehensive nature. The examinations are to be of the type based upon principles and organization and not the old type based upon detailed memory work.

As the speaker resumed his seat on the platform, Virginia Vincent, president of the student body, struck a chord on the piano and the entire assembly numbering nearly one thousand girls stood—some boldy, others holding to the back of chairs and raised their voices in song and cheers, proving their loyalty to the school and its administration.

The report of the committee is as follows:

The committee to whom the question of term examinations was referred have tried to make use of the experiences and opinions of those colleges which use examination and of those which do not. We have also investigated the opinion of educational writers on this subject.

The consensus of opinions, almost unanimously, favors examinations.

First—from pedagogical reasons because only knowledge which has been reviewed and organized is permanent; because the major purpose of college life is to see facts in their larger relations rather in their detached details; because the actual intensive preparation for an examination is one of the most useful forms of training; and because people succeed in life not on account of what they have done but because of what they can do.

Second, for administrative reasons, because by the use of examinations we keep work up to a high standard of interest and effort to the end of the term rather than let it "fray out at the edges"; because in the words of Dr. Chas. G. Maphis, Dean of the Summer Quarter and member of the Committee on Academic Legislation of the University of Virginia; "the examination should be an important part of the method of testing the knowledge of a student, gained by class instructoin, and of determining the grade earned. . . . The Dean of the University would be inclined to discount or not accept at all grades

SENIOR CLASS "MAN"

MISS MYRTLE E. GRENELS

SENIOR CLASS PRESENTS HONORARY MEMBER

Miss Grenels Presented as "Senior Man."

On Saturday morning, October 23, the Senior Class of 1927, rpesented Miss Myrtle Grenels as their Honorary Member. This was really a representation as Miss Grenels was Honorary Member of the class last year.

As the class marched in chapel, Virginia Potts, the class president and Miss Grenels led the line. While the class stood Miss Grenels was presented to the members of the Faculty and to the student body as Honorary Member for the coming year.

The class decided what it decided last year and the beginning of this year that Miss Grenels is the "best in the land, 'Deed she is, uh huh."

GLEE CLUB HAS TEA

The members of the Glee Club were entertained at a delightful tea in the banquet hall Wednesday afternoon.

Two beautiful solos were given by Miss Nancy Dennit and Miss Mebane Hunt, which added much to the afternoon's entertainment. The old and new members greatly enjoyed meeting and becoming better acquanted with each other.

SENIOR INSTALLATION SERVICE

The largest degree class in the history of the school was installed Thursday night at 7 o'clock in the State Teachers College auditorium. This, the ninth year since the college has been conferring the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education, a degree both cultural and vocational, begins with a senior class of over seventy members.

The very impressive services were opened by a processional, Minuet in G. As is the custom of the school, each member of the Class of 1927 was accompanied in the procession by her little sister, a girl chosen from one of the lower classes, who carried her cap for her. The cap was placed on the head of each kneeling senior by Dr. J. L. Jarman, the President of the school. A brief address congratulating the class on having advanced thus far toward its goal was made by Dr. Jarman. A solo was sung by Miss Alice Davis and a prayer offered by Rev. Mr. R. M. White, after which the class of '27 marched out to the singing of the Alma Mater song.

VIRGINIA CLUB TEA

Miss Stubbs was hostess at a delightful tea given Friday afternoon to the Virginia Club.

HALLOWEEN CELEBRATION PAST AND PRESENT

Someone once made the statement that there was nothing permanent, but change, and I believe he thought he spoke the truth. There are some things, however, which, with the exception of time and manners, have changed very little. One of these things, which I have just mentioned, is the celebration of Hallowe'en on the 31st of October, so called, because it is the eve of All Hallows or the festival of All Saints, which falls on November 1st. A look at the origin of this festival will show us just how and wherein it holds any semblance to our very dear Hallowe'en.

Of course it was formerly attendant to religious ceremonies long before Christianity—most of our customs, more or less modern, seem to date back to paganistic beginnings, (for instance, the saxaphone!). The two chief characteristics of ancient Hallowe'en were the lighting of bonfires and the belief that of all nights during the year that was the one on which ghosts and witches were most likely to wander abroad. On or about November the first the Druids held their autumnal feast in honor of the Sun God as a Thanksgiving for their harvest. It was also a Druidic belief that during this festival, Saman, the lord of death, gathered together all the wicked souls that within the past twelve months had died and were condemned to inhabit the bodies of animals. Roman characteristics were grafted onto these Druidic customs, characteristics in which as a favor to Pomona, nuts and apples, representing the winter's store of fruits, played an important part. Thus the roasting of nuts, and ducking for apples were once universal occupations of youngsters in medieval England.

And so Hallowe'en came on down to us and we have it now. And just what have we with it? It is true that all the religious element of former times has been eliminated from its festivities, but it is still associated in the popular imagination with supernatural things and is clearly a relic of pagan times. Witches, ghosts and goblins of all varieties are prevalent on that one night, and pranks of all kinds are excused because of the season. Fortunes are told and prophecies made, all because of the fascination anything supernatural holds for the human race.

In northern England Hallowe'en is known as Nuteracker's night; in Scotland there are also ceremonies of this eve regarded in a highly superstitious light. Popular belief ascribed to children born on this night the faculty of perceiving and holding converse with spirits, good and evil. In America general pandemonium reigns. And I shall warn the unsuspecting onlooker with the following statement—"The goblins'll git you Ef you donn watch out!"

FIRST DEBATE OF SESSION HELD FRIDAY NIGHT

On Friday night, October 22, in the auditorium, the Debating Club held the first public debate of the season. The question, Resolved: That there should be an athletic requirement for scholastic honors, was one of vital interest to everyone.

The debaters were well versed in the subject and handled it extremely well. The main argument of the affirmative side was that the ideal college student is an all-round person and that one cannot be an all-round person unless he possesses health and that athletics fosters not only physical health, but sportsmanship and mental health. The argument of the negative was mainly, that higher education is the main purpose of a college and that athletics is only an incidental activity; that there have been scholars who were eminent in spite of physical handicap. The Oxford decision was used according to which the negative team was victorious.

FORMER STUDENT REFLECTS HONOR ON S. T. C

Miss Bess Rush, a graduate in our primary course in the Class of 1922 is now a student at Teachers College, New York City.

The Supervisor under whom Miss Rush taught in Winchester, Va., writes Dr. Jarman as follows:

"Through her pleasing personality and scholarship Miss Rush has been given a teaching position in the primary grades of the Horace Mann School in New York City. In addition to this she has been given a scholarship at Teachers College, Columbia University.

"I know that you will be as pleased and as hapy as I am. Miss Rush has been with me five years and she has done very exceptional work during all that time. We are hoping she will be able to otain her B. S. degree at Columbia within the next two years."

We congratulate Miss Rush on her good fortune and congratulate ourselves on the glory she is reflecting on her Alma Mater.

TOWN GIRLS ENTERTAINED AT PICNIC PARTY

It might have been a picnic had the sun kept shining, but even the weather deciding otherwise, didn't daunt a picnic crowd in this instance. The town girls committee of the Y. W. C. A. had invited the town girls to a picnic Saturday afternoon, but when old Sol refused to smile, they migrated to the kindergarten room and had the "outing" anyhow. Games and dancing passed the afternoon; then refreshments of hot dogs, sandwiches and marshmallows were served in true picnic style. Who cares about rain when picnic moods and picnic fun may be brought indoors?

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

OUR ATTITUDE TOWARD EACH OTHER.

Should a lower classman have more respect for upper classmen than they seem to have here? So many people have been heard to say that they could never destinguish a Junior or Senior from a Freshman or Sophomore here as they could in other schools throughut the State. Is it because a distinction that should be made is not made here? Les investigate and see.

Any older person is respected more than a younger one because it is understood that he has had the experiences that the younger are having and that his outlook on life is broader. In college isn't this the same case? Upper classmen have been through the same things that the lower classmen are going through now. Naturally that broader and more thorough experience should make some little distinction and should demand that little unconscious respect. That is what is expeced.

Now, look at the other side. The upper classmen should have the correct attitde toward the lower classmen. They appreciate their position and in turn should never take advantage of it. Their motto should be "Service," for they are placed in a position where they can serve and where they are expected to do all in their power to promote a wholesome and cooperative attitude of all toward the school, each class and each girl.

With the proper respect on one side and service on the other and with a combination of the two it is known that upper and lower classmen can be as indispensable help for each other, for after all, all cooperation comes through the understanding and respect of your co-worker.

HAVE YOU HAD YOUR PICTURE TAKEN FOR THE ANNUAL?

There are more ways than one to support your school, one of theseways is by supporting its various organizations, publications, etc. Right at present you should be helping the Virginian. Of course you'll subscribe, for this is one way that you can have a complete memory book of your year at S. T. C. But this memory book isn't going to be complete unless yu support it in another way, that is, by having your picture taken and put in the Annual. There are over nine hundred girls in school who are supposed to be represented in the Virginian, so far only about three hundred girls have signed up to have their pictures taken. The Virginian went much much to anyone unless we all have our pictures in, for everyone wants to have her friend's pictures where she can see it. Let's try and make our Annual what it should be and, sign up right away for our pictures.

MAGAZINE COVERS

One day, passing to survey at close quarters college girls scattered about over a campus, the thought came to me that people were very much like magazine covers. The keymark of our character is shown by our appearance, just as the class in which a magazine belongs is indicated by its cover.

For example, consider the cheap, trashy class of periodicals. Their flamboyant covers proclaim their contents to any one at first sight. flashing dare-devil cowboys on prancing steeds, shamelessly, they dare the world to read why Love is stonger than Riches, or how Rose outwitted the Bandits. But who cares to store his mind with such literature? It is for no other purpose than that of amusing, and that only temporary. We have all seen people like that, whose first appearance speaks their shallowness, their frivolity, and after glancing at them once we discover their real lack of depth.

Next comes the mediocre magazine, which cannot be considered trash and yet certainly not good literature. The books pertaining to fashion, vanity, and the moving picture books usually make up this class. Often their exteriors have a style, a certain originality which inveigles one into looking beneath the surface. But after a study of their pages, we find them bitterly common-place and colorless. Think of the people one sees of that description!

Last of all the real, worth-while magazines come to the mind. Their covers, painted in rich, steadfast colors, enable an onlooker to tell at once that they are first-class books. Hardly a need to glance through their pages to ascertain their worth, for their exteriors proclaim that fact. They can endure any test put upon them, and one always finds pleasure, as well as instruction, in them. The keen-eyed observer can tell at one glance at this class that underneath there is something worth knowing. So we should all be careful that the covers to our character are painted in fast, durable colors, in order to withstand the keenest, most critical of glances.

EXAMINATIONS AT S. T. C.

of a student who had not passed a comprehensive examination on the subject for which transfer credit was sought."

We therefore recommend:

First—the continuance of the bi-weekly reports and of the system of tests (suggesting two tests in addition to the final examination);

Second—that there be a final examination of two hours' length in each subject, to be regularly scheduled by the schedule committee (suggested schedule filed herewith). It is strongly urged that the examinations be on principles and organization of material rather than on the memory of detailed facts.

Third—that the grade of the examination and that of the class standing be averaged on a 50-50 basis for the passing grade. Class standing is understood to include daily grades, tests, term papers, notebooks and other written work, laboratory work, in other words all work of the term other than the examination.

Fourth—that all grades must be handed in to the Registrar not later than three days after the date of the end of the term.

NOTES

We have here in school a system devised to aid the girls in their scholastic work. The purpose of this system is to notify the girls of the progress they are making in their work. This is done by means of notes sent every two weeks on Tuesday. If a girl's work has been near failing for the preceding two weeks she will receive a note from the teacher of that subject with a "W" on it which means warning. If her work has been below passing she will receive a note with "F" on it—failing. These notes are given out only in a spirit of helpfulness and if a girl is earnest in her work she will go to the teacher and find out how she can improve. The instructor will be glad to help her for that is the reason she sent the note, to help the girl. Don't get the mistaken idea that these notes mean a student cannot pass the course. They only mean that she must put more time and energy on her work and make her grades higher.

Let us all try to have every Tuesday go by without any notes except from home or our "true-loves."

MUSIC DURING CHAPEL

Chapel has not meant to us exactly what it should. Instead of a place of worship it has seemed more like a social gathering. When the bell rings for chapel we go in laughing and talking instead of quietly and reverently. We seem to forget that chapel means a place of worship. Now as soon as that bell rings, soft music is played for us to enter by, and to remind us not to laugh and talk. Let us show our appreciation of that music by being as quiet as possible, not only when we enter but the whole time we are in chapel.

BOOST THE ANNUAL

Girls, our Virginian is well on the way. It is a product of the school, not of the Virginian staff, so let us all, in every way we can, help it to be the best yet. If anyone has any attractive and original ways of making the 1926-1927 annual the best, please let them be known.

The statistics are soon to be taken Let every member of the student body make it her business to know the other girls so that she may be able to vote more intelligently. Don't vote just to get it over with or just because you have to, but vote intelligently.

DR. SWAN LECTURES IN CHAPEL SATURDAY

Farmville, Va., October 23—Dr. George L. Swan, a representative of the American Social Hygiene Association, addressed the student body of the State Teachers College in the auditorium here Saturday morning, October 23, at the first Senior Assembly of the session. Dr. Swan spoke eloquently on a subject which requires the utmost dexterity of treatment and the students of this institution as well as those of other colleges and preparatory schools in Virginia where Dr. Swan has lectured are fortunate in their opportunity to hear "the beauty of life" discussed and the importance of the health of society brought before them in the graphic and impressive style which he employs.

CONFUSION AND CONSTERNATION REIGNS AT S. T. C.

In this big world of billions of people did you ever stop to think how miraculous it is that God has made no two persons exactly alike? People differ in size, color, features and personality. The Law of Combinations and Permutations applies to mathematics but is that potential enough to account for our differences? There are about 900 girls—at Farmville S. T. C. and not any two of them exactly alke.

Some people in the college however, are in great confusion, and wish to be enlightened. Sometimes they wonder if they have come to the World's Fair where duplicates are gathered together, or that they had better consult an oculist when they seem to be seeing double. One may wait patiently in the Post Office package line behind Alberta Collins and somebody almost exactly—oh! exactly—like her will come up and whisper, "Is it a box from home?" You stand amazed until the girl behind you explains—they're "twins", and the other one is Alfreda. Oh! yes. Then you go out walking and two people just alike sweep majestically past you. Again you are agitated, but you learn that one is Mary Ellen and the other is Marjorie Helen Carter—twins. We have song birds in our midst who "Peal out the hidden souls of harmony," and they're the McIntyre twins—Cornelia and Florence, if telling names is of any advantage. Our noble freshman class has twins, but Edith Violet and Esther Lily Gary can't trick us, because one has light and the other dark hair. That's truly a crowning glory!

The mere identification of the twins is not sufficient enlightment, Frances Carter Smith, Frances Marion Smith and Frances Berkley Smith are especially easy for the teachers to know that they are different individuals, even though they do not belong to a rare species. Sometimes letters are received with an oddly puzzled expression. Sometimes they contain "lines" that make sad hearts thrill and thrill and thrill. You don't understand the letter, Dear Girl! The little things in life that count—an initial for instance Anna Leigh Gwaltney, Anna Gwaltney; Anna H. Jones, Anna V. Jones; Mary B. Parker, Mary S. Parker; G. Elizabeth Rawls, Mary Elizabeth Rawls; Dorothy S. Watkins, Dorothy Watkins; Mary E. Williams, Mary V. Williams; Elizabeth J. Williams, Elizabeth L. Williams—they'll testify.

There is another thing that cause great confusion and consternation, the likeness in sound of names, for instance: Hellen May Rodgers and Nettie May Rogers are not even related, Mary Banks, Myrtle Banks; Louise Bell, Lois Bell; Louise Brewer, Lorah Brewer; Earline Brown, Edna Elazada Brown; Lola Davis, Lucy Davis; Edith Lyle Joyner, Ethel Leigh Joyner. Life is a very rapid series of successive shocks and thrills.

But this isn't the end of this woeful tale. The faculty is involved in our confuson too. There is a Mary A. Barlow and a Miss Mary A. Barlow of the faculty. Alice Carter, Elizabeth Marshall, and Mary Peck, of the school strive hard to be models of sober propriety and dignity to uphold their good names which are on the faculty list. Life is a riddle at S. T. C.

Liz Scott says that: "A friend in need is a friend who asks you in to have something to eat.

FACULTY FROLIC

For several days we have noticed suppressed excitement and self-conscious giggles on the part of the learned group whom we call "our" Faculty. The secret came out Wednesday afternoon when we saw the clan assemble supplied with a drinking cup and a happy smile. It was a picnic!

Of course it rained, and of course Lithia Springs was not suitable, but the Kindergarten room was available and from it soon came shrieks of "childish" laughter. We hear that "Sister" Graham taught the little children how to play, and that there was a contest in writing "foolish jingles". At least we know that Miss Grenels came home with a prize as the most foolish and Mr. Coyner received honorable mention in the same list. Miss Mix and Miss Haynes told tales to the little ones and tried by gentle means to restrain the irrepressible Miss Penny and Mr. Bell.

And how and what they did eat! To our certain knowledge they ate enough to supply the whole dining room for two days and officially conferred on Miss Jeter the degree of D. E. (Doctor of Eats). And yet they had the heart to legislate for us that same night. O tempora, o mores!

P. S.—Oh, yes, there was a rat, and we understand that "the female of the species is more agile than the male."

Save your copy of the Rotunda each week and at the end of the school year, have them bound into one volume. These volumes make good memory books.

JUNIORS AND SOPHS ON TOP IN SEMI-FINALS OF TENNIS

An important part of the athletic program for this year was the tennis tournament. It has not been received with the enthusiasm which we hoped the student body would accord it, but in itself it has been a great success. The contestants have all been good sports and in most of the games have been exceptionally well-matched.

The Seniors launched the semi-finals on Wednesday afternoon in the doubles match against the Juniors. Margaret Cobb and Betty Hopkins upheld the honor of the Senior class and the green and white, while Dulittle" and Jackie Woodson, undaunted by the dignity of their opponents stepped forth with a determination to win which could not be downed. The Juniors, playing a splendid game, defeated the Seniors playing only a little less splendidly. While only two sets were necessary to make the Juniors winners, the Seniors can be called unreservedly good players and good sports along with those who defeated them.

On Thursday evening there was a double header. The Sophomores played the Freshmen in doubles, and the Seniors held forth in singles against the Juniors, only to find that Junior spirit when a love example is taken is still as invincible as when two are tackled at a time. "Dulittle" again walked off the court as victor having defeated La Boyteaux, the champion of the Seniors. The excellent return of both players was the outstanding point in this match. But the green and white retaliated in the Sophomore-Freshman doubles when Henderlite and Orgain won two hard fought sets from the battling Freshmen—Palmer and Wilson. Palmer showed speed and a knowledge of the game, while Henderlite served swift balls which seemed to stump the Rats. Palmer and Henderlite both did good work close to the net.

On Friday evening the victorious Junoir doubles met their match in the equally victorious Sophomore team for the finals. Balls flew thick and fast; scores went up side by side and neither team could get advantage enough to proclaim it winner. The Juniors won the first set, but the Sophomores came back in the second and put it down as an asset for themselves and a liability for the Juniors. Henderlite and "Dulittle" both played a goon game while their respective partners backed them valiantly. The third set, which must settle the question, as to whch class possesses the best players, had to be postponed until Monday evening.

The Sophomore-Freshman singles were also played on Friday evening with Morris playing for the Sophomores and L. Smith for the Freshmen. Morris' strongest point was her serve which enabled her to win two successive sets from the spunky Freshman, who gave her a stiff fight.

MISS WHEELER ENTERTAINS

On Monday afternoon, October the twenty-fifth, Miss Leola Wheeler entertained the members of the Dramatic Club at tea, at her home on High Street. The guests called from four to six. They were met at the door by Miss Francis Sale.

In the living room Miss Wheeler served her guests delightful tea, sandwiches, and cakes. She was assisted in serving by Miss Louise McCormick.

STORM AT SEA THRILLING SCENE IN FOX PICTURE

"As No Man Has Loved" is Powerful Version of Hale's Epic

Critics of seventeen New York papers joined in saying that the William Fox photoplay, "As No Man Has Loved," which will be presented at the Eaco Theatre on Thursday is not only a magnificent spectacle, but the most compelling argument for love of home and country ever penned or pictured. It is based on Edward Everett Hale's story, "The Man Without a Country."

"I regret that I have but one life to give for my country", said Nathan Hale just before he died to prove his love for the then feeble United States. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

WED.—Glenn Hunter and Mildred Ryan in THE BROADWAY BOOB. He had clodhopper feet and hay seed in his hair when he hit New York. But, boy, how he could Charleston! Over night he danced himself into the "Follies" and fame and fortune. Imagine Glenn Hunter in a role like that. Don't miss this one, girls! Also Aesop Fable. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY. Edward Everett Hale's great American classic has been made into a great picture entitled AS NO MAN HAS LOVED. It is one of the finest pictures that any one has ever seen upon the screen. It has been here before, but it is such a fine production we are bringing it back. Don't miss it. Also Aesop Fable. Mat. at four o'clock. Special Music by HAMPDEN-SIDNEY Orchestra at this Matinee.

FRI. & SAT.—Thomas Meighan and Lois Wilson in IRISH LUCK. A special Paramount picture. This is the picture Thomas Meighan went to Ireland to make. In this picture he plays two distinct roles. One he is a traffic cop and in the other he is an Irish Nobleman. All critics agree that this is the best Meighan picture in two years. This is the type of picturr that appeals to all. Please try to see this picture on Friday night. Also good comedy each night.

Mon.—Alice Calhoun, Robert Frazer, Mahlon Hamilton and David Torrenie in THE OTHER WOMAN'S STORY. Is the "other woman" always to be iondemned? Has she less right to happiness than the wife? These questions are answered with impartiality in this great screen drama founded on an actual divorce case that startled America. Also Pathe News. Mat. at 4.

Tues.—William Desmond in THE BURNING TRAIL. A western picture of thrills and fights between cattle men and sheep men. The wildest cowpuncher north of the Rio Grande. They called him "Texas" because he was so wild. But when he drove his huge fist through the door of the cabin you ought to see who tamed him. Also 8th episode of the RADIO DETECTIVE.

Merchant Club Tickets good Monday and Tuesday but not Wednesday.

ADMISSION—Adults Friday and Saturday nights 50 cents; Thursday Night and Friday Matinee 35 cents. Other shows 25 cents. Children under 12 years, 15 cents to each show except Friday and Saturday night when the admission will be 25 cents.

THE PETERSBURG-DINWIDDIE CLUB

Last Tuesday night, October 12, a meeting of all girls from Petersburg and Dinwiddie county was held. Betty Edmunds, the president of the club, last year, called the girls together to see if we wanted to continue to have the P.-D. Club. There was much discussion of this from both sides. Finally the majority voted for the keeping of the club. After this important question was settled we elected our officers as follows:

President ..... Orline White
Vice-President ..... Nellie Chambers
Secretary ..... Lois Fraser
Treasurer ..... Rebecca Reames
Reporter ..... Elizabeth Willis

Miss Olive Iler was unanimously rechosen as our faculty member.

HALLOWEEN SUPPER GIVEN LAST THURSDAY NIGHT

Student Body Wishes to Thank Mrs. Jamison

Only did we believe in the supernatural elements when the dining room doors were opened on Thursday night. At first we couldn't quite make out what had happened the "thrill" was too much. Everything was so so won—der—ful!! The dim lights, the Hallowe'en decorations all made us gasp with surprise, but when our eyes beheld the food—well—words cannot express our delight.

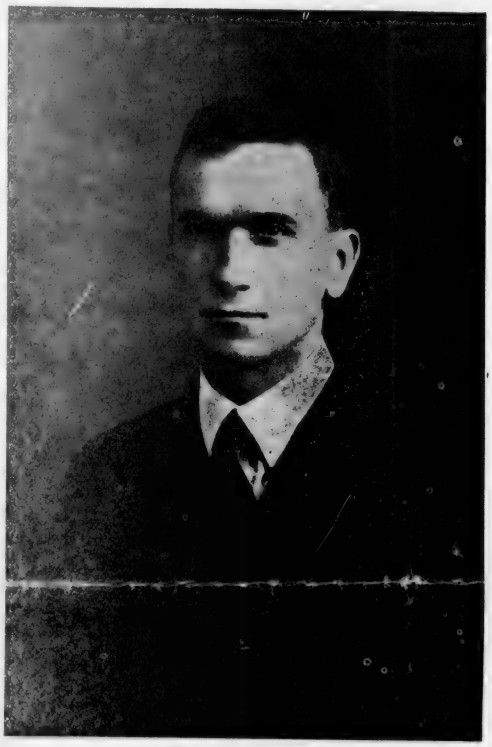
When we had quieted down just enough to question whose had been the magic to change our usual dining room into such a veritable fairyland —another distraction ocurred. There entered by the main door, three witches. We stood in amazement—where had they come from? What were they here for? Where were they going? Surely we would wake up and find it all a dream. Nay! Nay! They came down the main aisle, turned to the left and slowly ascended the stairs to the balcony. Wierd music next delighted us by sending shivers up and down our spinal column. What we heard was, "Have you ever thought as the hearse goes by?" As they sang light began to dawn upon us and our tension relaxed.

When the song was concluded the witches relieved our minds by revealing their indentity. They proved to be none other than Mebane, "V", Mrs. Bowman, and from some other spot Virginia Potts appeared. Our musical friends were signal for applause.

The witches proved that witchcraft is not all a myth, for they could furnish our desired information, namely the "genii of the supper." Mrs. Jamison. The cheer given Mrs. Jamison on this announcement could not but express the appreciation which every girl felt for the delightful surprises. Miss Mary we found, was the other conspirator, and we thank her for her share.

There was only one thing which might have marred our pleasure, and it didn't. He was there. Somehow our good times aren't complete without Dr. Jarman. We expressed our pleasure at his presence in the same old way, we sang: "What's the Matter with Jarman."

Then we ate!! Oh how we enjoyed it, not only was our food delicious, but better yet, we had music all during our meal.



RICHMOND CLUB REORGANIZES

On October 22, the Richmond Club was reorganized. The following officers were elected:

President ..... Katherine Bentley
Vice-Pres. ..... Elizabeth Bowers
Sec'y.-Treas. .... Marguerite Warriner

Plans are in store for a most delightful picnic to be held within the next month.

JUNIOR CLASS MAN

T. A. McCORKLE

JUNIORS PRESENT CLASS MAN

Mr. McCorkle is Re-elected

Hallowe'en is characterized by witches, and witches often perform mysterious and unexpected things, but never before has a witch lured "the best man in the world" out of a pumpkin. However, that was done Saturday when the Junior class presented Mr. T. A. McCorkle to the school as the Junior class "man".

The class marched in looking very sad. In fact, they looked as though they had lost their best friend. Their looks didn't deceive for the class president finally announced to the school that "the best man in the world" could not be found. Nobody knows what would have happened if a kind old witch hadn't appeared on the scene to help the woe-begone Juniors. After Virginia had found a "nice big pumpkin," the witch uttered some mystical words (we think they were chemical phrases) and out stepped Mr. McCorkle. The miracle was performed and now Virginia was happy, the class was happy and the school was—satisfied.

If exercise will eliminate fat, how in the world does a woman get a double chin?

"HANSEL AND GRETEL" COMES TO S. T. C.

Who among us doesn't like to see fairies and witches—especially just at Hallowe'en time? It isn't often that S. T. C. girls have the good fortune to see an opera. 'Twas for that reason we went in such numbers as to crowd the auditorium to overflowing on Tuesday night. We were delighted to see that story, "Hansel and Gretel," a favorite to so many, in a real sure enough opera.

One might imagine that Hansel and Gretel," a favorite to so many, in the old fairy story book, so well were their parts played. Who was present who did not fall completely under the spell of the witch who lived in the ginger bread house?

Cast in order of appearances:

Gretel ..... Mary Korb
Hansel ..... Sallie Spenser
Gertrude, the mother .... Mary Potter
Peter, (a broom maker) the father ..... Walter McNally
Sandman, the sleep fairy and Dewman, the dawn, Evelyn Wilson
Witch ..... Mary Potter
Angels ..... Children
Conductor ..... Charles R. Cronham

"What do you say to a sandwich?"

"Why, I—hic—wouldn't ssh—speak to it!"

SOPHOMORE CLASS WINS TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

Green and White Win First Ten Points

The finals in the tennis tournament were played off Tuesday afternoon when the Junoirs bowed to the Sophomores. This was the third set played, and a great deal of interest was shown because each team had won one set and this was the set to decide the championship. Henderlite and Orgain brought the laurels for the Sophomore class; Woodson and "Dulittle" contending for the Juniors. The final score being 6—1.

The singles played off the same afternoon were also exciting—"Dulittle" for the Juniors and Morris playing for the Sophomores. The players were evenly matched and the scores were close, 6—4; and 6—3.

These games mark the close of tennis this year—that is, interclass games. The next sport that will be played is hockey, and as this is the first year this sport has been played here there will be a great deal of interest shown on the part of both players and spectators.

Green and White win first 10 points for the cup! Support your colors—if you can't play, come and yell—the players like to know they have their class back of them. We want 100 per cent good sportsmanship this year, so do your part!

FRESHMAN CLASS ELECTS OFFICERS

At a meeting of the Freshman class on Friday night, the officers for the coming year were elected. The spirit of enthusiasm and interest which the Freshmen showed in this meeting and in the choosing of their officers gave promise that the largest class isn't going to be only large in number, but in its workings.

The following officers were elected:

President ..... Etta Marshall
Vice-Pres. ..... Lucile Graves
Secretary ..... Frances Wilson
Treasurer ..... Mary W. Vincent

MIXED PICKLES PLAYS TO LARGE AUDIENCE

Friday night the American Legion Auxiliary presented Mixed Pickles, a musical comedy, to a large audience in the college auditorium. Much credit is due Miss Eunice Pritchett and Miss Thelma Richardson, under whose direction the show was produced.

Considering the short time the cast had practiced and the lack of scenery the play was good. All of the hitches in the show are explained by these trying difficulties.

Mr. Louis Hubbard, as Henry Heintz, and Mr. John Doyne, as Rosie McDuff, were unusually good and practically made the show.

Miss Aylwin Houghson had a very difficult part and played it very well. Dr. W. J. Sydnor as the Reverend J. S. Hobbs also deserves mention.

The chorus was good but lacked practice. Miss Gwendolyn Selden, as usual, received a great deal of applause when she appeared as the aesthetic dancer.

Much praise is due the directors and the cast for putting on a show as good as Mixed Pickles was, when only eight days were given them for practice.

SOPHOMORE CLASS MAN ELECTED

Miss Iler Will Again Support the Green and White

At a recent meeting of the Sophomore class, Miss Olive T. Iler was unanimously elected as class man for the year 1926-'27.

We greatly appreciate what Miss Iler did for us last year as Freshmen; her steady attendance of all class meetings; the splendid ideas, which she offered us at all times; her work on our Freshman musical comedy; and unfailing cooperation with us. We, the Sophomores, are looking again this year for help and inspiration from Miss Iler, whom we are only too proud to call our Sophomore class man.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS FROM NOW

"Twenty-five years from now," Dr. Jarman says, "your annual will mean twentyfive times more to you than it does now." And Dr. Jarman ought to know. He knows from experience, and he knows because he knows us.

Think about this. You know you will want an annual twenty-five years from now, because Dr. Jarman says so; and you know you want one this year, because that goes without saying.

So be on the lookout for Ola Thomas. She's already started getting the names of those who want an annual, and she'll get around to you as soon as she can. Don't let her fail to locate you. When the annual comes out, you don't want to be the only girl without one. You'll be sorry twenty-five years from now.

CARROLL CROMWELL ELECTED TO ROTUNDA STAFF

The Rotunda staff wishes to announce that a new reporter has been elected to fill a vacancy. This reporter is Carroll Cromwell, who had shown her eligibility to the staff by doing some excellent work as an outsider.

MISS IDA BIERBOWER, Alumnae Editor

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

OUR ATHLETIC ATTITUDE.

We hear talk on every side aout "attitude." We hear of our attitude toward work, toward play, toward each other, toward the faculty and just now we've been hearing of "attitude in connection with exams. While we are hearing it on all the other subjects let's stop and think for a second about our "athletic attitude." We are rather inclined to feel that because we aren't, or haven't been "star athletes," that we have no responsibility along this line at all. Then we would have a sad, sad state of affairs.

The tennis tournament is over. The few girls who played, or who were interested enough to enter, did their part, and did it well. Here we could have tried and made the tournament more exciting.

Hockey season is now opening. This is a new sport to practically all of us. Therefore we should all have an equal chance to be a "star", and we all have an equal responsibility to make our first season a success. So far the Junoirs and Seniors haven't been able to have a regular practice because not enough people have "come out." The Freshmen and Sophomores have been able to play some —probably due to larger classes but they too, need material. Whose place is it to fill in these vacancies? Ours! Anyone who is not physically unfit, can help make this season a huge success.

The "star" of a team is not necessarily the best sport. It's far harder to go out and be a "scrub" and give the team real practice, than to go out and make the team. However, just as in all other phases of life, someone has to be the "rose to blush unseen, and waste its sweetness on the desert air." This time our energies would be wasted, because we will will be helping our class, and our Alma Mater. If we can't leader the team, let's shew that we are sports, and come out with our best efforts. That's the only way we can hope to have an exciting time, and close games.

Hockey is merely the thing of the day, the same attitude should be ours in regard to basketball, volleyball, baseball and field day. These athletic sports are ours. They don't belong to the Physical Education department, or the Athletic Council—they belong to the student body. So while we consider our various attitudes, let's be sure we have the proper one in regard to athletics.

WHAT IS LEADERSHIP?

You must be lonely, often; yes,
And learn to love your loneliness,
Yes, lonely—wistful eyes! . . .
Weaved by the windy heart and wild,
Youth hurts you, and must hurt you. Yet
Hold to your dreams!

—Fanny Stearnes Gifford

"Hold to your dreams!"

That, perhaps is a difficult undertaking in this modern materialistic world, when disapopintments and disillusionments tend to make one cynical. But because there are people who have held to their dreams, who have—deep rooted in them—an everlasting idealism, a willingness to serve, and a joy of real living, these people have been leaders among various groups in college.

Without a moment's hesitation, any student in S. T. C. could name a few outstanding girls here, but when the tests of true leadership are applied, few measure up to the standard. The height of pathos seems to be that the value of quiet leadership is, in many cases, effaced; that the worth of innumerable girls is inconceivable because they do not make a mammouth "splash" in college life.

When one is considering leadership it is well to remember tha activity is seasoned with contemplations, quiet reflection, and subtle influence. This fact is often overlooked by many people. They speed about from task to task, never unemployed, exceedingly intent on "maximum production." Those people of the restless, strenuous nature are by no means the most effective powers. This restless mania that seizes college students may, if unchecked, lead to disaster, for they have not realized that one to be of true greatness, must allow herself a period of quiet thoughtfulness on the vision that is to guide her activities.

Our college organizations cannot survive materially unless they are preserved morally—unless a friendly cooperative spirit is prevalent among them. The finest type of character in one who "heads" an organization is infinitesimal unless each member is equally responsible for its success and influence in our college life.

When a girl shall come to realize the worth of an individual, and at the same time think "in terms of the group," when she shall catch the spirit of unselfish service, of quiet influence, of idealism, of vision—true qualities of leadership typified in our college by Joan d'Arc,—then, and only then, shall she be blessed with leadership.

"Hold to your dreams!"

STOP! LOOK! CONTRIBUTE

"The Moving Finger Writes; and, Having Writ, . . ." Writes On!

Stop, fellow students, and consider. Then after due cogitation, if you are very considerate, you will decide that such a state of affairs is sad. Yes, said, indeed it is deplorable! Think, for a moment, if you please, of the poor Finger (or five of them to be more exact) forever moving along, forever having written and forever writing on. Then, surely then, your eyes are filled with tears and your heart moved with pity. Would you care for your fingers to be in such a state of discomfiture?

There is yet another side to the matter, also; in fact this matter has about as many sides as a polygon raised to the nth degree. But this particular case I am speaking of is the Brain behind those fingers. If they continue to write there must be something there to write about, and all that devolves to the brain. Think in what a worn-out condition the poor brain must be after a century or even half a century of ceaseless scribbling!

Here in this school there is a state of affairs almost as bad as the one I have pictured for you above. In this case there are some few Fingers aided by some few Brains that are always writing and always continuing to write. These members of our material organisms belong to the people on the staff of this paper and —if something isn't done and done in a hurry the staff will be minus some necessary parts. In the first place, is it fair to expect a small group of girls to write and publish a creditable paper in a school of almost a thousand? No, certainly not. It is their duty to select the best materials and articles handed in from the school, to help organize, and attend to the business end of the paper, and to see that it is a credit to our college. Everyone, you, your best friend, and every girl in school is expected to contribute to the Rotunda. What is more, we ask you now, in this way will you write for your school paper? Just drop anything in the way of literature, news, jokes, cute, funny articles in the box in the door of the Rotunda office, and your paper will continue to be what it should be— a paper of the school, for the school, and by the school!

BREAKING THE ICE

(Warm apologies to all concerned)

It seems there has come a time when girls would like to be in "hot water," especially the girls of the Student Building. Achilles may have gained his immortal strength by being dipped into cold water every morning, but plumbers, the war is over and we do not envy Achilles.

One day last week a girl discovered some hot water in the Student Building and after gaining enough strength to faintly call, "The hot water is on, come quickly," the poor girl was knocked down in the mad rush. When she came to, the hot water had all gone. Poor thing, she had wanted it for weeks.

Some might suggest that we get our baths in the other buildings. We have to pass through the building under construction. Who wants to take the risk of being caught in all of that dripping wet concrete? As a result a replica of The Flying Mercury would be in the hall. A statue with a towel in one hand and a cake of soap in the other and frozen lips which seem to cry, "hot water, hot water."

To sit in a cold room and try to write a hot article on cold water is a trying circumstance, especially when the article should be of a humorous nature (the editor says). There is nothing funny about the

FRESHMEN INITIATED

The largest Freshman class in the history of the State Teachers College was made to perform for the Sophomores at a formal initiation Saturday afternoon in the college auditorium. The large audience was composed of upper classmen and faculty members, as well as Sophomores.

The Physical Education department must have been appalled and delighted when a "gym" class composed of over four hundred and fifty members began pouring into the auditorium. This "gym" class, however, did not look much like other similar classes at S. T. C. They had on black hose, white tennis shoes, and black bloomers, it is true—but the middy blouse. Surely never the like was seen before in any gymnasium, for the middy blouse was worn backwards! There was a high color in front, and a lovely "V" in the back, which made the rear view appear quite "decollete."

At three o'clock the show, or perhaps it could be better called a circus, began. As in all circuses, there were animals galore! Great big elephants bringing their trunks with them; little ducks flapping their wings and "quacking"; crabs that were out of the water; and many other animals, which had never before been seen on land or sea.

Of course, no good circus is complete without a trapeze performance and many sideshows. There were very exciting games of tennis, basketball and football. These are especially interesting when played with a human ball and only one player for both sides.

Did you ever see a person scramble like an egg? Well, it has been done, and by a Freshman, too, in one of the side shows!

Then, there were the monkeys! Everyone who goes to a circus must see the monkeys. These were very realistic and acted in quite an original and amusing manner.

In one ring there was a magician who could work wonders. A "rat" was brought forward, and, "hocuspocus", it was turned into a cat. Another "rat" became a dog—and then the fun began.

Most circuses have their trained dancers but few have such accomplished ones as this. They may be able to do the "Charleston" or even the "Ocean Roll" after months of practice, but do they produce experts who have never danced before? Singing there was, also, and such singing! Soloists who exerted every effort, and still not a sound was heard! What sounds were heard were most original. The feature song of the evening was a solo, "The Laundry List," sung to the tune of "Always", which threatened to bring down the house.

Every circus has its clown and this one was no other than a learned Sophomore, Miss Louise Foster. She taught various tricks to the Freshmen who seemed especially capable of the art of imitation. The main ring was occupied also by Miss Mebane Hunt and the other class officers who saw that the animals performed properly and then gave them a lump of sugar in the form of a very striking looking "rat" cap.

The acting was especially good and was continuously applauded by the hilarious audience. The Freshmen seemed to enjoy it as much as the Sophomores and showed their good spirit by a number of cheers, which were returned by the upper classmen. At six o'clock the show ended. Each actor took away with her a blue and white "rat" cap as a souvenir to be worn every day from four to seven o'clock as a token of the honor, love, and respect for their Alma Mater and for those who wish to be their best friends, the Sophomores!

"Indeed," said Skinny Craft eating ice cream, "it is twenty degrees cooler inside."

COLLEGE HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

One of the foremost organizations at College High School is the Athletic Association. This was organized last year and the officers for this year were elected last June. They are as follows:

President	Elizabeth Munn
Vice-Pres.	Louise Moore
Sec.	Claudia Fleming
Treas.	Nancy Putney
Asst.Treas.	Virginia Sanford

In the absence of the cheer leader, Ruth Paulett, because of serious illness, Elizabeth Munn and Martha Ann Laing have had charge of the cheer leading and singing.

This year, for the first time, we are having cheer meetings and are really learning some peppy songs. We have selected an Alma Mater for old College High School and we're ready to show some school spirit!

CURRENT EVENTS CLUB ORGANIZED

The Current Events Club was organized this year by the Senior class. The purpose of the club is to give the students an opportunity to know what people are doing, especially people of the United States.

The club meets every two weeks. The committee chosen for each meeting selects seven students to report on and head discussions on current topics.

CLASS SPONSORS

Of course everyone has taken it for granted that the high school could not do without their sponsors. Each class feels that it has been highly honored by having sponsors who have taken so much interest in what we are doing.

The high school wishes to announce their sponors for this year.

Fourth Year	Miss Peck
Third Year	Miss Smithey
Second Year	Miss Iler
First Year	Miss London

TWO LITERARY SOCIETIES ORGANIZED

In a section of the Senior English class of the College High School two literary societies have been formed, each taking alternate turns, on every other Friday, presenting an interesting and suitable program before the class. The chairman elected for the two groups were Louise Moore and Muriel Thompson.

On the fifteenth the first program was given by Muriel Thompson's group. They decided to take Rudyard Kipling, his life and work, as their subject, since the class had been previously studying English authors.

GLEE CLUB

The Glee Club of the College High School organized for this year, electing the following officers:

Claudia Fleming	President
Muriel Thompson	Vice-Pres.
Martha A. Laing	Music Keeper
Virgina Sanford	Secretary

There are about thirty members enrolled in the club, and under the direction of Miss Virginia Vincent, the club is planning to give several interesting programs before the end of the year.

This month's prize goes to Bessie Meade who says she thought only children could get in the infantry.

Anne Ferre says some girls are so dumb that when football comes in and some young man remarks that so and so will be the best man they think he's proposing.

I loved him, but he kicked me;
'Tis a sad, sad tale to tell.
My sweetheart doesn't love me—
And I just don't feel so swell.

He hasn't called me for a week;
Makes me awf'ly blue—
I'll bet he's out with someone else,
Making love to her too!

Now what shall I do in a case like this?
It's rather hard to say;
But I think I'll get him back again
And then kick him some day!

BREAKING ICE

matter, it is a very sad state of affairs we're in over there and we are asking help right away. If something is not done in a short while instead of the song, "You've got the Cutest Little Baby Face," everyone will strike up the old tune,

"Oh! Sweet Dirty Nellie."

When we do go over to the other building, once in a while, to take a bath, we hear such remarks as these:

"Somebody is in my tub."

"My room is so warm I had to raise the window to let the warm air out."

"I believe I'll take a bath tonight."

"I believe I'll take a bath tomorrow morning", etc. Oh! fellow sufferers imagine being able to take a bath when you wanted to and not at some unearthly hour when the hot water happens to be on. Imagine being able to it in a warm room. Oh, Mr. Bristow, we ask you to come over and help us.

And the sad part of it all is that this disillusionment has centered around our ideal, the Student Building for which we have labored.

"There was a time when the Student Building,
The Lounge and every beautiful sight
To me did seem
Apparelled in celestial light,
The glory and freshness of a dream.
It is not now as it hath been of yore;
Turn wheresoe'er I may,
By night or day,
The things which I have loved I now can love no more.

The Hot water comes and goes
Winter stays with all her woes.
The radiator doth delight,
Cast waves both cold and bare.
The rooms on a winter night,
Are very cold and rare.
The Student Building is a grand place;
But yet I know where'er I go,
I carry a weary worn face."
We ask you "why?"

"WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS" CHARMINGLY READ

It was a small, but appreciative audience that heard Miss Rose Johnson Willis in the auditorium on Friday night.

Before the program proper began Miss Elizabeth Sawyer danced, a lively old-fashioned waltz. We were then fascinated by Miss Mebane Hunt, who sang several Spanish songs.

Those who had already found James Barrie's plays enjoyable were delightfully entertained by Miss Willis' reading of "What Every Woman Knows." Those who were not familiar with any of Barrie's works wondered why they had not long since read them.

Miss Willis' voice, her manner, in fact, her whole personality was such as to charm all those who were present. We only wish that we might spend more such profitable evenings in the company of such an artist.

Phoebe Puckers ..... Mabel Fitzpatrick
Alice Travers ..... Mebane Hunt

WHO'S WHO

We are very proud to announce that the name of Dr. James Elliott Walmsley has appeared in Who's Who in America for 1926. Dr. Walmsley merits this honor from many standpoints—his ability as an author, his interest in history, particularly that of the South, and his noteworthy success as a Professor.

INFORMAL TEA

On Thursday afternoon, November 3, Frances Sale, Dorothy Myers, and Aylwin Hughson entertained at their home on Beech St. The rooms were attractively decorated and a color scheme of pink and white was carried out. Refreshments were served between the hours of five and six. The guests included a large number of the college girls. A delightful time was spent by those that called.

ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION NOVEMBER 11, 1926

All over the United States, on November the eleventh, there will be an old feeling aroused. The feeling of thankfulness, of sorrow, of rejoicing and above all of good feeling toward others and of patriotism for ourselves which should bring to our minds the memory of the day we are observing.

Nearly ten years ago—eight in fact, on November the eleventh came peace. After four years of strife, of destruction, of killing and broken hearts, there was broadcasted over all the world that there was peace! Peace at last! Every heart, no matter how heavy or how sad, sang with joy, and there was another note. Speakers, newspapers, magazines, everyone said, "There shall never be another war. There will never be anything but a feeling of friendship among the allied nations and we will carry this to those who have been our enemies."

Again when the "Unknown Soldier" was buried in Arlington, on November 11, 1921, this same feeling of patriotism and of sacrifice saw saw through all of us. This has been true to a lesser and lesser degree on each Armistice day.

Thursday, all over this country, there will be celebrations of some kind in commemoration of peace! If only along with these celebrations we may revive the feeling of friendliness toward our fellow nations, our spirit will not be in vain and the World War will have accomplished a great purpose.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ATHLETIC ASSO. CONSTITUTION

The following proposed amendment to the constitution of the Athletic Association is offered for the approval of the student body.

"That block F's be awarded an honorary varisty team in hockey, the team to be picked from the entire school by the Physical Education Department.

It is thought that, since we can not play intercollegiate games in hockey, this would be a way to arouse interest in this sport, which is new and has not yet found a firm footing at S. T. C.

GAMMA THETA BANQUET

On Saturday night, November 6, Gamma Theta entertained at a banquet, in honor of its new members and alumnae. The banquet room was decorated with ferns and evergreens. A color scheme of blue and white was carried out.

The guests in addition to the sorority members included Miss Mary Cox, Miss Myrtle Grenels, Miss Grace Mix, Miss Florence Stubbs, and Misses Rose Willis and Mildred Smith of Norfolk.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE VARSITY TO HAVE BIG SEASON; THREE HOME GAMES

HOCKEY

Are you up-to-date? So is S. T. C. in the line of athletics as well as other phases of school activity. No college girl should ever complete a course in college without having at least tried her hands at hockey. When the word "hockey" is mentioned one immediately thinks of college and if one can play hockey she is quite up to date.

This year we want to make hockey as outstanding a sport as basketball. Yet, the only way to get any where is for the girls to "get out" and "get to work". Hockey is democratic here because it is new to everyone and all girls have an equal chance to make the team. Hockey is really "the most fun." It isn't too hard for anyone to learn and yet it is hard enough to be interesting and exciting. Here is a chance for the Green and White classes to win ten more points or else—for the Red and White classes to catch up and tie with their opponents. That's a big challenge. Come out and fight for your class. Be a sport and try.

Y. W. C. A. COMPLETES MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Since the opening of school, the Y. W. C. A. has been carrying on its usual membership drive. Every new girls has been given an individual welcome to the organization. The new plan of this year, including the Y. W. C. A. dues in the Campus Fee, has been proved successful. At the close of the canvass four hundred and twenty-eight new names were added to the membership of the Y. W. C. A. Membership cards and buttons have been given to each of the new girls. The new members have shown much interest in the organization, and the Y. W. C.A. expects to have a very successful year with the aid of its new members.

FRESHMEN ELECT CLASS MAN

Tuesday night at a class meeting the Freshmen selected Mr. W. D. Bowman, as class man for the coming year.

His election came after a brief succession of campaign speeches in which his supporters showed us that he was the ideal class man we were looking for. Of course we shared the same opinion and we are assured that he will aid and guide us through the many difficulties we shall encounter as a class.

When the new members of the Dramatic club were announced, one name was overlooked. Etta Marshall is also one of the new members of the club.

Schedule for Games Arranged

The only way in which the uot-side world can judge for itself what Farmville is doing in athletics is by seeing our varsity play at home and abroad. Since the varsity represents the school in the sight of other people, we want it to represent the school as a whole in the sight of the students also. The varsity may be composed of just a few girls, but they cannot make up a true varsity if there is not back of them the whole-hearted support of every girl in school. This year we want to have an S. T. C. varsity which belongs to S. T. C. and to her students, and we hope that every girl will do her bit to make it her own.

We all hope that our varsity may be victorious through the coming season, but there is something still more important. It should stand on the highest pinnacle of good sportsmanship. Victory without this essential brings little honor to the name of a school.

This year the four State Teachers Colleges have agreed to exchange games among themselves, so that means that we will play Harrisonduring the varsity season. There will be three games on our own floor, and three on the opponent's court. The dates for the games with Harrisonburg have not been arranged as yet, but otherwise the schedule has been completed. It stands as follows:

January 15
Fredericksburg—Here.
February 5
Radford—Here
February 11
Fredericksburg—There
February 25
Radford—Here.

BASKET BALL PRACTICE

Tennis is a past issue with most of us at this time of the year, hockey interests a few, but the game that is "The Game" with most interest is our old friend basket ball. Regular practices have been started this past week and from the number that came out, it looks as if we could have several varsity teams. The interest shown so far is most gratifying and we hope there will be this many out when the final whistle is blown in the last game.

Basket ball appeals to a larger number of girls than perhaps any other sport we have in school. It may be that it is most used in our high schools throughout the State, and hockey is just being introduced in the South. But whatever the cause, the girls have come out strong for varsity practice. Over fifty have

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

INTERNATIONAL GOOD FEELING.

There were many results of the World War, one of the most far-reaching is the world-wide desire for peace and international good feeling. These things, sought after and longed for by all natons and races, are seemingly impossible and as the years since the World War increase the farther there fades in the distance those elusive shapes. Why did this good feeling seem to predominate so strongly immediately after the World War? Because the world was sick of bloodshed and cruelty, and in uniting to stop war the different nations had been brought together in a common cause. This tie among the races brought a better and clearer understanding of each nation, which results in this universal good feeling. After all what is the cause of war but misunderstanding which leads to a quarrel and then a complete break, war, between nations. Hence to prevent war the nations must have understanding and comprehension of each other's problems and troubles, and this comprehension is based on sympathy.

The nations and races of this world are widely separated in custom, thoughts,, and manner of living; in fact so widely parted in these, so interested in their own problems, so sure of being right themselves that they have not the time nor interest to sympathize with one another. Thus, we see them, since that common tie is broken, drifting farther and farther apart with the waves of dislike and prejudice growing ever higher until the bridge of sympathy cannot span the distance. What the future holds is not known but the past hold a war which planted a germ for the desire of international good feeling which we hope will in the future mature into world-wide peace.

MEASURING UP.

We are all S. T. C. girls in name, but are we S. T. C. girls in the sense that we should be, to uphold the standards of our Alma Mater? Are we the true daughters of our patron saint, Joan of Arc? The Sophomores and upper classmen have found one big weak [illegible] the spirit of the S. T. C. girls, and they are the Freshmen.

[illegible] the Freshmen were put to the test and came out victorious. They fully realized the spirit of humor and good fellowship in which the initiation was held, and responded accordingly. This spirit, while expected of all S. T. C. girls, was nevertheless, fully appreciated.

The Freshman class spirit seems to be of a high type this year. They have organized very quickly into an active group of students which should be a great factor for good in our school.

We, the Sophomores and upper classmen, wish to congratulate the Freshmen on their coming up the the standards of real S. T. C. girls in this respect, and are sure they will always measure up in the future.

VESPERS

The Lenten season, the most active organizations are as evident in their influence that it isn't always that we see the result [illegible] coming from all the little sources. But there is one new influence, one new factor in school this year that has called forth a comment from every girl whom it has touched. Vespers is only a tiny service; a half hour out of a long, busy, hurrying week, isn't it? Many of those who came at first did not come purposely, but in hurrying from the Student Building to Main they came into the candlelight quiet of the auditorium; something of the music and stillness and vesper spirit caught them, and they stayed. Others on their way down town came unexpectedly upon the little Wednesday service, and because the realization came to them that in the confusion of the day they had not stopped to think alone once, they felt stronger and more refreshed for the stopping.

Prayers are an established factor here—will the Wednesday Vespers soon reach as large a circle of girls? As long as college life is to such an extent, one of contact, of group association, of mingled personalities, there is an evident necessity for that we while occasionally to think by and with one's self. And Vespers furnish that atmosphere which helps one to think straighter, and cleaner, and more coherently than one does before she goes into the candlelight room, don't you think?

OUR SHIPS

One does not need to be a careful observer to notice and deeply admire the stately and decorative additions to the Reception Hall and Dr. Jarman's office. Everyone from the most dignified Senior to the humblest of Freshmen has been impressed with the beauty of "the ships."

The one which adorns Dr. Jarman's office was presented by Miss Ada Bierbower and she has kindly lent to the school, the one which adds more dignity and charm to the Reception Hall. It may be extremely interesting to know that the latter is a reproduction of the historic "May flower" and all, even those who do not claim parentage from that sturdy vessel, will admire the exquisite workmanship of the reproduction.

Both ships are of rare beauty and lend much to stateliness of our school and we cannot thank Miss Bierbower enough for her kindness in presenting them for our enjoyment.

BASKET BALL PRACTICE

come out and have signed the pledge required for all varisty players; their training has begun in earnest and already we see looming in the near future the Champion Varsity of the State!

Everyone is invited and urged to come out, even if you go in for only a few minutes during practice, you help that much and get that much fun out of it. Now is the time to begin practice for your class teams. Every class should have a strong team to enter the interclass contest that is to be played off this fall and gain ten points toward the cup. Who gets the next ten points? This depends upon You! And your coming out to support your colors?

NATIONAL CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK

This week, November 7 to 13 is National Children's Book Week, the purpose of which is to interest children in reading books that are godo literature. The fact has often been noticed that some few children love books and others hate them. In consideration of those children who love to read—so that they may have the right kind of books—and to interest those other children in books, National Book Week is being observed.

S. T. C. and the Training School are sponsoring the move here and very much interest has been shown in it; at S. T. C., from the viewpoint of the teacher and in the Training School from the viewpoint of the child.

Lok for signs of the observation of Children's Book Week here and take some interest in it.

I WONDER

I sat there and watched them as they marched up to have their caps placed—the Seniors. I wondered what was running through their minds—if they felt the seriousness of the occasion. I wondered if they were tired of all their school-days, if they were glad that it was almost the end, or just how they felt about it—being a Senior. Some of them, I noticed, walked eagerly; some of them lagged; and some of them—just walked.

There were so many things to wonder about those Seniors wearing their caps and gowns for the first time; for it really is a serious thing—this being a senior. I wondered how many would walk the clean straight highway, and just how many would stray off along the inviting looking little path that led to nowhere. I wondered it there were any who would go away and leave something behind—of course there were. And then I wondered about those who had not cared, who would go away and leave nothing.

And then I fell to wondering when they would come back, or if some of them ever would. And would they face Joan with a clean heart and a glad smile. For it is a serious business, this being a Senior—and so I just sometimes like to wonder.

COLLEGE ORCHESTRA

The College Orchestra was reorganized October 29, 1926, under the direction of Mrs. Katherine King and Miss Mary Vaughan. The purpose of the orchestra is to play for school functions and to give training in ensemble work. The new members are Misses Millican, Virginia Gurley, Mildred King, Annie Lee Baroden, Hazel Bramm, Lola Lee Tisdan, violin; Margaret Hubbard, saxaphone; Nancy Denit and Evelyn Hood, piano. The orchestra this year is large and is expecting very promising results.

S. T. C. GIRLS:—
Eat and Drink With Us
W-H-I-T-E-S

JUST A DOGGY ARTICLE

On down through the passage of Time there have been various and sundry "Ages," and it is by the classification of the Age that a race is characterized. Ever since old man Noah sent out the Dove on a mission of peace we have been more and more influenced by animals, until now in this twentieth century man seems literally a being with an animal complex.

"Will you walk a little faster?"
said a whiting to a snail,
"There's a porpoise close behind us,
and he's treading on my tail.
See how eagerly the lobsters and turtles all advance!
Will you, won't you, will you, won't
you.
Won't you join the dance."

So sang our old Alice in Wonderland friend the Mock Turtle to the Gyphon. And we all surely have seemed to join the dance from the land-going Hot Dog to the fast flying dizzy Butterfly. We play 'possum, shoot the bull, act horsey, feel like a dog, have a whale of time, eat like a pig, are as stubborn as a mule, say catty things, are as slow as a snail, indulge in monkey-shines, and as slippery as an eel. We have the pool shark, the lounge lizzard, the tea hound, the fraternity goat, the parlour snake, and the perfect ass. We play the ponies, make birdies, smoke Camels, wear Lion collars, chew Brown Mule, and feed the kitty. The Cat and the Canary play in the same city with the Bat and the Hairy Ape. In winter we are as snug as a bug in a rug, in spring we go out on a lark, in summer we sail cat boats, and in fall play ball with a pig skin. Roosevelt is known as Teddy Dick as Byrd, he's an Eagle, and another is an Elk. Hurrah for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals!

Yes, Noah certainly started something when he let them in two by two, for they were bound to come out again and just see what's happened!

FOILED

Over the grim, dark canyon night had fallen. The moon showed a faint ghostlike outline through the clouds. In the dim light two figures crouched by a blackened stump.

"Bout time for her, ain't it, Pete?" said a voice, muffled by a heavy mask.

"Purty near. Only a minute more," replied Pete.

"Hope we make a big haul tonight, I'm tired of living on pork and beans."

'Oh, we'll make 'er sometime."

Suddenly from around the bend shone the head light of a train. As the engine rumbled by the two men leaped aboard.

"Slick work I calls it," said Pete as the train came to a jerky stop. "Now go through the coaches."

His partner kept the passengers covered while he searched them.

Oh, for a hero! Do they only happen in books? Why doesn't someone come to the rescue?

But wait. We don't need one. The hold-up men were forced to withdraw without so much as a five dollar bill. Why? Why, indeed, the train was a college special coming from a foot ball game.

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION AT S. T. C.

The warning of the chemistry teacher, "Keep oily rags and waste in a tin container" was disobeyed and emphatically proved to be wise when the theory of spontaneous combustion was substantiated when a spontaneous combustion in the room where the dust mop and rags were kept on the third floor of Jackson Hall, sent someone wholly unknown for Cousin Tommie on Saturday night, October 30.

Cousin Tommie at once turned on the hose and for a while there was a wild scene of confusion. A girl coming later to her room which is located on that hall stated that pieces of rags and mops were scattered haphazard all over the hall.

No damage was done the property but only Cousin Tommie's presence prevented it.

KRONIC KRACKS FROM STATE KOLLEGE KIDS

Blanche Overley Oliver's pet freshman caps the climax.

No, Greenbow Parker, a senior is not exactly a debutante.

Bessie Meade Keesee may not be a veterinary surgeon, but she sure knows a stall.

Annie Lee McIntosh says she thinks that goat and [illegible] kind of wild cat.

Peg Bowyer says her definition of a carnival man is one who carries wood alcohol from a smoking car.

Blanche Murrell says she hopes much treason there is in the more decent.

No, Jeanette Johnson, "The Letter's Saturday Night" is not a bedroom farce.

Mildred Smith wonders why the fast and furious age is taking some girls full twenty-five years to reach the age of nineteen.

Melvine Hunt was heard to remark that freshmen are not so dumb as they look. They contract no.

When asked to name an author noted for his vocabulary, Betty White answered "Webster!"

"Ibby" Carver says even if a man does lose his head when he's drinking he usually gets it back the next morning.

Our sympathies to the absent-minded professor who put his umbrella to bed and stood in the corner all night.

RUFFNER LITERARY SOCIETY

The first meeting of the Ruffner Literary Society was held Wednesday, November 3. The main purpose in having this meeting was to elect a new treasurer as the one elected for the year did not return. Mary Rawls was elected.

The president appointed a committee to plan the program for the coming year, and they were asked to confer with the faculty advisor Miss Mary Clay Hiner concerning the selection of the program. There being no further business the meeting adjourned.

Anne Def.: "You look like two cents."

Mildred Smith: "Well, I don't see any dollar signs on you either."

DR. JARMAN ATTENDS MEETING OF PETERSBURG ALUMNAE

The Petersburg chapter of the Alumnae Association of the State Teachers College, Farmville, met on Wednesday, November 3 in the Y. M. C. A. building, Petersburg. Dr. J. L. Jarman, President of the College, was present at the meeting.

Miss Jane Potter and Miss Mabel Peebles, seniors of the college. The Alma Mater song was sung and the audience showed their loyalty and respect for the school by remaining to stand.

On his return to school, Dr. Jarman stated that the Petersburg chapter was very active and that most of its members had been loyal to the profession. The alumnae present ranged from the time of President Cunningham down to the graduating class of 1926.

N. B. B. O. INITIATES

Smith, and Dot Watkins.

Initiation of which there has been a little, will secretly take place in the auditorium at an early date. The public is solemnly requested to ignore all wails and groans coming from therein.

WHY WE WORK FOR OUR MONOGRAM

Sing a song of Monograms
Colors blue and white,
All the classes in a band
Striving wth all their might.

They have good reason to strive, for fortunate is the girl who wins that monogram. Didn't we quench our thirst and satisfy our hunger at the last meeting of the monogram club? Understand, we're not telling any secrets. She who would learn the mysteries of the Monogram Club, must prove her worth by coming out every Thursday and Friday afternoon, and showing her skill in various lines of athletics. If she can astonish the old members by the same skill—she will be the wiser—because then what every "monogrammer" knows, she'll know too!

CAPS AND GOWNS

Touching with my fingertips a blossoming white athea,
Quiet in the greenery I watch them passing by—
Cap and gown, cap and gown (some with hoods of rainbow),
Brushing dewy grass below a brightly breaking sky.

Cap and gown, cap and gown (who wove the velvet rainbow?)—
Slowly they go by me 'till they reach a pillared porch.
When, lo, not merely caps and gowns pass in between the pillars there-
But suddenly each figure is a runner with a torch.

And I can see a bitter darkness dimming and dissolving,
For these are bringing torches: they are ushering a Dawn.
And in the light, and toward the light, are little children's faces!
The caps and gowns have entered, choked with prayer I follow on.

PORTSMOUTH CLUB

A call meeting of the Portsmouth Club was held Monday, Nov. 1, in room 2. Old and new business was discussed. A ways and means committee was appointed. This committee was appointed for the purpose of finding out different ways to make money for the benefit of the club.

We wish to announce that the old members gave a party in honor of the new members Saturday night, October 7. Everyone had a most delightful time.

The following new members were taken in:

Virginia Buxton
Virginia Rice
Mary Brownley
Helen Williams
Ella Lipscomb
Emily McGavock
Etta Marshall
Marjorie Goodwin
Gertrude Lindauer
Ester Blackman
Reba Jones
Nellie Connor
Nellie Long
Edna Hilton
Elizabeth Arlstock
Louise Johnson
Bernice Jacobson
Minnie Jacobson

We are glad to welcome our new members and we hope that they will enjoy being members of the Portsmouth Club.

PARTY FOR MISS MIX

Saturday, Oct. 23, the Kindergarten and First Grade teachers, assisted by Miss Haynes, gave a very attractive birthday party for Miss Mix, Elizabeth Jarman, and Virginia Boxley—all of whom were fortunate enough to have a birthday on the 23rd of October. Of course,, there was a birthday cake, but not as most birthday cakes—this was a triple birthday cake! Miss Mix was blind-folded while it was being brought in, candles alight, and her delight and surprise were truly delightful.

The participants in this party were, Miss Mix, Miss Haynes, Misses Margaret Cobb, Betty Hopkins, Margaret Hansel, Marie Taylor, Thelma Williams, Monroe Vincent, Betty White, Doris Brawer, Sue Bobbitt, Margaret Fowler, Sara Doll, Kath-Griggs.

HIGH SCHOOL LITERARY SOCIETY

Last week a literary society was formed in Miss Dickinson's 4th year English class. It was decided that a program should be given each Friday. A different chairman would take charge of the program each time. This week Virginia Jones was appointed chairman. A very delightful Hallowe'en program was planned. First, the origin of Hallowe'en was given, after which one of Roebrt Burns poems was read to add to the significance. An original story concerning an exciting experience during Halowe'en was read, and a member of the class recited Little Orphan Annie. The program was completed by a musical selection.

A CHILD WONDERS

The lonely road, where does it lead?
Who does the song bird fear?
I wonder where the robins feed
When winter's cold is near.
I wonder what makes snow so white,
What makes my candle glow?
And why the wild winds toss my kite,
Perhaps I'll never know.

See These At the Eaco Theatre

WED.—Edward Everett Horton with Mae Busch in THE NUTCRACKER from the popular novel by Frederick S. Isham. A real story from a widely circulated novel with incidents which strike home in nine families out of ten. You've got a lot of laughs coming to you when you see this. Also Aesop Fable. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—Ethel Clayton, Cullen Landis, Barbara Bedford and Sam De Grasse in THE MANSION OF ACHING HEARTS. A special production suggested by the famous ballad. The tragedy of a woman separated from the man she loved—married to the man she despised. More than entertainment—the greatest heart-interest story ever screened. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

FRI. & SAT.—Lon Chaney with Mae Busch and Matt Moore in THE UNHOLY THREE a big production and one of the strongest stories ever brought to this theatre. Mystery, surprise, romance, are packed without letup into this amazing underworld picture! The Unholy Three—the ventriloquist, the giant and the dwarf—band together in a life of fantastic crime. Until a girl of the shadows, fighting for the man she loves, crosses their path! It's exciting! It's dramatic! It's great! Lon Chaney never did better work than he does in this production. Also good comedy each night.

Admission to S. T. C. girls Mon. Tue. & Wed. 20c; other days 25c if the tickets are purchased at school.

MON.—Alice Joyce, Kenneth Harlan and Walter Long in WHITE MAN, the greatest adventure romance ever told. A breathless story of primitive impulses far from civilizations laws. He met her on the beach, took her to the jungle—and then—. Also Pathe News. Matinee at four o'clock.

TUES.—Tom Mix with Helen Chadwick, Charles Conklin, Phyllis Haver and Tony, the wonder horse in HARD BOLED. A special production. This is the story of a two-fisted Westerner masquerading as a doctor on a dude ranch, and it is one of the best pictures Tom Mix has been in in a long time. Also last episode of THE RADIO DECTIVE.

Former students at S. T. C., who returned to attend the Gamma Theta banquet held last week-end, were: Mrs. W. E. Somers of Richmond; Misses Mary Alice Blanton, Virginia Cowherd and Janet Peake, all of Richmond; Misses Polly and Mildred Smith and Misses Estelle Cake, Polly Riddle and Rebecca Burgess of Norfolk, Misses Alice Moore Armstrong of Portsmouth, Ann Smith of Staunton, Frances Jones of Charlottesville and Kitty Montague of Lynchburg.

Mother (with aspiration for her daughter's radio voice): "Do you think professor, that my daughter will ever be able to do anything with her voice?"

Professor: "Well, madam, it ought to come in handy in case of fire."

Dumb—"I give my roommate half of my allowance each week."

Curious—"What do you do with the other half?"

Dumb—"My roommate borrows that."

BACK YOUR CLASS IN ATHLETICS

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1926 Number 8

DR. JOSEPH L. JARMAN OUR PRESIDENT

In glancing over the names in "Who's Who" one seems to stand out to us more than any and that is Jarman, Dr. Joseph L., fourth president of the State Teachers College, who was born in Charlottesville, Va., on the 19th day November, 1867. His father, William Dabney Jarman, served in the Confederate Army, and his mother was Catherine Goodloe Lindsay, of the well-known Lindsay family of Albemarle County.

His early education was obtained in the public schools of Charlottesville, and at the age of fourteen (having been left an orphan) he was sent to the Miller Manual Training School, where he remained from 1881 to 1886. In the competitive examination, he won the Miller Scholarship at the University of Virgina, where he was a student from 1885 to 1889, devoting himself especially to the natural and physical sciences.

Upon completion of the course at the University, he returned to Miller School as a member of the faculty, but remained there only one year as at the end of that time, he was called to the chair of Natural Science at Emory and Henry College. He filled this position for twelve years, and left it in 1902, to take up work at Farmville.

During his stay at Emory and Henry College the degree of A. B. was conferred upon him by that institution and since he has been in Farmville, Hampden-Sidney College has honored him with the LL. D. degree. Within the past year Dr. Jarman has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa by the University of Virginia chapter, an honor that comes to alumni only after a prolonged period of distinguished service.

Dr. Jarman has been a member of many state and national organizations. However, his greatest contribution has been made in connection with the State Teachers College at Farmville. The history of the educational renaissance in Virginia which has taken place in the last thirty years is the history of the work of wise and courageous leaders, among whom Dr. Jarman ranks near the top.

The State Teachers College at Farmville, which is both a result and a cause of the movement for better education in the state, has had a conspicuous part in the development of education in Virginia. A good foundation was laid when Dr. Jarman became president in 1902, but it was only a beginning. From a relatively small school, doing high grade secondary-school work in the main, it has become a modern teachers' college, with strictly professional courses, covering four years work, with diversified types of work fitting students for many types of service in the

SONNET

(To Dr. J. L. Jarman)

Time waits not for our bidding, but quick and sure
It comes, and for a flitting moment stays,
Then passes on; cannot delay, endure
A pause. Heroic lives and deeds have ways
Of lasting, growing, permeating Life
They touch, that Life may open, bloom anew,
Minds espand beyond the petty strife
Of daily toil, and hearts awaken true.

This Day is yours;—but also ours to raise
Our hymns of praise and love again to one
Whose power we feel, whose life consists of days
Of striving, planning, wishing things well done.
Guiding star! Towering strength 'mid strife!
Master of smiles! Builder of Light and Life!

APPROPRIATE EXERCISES ON ARMISTICE DAY

Were we very surprised when we awoke Thursday to see that the sidewalks of Farmville town had blossomed during the night, into many flag-poles flying the red, white and blue? Well, not so very much surprised because of two reasons. You see, first of all we knew it was Armistice Day, and second we knew Farmville. When we make a statement like that last one an explanation usually follows, and it will.

When I say that we know Farmville, I mean primarily the spirit of the Farmville people. A spirit is a hard thing to define, and then it can be done only in a vague, indefinite way; but I am not going to so much as try to do it. What I will say, though, is that we know of old that the spirit of this town never fails—nor did it on Armistice day. This was made clearest by the parade. Everyone who in any way had any dealing with the World War was invited to join in a parade, and the way they responded, from the smallest child in the kindergarten whose father had fought in France on up to the proudest mother whose boy had helped win the war, was truly noble.

The parade including the training school, high school, boy scouts, veterans, band and proud families marched through town, up High Street and on to the new hospital where appropriate exercises were held. It was a great day, and a sad one, yet there was intermingled a feeling of joy and relief that such a horrible phase of the world's history was done with. And how poud we all are of our men and our country!

SATURDAY AFTERNOON TEAS IN RECREATION HALL

Have you been wondering why so many girls have been going down in the Recreation Hall the last two Saturday afternoons, all dressed up as though they were going to a party? They were going to a party. The first Saturday the girls on second floor Whitehouse and their hall president entertained the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet and the Student Commitee at a very delightful tea. An attractive program had been arranged which was very much enjoyed, and the girls all be came acquainted before the afternoon was over.

The second Saturday afternoon, cottages "I" and "J" and the presidents of these two cottages were hostesses to the Cabinet and the Student Committee. The program given this time was especially good, consisting of songs, readings, and recitations.

You, who have not been so fortunate as to be included in one of these

OUR LEADER

We've been hearing of leadership, we've been hearing of ideals, we've been hearing of holding to our dreams and making them realities. All of us have no doubt, given these things thought and serious consideration. We've been wondering if they are all a myth, or if they can be realized. We have one definite proof that these thnigs are possible and that they can be accomplished. We have at our head, a man who is a real leader, one who has dreamed dreams, has had ideals and through perseverance, he has seen these dreams take shape and these ideals hold true.

When we have considered leadership, we have wondered if any one was the kind of a leader, who by being in the right has caused others to follow. Dr. Jarman has. We've heard Dr. Jarman tell us that we must "cooperate", that we must "think in terms of the group." Why does he stress this so very plainly? Because he has done it, and realizes that the only way the real question of leadership, of greatness, and real accomplishment can be developed is by these fundamental principles.

Dr. Jarman came to Farmville when it was quite a small normal school, without even a degree course. He dreamed dreams of what it could be, set a goal and by his own efforts and efficient leadership, his ideal is being attained.

An example such as this makes us each realize, when we stop to think—that the best things in life are not impossible and that we can be real teachers if we follow the true ideals of leadership. This little poem seems to sum up these ideals, and if we think it out, we can readily see why our leader is beloved by [illegible] and why his ideals are within reach.

Leadership

Thou must be true thyself
If thou the truth would teach
Thy soul must overflow, if thou
Another soul wouldst reach!
It needs the overflow of heart
To give the lips full speech.

Think truly, and thy thoughts

Shall be a fruitful seed:
Live truly, and thy [illegible]

state, and enrollment of over 950 students. It has been ranked by competent judges among the best normal schools in the country. This growth in the large is due to the foresight, careful planning, and energy of Dr. Jarman.

But an institution is more than buildings, courses, faculty, and students. Mere numbers and comparative statistics do not begin to describe the State Teachers College, or the work of Dr. Jarman in developing the Teachers College. The biggest thing in S. T. C., after all, is its peculiar and distinctive spirit. It cannot be described in words. It can be felt only [illegible] more than a knowledge of the text book and training in teaching. There is an indefinable atmosphere about the school that affects in a marked way the character and personality of Farmville folks. This intangible, stimulating, and character-forming force is probably the greatest thing about the school. This force, emanating from and passing to faculty and students alike, finds its source in the spirit and attitude of Dr. Jarman.

In addition to constructive educational work, his contribution to the educational development of the state, honors received at home and in various [illegible] of the country, the greatest thing about Dr. Jarman is his loving, sympathetic personality.

MISS MARY WHITE COX LEADS PRAYERS

Last Thusday night Miss Mary White Cox talked, in Prayers, to an audience that was anxious and eager for the ideas and thoughts which she gave them.

Her object in talking was to see if we could understand each other better and to have more sympathy for each other. Miss Mary took for her subject, "The Youth of Today."

We desire self-expression, and that is our privilege; but we must bear in mind that with liberty goes responsibility. When we open the door with privilege and opportunity on one side, we find responsibility on the other side. The two cannot be separated. The fundamentals of life are the same today as they have been since creation. We cannot break the laws of God, we can only break ourselves against these laws. The greatest need of the age is Christianity and religious education. Never in this world has a generation had greater opportunity and responsibility. God has opened all the [illegible] and nothing more is needed except the gospel of Christ as He preached it and lived it. Perfect freedom is [illegible] for God to do as he pleases with us, not liberty for us to do as we please. We must realize that all we have is a gift from the Lord, and we as individuals should use that gift to the best of our ability, for the betterment of the world. God gave us Sunday as a rest from our labors, he blessed the seventh day and sanctified it. Because we are students our studies are our labors, so we should rest from them on Sunday. We must use our influence on those who are thoughtlessly and recklessly throwing aside all traditions for the sake of a good time. We must hold to the good of the past, and add present good to make a better future. We must lift justice above selfish gain and always remember that it is better for us to set one good example than use a thousand arguments.

In conclusion Miss Mary begged us to use our liberty as an opportunity for service.

teas, are not going to be left out, for every hall and cottage is going to be allowed to entertain at a tea some Saturday afternoon.

This form of entertainment has been planned so that all of the girls in school will have a chance to become better acquainted with the girls on the Cabinet and the Student Committee and know them as their friends. So when your cottage or hall is to entertain be sure you are there or you will miss a chance of making new friends as well as having a good time.

THE TEST

The long dreaded hour had come. As I hurried along the hall wondering agitatedly if the test would be "true and false", or of the ordinary essay type, I realized that I had forgotten to bring the necessary paper. Should I risk trying to borrow some, or go back to my room on Beech Street? I chose the latter as the safest plan and hurried along trying to organize necessary data as I ran. I had tried faithfully to, read all the assigned parallel, and had succeeded except for one article in the library which was in so much demand that I had failed to get hold of it. Would that special article be needed to answer any of the questions, I wondered.

Upon arriving at the classroom with the paper I found the class quietly bending over large sheets of printed paper, and I thrilled with the assured fact of a "true and false."

As I bent over the paper, which had been handed me by the teacher, my heart almost stopped its rapid beating as I read for number one, "You have not read all of the assigned parallel." True, too true, but if I just put "true" it would sound as if I might have read only a little bit of it. But there was room for one word only, so sadly I wrote it down and went to the next.

"You have never been in a girls' room during study hour without permission," I read. How could the teacher know about the time I went to May's room to get a key to open the library? Some one had borrowed my key without returning it and the library had to be opened on time. I thought, "I will not mark that false, for I was only disobeying a small rule in order to obey a much more important one and yet, I certainly was in the room." I finally decided to leave that one blank and go back to it later, when all of a sudden I wondered how the other girls were maknig that particular statement. I glanced wonderingly around the room, and found all the others quietly studying their own papeds, without even a glance in my direction. Mary, who sat on my left, had told me that she had spent the entire study period visiting once. Did she put "true" or "false" after the statement? Would it be possible to glance at her paper and see what word she had written without being seen by the teacher or without outraging my own principles of "honestly first." Determinedly I wrote the word "false," and passed on to the next.

The next statement struck me senseless for a minute. Everything turned dark, and I wondered if I were losing my mind. I thought, "The strain of my work has been too much for me and my mind is giving way." But there in front of me in black and white was the sentence, "You never glance in the direction of your neighbor when you are puzzled about how to answer any question during an examination." "What good does it do to be so honest anyway? I did glance toward Mary, but when I could have read her paper, I refused to do it. I'll just not put anything down, for I certainly haven't cheated," I thought, as I turned to number four.

Horrors! What right did the teacher have to question me about the grade I gave his course on the little slip the President had us fill out? Doesn't our government give us the right of free speech? If I put down "false" he may keep me after class some time and ask me why I did not grade his Course A. If I put "true" I wll not only be tellng a story, but will put myself in a position to be brought face to face with the original slip with the course marked C in my own handwriting.

O glorious sound, the chapel bell! I folded my paper wondering whether I should hand it in or boldy walk out with it in my hand when the teacher spoke. As I turned to listen I saw a lady standing there saying, "I didn't hear you come down stairs and thought you had overslept. Your breakfast bell has rung. Won't you come down and have some breakfast with us?"

DR. J. L. JARMAN

DR JARMAN AS IS

Above, fellow students, you see the one and only Dr. Joseph L. Jarman himself! And why not "cooperate" with me and by "thinking in terms of the group" keep him just our Dr. Jarman? We wouldn't for the world take him away from that inevitable cigar (which, by the way, somehow manages to stay always just the same length! Now isn't it an unusual cigar?) Would we? Certainly we could not have the heart to deny him twenty minutes spare time after chapel for that consistent coca cola of his. Then, too, he never forgets a girl once he has learned her name. And he always has some little "jest, and youthful jollity" which he greets her with. "Now, to save my life, I don't see how" we can help but love him, laugh with him, and want to have him as is.

DRAMATIZATION GIVEN DURING "BOOK WEEK"

Last week, November 7 to 13, was National Children's Book Week and to observe it, the classes which are studying Child Literature, got together and gave a dramatization. This was given Friday morning in the Student Building auditorium, with the Training School through the sixth grade, the supervisors and student teachers as the audience.

It was done in the form of tableaux, five all together, one from each of the five classes. These tableaux were scenes from well-known and good children's books.

The scenes were:

1. "Little Red Riding Hood."
2. "Cinderella."
3. "Peter Pan."
4. "Ltitle Women."
5. "Treasure Island."

The title of each book and the author was given and the children were asked if they recognized the characters or scenes. They were very well done and the audience was greatly pleased.

MRS. GISH RETURNS TO TEA ROOM

The return of a familiar face to its usual place can brighten a crowd of girls quite a bit. Such is the case in our Tea Room, for Mrs. Gish has returned to us after having been ill for six long weeks. Although we are sure that each girl has greeted her with "Glad to see you back," we want to take this opportunity as a body to tell her we have missed her, have asked about her, and are very glad to have her back with us again.

She saw the point

We have never hear of the absent-minded professor who forgot to flunk anyone.

Jane: "But I can be a sister to you."
Jack: "Got six already. Couldn't you make it a cousin?"

Louise McCormick says some girls leave school because they can't take it with them.

Three frogs were sittin' on a lily pad. Two of 'em took a notion to jump off. How many were left? Answer—three! Because they only took a notion.

I should like to send you violets,
All dripping with the dew;
I should like to send you pansies,
To tell my thoughts of you;
I should like to send red roses;
The symbols of love's bliss,
But it's cheaper, dear, to write you
Just a little verse like this.

"'Smatter, Dolly, don't you love me any more? Why aren't you wearing my pin?"
"'Course I love you, Tommy. But my other boy friends say the pin scratches them."

"How are you?"
"Married."
"How's your wife?"
"Oh—She's married too, thanks!"

S. T. C. REPRESENTED AT WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

Last week-end Miss Gill, Miss Bierbower, Miss Grace Chambers, and Miss Camper represented S. T. C. in Washington at the ninth annual conference of the American Country Life Association. The meeting was held from November 10th through the 14th.

This convention is the outgrowth of the Country Life Commission which was appointed by President Roosevelt in 1908.

Each year a different subject is taken for discussion and the subject this year was "Farm Youth."

The biggest and best event was Saturday night, when a large banquet was given which, needless to say, was enjoyed by all present.

RECIPE FOR MAKING A MONOGRAM

Take a barell of the best kind of determination on the market and season well with a peck of perserverence. Combine in the right proportions with a bushel of hard work. To give it a spicy taste put in the companionship of fifty greenhorns which are slowly ripenng and add sportsmanship at all times to keep from souring. Don't be discouraged if it seems too hot or too cold; if you work at it continually it will turn out perfectly, and you will have a well-earned monogrom.

JEFFERSON LITERARY SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING

The Jefferson Ltierary Society held its first meeting last Wednesday November 3. The main pupose of the meeting was to elect a president as the one elected in the Spring did not return. Elizabeth Hutt, the vice president, was elected president and Louise Vaughan was elected to fill her place.

It was decided that in a meeting to be held soon, probably the first of December, that an interesting program could be held, based on the history of the society from the time it was organized as the Jefferson Debating Club in 1910 until the present time.

COTILLION CLUB GIVES DANCE

A dance without boys! That sounds impossible, but the impossible is always happening these days; anyway this little feat was very successfully carried out Thursday evening at S. T. C.

Four-thirty found Mary Jane and her escort Mary Ann drifting down to the Recreation Hall. The music started every one's feet and head to going and soon the floor was filled with gracefully swaying couples.

The judges, Dr. Marshall, Miss Iler, Miss Bugg and Miss McDonald. seemed to have a hard time deciding which of the numerous couples were the best dancers. After several tryouts however, the couples were reduced to two, Polly Aderholt and "Beth" White and Anna Burgess and Elizabeth Sawyer. The judges finally decided in favor of Polly Aderholt and her partner "Beth" White. Each received a prize.

This ecitement over, all the couples filed back out on the floor again and continued dancing until six o'clock. The dance was declared a huge success.

Misses Dorothy Jones, Mignonne Griggs and Margaret Ballard have returned from Richmond where they spent the week-end.

KRONIC KRACKS FROM KUTE KOLLEGE KIDS

"Jo" Lyne was heard to remark that bigamy was its own reward.

Oh, no, "Sis", you can't get foot notes from a shoe horn.

Nancy Cole says the reason turnip salad is different from ice cream is that it is more enjoyable without chocolate syrup on it.

Alice Wiley: "What have you in the shape of bananas today?"
Danny Gilliam: "Cucumbers, Miss Wiley, cucumbers."

Lucy Haile says that when Papryus arrives at Ellis Island it is hoped that the immigration authorities will not say to him, neigh.

UNUSUAL TEST GIVEN

Last Wednesday morning in chapel a very unusual test was given to the college girls and faculty, by the Fifth grade of the Training School.

The past week was Book Week, so we were given slips of paper and asked to write numbers up to thirty. The questions were asked that were based on certain well-known stories and books, or example: "Who had silver skates?", "What American boy went to London and became an earl?", "Who was ship-wrecked on an island?" All of the questions were not easy ones either.

Jean West, a freshman, was given the prize for giving the highest number of correct answers.

DRAMATIC CLUB MEETS

The Dramatic Club held its monthly meeting on Thursday, November 11th at seven o'clock .The meeting was an informal one.

Miss Sutherlin talked to the club on "The Development of the Drama." This is a subject in which the Dramatic Club is deeply interested. Miss Sutherlin gave a most delightful sketch of the drama from its beginning, up to modern drama, or the drama of the hour.

The club adjouned to meet again Thursday, December 9th.

SOPHOMORES ELECT A VICE-PRESIDENT

Due to the resignation of the vice-president of the Sophomore Class, a call meeting was held in the auditorium at 6:45, November 11th to elect a new vice-president.

The vacancy was filled by Ida Wells, a well-known student of the class and one who has been a great asset to her class in many ways.

FACULTY ENTERTAINED AT TEA ON SATURDAY

On Saturday afternoon from four to six, in the home of Mrs. John Lancaster on First Avenue, Misses Barlow and Jeter entertained the ladies of the faculty with a delightful tea, in honor of the new members of the faculty.

The architecture of this charming home is unusually well adapted to such a function; and the effective decorations, of yellow chrysanthemums, together with the golden light of candles, made it more than ever lovely.

Mrs. Lancaster assisted the hostesses in pouring tea; and sandwiches of rare delicacy were provided, together with candies, mints, and crystallized ginger.

The occasion was a very pleasant one.

WED.—Majorie Daw and William T. Tilden in THE HIGHBINERS. A romantic melodrama—one of those rapid fire crook stories that just bristle with adventurous action, rare romance and mystery. And of added interest is the debut of "Big Bill" Tilden, national tennis champion, as a screen star. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—Clara Bow, Frank Keenan, Alice Mills and Ford Sterling in MY LADY'S LIPS. The story of a thrill seeking debutante, with an adventurous newspaper man and a fascinating woman of the underworld whose lives became entangled ni strange happenings. A really fascinating screen tale enacted by a tremendous cast. Also BILL GRIMM'S PROGRESS. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

FRI. & SAT.—Marion Davies, Antonio Moreno and Creighton Hale in BEVERLY OF GRAUSTARK. Charming Marion Davies never had a more appealing role than this. You'll love her—you'll laugh and thrill at the tale of the fetching American Miss, made to take the disguise of a boyish prince, whirled along the road of hilarious adventure, thrilling action, tender romance. A gorgeous tale of Europan intrigue and youth's dream of love. She loved a prince and didn't know it—and he loved her but wanted to kill her. And then—. Also good comedy. Mat. Friday at 4 o'clock. Please come Friday to avoid crowding on Saturday.

MON.—Mae Busch, Frank Mayo, Elliott Dexter and Eva Novak in THE RIFLERS. Life was a gay and carefree game. Men's hearts were her toys and love was a plaything to tire of and cast aside! The frank story of a modern society girl who laughed at convention and trifled with life's priceless gifts. Also Pathe News. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

TUES. Mary Alden, Priscilla Bonner and Johnny Walker in THE EARTH WOMAN. A story of the country where justice works fast and is sometimes misled. Entertainment that grips, thrills and inspires. A characterization you'll remember forever. Also good comedy.

STUDENT COMMITTEE ENTERTAIN DR. JARMAN

Birthday Banquet Given in the Tea Room.—Few Guests of Honor Present

When the birthday of one whom we all love approaches, the very atmosphere tingles with apprehension. Surely, the students smile more often, for it is the birthday of one who is gifted supremely n the art of smiling. Surely, our hearts expand with gratitude for his goodness and unlimited faith in "his girls;" and, we know that another year has added it's bit to his already illustrious name in our state and country.

Last Thursday night, the Student Committee entertained Dr. Jarman at a Birthday Banquet in the Tea Room. Besides Dr. and Mrs. Jarman, other honored guests were Miss Mary White Cox and Miss Jennie Masters Tabb. The tables were arranged in triangular form and, in the center, pine boughs were banked about a basket of great lavendar chrysanthemums. Shaded lights, candles in candlesticks joined with tulle, and most attractive place cards completed the decorations.

Alice Davis and Mebane Hunt entertained with several solos. Etta Marshall kept broad smiles on the faces of the "august" body with her reading of "Willie's First Dress Suit" from Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen." During the evening the Student Committee sang to the guests, with a fitting climax of the invariable and beloved "What's the Matter With Jarman?"

Oh, yes! There was a Birthday cake! And here's what brought joy to our hearts. You remember that last year Dr. Jarman's Birthday cake had sixteen candles on it. Well, this year we decided that the fitting and proper thing would be to grace the cake with seventeen candles. But do you know—one failed to light! Dr. Jarman wondered about the significance of that fact. But I know, and you know—that Dr. Jarman just can't get older. Years may pass, but he is only sixteen, the most enviable age in the span of a lifetime.

Sweet Sixteen—Now and Always.!

DR. JARMAN PRESENTED WITH CAP AND GOWN

Last Friday morning belonged to Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors alike for it was Dr. Jarman's birthday.

After the Seniors marched in, Virginia Vincent, president of the student body, presented to Dr. Jarman a cap and gown.

This was not a hint to him to be more dignified, but a token from the student body to express their love for a president who has done much for their good and happiness.

HONORARY MEMBER SOPHOMORE CLASS

MISS OLIVE T. ILER

SOPHOMORES HOLD COURT TO TRY THE FRESHMEN

The Sophomores held their first formal court, to try all disobedient Freshmen, in the auditorium of the State Teachers College, Saturday night immediately after supper.

The curtain rose on a typical court scene. Mebane Hunt, the Sophomore president, was the judge; Edith Lamphier the clerk of court; and Louise Foster, the prosecuting attorney. The black-robed jury was composed of twelve Sophomores, with Mattie Rogers Smith as chairman. Each Freshman, after she had sworn "to tell the truth and nothing but the truth, so help her Daniel Webster," had her own attorney to speak in her defense, or else she spoke for herself. Those Freshmen who were charged with not wearing their caps were sentenced to wear necklaces of safety pins for different periods of time. Others were given such sentences as making beds for the Sophomores, according to the seriousness of their offense.

After the trial, fifteen "rahs" were given for the Freshmen, who returned with a cheer for the Sophomores. The admission, which was one cent for faculty and students, will go to the Student Building Fund.

MISS OLIVE T. ILER IS SOPHOMORE CLASS MAN

Miss Olive T. Iler, the Sophomore classman, was presented in chapel Saturday morning. The entire Sophomore class, dressed in white, led by Mebane Hunt and Miss Iler, marched down the aisle singing "Here Come the Sophomores." Mebane Hunt, the Sophomore president, re-presented Miss Iler to the faculty and the student body, as the classman for the class of '29. Then the class sang their song, "To Miss Iler," and concluded the ceremony with the Sophomore class song, "Here the Sophomores Come Along."

DR. R. E. BLACKWELL SPEAKS IN CHAPEL

Friday morning in chapel, Dr. Robert Emory Blackwell, president of Randolph-Macon, took charge of the devotional exercises and gave a short talk to the student body. He took as his subject "The Week of Prayer."

He stressed the fact that although public prayer was good, praying in private meant just as much. Church is not the only place to pray, our private prayers are answered, too, if it is best for us that they be granted. Some people pray only when they are in trouble. Dr. Blackwell begged us not to wait until trouble came, but to pray all the time.

FRESHMAN COMMISSION OF TWELVE MEMBERS

The twelve members of the Freshman Commission, who serve as the connecting link between the Freshman Class and the Y. W. C. A., have been elected. As the Freshman Class is especially large this year, there will be a number of projects for its representatives to carry out.

The following grls were elected from the twenty-five nominated by the cabinet:

Gwendolyn Seldon
Elizabeth Sawyer
Alice Cole
Mary Frances Hatchett
Mabel Haves
Margaret Leonard
Blanche Overbey
Helen Myers
Susie Weber
Elizabeth Newton
Virginia Buxton
Evelyn Head

DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT PRETTY PLAY

The Dramatic Club has selected "The Heart of a Clown" to be given here in the auditorium on Decmber the fifteenth. It is a pretty, fanciful little drama somewhat in the order of last year's "Prunella." The play will be presented with the following cast:

Columbine ..... Annie G. McIntosh
Harlequin ..... Virginia Boxley
Clown ..... Blanche Overbey
Gypsy ..... Eleanor Bennett
Chorus: Carroll Cromwell, Lorah Brewer, Beulah Jarvis, Anne Ferree, Frances Davis, Mildred Lohr.

Dear Dr. Jarman:

Happy birthday to you from the kindergarten children! We wish you would have some more birthdays.

Thank you for the window shades and the chairs.

Good-bye Dr. Jarman, and love from

A Double-Header Will Be Played.—Hockey if Weather is Will Permit

At eight-thirty on Thanksgiving morning the first inter-class games will be played. If the weather-man has his way, the contest will be hockey, on the Athletic Field. In case of rain on this momentous occasion, the sport of the day will be basket ball, in the gym. In any event, a double-header will be played, either of hockey or basket ball.

If the waether is clear and hockey s played, the supporters of the red and white will stand on the end of he field next to the laundry, and those of the green and white on the nd nearest the Student Building. If clouds af basket ball reign supreme, the rooting section of the green and white will be the front end of he gym, and the red and white will be opposite. These cheering districts may be decorated in any manner desired.

Turkey Day is always the biggest event on our calendar, but this year we expect it to be bigger, better and finer than ever before. Not only because a new sport is being introduced, but also because we have in our midst about 475 (?) Freshmen, who are "full up" of the spirit and pep of the occasion. Up and at 'em, Farmville, and make this Thanksgiving day one to tell your grandchildren about!

SCOTTISH MUSICAL CO. PLAYS TO LARGE HOUSE

The Scottish Musical Company has appeared in Farmville twice before, presenting "The Cotter's Saturday Night" and "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush." On Friday night, the company gave a very interesting program entitled, "Auld Lag Syne."

The program had as its central theme the life of Robert Burns as shown through his poetry. A number of interesting facts not published in biographies of Burns were brought out in most interesting dialogues between the actors. The songs were very interesting and the voices were exceptional.

The company showed they were real artists in that they were not dependent upon the costumes and scenery. The costumes were misdirected and so the actors had to present the old Scotch scenes in modern costume ,which at first seemed rather funny, but soon the spirit of the act prevailed and the lack of the kilt was forgotten.

THANKSGIVING AT S. T. C.

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving. With this season always comes an attitude of thankfulness—just what we should have at this time. We think over all the things we are thankful for personally, such as health, happiness, friendship, home and for numerous other things that effect us personally or in relation to our home group. However, in this yearly repetition of thankfulness we often overlook those things which effect us the most at school.

Why worry and grouch about our wanting to go home, especially when we know we can't, when such a fine attitude could be maintained? Have you ever stopped to think of the good effects of Thanksgiving on the school? Let us think of a few.

To have a wide-awake school it is necessary to have a wide-awake class, with an endless supply of class spirit and enthusiasm. What could contribute more to this than Thanksgiving Day? For days before that "eventful Thursday" every class is making plans and whispering little bits of advice around which might help make that particular class accomplish more from the minute the six o'clock bell rings until ten-thirty or eleven that night. The spirit is high and everyone has her class first and foremost in her mind.

The spirit of cooperation is also exemplified at Thanksgiving. This is the first time that the two red and white classes and the two green and white classes get together in one endeavor to make their colors stand the highest and win the most during the day. That spirit of cooperation and interest in one's sister class is first noticed as an outstanding characteristic.

What would S. T. C. be without an alumnae? Why do so many of the old girls come back to their Alma Mater at Thanksgiving time? They love us and we love them and we both realize that Thanksgiving is one of the best times to come to Farmville for it is then that the real Farmville spirit is prevalent.

Why kick and grumble? That will put a damper on Thanksgiving for the school. Contribute your part of that Farmville spirit, cooperation and love for the Alma Mater which characterizes our Thanksgiving Day.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Not long ago I overheard some girls discussing their ideas and thoughts as well as their prospects of Thanksgiving Day. To most of them it seemed merely a day upon which big games were played, big meals were eaten, and big times were had. It brought to my mind at once that somehow, in some way people had the wrong conception of that day.

A long, long time ago when our forefathers, who came over from England on the Mayflower, were struggling their hardest to break and settle this new country, Thanksgiving Day first had its origin. Immediately after their first harvest in Plymouth, the Pilgrims set apart a day on which thanks for the good harvest were returned. Since then the custom has spread in some parts of Europe and all over the United States. Many of our presidents set aside a definite day for the celebration, but it was not until the time of Lincoln's office that the fourth Thursday in November was set aside as the day for the giving of thanks. Since then we have kept that day apart from the other thre hundred and sixty-four days of the year.

I presume that in the back of all of our minds the bit of knowledge that this day is holy, lies asleep. Of course we have heard that various of our churches hold services on Thanksgiving and all that sort of thing. But how many of us have considered that day in especial connection with ourselves? Of course we know that there are any amount of things for which we should be thankful, and yet most of us take these things more or less for granted. I am pretty certain that the shades of our historical fathers would certainly rise up and do an ultra-modern version of the Charleston if they could see more of the present-day versions of Thanksgiving Day. So, if we value their rest and sleep at all, it's up to us to begni "at home" in this matter and try to put a little bit more of the real spirit of giving thanks on Thanksgiving Day.

THANKSGIVING

We think of Thanksgiving in harvest time—
In the yielding, gathering golden, time;
When the sky is fringed with a hazy mist.
And the blushing maples by frost lip kissed;
When the barns are full with the harvest cheer,
And the crowning, thankful day draws near.

We think of Thanksgiving at resting time—
The circle completed is but a chine
In the song of life, in the lives of men;
We harvest the toils of our years, and then
We wait at the gate of the King's highway,
For the dawn of soul's Thanksgiving Day.

—Rose Thorpe.

TO YOU

I've often tried to tell you
My heart's own deepest thought
By singing of red roses
And the happiness they brought
To me—a young and dreaming girl—
And yet I always knew
'Twas not the red, red roses
That I loved—but you.
You were the sweetest rose
My fancy ever knew
I never see a red rose
But that I think of you.

EXPERIENCES OF RATS

It is generally understood that the rats of Hamelin left their homes and followed the Pied Piper with expectation of wonderful things. But what were their thoughts and feelings when they fell in a mass into the river Weiser?

Well, I'll confess, an answer to that question is beyond me. And that's not all! Of course, all the present S. T. C. rats left their homes to seek a new and wonderful life here. Who can express her feelings luring the first three days in this river of Life? Not I. No, no more than I can explain those of the rats of Hamelin.

We began to slide down the banks on the first night and long before noon of the next day, we were swallowed up by a series of things that "had to be done." We were told to go here for this and there for that. We did—after a struggle with the directions given us. Yes, we'd do that and come out mashed "to a fritter," heads "swimming" and too weak to draw a deep breath, but happy that we were through and able to rest. Alas, our joy was not to last! Before we could reach our rooms, we would bump into some upper classman who would ask if we had done "so-and-so." Whew, could there be anything else! Then, we began to realize that there would continue to be something else.

Surely there was no more confusion among the rats of Hamelin than among the rats of S. T. C. during the first three days of this term. One thing is certain: the rats of S. T. C. are stronger than the more famous ones of Hamelin, for only one of them was left alive, while all of us are still here and swimmin' on!

TEACHERS PENSION TO BE SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION AT ROANOKE CONFERENCE

We have all heard a great deal of talk about the pension for teachers. Yet very few of us really understand what it is all about. The National Education Association presented a retirement fund bill at the Norfolk convention last year for discussion. This bill is to be voted on at the convention in Roanoke Thanksgiving. If the bill passes it will be submitted as an amendment to the present law.

The membership of the pension is compulsory for all teachers that enter the service after the inauguration of the system who are twenty-five years of age or older or have served five years in the State. Whereas formerly the contribution was 1 per cent of the current annual salary it is now raised to 5 per cent with a minimum of $16 and a maximum up to any sum the member may care to contribute. The State equals the contribution of the teacher.

In case of dismissal or resignation from teaching in the public schools of the State before the normal age of retirment, all of the members contributions with 3 1-2 per cent compound interest is paid to the member in four quarterly installments. Formerly the member lost all she had contributed unless she taught the required number of years. There is also a disability clause which gives the member all she has put in with 3 1-2 per cent compound interest and this sum equaled by the State. The usual age of retirement is 60 for women and 65 for men. But 70 years is compulsory for all.

Miss Lila London and Dr. Walmsley the delegates from S. T. C., have instructed to vote for the bill at the convention in Roanoke this year.

ON HAVING BIRTHDAYS

There is one thing in this old world of ours that is absolutely inevitable. Everyone has it, everyone has had it since time began. It first comes the day one is born, and it continues to come with the regularity of an eight dayclock beat until the day one departs from this earth. There is no avoiding such a thing, and one goes through with it as regularly as with the mumps and measles of childhood contagion, and much more frequently.

This "thing" of which I am speaking is . . . a birthday! A birthday means the day on which one puts in a personal appearance in the play of life; and usually it is a day of gladness mixed with sentiment for the celebrated holder. It is lovely to note how people seem suddenly to appreciate one and how glad they are to wish one happiness on this "day of days"! In one's own secret heart there is a warm, golden glow because of the smallest attentions and affections which are prevalent during a birthday.

But sometimes there is another, yes, quite another aspect to this birthday business. An aspect which most women know only too well,—and how they wish they didn't! I have just experienced it, and I know how it feels to find the first gray hair! Saturday I awoke with the feeling that something was aout to happen, and that feeling was accompanied by a tingling around the vicinity of my heart. Then I suddenly realized that I was on the morn of my twentieth birthday, and my spirits fell with an audible thud. It was even raining outside, a state of affairs which I considered quite appropriate for the into my mirror to see if I had become gray over night; but no, I still had brown hair, and no wrinkles!

That cheered me up, and I later realized that I felt no older than the day before, and pretty soon forgot my age in the happiness of receiving good wishes. Now I am a firm believer in birthdays, and think that one should be allowed at least two a year—counting backwards!

TO YOU
(W. J. D.)

Something of sunlight,
Something of song,
Something of shadow
All the day long—
Me, to you.

Something of happiness,
Something of fear,
Something of hope, too—
All that is dear—
You, to me.

Something of hope,
Something of fear,
Something of glory—
Sometimes—a tear—
Together.

LETTER FROM POST OFFICE

To the Editor of The Rotunda:

May I, through your paper, thank the student body for the patience and consideration shown during the time of assigning the Post Office boxes. The quiet, orderly behavior and aptness in learning the combinations made the work very easy.

Some of the renters do not seem to understand that the boxes lock automatically when they are closed making it unnecessary to turn the button. In fact, doing so throws the springs out of order. The combinations are for the protection of the renters and it is unwise to teach them to others. It may be agreeable to one but the others sharing the box might object.

Playing with the combinations while waiting for the mail to be put up may lock the boxes past unlocking. Watching the mail going into other boxes and making comments on it may not be agreeable to others.

It does not seem to be understood why there is mail in the boxes immediately after breakfast. The mail formerly delivered at breakfast is put into the boxes, usually, by 6 P. M., or a little after. Part of the mail formerly delivered at dinner is put up by 9:30 and the rest of it about 12:30, one mail coming up at 8:30 and one at 11:30. The mail formerly delivered at supper is in the boxes by 5:30. So the service is better than it used to be.

The promptness with which the mail is put up depends upon two things—the quantity of mail and the number of box numbers to be looked up. Consequently it will be an advantage to have box numbers on as much of the mail as possible.

Many letters are coming with the wrong numbers on them. This creates confusion and delay. If letters do get into the wrong box they can be shoved through the box into the room behind.

Hoping our boxes will be a convenience and a pleasure I am,

Cordially yours,
MAUD K. TALIAFERRO

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA GIVES BANQUET

Alpha Chapter of Sigma, Sigma Sigma gave their pledge banquet in the Tea Room on Saturday, November the 20th, at six o'clock.

An "artist idea" was carried out in the place cards and menus.

REASONABLE TUITION RATES

PICKING the girl friend takes real thought. There are high steppers, good lookers, and good cookers. You have to make a choice. Buying shoes is different. You don't have to decide between good fit, jazz style, and Walk-Over price. Walk-Over gives them all to you. Walk-Overs fit as if they grew on your foot. They have style range second only to women's hats. They have quality that wears like your best friend at a price that can't be beat.

A Prolonged Pleasure

Soph: "Yes, I was a freshman once. I spent some of the happiest years of my life as a freshman."

Student (being arrested): "But, officer, I'm a student."
Officer: "Ignorance is no excuse."

Sis Jordan says years ago our knees knocked together and we called it fright. Now it's the Charleston.

Traffic Cop: "Use your noodle, lady,—use your noodle."
Phyllis W.: "My goodness, where is it? I've pushed and pulled everything in the car.

Three tourists mounted a hill to review the scene.
First Tourist: "I see a church tower a great way off."
Second Tourist: "I se a mosquito standing on the top of the church."
Third Tourist: "Wait a little,—now this insect yawns and it has very bad teeth."

"Wow, wow, wow, wow," bawled the future short stop from his cradle.
"Four bawls and I walk," sighed poor dad, as he slid from his nice warm bed to the cold hard floor.

KINDERGARTEN-PRIMARY CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The Kindergarten-Primary Club, which is a branch of the International Kindergarten Union, held it's first regular meeting on November 15 in the Student Building auditorium.

The first thing on the program was a talk by Miss Mix, in which she told us something of the history of the International Kindergarten Union. She mentioned that Course I is the only course at S. T. C., which has a club pertaining to its work.

After the business discussions, we were favored with severeral solos. Betty Hopkins sang three kindergarten songs. Lucy Marstellar gave two solos accompanied by Miss Mary Vaughan.

The following new members were welcomed into the club:

May Marshall
Blanche Overbey
Beth White
Minerva Evans
Billy Booth
Louise Myers
Gladys Stevens
Gladys Sale
Georgie Jeffries

S. T. C. TO BE REPRESENTED AT ROANOKE CONVENTION

The Twentieth Annual Convention f the Virginia Education Association is to be held this year in Roanoke, from November 22 to 26, and will be attended by many of the most outstanding educators of the country. Those who will be present at the convention from our college are: Dr. Jarman, Dr. Walmsley, Misses Lila London, Willie London, Jeter, Barlow, Norris, Bullock, Peck, Bierbower, Camper and Mix. Of these Misses London, Peck and Bierbower are to take part in the program.

One of the most important subjects to be discussed at the conference is the Teacher's Retirement Fund. This fund is of interest to all teachers, for there is a unanimous demand for a more adequate pension system for Virginia. The bill will benefit both the State and the teacher, for; it will be an attraction to capable people to enter the profession; it will be an inducement to continue in the work; it will increase the efficiency of the teacher; and it will protect the public from inefficient teachers.

An interesting program has been arranged for the entertainment of the delegates which includes a luncheon to be given, on Friday, to the representatives from Farmville, by the Farmville alumnae at Roanoke.

PLAY THINGS

I played with edged tools
And they cut my fingers,
But I can never endure dull safety again
After their keeness.

I played with fire
And it burned men and seared me,
But after it's flashing beauty—
Posture—
That recompensed said pain—
Everything else is dead.

I played with you,
And you took my heart in your hands and broke it to pieces
Laughingly—
But—oh . . . !
How stupid and clumsy the fingers
That gather the fragment
Striving to piece them together
They mend what you broke?
The fools!

FRENCH CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

On Wednesday night in room 18, was held a meeting of all the French classes for the purpose of electing officers for the French Circle.

The French Circle is a club which has for its purpose the enlivening of the study of the French language through social intercourse. This type of work is quite as important as that which is found in the classroom and makes students feel that French is not just a subject of the curriculum, but a language that may be spoken with a great deal of pleasure and clearness. The officers elected were as follows:

President ..... Alice Carter
Vice-President ..... Lillian Rhoads
Secretary ..... Martha Henderlite
Treasurer ..... Catherine Bentley
Reporter ..... Elizabeth Hutt

RUFFNER LITERARY SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING

The Ruffner Literary Society held its regular meeting Friday, November 12. At the preceding meeting the program committee was asked to make a report on the coming year's work. At this meeting the chairman of the committee presented the following general plan:

1. Modern drama.
2. To interlace with the chief work magazine study.

This plan was adopted.

Having discussed this business the meeting adjourned.

WED.—Hope Hampton, Holbrook Blinn and Nita Naldi in THE UNFAIR SEX. A turbulent drama of love against love, man against woman—with the cosmic question ebhind it—which is the unfair sex? A pulsating melodrama of intrigue and adventure in the heart of the greatest city of all. Also Aesop Fable. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—Mary Brian in MORE PAY LESS WORK from the story by Peter B. Kyne. A special production. A racing comedy drama that starts on the ocean, but ends on the sea of matrimony. Duty bade her hate him—but her heart refused to listen. The story of a girl kidnepped on a racing boat by the man she loves. Also Aesop Fable. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

FRI. & SAT.—Constance Bennet as Sally, Joan Crawford as Irene and Sally O'Neil as Mary in SALLY, IRENE AND MARY. A special production. The story of three chorus girls. The public hails this picture of a great spectacle of stage life! A vivid tale of sunshine and tears, of the beauties who blossom in the night lights and of how Fate snares them in its inescapable web. Also good comedy. Matine Friday at 4 o'clock. Please come Frday and avoid crowding on Saturday night.

MON.—John Lowell and ENangeline Russell in THE BIG SHOW. A spectacular melodrama of circu life from inside of THE BIG SHOW filled with sensational episodes. A high speed story of circus life with clowns and cowboys, Indians and elephants as the actors. Plenty red-blooded drama in this picture. Also Pathe News. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

TUES.—Buck Jones in THE FIGHTING BUCKAROO. The story of an Arizona cowboy who raced across the continent to close an option—only to find that the owner was the girl he loved. A regular Buck Jones picture with plenty of action, fast riding and fighting. Also good comedy.

HANGING OF THE COLORS ON THANKSGIVING DAY

When did we start? Of course according to regulations no colors went up before the fatal tap of that long waited for "six o'clock bell."

All during the day—and night for that matter—for at least the entire first part of the week before Thanksgiving, little groups stood in corners, whispers went from one to the other—signs—oh! such important signs, all lent to the mysterious feeling of secrecy that we were feeling.

The Freshmen soon caught the spirit and showed their enthusiasm by attending fully all the "pep" meetings and by working with all their power to put the "red and white" on top. In the meantime the Sophomores showed that they still had the vim of their first S. T. C. Thanksgiving. The Juniors and Seniors unbent and gave the full value of their many experiences to their sister classes.

Should anyone have happened in the building between the hours of 6:30 and 7:20 p. m., they would have thought we were taking a vacation, unless they happened to notice a roar from two directions. The Freshmen-Juniors held "pep" meetings every night in the Recreation Hall, while the Sophomores and Seniors made good use of the auditorium.

This all led finally to Wednesday; the air was simply alive with mystery. Girls with bulging coats, carrying laundry bags or suit cases hurried to and fro. Then study hour came and the color committee got busy, and we owe them a vote of thanks. Never has our Rotunda looked prettier. The green and red on the second floor overhung with the blue seemed to make us all have a feeling of good fellowship.

10:30—lights out! Quiet! In bed Hostilities stop until 6:00 a. m. Did they? Anyone waiting on the hall might have seen figures peep forth and then run hurriedly to some secret corner. The halls were alive all night.

Five o'clock found the school far more wide awake then the 7:15 bell generally does, the very air was tense with excitement. Would the bell never ring, the hour dragged slowly by!

The bell! Screams! Shouts! Sounds of rushing feet and the colors were up. Who had the most and which were the prettiest, could never be decided. The campus was covered in every available spot. Windows, porches, doors,all floated the patriotic color. Never has excitement reigned more supreme for an hour and a half. The spirit got everyone. Only the team remained in bed that morning and they, only because they had to. "The hanging of the colors" has certainly aroused our color spirit, and the vim with which we went to it, prophecies some enthusiastic class games.

VIRGINIA EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION CONVENTION

The delegates and members of the faculty, who attended the convention in Roanoke, report a very pleasant week. Aside from the business meetings, several social affairs were planned for the delegates. The Farmville Alumnae gave a luncheon at Hotel Roanoke Friday at 10 o'clock for the delegates from S. T. C., and former Farmville students, who were at the convention.

J. J. Kelly, superintendent of schools in Wise County was elected president of the association for a two-year term. Richmond was selected as the place of the 1927 convention. The meeting will be during Thanksgiving week as usual.

The association formally endorsed the proposed teacher retirement law made public by a committee of the association last February. The plan will be presented to the General Assembly at its next session.

Other resolutions recognized the importance of every citizen exercising the right of franchise and the need of educational work in teaching the evils of alcohol, and recommended that in the employment of teachers, preference be given to those who hold the highest certificates and and are the most experienced.

The 1926 convention drew to a close November 26, with all the representatives feeling that the meeting had been very successful, and looking forward to the work of the coming year with interest and pleasure.

OFFICERS OF FRESHMAN COMMITTEE ARE ELECTED

Three splendid recruits from the Freshman class have been chosen to head the commission this year. Blanche Overbey was elected president; Elizabeth Sawyer, vice-president, and Mary Frances Hatchett, secretary.

The definite organized work of the Commission has not begun yet, but special mention should be made of their service Thursday afternoon. Everyone noticed how quickly and thoroughly the campus was cleaned of its colors Thursday; that was due to the twelve Commission girls. They have started out with a splendid spirit.

THANKSGIVING PRAYERS

Thanksgiving Day, with all its high spirits, pep, and activities would not have been complete without those candlelight, the soft music, and the little Thanksgiving talk of Thanksgiving thoughts. And while we were there grouping our "Thank you's," we thanked inwardly for the lonely service of Prayers.

THANKSGIVING PARTY IS JOLLY OCCASION

Speaking of the preverbial "crowning of that perfect day," the party Thurday night, given by the Y. W. C. A., was that finishing touch! The color hanging, the games, the dinner, the show, the whole atmosphere of the Thanksgiving Day had such pep as in the mood for such an informal, jolly party that occurred.

Eleanor Bennett gave several of her inimitable selections. The Sophomore class gave the touching and appealing effect of "Her Last Chance" on an S. T. C. movie audience, and every one present wept with sympathy. The Freshman class brought a cabaret scene to light with music, dancing and song—it was a gala affair. The Junior class gathered from those present the most impressive individuals to form the background of that austere picture "The Gathering of the Nuts." Our gentle Seniors forgot their dignity and turned completely into an S. T. C. Thanksgiving dinner! The program was fittingly tapped off by two delightful selections by Miss Alice Davis.

The orchestra, the dancing and the three huge punch bowls deserve much credit, too, for their fun contributed to the happy night.

DR. MARY HAMER DAVIS ADDRESSES AT CHAPEL

Last Saturday morning in chapel Dr. Mary Hamer Davis of the U. S. Bureau of Education in Washington, talked to the student body.

Dr. Davis first discussed the different bureaus of the government. The Bureau of Education was organized only a year ago. Since then it has done a great work.

The real purpose of this bureau is to assemble knowledge and then to disseminate it.

There are five different stages to an education—grammar school, high school, college, university, and life. Education never ceases.

She quoted the seventh verse of the second chapter of II Timothy, which says, "Consider what I say; and the Lord give thee understanding in all things." The greatest asset that a teacher can have is understanding.

Teachers should not be bound to one grade by four walls, they should observe and know how to teach other grades too!

The teaching profession is one of the most interesting and fascinating in the world, but of course it all depends upon what we ourselves make it. We should be able to tell people of its advantages, and do things that will make people want to know and visit our Alma Mater.

SOPHOMORES AND JUNIORS ARE VICTORIOUS IN HOCKEY

SOPHOMORES WIN FIRST HOCKEY GAME 2—0

Thanksgiving morning, the Sophomores and Freshmen started off the annual interclass competition for the colors. The ground was rather slippery, but after a short period of time, the players became accustomed to it and the ball was hit back and forth steadily. The Sophomore wings carried the ball down to the 25 yard line repeatedly only to have it driven back by the defense of the Freshmen. Then the tide would turn and the ball would be carried back by the Freshmen.

The game went on, each team failing to score from the striking circle. The first half ended in a 0 to 0 score. After the Seniors and Juniors had played a half, the Sophomores and Freshmen renewed the game with energy.

The ball traveled up and down the field never getting through the goal posts. The game ended in a tie. It was then decided that the game should be continued 10 minutes, each team changing goals at the end of five minutes.

At the end of the first five minutes the game remained a tie. The last five minutes the Sophomores determined to get through the Freshman defense. Juliet Jones made another spectacular dash and the ball was centered. After a scrimmage at the goal Mary Jane Wilkinson gave the ball a mighty slash and in it went through the goal posts. Thus it was that "Romeo and Juliet" saved the day for the Sophomores. The ice being broken the Freshmen let down and Wilkinson drove in a second goal for the Sophomores. The game ended 2—0 in favor of the Sophomores.

The game was much better played than that of the Juniors and Seniors as it was more open. Both teams lacked the ability to follow the ball through, or more goals would have been scored. The forward line of the Sophomores stood out. Jones, Talley, and Rhodes carried the ball down beautifully while Wilkinson shot the goals. The Freshman defense was stronger than its forward line.

Considering the fact that hockey was a new sport for S. T. C., the quality of the game was remarkable. The future success of hockey is guaranteed if we can produce teams which are equal to those of the Sophomores and Freshmen. To these classes goes the honor of participating in the first game of hockey ever played at S. T. C.

SENIORS ARE DEFEATED IN CLOSE GAME BY JUNIORS 1—0

In a well played, hotly contested game on the athletic field Thanksgiving morning, the Juniors defeated the Seniors by the close score of 1 to 0.

During the Freshman-Sophomore half, the Juniors and Seniors began their fight, amid the yells of the green and white and the red and white rooters. The Seniors got the ball at the first bully-up, but failed to make a goal. The ball then went from one end of the field to the other, first threatening the Junior, then the Senior goal. J. Woodson of the Junior team got ball near her goal and attempted to rush it. Asher, however intercepted her and prevented the ball from going into the goal, but knocked the ball out so a corner was given the Juniors. Their attempt to make this goal failed and the Seniors got the ball. The teams, however were so evenly matched in this half that it ended with the score 0 to 0.

Both teams went back on the field after the first half with the determination to win.

White and La Boyteaux began with some clever passing with the asssistance of the rest of the forward line, but the Junior back fieldmen proved too much for them and blocked the ball each time. L. Cato, of the Juniors, rescued the ball and after carrying it down the field passed it to E. Woodson, who failed to stop it before it rolled over the end line, the Juniors being penalized and the ball carried back to the 45 yard line.

In spite of hard work on the part of both teams at the end of the second half the score was 0 to 0. So ten minutes extra were given to play this tie off. The Seniors were kept on the defensive most of the time. They got a chance at the goal once, but missed it about a foot. English, of the Juniors, then carried the ball down the field where she made a clever pass to J. Woodson, who drove the ball into the goal before the Seniors could intercept her.

The Senior backfield put up a good fight now and time and time again broke up would-be goal shots by their opponents and thus kept the score down.

The line-up:

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

OUR SPIRIT.

Somehow or other the spirit which the classes display on Thanksgiving seems to be the one that is carried with them during the entire year. For that reason we await, almost with bated breath, to see what kind of sportsmanship will be shown, if the Freshmen have caught the right feeling, if the old girls are carrying on traditions.

No matter how hard we have tried, there have nearly always been some members of the various classes who show the very poorest kind of sportsmanship. This has ruined things, because it not only reflects on those girls, it reflects on their class.

This year we may congratulate ourselves. We have come out without hard feelings, without fussing and wrangling and without giving numerous alibis. So far as can be remembered there has never been fairer, squarer dealing and better all-around good feeling.

With the start we have for a thoroughly good class feeling and a staunch backing of our colors, yet a respect for our opponents, it looks as though our school spirit will excell all that has gone before.

The one repuation that is to be coveted by any athlete and by any group backing athletes is that of 100 per cent good sportsmanship.

We've started toward reaching our goal—we can make it—if we make our Thanksgiving spirit of "fair play" our New Year's resolution! Can't we continue to feel a game won or lost may reflect glory if we have played our best and been true to the finest things that we stand for?

DO YOU RESPECT PERFORMERS?

Have you ever noticed that very often when some of our own girls are contributing their part toward entertaining or helping to entertain a group that we are inclined to be absolutely rude? It seems so ridiculous to think that college girls need to have their attention called to something that even high school girls would consider a bad breech of etiquette. However, we all become careless at times and need only to have our attention called to the fact.

When someone is entertaining she isn't doing it for her own pleasure; she is doing it for ours. Are we doing right when we whisper, talk or act inattentive in any way? And yet, time after time we become lax; we forget that it is practically impossible for one to do her best unless she has the undivided attention of her entire audience. No one wishes to offer less than her best. If the girls don't appreciate one's best we should have nothing.

No one wishes to be coerced into good discipline. No one needs to be. Neither does anyone need to be coerced into an appreciable audience. We will just naturally be that way from force of habit and will realize that the few times we have been seemingly rude have been unusual exceptions to a general rule.

PLEASE USE DISCRETION

We usually think of proverbs or adages as old, moss-grown sayings of some wonderfully wise ancient, but that is not the right conception to put upon such things. Today, in these moden times I have heard proverbs that are hard to beat, and they are just as epigramtic as any pithy sayings of years ago.

There is one, especially, which needs a commendation and that one is—"Don't believe all you hear and only half of what you see." What do you think of that? True, isn't it? Then why not put it into practice? Especially here in school have we ample opportunity to make good use of such a saying because all sorts and kinds of stories are started and told around the campus. Some of them are too absurd for anyone to believe, in fact they are so perfectly asburd that any sane and sensible person should discredit them. But does this happen? No, most emphatically not! Later on, or perhaps not so very much later on, we hear this same preposterous story going the rounds of school as "fact, not fiction." Girls, "ain't" it awful? Nothing to do in a case like this except to revert to that very adequate saying and believe only half what you hear, using your own discretion about what you see.

ENGLISH 36 TO BE OFFERED DURING WINTER QUARTER

There has been so much misunderstanding in regard to the nature and purpose of English 36 that it seems best to make a little explanation.

English 36 is not primarily a course in versification, though some elementary instruction in versification will be given, and some practice will be afforded in verse-making, for those who wish to try. Many students who can never write poetry can learn to write creditable verse. Such an accomplishment is worth cultivating. The chief aim of the course, however, is to develop a clearer understanding of poetry, with a corresponding delight in the art. The course will consist mainly in the actual study of poetry. This course is for students only who have a natural love for poetry, and who wish to improve their taste.

For this one course, one must be recommended by the English department. If you are interested, do not be afraid to ask. If you are advised to take something else, it is no reflection on your scholarship or your taste; it simply means that your English teacher thinks some other course would be more profitable for you, individually. The course is for juniors, and seniors; but a limited number of sophomores will be permitted to enter.

DON'T MISS THE BAZAAR ON DECEMBER 3RD.

Do you like to travel? Do you want to see Spain and France? Spain, with all its glory and romance, the land of the tango and picturesque costumes, and France, with its novel fashion shops and gay people, are to be here at S. T. C. You should be interested in knowing somethng of the life and customs of our neighbors across the Rio Grande. This privilege will be offered you by the Spanish and Franch Circles, by connecting the drawing room into Southern Europe in all its reality. In fact you leave all English outside when you enter these foreign countries. The money used will be that of France and Spain. Upon entering the Spanish and French consuls change your money into native coin, according to the country in which you wish to travel. After traveling through France and hearing French songs and viewing some of the lovely handwork of the French, you may, by paying a small toll, cross the Pyrenees into Spain. Of course you wish to bring souvenirs to your friends, so this has been provided for. There will be exquisite and useful articles for sale, made by members of the Circles. For fear you will be hungry during your travels, sandwiches, candy, and cakes may be purchased from Spanish and French shops.

Be sure to come to the two-country bazaar on December 3, from four until six in room F, the drawing room.

DR. DAVIS SPEAKS TO I. K. U.

The Kindergarten-Primary Club had a call meeting in the Junior parlor at 7:30 Friday evening at which time each member was introduced individually to Dr. Davis.

Dr. Davis, who has been a worker in kindergarten and primary departments for sometime, is very interested in pushing forward this work. She gave a very interesting talk in which she told us something of her experiences and work in Duluth.

GOING TO THE COUNTRY

"I'm very sorry, but I'm going to the country," serves for many an inexcusable excuse. One knows for one teaches. Some students think that the country is really an impossibility when it is only a school house (not red) sitting in the midst of the open spaces. A trip to the country is really not a journey. It is merely a "misinformed" ride, for one does miss form, very much.

The teacher gets up, cleans up, probably washes her face just like any ordinary person and flies to the "Hall of Dough, Dough." Then the teacher loses her ordinary qualities and becomes individualistic. She leaves the dining room! Yes, she does. Look any morning and you will see her, she usually runs. She goes to her room, grabs numberless tacks, pencils, books, and frequently a "Clean Teeth" chart. She boards the vehicle entitled "Bus." She becomes the first layer. Many more humans like the teacher (only they are pupils) become the other layers. The number of layers depends upon the weather. Of course, if it is cold, many of the children remain frozen to their country stoves all day. The "Bus" reaches it's destination, sometimes without tire trouble. But it never fails to reach the school, eventually. It's really a good conveyance. The teacher gets out—and, well, she just teaches. One might say just what she teaches, but as that's why we are all here 'twould be best to find out in a "Primary Method" Class.

P. S.—The best of writers never add post scripts to articles. As this one is very necessary it is really all right for "necessity is the parent of invention", you know. This post script tells you that you must not be too serious. Do not believe everything you hear or read. It injures the eyes at first; then it effects one's brains!

AT NIGHT

I love the night. It is beautiful. Night is like death, I think. Day is gone, life is gone; night is come, another life begun. I love the moon half hid beneath the shadowing clouds. Again, there is one big beauteous star. I can see God's hills under His magic sky; I can see His trees; I can hear His creatures singing for the sheer joy of living, and, too, the joy of the night.

Away off a light is twinkling. Was that a dog I heard barking? And a petted cow softy tinkles it's silvery bells.

The clouds are parting. The clouds are shades that make the moonlight soft—for lovers, and dreamers, and children.

Dreamers, lovers, children. The world is made for evolution. Dreamers, lovers, children—all is beautiful.

I see some ghostly, lovely smoke rising in spectre shapes, smoke as if from a funeral pyre. Night and death—they are one.

JOKES

The lesson assigned (pardon the word) was a discussion on "Drill." Mr. Wynne lectured for one hour and a half on the subject and in closing remarked: "What shall we take up next time?"

Louise Ford: "Mr. Wynne, since we didn't discuss drill today, let's take that up next time."

Virginia Potts says people and pins are useless when they lose their heads.

Street Car Conductor: "Step lively, there. Get aboard."

Old Maid: "You should be more polite and considerate, conductor. Have you no manners?"

Conductor: "What do you expect for a nickle, Romeo?"

"I don't give a hoot", said the owl as he flew into the night.

"I told him I liked rings—so he sent me an alarm clock for a Christmas present.

"I say, Percival, I have just finished reading Carlyle's Essay on Burns, —most remakable book, eh, what?"

"Oh, yes, very, but rawther aside from the subject, don't you think? I couldn't find a bally word in it about anyone getting burned!"

He: "Thinking of me—dearest?"

She: "Was I laughing? I'm so sorry."

"Miss Curley," said the office manager apologetically to his stenographer one morning, "I would suggest that you do not write letters to your young man during office hours. Smith and Jones said that we sent them a shipment of love and kisses instead of the tar and axle grease they ordered.

Irate Lady: "Florist, I want my money back for this tobacco plant."

Florist: "Why, won't it bloom?"

Lady: "Yes, but it hasn't grown a single cigar, yet."

Polly A. "Why did it take Solomon 12 years to build his temple?"

Anne P.: "Because he was wise."

Polly A.: No! Because he had 1001 wives to make suggestions."

"William," said the teacher during the lesson in physiology, "what is the use of the external ear?"

William considered a moment, "I think teacher," he said, "it is mostly used to catch dirt!"

The Sunday School teacher asked all of her class to write the names of their favorite hymns.

All the pupils handed in their slips but one little girl.

"Come, Mary," said the teacher, bring your paper to me."

Mary, with downcast eyes and flaming cheeks, handed the teacher a slip of paper bearing the words: "Willie Smith."

CLASS OF 1926 SETS RECORD

Twenty members of the degree class of June 1926 returned to their Alma Mater for Thanksgiving with as much pep and enthusiasm as characterized their four years at S. T. C. During the same four years the red and white remained steadily on the Athletic cup so it was with unusual interest that the events of last Thursday morning (or Thanksgiving morning) wer watched by each member of the class.

Miss Mary Clay Hiner, our beloved class man, and Miss Jennie Tabb, our esteemed silent partner, were guests at luncheon in the Tea Room on Saturady attended by fifteen of the members. Between bites and class and school songs there was a "round robin" with its many interesting letters to read, pictures taken at commencement to look at, and the most exciting stories to relate of recent experiences in the teaching profession. A new matrimonial adventure was cited, with rumors of others.

Miss Mary Clay Hiner, assisted by Miss Winnie Hiner, delightfully entertained the returned members at tea in her home on Saturday afternoon from five to six. Plans were made for a reunion on Founder's Day which is anticipated with the keenest pleasure. During the day a wire was received from Clara Thompson, another member of the class, with the message: "Thanks for the class of '26", and as the last sips of tea were taken, while the fire flickered in the old fashioned fireplace, we realized as never before the many, many things college life at dear old S. T. C. has made us thankful for.

The twenty members included: Ann Smith, class president; Elizabeth Bugg, Elizabeth Diehl, Daisy Mitchell, Gladys Moses, Olive Smith Bowman, Bessie Gordon Jones, Mary Vaughan, Audrey Chewning, Florence Riss, Martina Willis, Grace Noel, Ida Hill, Thelma Woolfolk, Mamie Daniels, Wilma Williams, Cora Helen Meeks, Catherine Murdock, Sadie Baird, and Kate Trent.

JOAN CIRCLE ENTERTAINS

The Joan Circle of Alpha Delta Rho held a luncheon in honor of the old members who were here over the week-end.

The guests present were: Misses Mary Lynn Petty, Erna Shotwell, Eula Harris, Lucille Walton.

SPEAKING OF CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

There are all kinds of Christmas presents. There are those which are given merely from a sense of the fitness of things; there are those which are given out of pure love; there are those which are promptly tucked away among our unused nick-knacks; and there are those which we count among our treasures and value accordingly.

Now—why not make a present to yourself of the monogram, a present which will fall in the last class? Perhaps it seems beyond your grasp; assuredly it is within your reach. So go to work and add another drop to the ocean of Christmas happiness which the Monogram Club hopes will be yours by taking home with you a college monogram!

JACK FROST GIVES FAREWELL PARTY

(Special to The Rotunda)

Farmville, Nov. 28—Jack Frost entertained most delightfully here Wednesday night when he gave a farewell party for the Misses Leaves.

An orchestra composed of the famous rollicking Wind Brothers rendered a music lovely to hear.

On arriving each guest was given a small green plot to make the most of, but as yet the editor has been unable to get the results.

The colorful frocks of the young ladies, gave an air of gaiety to the affair; Miss Red Maple was awarded the prize for the prettiest costume.

Later in the evening refreshments consisting of moonshine and frosted cakes were served.

Among the couples participating in the dancing were Miss Red Maple with Mr. Wandering Jew, Miss Poplar with Mr. Pine, Miss Clinging Vine with Mr. Sturdy Oak and Miss English Spruce and Mr. Bok Wood.

Vexing Language

The object of a verb is to get the translator all bawled up.

A masculine and a feminine word shall not be used in the same sentence without the presence of a chaperone.

Whenever an active verb attacks a passive verb, they must be separated immediately.

A word that shows its syllables is immodest.

You can almost always tell how tense a verb is when it gets excited.

The language has a great number of proper nouns, but no improper ones.

Words with weak endings never sit down.

WED.—Laura La Plante and Pat O'Malley in THE TEASER. It's a cinch for a girl to juggle a lot of bachelor suitors—it's the married men that call for brain work. Watch Laura La Plante in THE TEASER and see what makes wives wild. Simply gorgeous comedy with some grand romance. A picture with a chuckle, a tickle, a kick. Also Aesop Fable. Mat. at four.

THURS.—Madge Bellamy, Owen Moore, Bryant Washburn, Lilyan Tashman, Mary Carr and Bruce Guerin in THE PARASITE, a specal production. He denounced her. He told her that she turned his heart to stone—he called her a "parasite". And then she proved her love by aghastly sacrifice that provides the greatest climax ever witnessed. "Bill Grim's Progress." Mat. 4.

FRI. & SAT.—Rudolph Valentino in THE SHIFK. As there is hardly any one who hasn't seen this picture or read the novel, it is needless to tell you about it. The picture that millions crowded theatres to see. It is a thrilling production. New prints of the original picture have been made and we assure you that no scenes are left out. In a few weeks we are going to show Valentino in "The Son of the Shiek" and by seeing the "Shiek" again you will appreciate and enjoy more seeing "The Son of the Shiek", the last picture Valentino made. Also good comedy. Mat. Friday at 4 o'clock.

MON.—Madge Bellamy and Jack Mulhall in THE DIXIE MERCHANT a special production. Here is a story filled with intense human interest and delightful comedy. Pathos, thrills and romance all woven into a marvelous tory. There is a thrilling and exciting horse race shown in this big production. Also Pathe News. Mat. at four o'clock.

TUES.—Madge Bellamy and Edmund Lowe in BLACK PARADISE a special production. Hate made him hound her to the ends of the earth. Love nade him save her and bring her back to happiness. This is a story of love nd intrigue with a volcanic island for setting. Not an ordinary picture but a big special. Also good comedy.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1926 Number 11

SOPHOMORES WIN HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP

Juniors Are Defeated 2—1

The Sophomore hockey team met the Junior eleven on the athletic field at 4:15 Thursday afternoon in a game which resulted in a 2—1 victory for the Green and White. The Juniors fought to the last second and victory for the Sophomores did not come easily.

From the first bully the battle was waged furiously. Every few minutes the wings carried the ball down to within a few yards of the goal, only to have it intercepted by the defense and driven back up the field.

Finally, however, the Sophomores succeeded in breaking through the defense of the Juniors, and Rhodes followed the ball through, thus scoring the first point for the Green and White.

In one of the tight scrimmages Betty LeCato, Junior L. W., was disabled by being hit in the mouth by a stick and for the rest of the half, Red and White played short. Jackie Woodson was forced to cover both her position and LeCato's, doing this very effectively.

A few minutes later, after the ball was dribbled down the field by the Juniors, Woodson succeeded in sending it through the goal. The Sophomores then successfully advanced toward their goal and Tally scored another point for the Green and White before the end of the first half.

At the beginning of the second half each team returned to the field with renewed vigor. Both fighting hard till the whistle broke the tenseness and the Sophomores came off the field with the second victory of the season for the Green and White.

From a technical point of view the game was not an ideal one. However, it was of great interest to the large number of spectators. Both teams showed excellent spirit and the hockey season ended with the conviction that this sport has won a permanent place at S. T. C.

FRESHMAN CLASS MAN

MR. WARREN D. BOWMAN

THE FRESHMAN CLASS MAN IS PRESENTED

Will wonders never cease? The existance of a man-size rat trap was unknown to us, until the Freshman presentation of their class man, Saturday morning. It works, too, for did it not trap such a class man as Mr. W. D. Bowman.

The long line of Freshmen marched in snappily singing "Clap Hands Here We Come!" The audience would have indeed been heedless had they not known it. Bringing up the rear was the rat trap with Mr. Bowman inside.

The President set him free and dubbed him as class man, providing him with the Freshman insignia (the rat cap) whereby he might be known as one of them.

Then the class resounded him in her proclamation by singing, "Here He Is."

ATTRACTIVE STUNT GIVEN BY Y. W. C. A.

S. T. C. experienced an extraordinary event Monday night. All radio fans turned out to hear the famous program broadcasted "a la maybe" in the auditorum. Pa and Ma and Aunty sat entranced before the "contraption as the deep voice of the announcer told all the financial secrets of "where our money goes." The program was even more startling and famous than a radio evening, for the events announced were actually acted out by S. T. C. students at the same time!

The stunt was an attractive and clever plan devised by the Finance

ACCA TEMPLE CHANTERS GIVE FINE PROGRAM

The Acca Temple Chanters from Richmond gave a delightful concert in the College Auditorium. They were the guest of the Farmville Shrine Club and the proceeds of the concert are to go to the Farmville High School.

This was not the first time that the Chanters had been here, and they were given a most cordial welcome by the audience. The Chanters are distinguished musicians and have given concerts in many different places more often in the North than the South.

Every number on the program, which the Chanters presented was enthusiastically received by the audience and seldom have we had a chance to hear such an entertaining program.

The director of the Chanters was Mr. Elmer Hozel—director of W. R. V. A. radio staton in Richmond. They were accompanied by Mr. J. Robert Beadle, of Richmond. The program which they gave was:

SENIORS AND FRESHMEN WIN FIRST BASKETBALL GAMES

Freshmen Edge Score From Sophomores 21—19.

Basket ball season opened here with a bang Saturday night, when a double-header was played between the Freshmen and Sophomores, and the Juniors and Seniors. The large crowd that came out proved that while tennis and hockey are interesting, basket ball is the popular game with all the girls.

The first game was between the Freshmen and Sophomores. The teams were very evenly matched and both worked hard to roll up the score. The Freshmen scored first, but the Sophomores soon caught up and led at the end of the first quarter. The second quarter the Freshmen gained point after point and when the whistle blew at the close of the half they were leading 15 to 8.

The second half the Sophomores seemed determined to win, and the Freshmen seemed equally determined that they shouldn't. The first quarter ended in a rough and tumble but the last part of the game smoothed out. The Sophomores gaining steadily, but they had dropped so far behind they couldn't catch up and the game ended 21—19 in favor of the Freshmen.

The Freshmen exhibited some of the prettiest floor work, passing, and feints, etc., that has ever been seen on this gym floor.. It would be hard to single out the best player from their team, all deserve special mention. The Sophomore team played well from the first to the last, showing good teamwork and clean sportsmanship.

DR. LYON G. TYLER ADDRESSES THE A. P. V. A.

Dr. Lyon G. Tyler, educator and former president of the college of William and Mary addressed the members of the Assocation for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities on Friday night in the auditorium.

Preceding Dr. Tyler's talk a report of the Landmark Committee was given by Dr. J. D. Eggleston, President of Hampden-Sidney College and member of the Association. The Landmark Committee, according to the report, has not been idle but has been at work in an effort to secure and investigate records, monuments and other relics connected with the early history of Virginia.

Seniors Defeat Juniors 20—13

The Junior-Senior game started when the Red and White's were leading, at the end of the first half of the Freshman-Sophomore game, with a score of 15—8. The feeling was intense, the Juniors trying to keep the lead, and the Seniors trying to win it back. Vincent and White by their untiring efforts led the Seniors to victory. The first quarter ended 6—3 in favor of the Seniors, but during the second quarter the Junior guards proved too strong for the Senior forwards, allowing only one field goal, while the Juniors made three. The first half ended with the Juniors leading 9—8.

After the Freshman-Sophomore game the Seniors seemed more determined than ever to keep Green and White on top. The Senior guards allowed only two field goals for the Juniors, while the Senior forwards gained 14 points, fighting down the Junior centers and guards in their attempt to keep the ball in Red and White territory. The final score was 20—13 in favor of the Seniors.

This game was just as hotly contested as the Freshman-Sophomore game, but was marked by fewer fouls and less rough play. Neither game lagged at any point and both were enjoyed thoroughly by all who witnessed them. The final game is to be played off some time this week and will prove the most exciting as it determines which color will gain the 10 points toward the cup for basket ball.

There is splendid material in school for varsity and everyone is looking forward anxously to see the games played between S. T. C., and other schools. For after the Freshman-Senior game it is neither Red and White nor Green and White, but Blue and White we yell for and want to see on top.

It is hoped that the school spirit will continue and back our varsity 100 per cent of their games.

DRAMATIC CLUB WILL GIVE "THE HEART OF A CLOWN"

On December 15 at seven o'clock the Dramatic Club will present a one-act play entitled "The Heart of a Clown." The story is a fantastic one and full of love and beauty. The play will last for about forty-five minutes.

The cast is as follows:

A fortune teller .... Eleanor Bennett
Columbine, Annie Griswold McIntosh
Harlequin ..... Virginia Boxley
Clown ..... Blanche Overbey

MISS IDA BIERBOWER, Alumnae Editor

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

START NOW.

Had you realized that in about two weeks from today most of us will be home for the Christmas holidays? But there is one thing that must be done before we leave, if we are to enjoy our holidays. That thing is to pass our examinations. All of us have heard the saying, "Do your Christmas shopping early." Had you ever thought that this might be applied to our examinations? Why not adopt the maxim "Do your studying for exams early." The large majority of us fall down on examinations because we are nervuus. And why are we nervous? Because we try to "cram" the night before the examination. Why not start studying now? Study some each day, organize your work, and when your examination comes you'll be ready to do your best.

GLEE CLUB GROUP GOES TO VICTORIA

A Glee Club group went to Victoria where they gave a program on Saturday night.

Those who had important parts on the program were: Misses Etta Marshall, Alma Smith, Gwendolyn Selden, Mebane Hunt, Alice Davis, Mable Fitzpatrick, Sue Sebrell, Anna Robeson, Anna Higgins, Eleanor Bennett, Elizabeth Sawyer, Betty Hopkins, Alice Page Adams, and Blanche Overbey.

SECOND GRADE GIVES TWO INTERESTING PLAYS

The student body was delightfully entertained Tuesday morning, November 30, by the children from the second grade Training School of the S. T. C. They presented two plays both of which endeavored to show us the necessity for observing the Health Rules. The first play was "Mother Goose in Healthland," and the second was "Mother Hubbard." The children took their parts well and the plays were a credit to their instructors.

S. T. C. IS NOW AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE

Our college has for a number of years been a member of the American Association of Teachers Colleges and we are rated by the U. S. Bureau of Education as a Standard Teachers College. We have never applied for rating by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as, until very recently, this organization was composed entirely of classical colleges; now, however, Teachers Colleges are admitted to the Association.

On account of the fact that the high school belonging to this Association employ only a limited number of graduates from colleges not affiliated with them, we have recently made application for their rating and have been accredited.

This accrediting does away with any difficulties our degree graduates may have had with reference to positions in the high schools of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

DR LYON G. TYLER ADDRESSES THE A. P. V. A.

Dr. Tyler in his talk on the "Virginia Gentleman" first pointed out the reasons for reviving the memory of the grand old gentleman of Virginia. Then continued by giving the main attributes which characterized him. The old Virginia gentleman, according to Dr. Tyler, was a man of a genial and jovial nature. He had a splendid sense of honor and responsibility, a hospitable manner and was a man of strong convictions and principles. Such men as Lee, Jefferson, Washington and Jackson were mentioned as representative of the time.

Before closing Dr. Tyler said a word about the old Virginia lady and the part she played in the social and domestic life of early Virginia.

The program for the evening was concluded by an appropriate musical selection, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" by the College Choral Club directed by Mrs. Katherine King.

DO YOU RESPECT THE PERFORMERS?

Have you ever noticed that very often when some of our own girls are contributing their part toward entertaining or helping to entertain a group that we are inclined to be absolutely rude? It seems so ridiculous to think that college girls need to have their attention called to something that even high school girls would consider a bad breech of etiquette. However, we all become careless at times and need only to have our attention called to the fact.

When someone is entertaining she isn't doing it for her own pleasure; she is doing it for ours. Are we doing right when we whisper, talk or act inattention in any way? And yet, time after time we become lax; we forget that it is practically impossible for one to do her best unless she has the undivided attention of her entire audience. No one wishes to offer less than her best. If the girls don't appreciate one's best we should have nothing.

No one wishes to be coerced into good discipline. No one needs to be. Neither does anyone need to be coerced into an appreciable audience. We will just naturally be that way from force of habit and will realize that the few times we have been seemingly rude have been unusual exceptions to a general rule.

S. T. C. TO HAVE PUBLIC DEBATE DECEMBER 13

On Monday night, December 13, S. T. C. is to have another public debate. Those who heard the debate in October will not want to miss this one and those who did not hear it have an opportunity to make up the loss as far as possible. The subject is one that concerns all college students, namely, whether those students who are doing exceptionally good work should be allowed to direct their own work to the extent that they may attend classes only when they think it necessary. This plan, known as Dean's list, is being used with great success at the University of Virginia and at a great many other colleges and universities. Everyone will be interested in the argument on both sides, for there is abundant argument on both sides. The program will begin at eight o'clock.

Resolved: That we should have a Dean's list of exceptional students at S. T. C.

Affirmative—Grigsby Peck, Ella Louise Moore, Nellie Talley, (alternate). Negative—Belle Bryant, Frances Wilson, Esther Blackman, (alternate).

A TRIP ABROAD

On Friday, December 3, the students of S. T. C. were given an opportunity to travel in Spain or France. The Spanish and French departments held a bazaar, from four to six, in the drawing room. One entered France by one door; the other led into Spain and within the room the two countries were separated by the Pyrenees. The room and booths were tastefully decorated with the colors and flags of each country, and those girls who conducted the bazaar or were in any way directly interested, were dressed in the native costume.

The travelers bought, with foreign money, from a wide variety of articles, presented with a view to their suitability as Christmas gifts. Later in the afternoon an auction was held of the more desirable gifts.

A very interesting program was arranged for the tourists, among whom were members of the faculty and of Hampden-Sidney. Songs typical of the countries were sung by the students of the language departments and several Spanish dances were given by Miss Gwendolyn Selden. Music and confetti lent a carnival air to the occasion, and the illusion of traveling in a foreign country was aided by the presence of the sereno, a quaint custom of Spain.

MISS MASON ADDRESSES THE STUDENT BODY

The student body had the rare treat Friday night of hearing Miss Mason, industrial secretary of Richmond, speak. Miss Mason was in Farmville under the auspces of the Woman's Club, but they were kind enough to lend her to us for Prayers one night. Miss Mason has been notable in the State for her legislative influence, and her general activity in woman's work—so she spoke out of a wealth of experience. Her talk was principally a resume of the professions open to women today and a challenge to all thinking students.

The Y. W. C. A. Cabinet has the privilege of hearing Miss Mason again Thursday morning. She spoke principally about inter-racialism, and cleared up several questions concerning the regional conference.

Miss Mason is a person of political frankness and of intense interest in all women's problems; her talks were helpful and inspirational. We hope she will return again.

LITTLE GIRL THOUGHTS

Barby Ann sat on the porch steps and thought and thought. It was a lovely night for such things—everything was just as it should have been. The moon was—oh, beau-ti-ful! And there was a warm little breeze that blew her curls just the right way; and not anyone to bother her. Mother was playing bridge with friends, and Father was in his den—why, there was not even "Cricket" to rub his nose against her hand and beg for attention. And oh, yes, that reminded her, she just must go and see Miss Poole and apologize for "Cricket"—some people were so fussy about their cats.

Miss Poole lived across the street from Mary Louise—it might be nice to go when she was dressed up for Mary Louise's party, because that new pink organdy was becoming. She hoped the Turner twins weren't invited—they were so silly and not the least bit grown up.

Oh! there was a star—"Star light, star bright—." It would be nice if that wish would come true. Why hadn't she thought to wish about the New Boy just moved down on the corner? It was funny—she always wished things like that about Dicky, but of course it was just because she had known Dicky so long. The New Boy had such nice slick hair—and long pants, too. She wished like everything Dicky didn't have those freckles.—Oh, dear,it was so lovely to think and think—.

"What! My Little Partner asleep on the job?" and then two strong arms, and a sleepy, curly head against a big broad shoulder, and Mother's dear voice away off—"She's our very little girl yet—isn't she, Don?"

EXAMINATIONS
(With apologies to Poe)

Once a boy was in vexation,
'Twas before examination,
And the boards along the class-room
glistened bright.
Then a teacher bustling, hustling,
with many papers rustling,
Came and wrote the awful questions
plain in sight.
Then she said with voice so cheering
To all within her hearing,
"Now upon this mighty test we must be fair
So on all your papers write,
When you've answered all you might,
Whether all your work is yours or someone's near."

Now this boy was in vexation
(A fact that I have mentioned)
For he didn't know a thing about the test.
Of the questions on the wall,
He had answered none at all,
But he was sure that what he'd done
was best.
So with toil and meditation,
He wrote this declaration,
A message that conveyed his meaning quite,
"I, hereby, make the declaration that
on this examination
I received no information here to write."

FACULTY OF S. T. C. HONORED AT ROANOKE

At the Teacher's Convention in Roanoke, November 24—27, several members of the S. T. C. faculty were elected to offices of several different sections of education which made up the Conference.

Dr. Jarman, who is President of the Association of Colleges and Schools of Virginia for the present year, was elected President of the section of colleges and secondary schools of this Conference.

Miss Willie London was elected President of the English section.

Miss Lila London was elected to the office of Secretary of the Mathematical section.

Miss Bierbower was elected to a position on a committee which is carrying on an important work, the study of Rural Conditions.

Of interest also to the school is the fact that a former student of S. T. C., Miss Gertrude Quinn, was elected Secretary and Treasurer of the Primary-Kindergarten section.

HONORARY HOCKEY VARSITY CHOSEN

This year has been a record breaking year in more ways than one at S. T. C. We have the largest student body in the history of the institution, each class being larger than any previous class. And would it be right to say that our class spirit is better and stronger than ever before? Another way in which the record has been broken—the green and white, so far, are waving from the cup. If the green and white stays on this year; it will be the first time since the cup was first awarded. This year also marks the entrance of a new and interesting sport into our athletics, hockey. At first it seemed rather difficult to get players out, but after they went the first time they were won and came again and again. The result being our very interesting and exciting games on Thanksgiving Day and the final game played off Thursday afternoon. Now, we hope, hockey is with us to stay. In hockey as in basket ball we have our varsity, but instead of playing other colleges it is an honorary varsity. These players were chosen by members of the Physical Education Department and were selected for their playing throughout, their practicing and the games in which they took part. They were not chosen for spectacular playing, but rather for faithful cooperation, team work, and being in their own position at the proper time. These girls are to be commended and congratulated upon receiving this honor, for the first time in the history of S. T. C. athletics.

The line-up with their position and class follows:

Position	Player	Class
R. W.	Juliet Jones	II
R.	Laura Smith	I
C. F.	Mary Jane Wilkinson	II
L. I.	Jettie Talley	II
L. W.	Katherine Rhodes	II
R. H.	Marie Elder	II
C. H.	Mary Clements	III
L. H.	Agnes Watkins	IV
R. B.	Sara Williams	II
L. B.	Ethel Fisher	I

CERTAINTY ENOUGH

I am not sure that the earth is round
Nor that the sky is really blue.
The tale of why the apples fall
May or may not be true.
I do not know what makes the tides
Nor what tomorrow's world may do,
But I have certainty enough
For I am sure of you.

The Pessimist's Creed

What's the use of sunshine?
Only blinds the eyes.
What's the use of knowledge?
Only makes you wise.
What's the use of smiling?
Wrinkles up your face.
What's the use of flowers?
Clutter up the place.
What's the use of eating?
Nothing only taste.
What's the use of hustling?
Haste is only waste.
What's the use of music?
Just a lot of noise?
What's the use of loving?
Only for the joys.
What's the use of singing?
Only makes you glad.
What's the use of goodness?
When the whole world's bad.
What's the use of health?
You might as well be sick.
What's the use of doing
Anything but kick?

JOKES

Anne F.: "Do you file your fingernails?"

Helen H.: "No. I just throw them away after I cut them off."

It may be truthfully said of many a big football man- "He passed his way through college."

"I know that my lips are painted red,
I know that they wear a smile!
But inside my heart is heavy as lead,
And is breaking all the while.

I know that my eyes seem happy and bright,
I know that you think they are gay.
But sorrow lurks beneath their light,
A sorrow that won't go away.

For I can't be hapy when you are away!
I can't have a song in my heart!
I can't be happy for even an hour
When you and I are apart!

Child: "Mother does the pretty lady sleep in the barn?"

Mother: "Of course not, dear. What a silly question."

Child: "Well, I heard her say she kept her mules under the bed."

One of our Hampden-Sidney friends said that women aren't so much, but unfortunately they're the only other sex that we have.

Dot (at Shannons) "Burton, bring me a ham sandwich."

Burton: "With pleasure."

Dot: "No, no, with mustard."

Socrates: "So old Prof. Jones is dead? He could speak six dead languages."

Plato: "Yeh? He ought to make a right sociable corpse."

"Fourth down and twenty to go," joyfully cried the suicide, as he passed the twentieth story on the way down.

Wire to Father: "Where is that money I wrote for last week?"

Answer: "In my inside vest pocket."

Nancy Cole: "What did you have for dinner?"

Greenhowe: "Two guesses?"

Nancy: "No wonder you were so hungry tonight."

Since You're Thus

Since your shoulders are so broad
Your face to fair,
Since your mouth is firm and strong,
And dark your hair,
Since your eyes are Heaven's own
So deep, so blue
Since you're thus, is it strange
That I love you?

Sambo: "No, sah, I wants it fo' social purposes."

A Mid-Winter Night's Dream

I wandered upstairs and was about to turn in
When I fell in the bath tub up to my chin:
The water was cold—I'd about given up hope
When along came a cake of Ivory soap!

I couldn't float and it wouldn't sink,
So I climbed aboard and started to think,
But a gust of wind through the window blew
And tossed me about until sea-sick I grew.

The water bug life guard on duty that day.
Was doing high dives from the Isle of Soap tray.
An old hermit spider was fishing for whales—
(He liked to catch them and embroider their tails).

The water bug saw me and let out a yelp
And the ole whiskered spider came over to help,
One shoved and one pushed, we got along grand,
But when we reached shore, there was no place to stand!

So the spider climbed up on the faucet light house
And signalled down to a little grey mouse;
He then spun a cable and let it down
One end to me and one to the ground.

I tied it around me—the guard drew it tight
And the little grey mouse pulled with all his might,
He pulled so hard that before he could stop
I was over the side on the floor with a flop!!!

We are very proud of our college. This year we seem to take particular interest in how our campus looks. But there is one spot which we seem to have neglected—Gilliams. Have you noticed the paper, bottles, food and other trash which has collected around this haven of "starved calic"? This not only detracts from the store, itself, but it detracts from the entire campus as well. We may think that this is none of our business—but, isn't it? We, the college girls, are the chief patrons of this store—and it is therefore up to us to see that it is kept attractive and clean.

THE JEFFERSON LITERARY SOCIETY

The Jefferson Literary Society held its regular meeting last Friday. November 26 in room 4. Frances Bagley gave a very interesting report on Edwin Arlington Robinson and read some his poems. Charles Hunt gave a short sketch about Rudyard Kipling. A part of his Song of the Congo was read.

It was suggested that a program be made at the beginning of each term that would be a complete unit and a committee was appointed to work over and make suggestions at the next regular meeting, to be held December 10.

KINDERGARTEN-PRIMARY HOLD TOY DISPLAY

The Kindergarten-Primary Club held a very interesting toy display in the kindergarten room last Thursday afternoon. The display was held for the benefit of the mothers as well as the children. Toys were brought from down town, and there were many books on display. The books were brought from the library, the various rooms in the Training School and from down town. Most of the toys were inexpensive ones and of those brought from down town none were over $2.00. The children got a great deal of pleasure out of showing their parents what they wanted Santa Claus to bring them and the mothers were delighted to have a chance to see the best type of toy and book for the children. The Kindergarten-Primary Club rendered a service to a number of people by having the display.

"SHEIK ROUGH"—VILMA

When Rudolph Valentino and Vilma Banky were filming love scenes for "The Son of the Sheik", the United Artists Picture which comes to the Eaco Theatre next week, Vilma filed a protest.

The Hungarian beauty is understood to have protested against the strong tactics of the desert lover's passionate quest. She said, "Too rough".

Vilma has only been in America long enough to play opposite Ronald Colman in "The Dark Angel," with Rudy in "The Eagle," and one or two other films beside "The Son of the Sheik," which is a sequel to "The Sheik." Hence her protest was voiced in rapid English, somewhat wanting in grammar.

"These sheik is too rough," she said one night after a day at the studio. "It is fight, then some more fight all the time. I am grabbed this way and that way. I am all the blue and the black; these men they forget. The sheik is never the gentle lover. He grab my two arms. Too much love. I almost am suffocate with the kiss. I do not like that kind. But the next day say that and so it ees."

Manager Whitaker has announced that patrons of the Eaco Theatre will have to judge for themselves next week. Adv.

WED.—Margaret Livingstone, Earle Fox, Anna May Wong and J. Farrell McDonald in A TRIP TO CHINATOWN. A rollicking thrilling motion picture version of Charles Hoyt's play. It is a special production. A frisky grandpa, a merry widow and a millionaire enjoying bad health—all mixed up in a Chinese puzzle of screaming situations. Also Aesop Fable. Mat. at 4.

THURS.—ANITA STEWART, BERT LYTELL and Donald Keith in David Belasco's celebrated stage success, THE BOOMERANG. A special production. Does a bachelor know more about love than a married man? If you're not sure, see this picture. It starts with a laugh, circles with a laugh and ends witha laugh. Also Aesop Fable. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

FRI. & SAT.—Ramon Novarro, Wesley Barry, Kathleen Key and Margaret Seddon in THE MIDSHIPMAN. Roamnce and thrills ahoy! Here it is—the stirring picture of the loves and adventures of the Ananpolis Naval Academy. You'll love its fast moving plot—its inside view of fun and the drama of a midshipman's lfe—a U. S. destroyer fleet rushing to the rescue of a girl at sea and scores of other gasps—of how one middy lowered his colors to Cupid! It's glorious! It's young! Packed with fun and action. Also good comedy. Mat. Fri. at 4 o'clock.

MON.—Pauline Stark, Johnnie Walker, and Rockliffe Fellows in "HONESTY IS BEST POLICY a mystery drama of midnight madness. The story of a girl who wanted to travel from the village to high society and wasn't particular about the route. A gunman, a detective and a bobbed-haired bandit in a triangle of intrigue and adventure. Also Pathe News. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

TUES.—Buck Jones in "THE GENTLE CYCLONE" the story of a darelevil who wanted peace and willingly fought for it. He came out West as Absolom Wales a harmless specimen dressed in the latest of English sport clothes—But they soon got to know him as "Cyclone Wales"—a man of peaceful methods, but powerful fists. Also good ocmedy.

THE ROTUNDA

POE

NINE DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS

Exams Tomorrow

(Something to take the joy out of life)

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1926 NUMBER 12

OUR ALMA MATER'S YULETIDE GREETINGS

The students of S. T. C. look forward to the Christmas season not only because of the holidays but also because of the celebration of the College custom which immediately precedes them. They long to hear Miss Minnie V. Rice tell the story of The Other Wiseman, a treat which she charmingly presents just once a year. They long to sing under the star-lit sky, proclaiming anew that old story of "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men." They ong to carol the glad tidings where only the dome of heaven may stop the harmony and echo "Peace."

But when the carolling is over and all the books are packed, they hear a small voice whispering: "To each of you the merriest of Merry Christmases and the happiest of Happy New Years" is the greeting of your Alma Mater as you depart for the holidays. She would not withhold from you the joys of the Christmas home-going, the surprises in the stockings packed by Santa, nor the pleaures afforded by a table piled high with turkey and—and all those things that mothers fix just right. Although the College will be lonely without you, go! A rest from your labors will better prepare you for the New Year and its new work. Upon your return you will find a greeting equally as hearty, for the Alma Mater will await your College home-coming with open arms on January 3, 1927."

"THE HEART OF A CLOWN"

The Heart of a Clown by Constance Powell Anderson, a beautiful one-act play, was artistically presented by the Dramatic Club in the S. T. C. auditorium at 6:45 Wednesday evening. Thi play is a mixture of gaiety and pathos and admirably suited to the talents of the cast. Annie Griswold McIntosh, the flower of all columbines, young, radiant, and winsome was especially suited to her role. The clown, played by Blanche Overbey, presented to perfection the melancholy lover until his mood was changed by the affection of the winsome Columbine. Virginia Boxley was a joyous, clever Harlequin. Eleanor Bennett, the Gypsy, who will do anything for gold, does all in her power to complicate the plot, though in the end she brings about a happy resolution. Charm of atmosphere was enhanced by graceful dances.

CHRISTMAS EVE'S KALEIDOSCOPE.

A clear, cold night;
A sky studded with twinkling stars;
Footsteps crunching on the packed snow;
Gay shop windows dripping with tinsel;
Laughing, eager faces;
Crowds jostling good-naturedly;
Blood-red holly berries,
And mishchief-making mistletoe;
Sleigh-bells tinkling on the icy night;
Numerous tiny heads gone faithfully to sleep,
And twice as many eyes shut tight
So Santa Claus will not forget
To stop his reindeer on their snow-capped roof,
To fill each tiny stocking to the top,
To deck the Christmas tree with garlands gay,
With stars, and lights, and ornaments galore
And over all a sprinkling of snow,
And on each twig a long icicle hang;
Bright pictures all,
Seen through a great Kaleidoscope
Which shows first one and then another scene,
But all alike preparing for that Day—
Fulfillment of the promise of the year
And hope of many and many a year to come—
The Birthday of the Saviour of mankind,
Heaven's brightest Star to light our darkend way,
And give to all the world immortal life.

RITZ QUARTET IS ROYALLY RECEIVED

The third number of the Lyceum which was given by the Ritz Quartet and Georgia Price, harpist, on the evening of December 8, was unanimously voted the best of the season by the student body. The favorable reception given the quartet may be attributed to three principal causes. First, the type of music chosen was especially suitable for a male quartet and at the same time possessed a humorous or a popular appeal. Secondly, the voices were all good and blended well. Thirdly, a male quartet is generally well received and especially so at S. T. C.

The popular numbers were applauded before and after rendition. Every number was encored. Throughout the entire program enthusiastic approval was expressed, not only in applause, but also in squeals, sighs, moans, and whispers of "That's marvelous" or "The lovliest thing I ever heard."

"YOU AMERICANS"

Lecture by Miss Ward

The most delightful lecture of the year was given in the College auditorium, Saturday, December 11, at 8 P. M., by Miss Ada Ward of London, England.

Tih is Miss Ward's tenth season lecturing in America. Her chief aim is to help the English and Americans to a better understanding of each other. And this is what she does in her charming lecture, You Americans. She shows her knowledge of an insight into many of the American characteristics. Our restless nature was especially brought out by her impersonation of the rocking chair and chewing gum. Her talk brought England closer to us, bringing the realization that the only differences between us are a few customs.

We all hope that Miss Ward will return to S. T. C. in the near future and give us another opportunity of hearing her.

MR. POORE LECTURES ON NATIONAL PARKS

Some of the mot wonderful scenery in the world is in America. No one can doubt this fact, after hearing in the auditorium Thursday and Friday night, December 9 and 10, Mr. Henry Warren Poore's lectures on the American National Parks illustrated by vari-colored pictures. Mr. Poore was sent by the Department of the Interior and came to Farmville under the auspices of the Woman's Club.

Rock formation, indescribable blue sky, gorgeous sunsets, trees, and flowers produced the charming effect of color blending which no artist except nature could impart.

The history and customs of the inhabitants of California, Colorado, Utah, and New Mexico were cleverly brought out by the lecturer by means of pictures. The life of the Indian, scenes picturing him at work and at play made a most charming and interesting background on which to base pictures and lecture.

GREEN AND WHITE WIN BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Seniors Win From Freshmen 16—13.

For the first time the Seniors won the championship in basketball Thursday afternoon at 4:15 in the gymnasium, the Senior basketball team defeated the Freshmen basketball team with a score of 16—13 for the Green and White. The hard fighting of the Senior team determined which color would gain the 10 points toward the cup.

Both teams fought vigorously and were very evenly matched, neither team being successful in shooting a goal in the first quarter. Sutton and Byrd with their untiring efforts, finally succeded, in the second quarter, in making a score for the Freshmen. By the quick work of Lohr, the ball was passed to Le Boyteau who made the first goal for the Seniors. Hatchett and Graves succeeded in keeping the Seniors from equalling the score of the Freshmen. The first half ended with the Freshmen leading 9—6.

The quick work of Vincent, in the third quarter, brought the score up for the Seniors, although the Freshmen kept the lead. In the last quarter of the game both teams fought hard, but Crute and Gary proved too strong for the Freshmen, allowing only one field goal to be made, while the Seniors succeeded in making six. The final score was 16—13 in favor of the Seniors.

It would be hard to say which member of the Senior team fought the hardest during the game. Each player of both teams deserves honorable mention.

Freshmen	Pos.	Seniors
Byrd	F.	White
Smith	F.	Le Boyteaux
Deffenbaugh	J. C.	Harrell
Frame	S. C.	Lohr
Hatchett	G.	Crute
Graves	G	Gary

Substitutes: Seniors—Vincent for Le Boyteau; Freshmen—Palmer for Frame.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

"From every place below the skies
The grateful songs, the fervent prayer—
The incense of the heart—may rise
To heaven and find acceptance there."

—Pierpont.

"And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary, his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him."

This is the true spirit of Christmas. No better example can be found than the simple worship in prayer of the Christ Child by the three Wise Men. Yet how many of us fail to realize this. We really don't think about it seriously. In this hurrying, rushing and ever active life of ours, especially active at Christmas time, we are prone to over-look and leave undone the things that we don't have to do and those that don't afford excitement and thrill. The real significance of Christmas as a time for worship is lost.

"For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord."

What a gift to this unappreciative and unworthy world! This was the very first Christmas and the Baby Jesus the very first Christmas gift, given to the world to die for it that we might live.

This was the first and the true Christmas Spirit, one of love and sacrifice, of a love so deep and noble that we as poor mortals can merely gasp and stand mute in humble gratitude and admiration. Let us all catch the true Christmas spirit in 1926 and make this a Christmas full of love for one another and let the Christmas bells fill the earth with the glad tidings and reverent praise:

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will toward men."

Life—the worth-while life must be shaped and copied after the one Divine Pattern—Christ. It must be fed and built on something else besides thrills and excitement, the spirit must be fed or else the real life will be extinguished as the candle blown out by the breeze.—C. M.

As the Christmas season approaches, let us pause in our mad whirl of preparations long enough to ask of Him, "Lord, how would'st Thou that we celebrate Thy Birthday?" Be still yet awhile and hear his answer: "Crucify thine own selfishness for the sake of others. As thou goset in and out amongst thy kin, give of thyself the best, that joys may abound. Spend not thy substance in riotous celebrations, but seek rather the poor and needy that their suffering may be lessened. Go out of thy way to deliver kindnesses, yea, even unto thine enemies. Forget not the aged, the lonely, the grief-stricken within thy reach. These things do if ye would serve me and know the joys of Christmas."—B. M.

CONCENTRATION.

"The bird of time has but a little way to flutter—
And the bird is on the wing."

—Omar Khayyam.

How many times have you and I said, "I have so much work that I just can't get any of it done"?—And this is true, but, as we both know, we should no find it so. The fault lies in our lack of concentratin. We study on one subject, thinking about how we're going to write an article for another class. Then while writing that article we are planning, as a rule, something we want to do for the week-end. If we would put our minds to one task at a time, surely we would never have too much work to do or enter the classroom with lessons poorly prepared.—L. F.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

Ponce de Leon and his quest of the Fountain of Youth, or the Knights of the Round Table, and their search for the Holy Grail, were no more eager than are men and women today in the eternal quest of something for nothing.

Imigrants flock to distant shores. Men from the North pour into Florida. Others wait for their "ships to come in" and the whole aim or desire of human beings seems to be to get something for nothing.

It is the law of nature that nothing grows when no seed have been planted. No hip wilsl ever "come in" unless someone is at the helm, unless someone is firing the engine. There are cases in which men have become wealthy by doing nothing, but some ancestor has done the work necessary or the wealth would not be forthcoming.

The immigrant believes that this is a land where riches can be had for the mere picking up, and under this impression, he journeys here. But, alas! he discovers that to earn he must produce.

The communists and "reds" have their own bitter, pet theory of getting something for nothing. These people would divide equally all the wealth of a community. In other words, the weak would gain as much from their efforts as the strong, who have to bear the burden of the labor of production.

There are no two ways about it; there must be work or there will not be wealth. "He also serves who only stands and waits." This quotation from Milton was never intended to convey the idea that a ship would come in without being launched.

Girls, remember these things when your examination papers are turned in.—A. L. G.

FARMVILLE SENDS DELEGATES TO MEETING

Among the three thousand delegates attending the Conference in Milwaukee December 28—January 1, will be the three representatives Farmville is proudly sending as her quota. Approximately twenty students will go from Virginia—ten girls and as many boy representatives. Rosalind Harrell, president of the Y. W. C. A., Alice Carter, vice-president, and Pearl Etheridge, chairman of Religious Meetings Committee, are our representatives. We have still further reason to be proud, in that Rosalind Harrell, of Farmville and Wilbur Simmons, of Washington and Lee, have been asked to serve as hostess and host of the Virginia delegation.

Perhaps we in school are asking—"Is this just another one of those endless, and usually meaningless conferences?" It is not. The Milwaukee Conference is a national affair, a combined experience of both Y. W. C. A.'s and Y. M. C. A.'s, and planned with a purposeful end in view. To share our best experiences and conventions as questions of national emportance has led to the calling of a National Student Conference. It will represent the best of the past, and something wholly new in conference programs. The chairman, Dr. A. Bruce Cary, has from all the accumulated experience of past conferences, constructed a program which may foreshadow a new day in national student thinking. Our representatives who go to Milwaukee, will have the opportunity of helping to create, and actually participate in this new experiment.

SENIORS ENTERTAIN LITTLE SISTERS

The Seniors entertained Miss Grenels, Miss Tabb, Mss Mary White Cox and their little sisters in the reception hall between ten and ten-thirty on Wednesday, December 15.

Miss Grenels was presented a cap and gown by the Seniors. Each little sister was given an amusing present from the Christmas tree by Eleanor Bennett, who made an excellent Santa Claus. A very enjoyable program was given.

MU OMEGA BANQUET

The Mu Omega Sorority held it's pledge banquet Saturday, December 11, in the Tea Room.

Christmas decorations were carried out for the entire place and perhaps for the first time. Santa Claus seemed to be on his way, midst of the holly and mistletoe.

The guests included Mrs. J. A. Davidson, Miss Myrtle Grenels, and Miss Alice Thomas.

R. M. W. C. girl to S. T. C. girl: "Are you troubled much with borrowing at Farmville?"

Dot Myers: "Yes, it seems that no one ever has anything I want."

MERRY? MERRY? MERRY? MERRY? CHRISTMAS? BELLS

We live and move, and have our being by bells at S. T. C. One sleeps, eats and in fact lives by bells and soon begins to wonder if she won't die by them too!

Poe's "Bells" are very vividly brought to mind and at S. T. C. in some marvelous and mystic way they each and every one roaring, clamoring, tinkling and jingling perform an important task.

Bells never consider one's feelings. They, without restraint, peal out merriment and joy, or terror and sorrow, regardless of the hour and one concerned.

What a gush of euphony, voluminously wells!
How it swells!
How it dwells!
On the Future! . . . .

That's the rising bell, a fine example displaying the chief characteristic of bells, unconsideration, and proclaiming the Future, another day.

Hear the mellow . . . . . bells
Golden bells!!
What a world of happiness their harmony foretells!

These gay and mirthful bells announce the meals and used to the mail delivery. One wonders of they will perform their task as gaily since the arrival of the mail boxes.

Then

Hear the tolling of the bells
Iron bells!
What a world of solemn thought their monody compels!

Behold! These are the endless bells that call all to classes. But all of them don't tell the same sad story. Listen to the . . . . Silver bells!

What a world of merriment their melody foretells!

Hurrah! A class is over, but dear, doomed student of fortune, don't get too carefree and gay—

Hear the loud alarum bells,
Brazen bells!
What a tale of terror, now their turbulency tells!

In a moaning and groaning tone these say—"A class—A test!" Oh! These never ending nerve racking ghouls. They haunt one all the long day until:

To the swinging and the ringing of the bells, bells, bells,
. . . . To the rhyming and the chiming of the bells!

Their exhausted victim passes blissfully into the greatest of all the gifts of the gods—sleep.

AMHERST COUNTY CLUB

The girls from Amherst County have organized an Amherst County Club. They have ten members, with Miss Mary Vaughan as the club advisor.

The officers for the year are:

President ..... Erma White
Vice-Pres. ..... Martha Parr
Sec.-Treas. ..... Elsie Story

Ann Palmer: "How do they get the Hampden-Sidney College boys clean after a football game?"

Clever: "Why, they have a scrub team, Ann."

LOST ROADS

Twelve times have brown and gold and red leaves fallen from their trees, since I discovered that to a prosiac person a lost road was only a road that led to a field where the crops were being gathered, or to a forest where the trees were being cut. In short a lost road led nowhere. I suppose this should be counted as a milestone in my pursuit of knowledge. I do not care to consider it in that light but rather look forward to forgetting it.

To me always a lost road will be one of enchantment that beckons and calls me away from the cares, tears, and disappointments which are found in the world of mortals; beckons to the land of happy memories, love, hope, quiet and peace.

I shall follow a lost road to the end one evening at twilight. And all shall be silent. The brown and gold and red leaves as they fall shall not whisper my secret; for I shall leave this world, just as the last rays of light fade from a gorgeous sunset. When the night comes I shall be gone, forever, to the end of a lost road.

TRAINS!

Peculiar thrills run up and down our spines at the mere mention of trains just at this season. Trains fascinate us—the crashing roar of the engine which almost bursts one's ear-drums, the long series of cars, and the sound of the shrill whistle! Nothing has more to do wth shaping our destiny than the trains which carry us away from our sheltering cloisters at S. T. C. to the land of pleasure and fancy—home! But you say that the fates have decreed against us! The trains are running all wrong and the schedules have been changed completely. Everybody is rising up in virturous indignation. The old table suited so many of us better. There is however, ample compensation in the change, for there are others who are pleased with the new schedule. Trains will never lose their popularity. As soon as exams are over, each of us will appear as a whirlwind of perfume and finery at the station with a flaring hat, a dorine and hat-bag to be carried to our destinations where we'll "Dance and sing, and make good cheer, for Christmas comes but once a year." Possibly you would like to see the new schedule so that you may know just when to appear at the station.

JES' BEFORE EXAMS

Homefolks call me brilliant; say I always do my part,
Teachers call me average, but classmates call me smart.
Mighty glad I ain't so slow, I'd rather be too fast
And learn to lead and do things first, I'd hate to do 'em last.
I love to shock some people so I express my views.
I hate to see such false ideals they take on for virtues.
Most all the time the whole year round
There is nothing shy about me,
But jes' before Exams I'm as skeered as I can be.

DADDY JARMAN'S IDEAL FAMILY

The modern home has been severely criticised from almost every point of view. "It fails in the spiritual life—lacks the religious atmosphere, lacks brotherly love and consideration of one for the other. It fails in material life—lacks proper supervision of health and diet. It lacks happiness; its members seek pleasure elsewhere."

These criticisms are in no wise true of the family life at Farmville State Teachers College. The Alma Mater spares no time nor necessary expense in providing food for spiritual life. Religious services are held daily and at such times that the youngest as well as the oldest member of the family may attend. And surely brotherly love, sisterly love and consideration for each other abounds, or what could cause the big sister—dear Senora, the image of her mother, almost a grown lady now—to be so tender and painstaking with the little ones. Dear Little Ones—twins they are, cute little Freshie and Bowman. No wonder they may have whatever they wish even though it be the Prize Book. Healthy and strong they are, too, because "Daddy Jarman" insists that they be "reared by the book." They're his favorites, we believe, but we don't mind. Everybody is just crazy over the babies even dear little spoiled Sophie. She had been such a pet last year, and now her nose has been knocked out of joint and back again by twins.

Just to show you that Sophie is not lacking in sisterly love and consideration for the mother, I will say that she offered to stay in one whole afternoon when nurse was away to play with the babies. She taught them to turn somersault, to crow like the cock, to fly like the bird, to climb like the monkey. She dressed them up in caps, fed them candy and taught them lots of things that she had learned in the kindergarten. I suspect Sophie will be a teacher some day, she is so quick to catch on to things.

Of course, independent Junior must come last—only they're twins, a little girl and a little boy. We call the little girl Junior because she is so independent and has such a jovial disposition just like her Daddy Jarman. The little boy is such a corking fine fellow we have nicknamed him "My Cork." These children are no bother at all, they just play by themselves and get what they want.

So it's no wonder that the Matre is still happy with such a family. Anyone would be happy and proud with dignified thoughtful Senora, independent Junior and My Cork, quick witted Sophie, and healthy babies, "reared by the book," and the Christmas season almost here. From the youngest to the oldest, they have the real Christmas spirit which makes one say,

"Oh what a blessing it would be,
If Santa could be trained at S. T. C.
We'd have all holidays—d'ye hear?—
And Christmas throughout the whole year."

Bessie M. Mottley

Remember the day, the day she said,
"Now Get This!"
Remember? Remember she said just why and how it happened.
Remember? Remember I listened fairly well.
I trusted too much to my memory
And I thought that I should never forget,
But I forgot to Remember!

NUTS AND RAISINS

Johnny: "Say, Jimmy, do you believe in the devil?"

Jimmy: "Naw! It's your Daddy, just like Santa Claus.

To Freshmen: Exams! cheer up, this is why you think there ain't no Santa Claus.

S. T. C. Freshman: The next time we pass the campus, please show it to me, 'cause I want to see where Sara Cross is always put.

Royall Beckham (rising from behind the sofa) "O-o-o-h! I saw you kiss Evelyn.

Waller Sanford (embarrassed) "Er —Oh! Here's a quarter, my boy."

Royall: "Here's fifteen cents change, one price to all; that's the way I do business."

Dr. Walmsley (speaking of girls) "Are there any more of the clinging vines?"

Mildred Lohr: "Oh! Yes, some of them use that method quite well."

Frances Walmsley: "Say, father, did you go to Sunday School when you were a boy?"

Dr. Walmsley: "Yes, regularly. Never missed a Sunday."

Frances: "Well, I'll bet it won't do me any good either."

Bob Wescott: "My love for you, Crutie, is making me mad—Mad—MAD!"

Crutie (cautiously): "Sh! Keep quiet! It affects grandfather the same way."

Sis Jordan says she can't tell a petting party from a horse race; 'cause its neck to neck either way.

"Red": "What kind of work does your fiancee do?"

Mebane: "He puts his arms around my neck and presses and causes strong thrills to run up and down my spine."

"Red": "Oh, I see. He's a chiropractor."

Anna Jones: "Louise, do you ever think of the future?"

Louise Marshall: "I can't, Anna, it's Jimmy's birthday, and I must think of the present."

Mary Fleet (giving oral description in Miss Davis' English class): "Suppose we should see a bare man walking across the campus—"

Miss Davis (interrupting): "Miss Fleet, be careful not to select words which bring to mind ludicrous images."

Mary (whispering to girl next to her): "What is ludicrous about that?"

Alice Wiley (at library desk) "Miss MacDonald, can I get "Inside the Cup?"

IF

(With apologies to Rudyard Kipling)

If you can bear to spend all day preparing
To stand a test, and study 'till you're frail,
And laugh, as if you were not even caring
When you, like many others, do a fail;
If you can learn the "hows" and "whys" and "wherefores"
And store them all away within your brain
And not mix them with the "nots" and "therefores"
And still keep happy, healthy, whole and sane;

If you can do all this, and not go crazy,
And not lose all the sense you've ever had,
If you can learn to rest, and not get lazy,
And learn to fail at times, and not be sad,
If you can keep on working at this same rate
And work—and work—and then do more of same,
Some day you'll have a very happy fate,
When you can write B. S. after your name.

Ellen Harriet Smith

THE "CHARGE" OF THE "LIGHT" BRIGADE

(Why some gentlemen do not prefer blondes)

One dollar, two dollars,
Three dollars onward;
Rising with leaps and bounds
Up to six hundred.
Oh! how the "Light" Brigade
Charge for their meals!" he said;
"Only a millionaire
Can spend six hundred!"

Cheer for the "Light Brigade!
Was there a girl dismay'd?
Not tho' the boy thought
Someone had blundered.
His not to make reply,
His not to reason why,
His but to pay, and cry
In the dark hours of night—
Over six hundred.

Bright lights to right of them,
Bright lights to left of them,
Bright lights in front of them
Sparkled and glittered;
Glared at by every eye
Boldly they danced on by;
All the night's revelry
Costing six hundred.

When can their glory fade?
O! the wild charge they made!
While the men wondered.
Honor their flaxen braid!
Honor the "Light" Brigade!
Good-by, six hundred!

QUERIES AND QUEER REPLIES

What is more annoying to Bessie Meade Riddle than a cold in the head?
Lock-jaw.

Frances Taylor: "Miss Graham, should one sleep on the back or on the side?"

Miss Graham: "Try to sleep all over at the same time, Frances."

Curious: "When does "Mackasey" think of getting married?"

Phyllis: "Always."

Why do they use high beds in the Infimary?

So Miss McKee can hear the girls when they jump out.

WED.—THE SHAMROCK HANDICAP a special production from a story by Peter B. Kyne. One of the most thrilling race track stories ever brought to the screen. It is enacted by an excellent star cast and is the type of picture that will appeal to young and old. Also Aesop Fable. Ma. at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—Jackie Coogan in OLD CLOTHES a special production. Here's Jackie Coogan who rose from rags to riches, back again with the sidewalks of New York as his home. You will see him as best man in the funniest wedding that ever happened. Also 'Bill Grimms Progress'. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

FRI. & SAT.—Rudolph Valentino with Vilma Banky in THE SON OF THE SHEIK. This is the last picture that Valentino made and it is the sequel to "The Sheik". This is a glorious romance. With his arms about her, his lips caressing hers, the music of his voice in her ears—these were her life. Strangers, yet they loved. For lovers of romance, who like thrills blanded with action and beauty wedded to colorful climaxes—here is supreme entertainment. Here s a son of the hseik who is a greater master than was his father. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock each day. Matinee prices are cheaper than night prices. Please come on Friday to avoid crowding Saturday

MON.—MAtt Moore, Zasu Pitts and Kathryn Perry in EARLY TO WED. The story of the splurge of a newly married couple bluffing their way thru society. A special production. He was a young husband with a small income and an extravagant wife. They wanted to be society folks—anyway the wife did. How did they do it? Ah! that's the story. Also Pathe News. Mat. at 4.

TUES.—Olive Borden and Ralph Ince in YELLOW FINGERS, a special production from Gene Wright's novel of adventure in the South Seas. The story of a beautiful half-caste girl who had been reared to believe she was white. Olive Borden is a beautiful star and this is a picture above the average. Don't miss it! Also good comedy.

S. T. C. girls admission prices—Friday and Saturday 35c Thurs. 25c; all other shows 20c, if tickets are bought at college.

THE ROTUNDA

POE

Back the Varsity To Victory!

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1927 Number 13

FOLLOWING RULES SHOW QUALITIES OF A GOOD SPORT

It has been said that women are not good sports. Let's show everyone who comes to our games that S. T. C. has the best sports in the State. We can do this by remembering the points that are given:

	DOES	DOES NOT
1.	Plays fair at all times.	Does not cheat
2.	Plays hard to the end.	Does not quit. Is not "yellow."
3.	Keeps his head.	Does not lose his temper though wronged
4.	Plays for the joy of playing and success of the team.	Does not play to the grandstand.
5.	Is a good team worker.	Does not abuse his body
6.	Keeps training rules	Does not shirk.
7	Obeys order of coach or captain.
8.	Does his best in all school work.	Does not neglect his studies.
9.	Backs his team in every honest way, but	Does not take technical advantages. Never blames official for defeat.
10.	Always gives his opponents a square deal.	Does not "crab." Does not "kick."
11.	Is respectful to officials. Accepts adverse decisions graciously. Expects officials to enforce rules.	Does not complain.
	When he Loses
12.	Congratulates the winner. Gives his opponent full credit under most trying circumtsances Learns to correct his faults through his failures.	Does not show his disappointment. Is not a "sorehead" Does not "alibi." Does not make excuses.
	When he Wins
13.	Is generous. Is modest. Is considerate.	Does not boast. Does not crow Does not rub it in.
	At All Times
14.	Is true to his highest ideals.	Does nothing unworthy of a gentleman and 100 per cent American.

FORMER S. T. C. STUDENT GIVES PIANO RECITAL

Virginia Fore, a former S. T. C., student and a Peabody graduate delightfully entertained a large audience in the auditorium Friday night. It is not often that the students have an opportunity to hear such an excellent instrumental concert and all those who attended would like to thank Miss Fore in person for her kindness in giving them the concert—since they can't, the Rotunda takes this opportunity to express their thanks.

RECREATION BELL AT TEN O'CLOCK

An additional fifteen minutes added to our recreation period helps a great deal. After studying intensely for two hours and a half, it is a relief to be able to do almost as we please for thirty minutes before the final bell for darknesss and silence. Whether or not we are permitted to continue this privilege is left with us, and if we use the proper discretion this experiment will prove successful. We must remember, however, to begin our study hour promptly at seven-thirty, so that we will have completed our preparations by ten o'clock. And, too, we must remember that being too noisy or boisterous during those thirty minutes might cause a failure of this experiment. Let's see if we can't make this privilege a permanent one.

WE WELCOME THE NEW GIRLS HERE

We are always glad to see more of us! And we wish all of us to be satisfied and welcome, especially our "new girls." We want you to take our welcome and then just become "old girls" and love our school and all that concerns it just as each of us does. Maybe due to the rush to begin things again, you, the new arrivals, have not received the welcome that we have wished to convey to you. So please receive our welcome right here, and try to welcome us just one-half as much as we're glad to see you!

The following girls are welcomed as new students this term:

Virginia P. Pierce, Arvonia, Va.
Mary Sykes, Harrellsville, N. C.
Elizabeth Stiff, Chester, Va.
Virginia Smith, Frankln, Va.
Edith Eley, Chuckatuck, Va.
Mary Sue Parker, Holland, Va.
Lena C. Simpson, Chatham, Va.
Margaret Ferguson, Danville, Va.
Grace Dawson, Pampln, Va.
Ethel Rhodes, Bryant, Va.
Emily P. Gale, Smithfield, Va.
Mary Lange, Churchville, Va.
Groveen Pittman, Luray, Va.
Laura Mottley, Amelia, Va.
Ruby Johnson, Ivor, Va.
Kathleen Woodson, Concord, Va.

STUDENT CONFERENCE IN MILWAUKEE DEC. 28--JAN. 1

Farmville State Teachers College Sends Three Representatives

Every four years, members of the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. which compose the Council of Christian Associations, meet to discuss their common problems. This year the conference met in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Three thousand students, representing colleges and universities of all states in the United State, of which seventy-five were Negroes and one hundred and fifty foreign students, held a four-day conference in the Milwaukee Auditorium. Despite the zero weather and holiday time, it was undoubtedly a great success.

The general theme of the Conference was "What Resources has Jesus for Life in Our World?" Dr. Bruce A. Curry, chairman of the Conference; Mr. G. A. Collins, who was the principal speaker of our Cabinet Training Council here last spring; Mr. G. A. Studdert-Kennedy of England; Mr. Kirby Page, well-known pacifist; Dr. Johnson, Negro Baptist minister of Chicago; and Mr. Charles W. Gilkey of Chicago, were among the speakers who stimulated our thinking during those days.

In all our discussions, we tried to have in mind the life of Jesus Christ as our fundamental basis. The life of Jesus was compared to a sphere—always unified and comprehensive and whole, reviewed from any angle. They are the religious, the the ethical, and the social sides, all of which are embraced by inexhaustible love. It was impressed that this same thing is true of us as human beings, although in no sense have we approached perfection. A true definition of a Christian is hard to find, but one may be religious and still be quite human,—for what sort of religion is it that can not be actually lived?

Christ lived a life of love and service to all. Do our friends think we live "up" to Christ's life or do we "live" Christ's life?

VIRGINIA DELEGATION AT MILWAUKEE MEET

The Virginia delegation was composed of the following:

Delegation Leaders: Hostess—Miss Rosalind Harrel, State Teachers College, Farmville; Host—Mr. Allen Moger, Randolph Macon College, Ashland; Railroad Representative—Mr. C. A. Overton.

Alexandria Seminary—Gilbert Appelhof, Detroit, Mich.

State Teachers College, Farmville—Alice Carter, Halifax; Pearl Etheridge, Portsmouth; Rosalind Harrell, Norfolk.

Randolph Macon College—Margaret Batten.

William and Mary College—Elizabeth Lam, Portsmouth; Lawrence I'Anson, Portsmouth; George Hunt, Richmond.

VARSITY PLAYS GAME WITH FREDERICKSBURG SATURDAY

PEP

"Your pep! Your pep! You've got it! Now keep it! Dog-gone it! Don't lose it! Your pep! Your pep!"

Who hasn't heard it? Who doesn't know it? It's one of our "yells." The time is fast approaching when we will need to know it—and many more besides. And songs! We heard Miss Graham inform us, not many days ago, that there's to be a game the 15th with Fredericksburg! Let's show her and the team that we can beat anybody singing—that we can beat anybody "yellin' "!

What thoughts go through your minds when we hear the notice read in the dining room:

"Varsity basketball practice tonight, immediately after prayers." De we think at all? Does it enter our winds that that ':'varsity" is being called to make themselves capable of fighting for our school? Well—they are! They are fighting for us—for everyone of us! How can we show them our appreciation? By backing our team! Talk about the game! Talk about the team! Show our team you're back of them! Come to the game! Let's all be there 100 per cent strong! Get some school spirit and when the time comes—yell!!

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

The varsity basketball schedule has been completed and stands as follows:

January 15—Fredericksburg here
February 5—Radford ..... here
February 11—Fredericksb'g. there
February 26—Radford ..... there
March 4—Harrisonburg .... here
March 12—Harrisonburg .... there

WE ARE PROUD OF OUR DELEGATES

The girls who went to Milwaukee have all come back with thanks to the Student Body for making it possible for them to go. This time we want to turn those thanks around. These girls came back with such glowing reports, they brought us such valuable thoughts and inspiratons that the Student Body wants to thank them for bringing us a part of the conference. It's very worthwhile to send delegates to a conference if they return with the spirit and message of the conference for each of us, quite often we fail to feel the benefit that we might have felt, so we wish to express our appreciation to these girls for what they brought us. It was worth all the money we spent to feel that these girls gained, and gave something to scuh a splendid group of people, as were reported in Milwaukee. We're glad you had a good time!

First of Basketball Games Will Be Played on Home Floor.

Happy New Year, girls! We are going to start the new year off with a treat, a basketball game. Those who were here last year know what that means in the life here at S. T. C. We are wonderfully proud of our Varsity and we want a chance to show them that the whole student body is behind them. The first game of the season is to be played on our floor Saturday night, January 15th, against Fredericksburg.

The team is only a part of our student body so there is a big part for the rest of us to play. Anyone who has ever taken part n a game of any kind knows the importance of the cheering squad. The game is played, but is much more enjoyable if there is a good cheering sideline. This is our part in making our games successful. We do not want noise—we want organized support! How can we do this? Come to cheer practice each nighet after prayers or after chapel, or whenever they may be called and learn the yells and songs so we can do away with all the printed song sheets. These will be given you at practice, so learn the words and the Fredericksburg girls and our visitors won't think we are trying to flag them down with white flags. We want good "peppy" yells given distinctly, so come out to practice—get the spirit and get into the swing!

"RED" FOSTER IS ELECTED CHEER LEADER

"Red" Foster was elected cheer leader for the school at a student body meeting which was held last Friday. "Red" has shown the school what she can do in this line at the various interclass games for she was cheer leader for the Sophomore class. With the support of the student body it is evident that the cheering section will not be lacking.

THE VIRGINIA CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Due to the fact that Grace Chambers, president of the Virginia Club did not return this term, at the last December meeting the club elected a new president. Bessie Meade Riddle was elected to fill the office. This left the office of secretary vacant, and Betty Sue Jernigan was elected secretary.

The club greatly regret the fact that they have lost not only a good president but a valuable member when Grace left. However, they hope to do some very valuable work in the next two terms.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

Shall the year 1927 be one of achievements and fulfillment of hopes or shall it be one that we look back upon and think of as the time we wasted and the opportunities we lost?

It would be very profitable to each of us if we would stop at the beginning of the year and take inventory of ourselves. Every successful business concern takes inventory to find out what stock they have on hand, what they have accomplished the past year and what they need to complete their stock and improve it for the coming year. Human beings should likewise pause long enough to check upon their actions and ambitions.

Resolutions are easy to make and easy to break, and broken resolutions tend to weaken rather than strengthen character. In the one minute that it takes to change the year 1926 into 1927 a person's outlook on life may also be changed. The vital part of resolutions is carrying them out. If we could stop talking about what we are going to do, and take that time to do it, our life would be happier and more beneficial to others.

"Let us, then be up and doing
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing
Learn to labor and to wait."

—Longfellow

EXAMINATIONS.

A month ago when that word was mentioned there immediately was discussion, excitement, and always a certain amount of doubt concerning the ultimate value of the new experiment. There was no visible disagreeing—but, in the minds of each of us there was a silent and waiting question that only the actual experiment would answer satisfactorily. Would the response be the desired one—would the results justify the worry, the undue excitement, the change of routine, or would the actual test find us four-square in our attitude? A month ago we were wondering. .today we know.

Even making allowances for the newness of it all; for the attending of old systems and the beginning of a new, the readjustment of both teachers and students, we feel the happiest kind of pride in the results. When the actual exams began, there was a cheerfulness and business-like manner mantled about everyone that resembled that of a veteran exam-taker rather than a first-yearer! There was no desperate case of midnight study, nervous breakdowns, etc.—that we had mentally conjured. There was calm, and system, and sensibleness. There has been a sportsman-like acceptance of their results as evidenced in grades. All in all, the bug-a-bear of examinations, even with first year weaknesses, has proved no nightmare of blunders, of wrong attitudes of petulance here.

An excellent beginning—and a rather different outlook on our horizon of next-year examinations.

GEOGRAPHY AS IT IS AND HOW TO TEACH IT

Geography teachers all over the country are all "het up" over this subject and they are out to find the solution. They are just naturally certain that Geography is the very best subject in the curriculum and they are out to prove it. "Geography must be put back on the map" is their one New Year's resolution.

At least this is how it struck one who happened in on some of the Geography meetings at Philadelphia during Christmas week. The Geography people represented only one section of the American Association for the Advancemnt of Science which met at that time. But these same Geography teachers surely made their presence felt. Comfortably billeted in the famous Benjamin Franklin Hotel they held meetings, listened to reports and had conferences and discussions galore on what to teach in Geography and how to teach it.

All of this is merely introduction. The real point for us is that we were there; S. T. C. was on the program in the person of the head of our Geography Department, Miss Myrtle Grenels. Her paper was on the professionalizing of subject matter, illustrated by the British Isles. Two other papers were presented at the same time and in the discusson that followed, taken part in by some of the outstanding Geographers of the country, it was readily apparent that neither of the other papers elicited such favorable comment as that by Miss Grenels.

We were so proud of it that we simply had to "burst into print."

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

Isn't it funny how just because the calendar calls the day, January 1, all of us "resolute" something? We never even let time improve us for we commit the same error each year. There's only one consolation, which is that resolutions are original and have individual characteristics just as we school girls, county and training school teachers do! These desires vary for each person makes different plans to heap up too high on Father Time. But the funniest thing happened this year! I decided year before last (as a resolution) that I'd stop doing silly things like making resolutions, just excuses to do better in the next lap of time. So last year still abiding by that decision I refrained. Honest, I did. But according to the "New Year Law" I broke down, broke the resolution and "resoluted." And I made the funniest resolution! I thought it was all my own. I love things all my own. I kept it a secret with myself, not even telling my roommates. Soon I went to class; I went to chapel; I went everywhere. Now how do you suppose everybody had found out my resolution? I felt so badly. I was "mad as fire." You know I had resolved to 'get down and study." Now everybody knew my resolution, even my teacher. Now there's something worrying me dreadfully. That is, must I break that resolution? I do have one little idea, though. As I didn't tell anyone I won't let people know that it was originally my idea. I'm going to pretend like I didn't make that resolution. Gee, I wonder what I'll think of all this in June! Oh, well next year's coming and with it comes New Year!

THE FIREPLACE

People's ideas of home vary a great deal, but one thing on which all people will agree is that the fireplace is the center of the home. During the past two weeks we have had a glorious vacation—home for Christmas—but I'll wager nothing was more enjoyed than the family chats around the open fire. We hated to leave and come back to our adopted home for the next term but we were greeted with such a surprise that we forgot our troubles. When we opened the front door of the reception hall we each one got a sure enough thrill for there in our fireplace was a glowing coal fire. We dropped our hat boxes and rushed over to find it really a glowing cold fire. Mrs. Blanton told us it was just for effect, but the effect is wonderful, and gives our reception hall a homey look that nothing else could. One glance at the burning red coals and the shivers leave us for a warm comfortable feeling.

Dr. Jarman, and Miss Mary, we are always having to say, thank you for something you have given us, but of all our presents we like this Christmas present of warmth and beauty best. Thank you.

Theo Maben: "May I hold your hand?"

Anne Deffenbaugh: "Well, I suppose we'll have to start with the preliminaries."

SELECTIONS FROM MODERN POETRY

AN ARAB LOVE SONG

The hunched camels of the night
Trouble the bright
And silver waters of the moon.
The maiden of the morn will soon
Through Heaven stray and sing,
Star gathering.

Now while the dark about our love
is strewn,
Light of my dark, blood of my Heart,
O come!
And night will catch her breath up,
and be dunmb.

Leave thy father, leave thy mother
And thy brother;
Leave the black tents of thy tribe
apart!
Am I not thy father and thy brother,
And thy mother?
And thou—what needest with thy tribe' black tents
Who hast the red pavillion of my heart?

—Francis Thompson

SONG
From the new British Poetry

I was so chill and overworn, and sad,
To be a lady was the only joy I had.
I walked the street as silent as a mouse,
Buying fine clothes, and fittings for the house.

But since I saw my love
I wear a simple dress
And happily I move
Forgetting weariness.

—Anna Wickham

THE GREY SQUIRREL

Like a small grey coffee-pot,
sits the squirrel.
He is not all he should be,

kills by dozens
trees, and eats
his red-brown cousins.

The keeper, on the other hand
who shot him, is a Christian, and

loves his enemies,
which shows
the squirrel was not one of those.

—Humbert Wolfe

SONG

She comes not when noon is on the roses—
Too bright is Day
She comes not to the soul till it reposes
From work and play.

But when Night is on the hills, and the great voices
Roll in from sea,
By starlight, by candlelight and dreamlight
She comes to me.

—Herbert Trench

THE GIRLS THAT DID NOT RETURN TO SCHOOL

Christmas, being over, this large family here has trouped back to start work, study and play again. We all hated to leave home, but secretly we were glad to get back. Some of this family were not as fortunate as others and were unable to return. The majority of these have graduated and ended their work here with the last quarter. The girls who did not return are as follows:

Mary Banks
Irene Batter
Catherine Branch
Mary Bridgers
Jessie Bennett
Eleanor Bennett
Mary Booker
Grace Chambers
Jeanette Colodne
Nancy Cole
Frances Dixon
Mary Ellen Ellington
Louise Garnett
Beulah Jarvis
Mildred King
Elizabeth Martin
Mary Rawls
Elizabeth Robinson
Edith Solt
Sylvia Siegel
Ruth Taylor
Cornelia McIntyre
Alice Ryland
Edmonia Nellie Ware

ELEANOR BENNETT

Although Eleanor was a member of our student body for only two years she made a place in our hearts that no one else can possibly fill.

We could depend upon Eleanor to pep us up and bring smiles to our faces when we had about given up hope of ever smiling again.

Along with that memorable voice went an attractive and pleasing personality, and an accommodating nature that is seldom found all in one person.

You will be missed a great deal, Eleanor, and your place will always be waiting for you. We just naturally have to be selfish sometimes and this time we do wish she would get her degree in June rather than at Christmas time.

MISS TABB HONORED

The American Association of Collegiate Registrars will meet in Atlanta in April of this year. Among committees appointed by the President of the Association (the Registrar of the Univertsiy of Minnesota) there is one which consists of the Registrars of Columbia University, University of Maine, University of Manitoba, University of Kentucky, and the State Teachers College of Farmville, Va.; our Registrar, Miss Tabb, being the only College Registrar on this committee of large universities.

We are getting into "high" company.

CROWNED

You came to me bearing bright roses,
Red like the wine of your heart;
You twisted them into a garland
To set me aside from the mart,
Red roses to crown me your lover,
And I walked aureoled and apart.

Enslaved and encircled, I bore it,
Proud token of my gift to you,
The petals waned paler, and shriveled
And dropped; and the thorns started through.
Bitter thorns to proclaim me your lover,
A diadem woven with me.

—Amy Lowell

AN APPRECIATION OF THE NEW DORMITORY

The students at S. T. C., especially the girls who are prospective occupants, wish to thank Dr. Jarman and Miss Mary for the attractive new dormitory which is nearing completion.

It seems such a short time ago when this building was merely "Lover's Lane" that we can hardly realize how it arose almost overnight. Last year at this time it was a vague dream and now it is a reality.

There are such things as New Year's resolutions; there must be New Year's actions, for no year, no day, no hour can pass which does not carry with it records of some deeds of ours. Why not let some of these New Year actions find us S. T. C. girls in reality a well as in names? One of the very best ways to do this is to work for and win a College Monogram. Then when another New Year chases Father Time into obscurity again, our list of achievements may be greater and better:

"I have won my monogram."

KRONIC KRACKS FROM KUTE KOLLEGE KIDS

THE DANCE OF LIFE

Lights a'glow now,
Lights are low now,
Dancers laugh and sing;
Music sweet
Guides our feet,
Little bells softly ring.

Now lights blaze,
A deadly craze
Grips and holds us fast;
Shivers and flings
From unseen wings
A passion that will not last.

Then off we creep
To lingering sleep,
Worn and sated with mirth;
But happy, content,
Though our hours are spent,
Eager again for rebirth.

IMPRESSIONS OF THAT CHRISTMAS VACATION

Finishing exams—packing—excitement—Christmas carols—getting the tickets—talking—good-bys— leaving —the dirty trip home—home at last. —Seeing everybody—kissing the folks —good food.—"How well she is looking"—the old sights—things different and changed—the boy friends and the Boy Friend—the dates—the dances—the new evening dress.

Christmas Day—Santa Claus——presents delivered — Christmas cheer. —The Christmas tree—the turkey—the mistletoe—the visits—the automobile rides—more dates—more dances—parties—card parties—teas—much food—no sleep—talks with the girl friends—tales about hard life at school—reasons and excuses for getting fat.

The night at home before you leave —promising to study—promising to write——the train rolls in—the great crowd—waving of handkerchiefs—finding seats—girls again—much talking—endless tales of parties, boys and new conquests—showing of the Christmas presents—eating Christmas candy—everybody sleepy—speculation of how school will be—how long it is before June—Burkeville—scrambling for hats, coats and bags—conductor calling "Farmville"—getting off—"Cousin Tommy"—little negro boys with suit cases—the climb up the hill—the lights of S T. C.—school again—"Hi"—"Have a good time?"—"Glad to see you"—"Grand"—your room—bare and cold —your roommates—what joy—much hugging and kissing.

Talk—and talk—on, on into the night.

AT THE COMEDY

Last night, in snowy gown and glove,
I saw you watch the play
Where each mock hero won his love
In the old unlifelike way.

(And, oh, were life their little scene
Where love so smoothly ran,
How different, Dear, this world had been Since this old world began!)

For you, who saw them gayly win
Both hand and heart away,
Knew well where dwelt the mockery in
That foolish little play.

("If love were all—if love were all,"
The viols sobbed and cried,
"Then love were best whate'er befall"
Low, low, the flutes replied.)

And you last night, did you forget,
So far from me, so near?
For watching there your eyes were wet
With just an idle tear!

(And down the great dark curtain fell
Upon their foolish play:
But you and I knew—Oh, too well!—
Life went another way!)

—Arthur Stringer

LET IT BE FORGOTTEN

Let it be forgotten, as a flower is forgotten,
Forgotten as a fire that once was singing gold,
Let it be forgotten ever and ever,
Time is a kind friend, he will make us old.

If anyone asks, say it was forgotten
Long and long ago,
As a flower, as a fire, as a hushed footfall
In a long forgotten snow.

—Sara Teasdale

MY LOVER HAS GONE

My lover has gone! Ah—it's good that I
Know there is another standing by,
Waiting for his chance to come and woo. . . .
And should he leave there are others too!

Always there are others, when one departs,
Others to offer me their love, their hearts!
But what matters that? For ah, you know,
My heart was broken long ago!

"WHEN I WAS ONE AND TWENTY."

When I was one-and-twenty
I heard a wise man say,
"Give crowns and pounds and guineas
But not your heart away;
Give pearls away and rubies
But keep your fancy free."
But I was one-and-twenty,
No use to talk to me.

When I was one-and-twenty
I heard him say again,
"The heart out of the bosom
Was never given in vain;
'Tis paid with sighs a-plenty
And sold for endless rue."
And I am two-and-twenty,
And oh, 'tis true, 'tis true.

—Alfred Housman

IDEALISTS

BUT DON'T FORGET

Forget the slander you have heard,
Forget the hasty unkind word,
Forget the quarrel and the cause,
Forget the whole affair because
Forgetting is the only way.
Forget the storm of yesterday,
Forget the chop whose sour face
Forgets to smile in every place.
Forget to ever get the blues,

Radio Cakes

A young bride asked her husband to copy a recipe being broadcast over the radio. There were two stations of the same wave length broadcasting at once. One was broadcasting morning exercises, and the other the recipe. This is what the husband took down:

"Hand on hips—place one cup of flour on the shoulders—raise knees —depress toes and mix thoroughly in one-half cup of milk—repeat six times—inhale one-half teaspoonful of baking powder—lower the legs and mash two hard-boiled eggs in a seive —exhale—breathe naturally and sift in a bowl—lie flat on the floor and roll the white of an egg until it comes to a boil—in ten minutes remove from the fire and rub briskly with a rough towel—breathe naturally—dress in warm flannels and serve with soup."

Knock: "D'ja ever notice how bow-legged Jack is?"

Kneed: "Aw, he ain't bow-legged; he just had curvature of the spine and it settled in his legs!"

MON.—Adolph Menjou, Bessie Love and Greta Nissen in "THE KING ON MAIN STREET". A Paramount picture and a special production. Some of the scenes in this picture are in beautiful colors. The love-comedy of a king who lost his heart on Main Street—and almost lost his throne. Here we have laughter and heart-tug linked in a really great picture! Also Pathe News. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

TUES.—Jack Holt and Billie Dove in "THE ANCIENT HIGHWAY," A special Paramount picture from the novel by James Oliver Curwood. A rousing outdoor romance of the kind that has made Curwood famous. Keyed high with action, struggle, suspense, love interest and hair-raising escapes. Backgrounded against the colorful Canadian lumber camps. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

WED.—Warner Baxter, Bessie Love and Raymond Hatton in "A SON OF HIS FATHER." A special Paramount picture from the novel by Harold Bell Wright. The latest and greatest novel by the most widely read author in the world. A vigorous stirring story of the west. Filmed by the same company that gave you the "Covered Wagon." Also Aesop. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

THURS.—Norman Kerry and Patsy Ruth Miller in the big special production "LORRAINE OF THE LIONS." Like the jungle child she was, she knew no laws, her shameless love is a genuine flaunting of society's moral code. It is strange, unusual and most dramatic love story ever unfolded. Be sure to see this one. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

FRI. & SAT.—Lon Chaney in "THE ROAD TO MANDALAY" a big special production. Thi iss a thrilling, throbbing romance of Singapore, the mysterious! Against a glamorous, colorful Oriental setting. It is the powerful tale of the derlict who wins redemption in one brief, blazing moment of drama! Here is your chance to see Lon Chaney in a role that has set the whole world talking. It is his greatest, his most surprising film appearance! Please come Friday. There will be a matinee Friday at 4 o'clock. Good comedy shown with this picture.

THE ROTUNDA

"PRINCE CHAP" FRIDAY NIGHT

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1927 NUMBER 14

"THE PRINCE CHAP" TO BE GIVEN BY DRAMATIC CLUB

First Play of Season Will be Given Friday Night in the Auditorium

The Dramatic Club will present its first play of the year which is "The Prince Chap" in the auditorium Friday night, January 21.

The cast, which was carefully selected by Miss Wheeler who is directing the play, has been practicing since some time before the holidays and is well trained, to present to the school one of the most delightful plays that could be given. Throughout the play there is pathos, humor, romance and other qualities which go to make up a successful play.

It is a well-known fact, learned from past experience, that the Dramatic Club plays are popular and are always given before a full house. For this reason it is wise to reserve the seats at the nearest possible date in order to avoid the disappointment of failing to secure a good one.

The cast is as follows:

William Peyton, American sculptor, —Louise Brewer

Jack Rodney, Earl of Huntington, Lucy Haile Overbey

Marcus Runyon, Peyton's servant, Louise McCormick

Artists in studio building: Ballington —Mabel Hayes

Yadder, —Virginia Raine

Fritz, —Alice Wiley

Truckman, —Evelyn Dulaney

Claudia, in Act I., —Anne Cocks

Claudia, in Acts II. and III., —Frances Sale

Mrs. Arrington, Claudia's mother, —Etta Marshall

Phoebe Puckers, maid of all work, —Mabel Fitzpatrick

Alice Travers, Peyton's fiance, —Mebane Hunt

ADVISORY BOARD AND CABINET HOLD JOINT MEET

The Advisory Board of the Y. W. C. A. invited the Cabinet to meet with them at their regular meeting last week. Miss Mary P. Jones presided and Doctor Walmsley led devotionals. The joint meeting was a stimulating and an interesting one. Various members of the Cabinet made reports on their December work, and the Board was very interested in the work done. The Cabinet girls gained an insight into their advisor's work and the advisors learned quite a bit about the girls' general work from the meeting. It is hoped that several of such joint meetings may be held during a year.

HONORED VISITORS OF TEACHERS COLLEGES

Did anyone ever see such a clean school? Even the clock's face was washed! What is all this due to? Why, visitors, of course. They arrived Friday evening in time for supper and stayed until Saturday night. Miss Mary held a reception in the Student Building Lounge for them Saturday morning after chapel, so they could become acquainted with our Faculty and Home Department. The following were our visitors: from Harrisonburg,

Mr. Duke, President
Mrs. Varner, Dean
Dr. Gifford, Registrar

from Fredericksburg:

Dr. Chandler, President
Mrs. Bushnell, Dean
Mr. Tyner, Registrar

from Radford:

Dr. McConnell, President
Miss Moffit, Dean
Mr. Whitt, Registrar
Mrs. Whitt
Mr. McConnell
Miss Ellis.

We hope they enjoyed visiting us as much as we enjoyed having them.

STATE COOPERATIVE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

Dr. Jarman and Miss Stubbs motored to Richmond Thursday and attended the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of "The State Cooperative Educational Association." This association has under its direction nearly 1,000 citizen organizations such as: Parent-Teachers Association, Community Leagues, and Mother Leagues in this state. It is through this association that these organizations make the schools, the community center, and through their united efforts they are working for the improvement of all community conditions.

The main topic of discussion was the work of the different community organizations in the state, and how their efforts could be even greater than they have been during the past year.

The Board of Directors adopted a very lengthy program for the coming year which deals partly with placing in the curriculum of schools studies which will further the movement put on by the Association for the betterment of all community conditions.

LYCEUM NUMBER UNUSUALLY GOOD

Monday night the Hungarian Court Orchestra held an audience of seven hundred girls spellbound throughout a most interesting program. The selections given were admirably chosen and executed with a finish that marks true musicians. Besides the orchestra, Miss Ethel Pyne, soprano soloist, gave some most delightful selections which added quite a lot to the evening program.

CLASS ISSUES OF ROTUNDA TO START NEXT WEEK

It has been a custom for a number of years for each class to edit an issue of The Rotunda. The class elects a staff and has entire charge of the paper. The one rule which must absolutely be regarded is that no member of the present staff is eligible to work on the class staff, except in an advisory capacity. This makes the competition absolutely fair for each class.

The judges will be chosen from members of the English department, and the staffs of various school papers, with which we exchange will be asked to send in their vote.

In the past, the classes have done some very clever work. We are looking forward for this year to show just what each class can do along a literary line. We have athletic competition and show spirit. So it's up to us to show spirit from the literary standpoint.

The issues will appear in the following order, beginning with the next issue: Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior.

WORK TOWARD THE STUDENT BUILDING

I wonder if we have stopped to realize that Founders' Day is just about six weeks off. To the old girls this must bring a realization that the time in which to make money is rather short. Most organizations have been working all year toward the Student Building Fund, and of course, we're going to have our usual large sum on March 7.

For the benefit of the Freshmen and other new students it might be well to say just what we work toward, and how. Every organization in school tries to give as much as it can toward paying for the Student Building. The spirit which is shown, seems to represent most fully our Alma Mater spirit of cooperation and energy spent toward an ideal. It's not the sum which we give which counts so much, but the spirit with which it is given.

Founders' Day itself isn't the only interesting part—it's the spirit which comes beforehand. The various stunts that are given, and the devices which are found to make money; make us open our eyes in amazement and wonder if it will be possible to think up a new or original idea.

Our "Student Building Spirit" seems to go with us always, but perhaps we hadn't realized how little time we have left before Founders' Day. If we haven't, let's try and get all the "pep" we have behind our schemes for making money and see if we can't make this our banner year in gifts. We are beginning to realize more and more what the Student Building is going to mean when it is turned over to the various activities. With this realization in front of us, we should surely be able to find some purely original and most attractive way of piling up pennies.

STUDENT COUNCIL ADDS NEW MEMBERS

Last Tuesday night, Jackie Woodson, as president of the Athletic Association, was installed as ex-officio member of the Student Council. They have been considering this addition to the committee for a long time. The whole school is highly in favor of having a representatative from the Athletic Association on the Council.

PICTURES FOR ANNUAL SENT TO THE PRESS

All of the annual pictures were sent to Lynchburg last Friday. The "write ups" have not been sent in yet due to the negligence of some of the students. Everyone is urged to attend to this matter at once.

The annuals will probably be out about the last of May. The staff has been working hard and the school may safely expect a very good annual.

FREDERICKSBURG WINS FIRST GAME 25—9

Guards Play Oustanding Game For Blue and White in First Championship Game

Fredericksburg won a decisive victory in a hard fought game Saturday night when our girls played their first game of the season. The old saying "A good beginning means a bad ending" need hold no fears for our team. Playing hard till the final whistle they could not overcome the lead gained by Fredericksburg.

The game opened with a snap and everyone was on the job, playing hard, but luck was not with our team. Fredericksburg showed beautiful passing, splendid teamwork and accurate shooting for goals. The score stood 14—4 at the end of the first half and nothing our girls could do could stop the score on its upward climb.

Captain White played an outstanding game for the Blue and White.

Line-up:

Fredericksburg	Farmville
Driefus, F.	Smith, F.
Draper, F.	English, F.
Wilkins, G.	Hatchett, G.
Johnson, G.	White, G.
Hagan, J. C.	Deffenbaugh, J. C.
Brown, S. C.	Lohr, S. C.

Substitution, Fredericksburg—Belote for Draper; McKenny for Wilkins. Farmville—Gurley for Deffenbaugh; Palmer for Lohr.

SENIOR RECEPTION FOR THE TEAMS

The Senior Class entertained at a very enjoyable reception Saturday evening immediately after the game, in honor of the Basketball teams.

The following program helped to make the evening a marked success:

Trio—"The Rosary"
Virginia Vincent, Mebane Hunt, Alice Davis.

Solo—Alice Davis
"I'll Forget You," "Cottage Small"

Recitation—Mildred Lohr

Solo—Mebane Hunt
"The Road to Mandalay"

Request numbers by Mebane Hunt.

Piano accompaniments—
Virginia Vincent, Virginia Potts.

Refreshments were served. After which the teams were conducted to their rooms by the Seniors, to the piano accompaniment of "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

FRESHMAN STUDENT COMMITTEE ELECTED

On January 13th, after chapel the Freshman Class held a meeting to elect their Student Government representatives. Six girls were nominated before Christmas, and were passed on by Miss Mary. Dr. Jarman and the Student Committee. From the six nominees three representatives were elected: Louise Dedmon, Lucille Forman and Blanche Overbey.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

RESULTS

The Student Body, and all youth, for that matter, hears a great deal about its lack of assimilative qualities where lectures are concerned but our game with Fredericksburg Saturday night was a shining example of the value of lectures.

The entire game showed that we had paid attention to our coach's talk on sportsmanship. When we cheered for our opponent's good plays we cheered sincerely and with spirit, although not as enthusiastically, it must be admitted, as if we were cheering for our own score. We know, however, that the Fredericksburg varsity played a wonderful game in which our team was outclassed and that they deserved all the cheers they received.

Fighting against a strong team and under a cloud of disappointment our team exhibited a "peppy" spirit and "never-say-die" attitude that was splendid. Their cheerfulness and determination held out even after the balance of the score had been hopelessly upset.

Another result which was observed at the game was the excellent cheering, due to our "pep" meetings. Our cheer leader's display of "pep" and her vivid personality were large factors in helping the students retain some of their cheerful spirit.

PUT YOUR STUNTS AT A CONVENIENT HOUR

From now on until March the seventh, Founders Day, the program for entertainments will be full. This means that every one will want to go, and also that unless we are careful, we're going to monopolize our study hours.

Everyone wants to make money and in order to do it they have to put on stunts, or do something of the sort. Besides putting on the stunts we have to find audience. In order to do both and make the whole complete we're going to have to consider the standpoint of the audience, which is: they can't afford to have two or three study hours in a week broken into.

There is a remedy for the situation if we will all be considerate and try to be more careful. We may try this system. On Wednesday night we do not have prayers, because vespers come from 5:00 to 6:00. This means that we have an hour between supper and study hour. Why not try to put on our stunts, particularly the longer ones on Wednesday night from 6:30 to 7:30.

If we can't do it on Wednesday night, then let's say we'll make our stunt short enough so that by beginning at 6:45 we can be through by 7:30. This will give girls the entire study hour, and everyone will be able to go because they won't be losing time.

Third, we might start a new fad. Practically all the girls are through classes at 4:15, and during this cold weather, while we are spending the majority of our afternoons indoors, why not have our stunts from 5:00 to 6:00. We could at least try it.

There is a calendar in Miss Jennie's office where we can arrange a date for our stunt. Let's try and have them well proportioned, rather than several in one week. If we're going to have stunts, let's sign up right away for a date, and keep the other person in mind when we do it.

A CROWDED POST OFFICE

When we emerge, if we finally succeed, from the post office, most of us make the remark that we'll never try again to get our long sought for letters. Why? Simply because none of us have stopped to be considerate. If the Dramatic Club, or some other organization desires a realistic "mob scene" we can surely give it to them. We have evidently pushed our way in through any number of people, forgetting that people do not like to be jabbed in the side, but in the heart, and that there are classes in the room opposite the post office.

Now, of course, he fact that we have only one door in the Post Office makes the entering and leaving hard. But we can find a remedy, which will make all of us feel better and which will certainly save time, trouble and the nerves of any number of people.

In the first place we know the hours at which the mail is put up:

9:30 A. M.
12:30 P. M.
5:30 P. M.
6:00 P. M.

Of course we all want to get our mail as soon as possible, but why do we have to rush like so many small children, immediately before chapel. Some of us could certainly wait and go after chapel or between the 11:15 and 12:15 classes. Furthermore, we all try to get in at the same time, to go right down the middle of the hall and to have the entire floor space for ourselves. Are we going to have to have someone stand utside and tell us like little children that we have to wait, or that we must be more quiet. If we would only remember the two traffic rules of, (1) Keep to the right in a single, or double line, (2) Keep moving and do not park; we could at least have a partial solution and save a great deal of trouble. Then we should remember that classes are going on, and that the noise we make is disturbing any number of people who are still in class.

Besides being extremely disorderly in the halls we causemore confusion by going in the Post Office and standing there, until the mail is put up. This is what causes the jamming and crowding. If our mail isn't up, let's leave and come back later, because it causes so much confusion. We block traffic. We keep girls from leaving, we keep them from getting to their own boxes.

These are all such simple things, but if we would only do these very simple things, we would remedy this situation. It's up to us, so let's do our best to show that we are grown up enough to own these boxes.

TIME

"Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours set each with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever."

A sad, sad, story is that, yet a truer one has never been told. Time is fleeting, it offers you an opportunity, yours to take or to leave. It never coaxes or begs and if lost, is gone for ever and ever.

One of the things that we as students need most to learn is—the value of time. In this world of ours, of ever changing values governed by inventions and fashions, the natural reckoning of time has remained unaltered, from sunrise to sunset, through all the ages, from prehistoric days to the present day of jazz.

We hear on every side, especially among students, the never ending cry about lack of time. The phrase, "Honestly, I don't even have time to breathe.", is repeated on all occasions. The trouble with us is that we don't use our time to the best advantage. One of our favorite sports is "killing time." We play around, dilly-dally, complain about not having time for this and that and use all the other numerous weapons so deadly to time. Consequently all the work is stored up to be done at

REVIVAL OF READING OF THE HOLY BIBLE

All the world, throughout the months of January and February, is participating in the movement which is on foot in regard to the reading of the Bible. Religious workers feel that the Bible has been neglected by the American people and they hope by this means to arouse interest and enthusiasm in Bible reading.

During the month of January the people who are taking part in the movement are to read one chapter each day from the gospel of Saint Luke and in the month of February they will read a chapter from the Book of Acts each day.

At a combination meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and its Advisory Board 't was decided that the program be given a place in our own chapel exercises for the two-rold purpose of keeping in step with the rest of the world in religious matters and also in order that there may be a revival of Bible reading in our school. The decision rendered by the Cabinet and Advisory Board was approved by Dr. Jarman and as a result the movement has become a part of the daily chapel program.

"PRINCE CHAP" FRIDAY NIGHT

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1927 NUMBER 14

"THE PRINCE CHAP" TO BE GIVEN BY DRAMATIC CLUB

First Play of Season Will be Given Friday Night in the Auditorium

The Dramatic Club will present its first play of the year which is "The Prince Chap" in the auditorium Friday night, January 21.

The cast, which was carefully selected by Miss Wheeler who is directing the play, has been practicing since some time before the holidays and is well trained, to present to the school one of the most delightful plays that could be given. Throughout the play there is pathos, humor, romance and other qualities which go to make up a successful play.

It is a well-known fact, learned from past experience, that the Dramatic Club plays are popular and are always given before a full house. For this reason it is wise to reserve the seats at the nearest possible date in order to avoid the disappointment of failing to secure a good one.

The cast is as follows:

William Peyton, American sculptor, —Louise Brewer

Jack Rodney, Earl of Huntington, Lucy Haile Overbey

Marcus Runyon, Peyton's servant, Louise McCormick

Artists in studio building: Ballington —Mabel Hayes

Yadder, —Virginia Raine

Fritz, —Alice Wiley

Truckman, —Evelyn Dulaney

Claudia, in Act I., —Anne Cocks

Claudia, in Acts II. and III., —Frances Sale

Mrs. Arrington, Claudia's mother, —Etta Marshall

Phoebe Puckers, maid of all work, —Mabel Fitzpatrick

Alice Travers, Peyton's fiance, —Mebane Hunt

ADVISORY BOARD AND CABINET HOLD JOINT MEET

The Advisory Board of the Y. W. C. A. invited the Cabinet to meet with them at their regular meeting last week. Miss Mary P. Jones presided and Doctor Walmsley led devotionals. The joint meeting was a stimulating and an interesting one. Various members of the Cabinet made reports on their December work, and the Board was very interested in the work done. The Cabinet girls gained an insight into their advisor's work and the advisors learned quite a bit about the girls' general work from the meeting. It is hoped that several of such joint meetings may be held during a year.

HONORED VISITORS OF TEACHERS COLLEGES

Did anyone ever see such a clean school? Even the clock's face was washed! What is all this due to? Why, visitors, of course. They arrived Friday evening in time for supper and stayed until Saturday night. Miss Mary held a reception in the Student Building Lounge for them Saturday morning after chapel, so they could become acquainted with our Faculty and Home Department. The following were our visitors: from Harrisonburg,

Mr. Duke, President
Mrs. Varner, Dean
Dr. Gifford, Registrar

from Fredericksburg:

Dr. Chandler, President
Mrs. Bushnell, Dean
Mr. Tyner, Registrar

from Radford:

Dr. McConnell, President
Miss Moffit, Dean
Mr. Whitt, Registrar
Mrs. Whitt
Mr. McConnell
Miss Ellis.

We hope they enjoyed visiting us as much as we enjoyed having them.

STATE COOPERATIVE EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

Dr. Jarman and Miss Stubbs motored to Richmond Thursday and attended the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of "The State Cooperative Educational Association." This association has under its direction nearly 1,000 citizen organizations such as: Parent-Teachers Association, Community Leagues, and Mother Leagues in this state. It is through this association that these organizations make the schools, the community center, and through their united efforts they are working for the improvement of all community conditions.

The main topic of discussion was the work of the different community organizations in the state, and how their efforts could be even greater than they have been during the past year.

The Board of Directors adopted a very lengthy program for the coming year which deals partly with placing in the curriculum of schools studies which will further the movement put on by the Association for the betterment of all community conditions.

LYCEUM NUMBER UNUSUALLY GOOD

Monday night the Hungarian Court Orchestra held an audience of seven hundred girls spellbound throughout a most interesting program. The selections given were admirably chosen and executed with a finish that marks true musicians. Besides the orchestra, Miss Ethel Pyne, soprano soloist, gave some most delightful selections which added quite a lot to the evening program.

CLASS ISSUES OF ROTUNDA TO START NEXT WEEK

It has been a custom for a number of years for each class to edit an issue of The Rotunda. The class elects a staff and has entire charge of the paper. The one rule which must absolutely be regarded is that no member of the present staff is eligible to work on the class staff, except in an advisory capacity. This makes the competition absolutely fair for each class.

The judges will be chosen from members of the English department, and the staffs of various school papers, with which we exchange will be asked to send in their vote.

In the past, the classes have done some very clever work. We are looking forward for this year to show just what each class can do along a literary line. We have athletic competition and show spirit. So it's up to us to show spirit from the literary standpoint.

The issues will appear in the following order, beginning with the next issue: Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior.

WORK TOWARD THE STUDENT BUILDING

I wonder if we have stopped to realize that Founders' Day is just about six weeks off. To the old girls this must bring a realization that the time in which to make money is rather short. Most organizations have been working all year toward the Student Building Fund, and of course, we're going to have our usual large sum on March 7.

For the benefit of the Freshmen and other new students it might be well to say just what we work toward, and how. Every organization in school tries to give as much as it can toward paying for the Student Building. The spirit which is shown, seems to represent most fully our Alma Mater spirit of cooperation and energy spent toward an ideal. It's not the sum which we give which counts so much, but the spirit with which it is given.

Founders' Day itself isn't the only interesting part—it's the spirit which comes beforehand. The various stunts that are given, and the devices which are found to make money; make us open our eyes in amazement and wonder if it will be possible to think up a new or original idea.

Our "Student Building Spirit" seems to go with us always, but perhaps we hadn't realized how little time we have left before Founders' Day. If we haven't, let's try and get all the "pep" we have behind our schemes for making money and see if we can't make this our banner year in gifts. We are beginning to realize more and more what the Student Building is going to mean when it is turned over to the various activities. With this realization in front of us, we should surely be able to find some purely original and most attractive way of piling up pennies.

STUDENT COUNCIL ADDS NEW MEMBERS

Last Tuesday night, Jackie Woodson, as president of the Athletic Association, was installed as ex-officio member of the Student Council. They have been considering this addition to the committee for a long time. The whole school is highly in favor of having a representatative from the Athletic Association on the Council.

PICTURES FOR ANNUAL SENT TO THE PRESS

All of the annual pictures were sent to Lynchburg last Friday. The "write ups" have not been sent in yet due to the negligence of some of the students. Everyone is urged to attend to this matter at once.

The annuals will probably be out about the last of May. The staff has been working hard and the school may safely expect a very good annual.

FREDERICKSBURG WINS FIRST GAME 25—9

Guards Play Oustanding Game For Blue and White in First Championship Game

Fredericksburg won a decisive victory in a hard fought game Saturday night when our girls played their first game of the season. The old saying "A good beginning means a bad ending" need hold no fears for our team. Playing hard till the final whistle they could not overcome the lead gained by Fredericksburg.

The game opened with a snap and everyone was on the job, playing hard, but luck was not with our team. Fredericksburg showed beautiful passing, splendid teamwork and accurate shooting for goals. The score stood 14—4 at the end of the first half and nothing our girls could do could stop the score on its upward climb.

Captain White played an outstanding game for the Blue and White.

Line-up:

Fredericksburg	Farmville
Driefus, F.	Smith, F.
Draper, F.	English, F.
Wilkins, G.	Hatchett, G.
Johnson, G.	White, G.
Hagan, J. C.	Deffenbaugh, J. C.
Brown, S. C.	Lohr, S. C.

Substitution, Fredericksburg—Belote for Draper; McKenny for Wilkins. Farmville—Gurley for Deffenbaugh; Palmer for Lohr.

SENIOR RECEPTION FOR THE TEAMS

The Senior Class entertained at a very enjoyable reception Saturday evening immediately after the game, in honor of the Basketball teams.

The following program helped to make the evening a marked success:

Trio—"The Rosary"
Virginia Vincent, Mebane Hunt, Alice Davis.
Solo—Alice Davis
"I'll Forget You," "Cottage Small"
Recitation—Mildred Lohr
Solo—Mebane Hunt
"The Road to Mandalay"
Request numbers by Mebane Hunt.
Piano accompaniments—
Virginia Vincent, Virginia Potts.

Refreshments were served. After which the teams were conducted to their rooms by the Seniors, to the piano accompaniment of "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

FRESHMAN STUDENT COMMITTEE ELECTED

On January 13th, after chapel the Freshman Class held a meeting to elect their Student Government representatives. Six girls were nominated before Christmas, and were passed on by Miss Mary. Dr. Jarman and the Student Committee. From the six nominees three representatives were elected: Louise Dedmon, Lucille Forman and Blanche Overbey.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

RESULTS

The Student Body, and all youth, for that matter, hears a great deal about its lack of assimilative qualities where lectures are concerned but our game with Fredericksburg Saturday night was a shining example of the value of lectures.

The entire game showed that we had paid attention to our coach's talk on sportsmanship. When we cheered for our opponent's good plays we cheered sincerely and with spirit, although not as enthusiastically, it must be admitted, as if we were cheering for our own score. We know, however, that the Fredericksburg varsity played a wonderful game in which our team was outclassed and that they deserved all the cheers they received.

Fighting against a strong team and under a cloud of disappointment our team exhibited a "peppy" spirit and "never-say-die" attitude that was splendid. Their cheerfulness and determination held out even after the balance of the score had been hopelessly upset.

Another result which was observed at the game was the excellent cheering, due to our "pep" meetings. Our cheer leader's display of "pep" and her vivid personality were large factors in helping the students retain some of their cheerful spirit.

PUT YOUR STUNTS AT A CONVENIENT HOUR

From now on until March the seventh, Founders Day, the program for entertainments will be full. This means that every one will want to go, and also that unless we are careful, we're going to monopolize our study hours.

Everyone wants to make money and in order to do it they have to put on stunts, or do something of the sort. Besides putting on the stunts we have to find audience. In order to do both and make the whole complete we're going to have to consider the standpoint of the audience, which is: they can't afford to have two or three study hours in a week broken into.

There is a remedy for the situation if we will all be considerate and try to be more careful. We may try this system. On Wednesday night we do not have prayers, because vespers come from 5:00 to 6:00. This means that we have an hour between supper and study hour. Why not try to put on our stunts, particularly the longer ones on Wednesday night from 6:30 to 7:30.

If we can't do it on Wednesday night, then let's say we'll make our stunt short enough so that by beginning at 6:45 we can be through by 7:30. This will give girls the entire study hour, and everyone will be able to go because they won't be losing time.

Third, we might start a new fad. Practically all the girls are through classes at 4:15, and during this cold weather, while we are spending the majority of our afternoons indoors, why not have our stunts from 5:00 to 6:00. We could at least try it.

There is a calendar in Miss Jennie's office where we can arrange a date for our stunt. Let's try and have them well proportioned, rather than several in one week. If we're going to have stunts, let's sign up right away for a date, and keep the other person in mind when we do it.

A CROWDED POST OFFICE

When we emerge, if we finally succeed, from the post office, most of us make the remark that we'll never try again to get our long sought for letters. Why? Simply because none of us have stopped to be considerate. If the Dramatic Club, or some other organization desires a realistic "mob scene" we can surely give it to them. We have evidently pushed our way in through any number of people, forgetting that people do not like to be jabbed in the side, but in the heart, and that there are classes in the room opposite the post office.

Now, of course, he fact that we have only one door in the Post Office makes the entering and leaving hard. But we can find a remedy, which will make all of us feel better and which will certainly save time, trouble and the nerves of any number of people.

In the first place we know the hours at which the mail is put up:

9:30 A. M.
12:30 P. M.
5:30 P. M.
6:00 P. M.

Of course we all want to get our mail as soon as possible, but why do we have to rush like so many small children, immediately before chapel. Some of us could certainly wait and go after chapel or between the 11:15 and 12:15 classes. Furthermore, we all try to get in at the same time, to go right down the middle of the hall and to have the entire floor space for ourselves. Are we going to have to have someone stand utside and tell us like little children that we have to wait, or that we must be more quiet. If we would only remember the two traffic rules of, (1) Keep to the right in a single, or double line, (2) Keep moving and do not park; we could at least have a partial solution and save a great deal of trouble. Then we should remember that classes are going on, and that the noise we make is disturbing any number of people who are still in class.

Besides being extremely disorderly in the halls we causemore confusion by going in the Post Office and standing there, until the mail is put up. This is what causes the jamming and crowding. If our mail isn't up, let's leave and come back later, because it causes so much confusion. We block traffic. We keep girls from leaving, we keep them from getting to their own boxes.

These are all such simple things, but if we would only do these very simple things, we would remedy this situation. It's up to us, so let's do our best to show that we are grown up enough to own these boxes.

TIME

"Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours set each with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever."

A sad, sad, story is that, yet a truer one has never been told. Time is fleeting, it offers you an opportunity, yours to take or to leave. It never coaxes or begs and if lost, is gone for ever and ever.

One of the things that we as students need most to learn is—the value of time. In this world of ours, of ever changing values governed by inventions and fashions, the natural reckoning of time has remained unaltered, from sunrise to sunset, through all the ages, from prehistoric days to the present day of jazz.

We hear on every side, especially among students, the never ending cry about lack of time. The phrase, "Honestly, I don't even have time to breathe.", is repeated on all occasions. The trouble with us is that we don't use our time to the best advantage. One of our favorite sports is "killing time." We play around, dilly-dally, complain about not having time for this and that and use all the other numerous weapons so deadly to time. Consequently all the work is stored up to be done at

REVIVAL OF READING OF THE HOLY BIBLE

All the world, throughout the months of January and February, is participating in the movement which is on foot in regard to the reading of the Bible. Religious workers feel that the Bible has been neglected by the American people and they hope by this means to arouse interest and enthusiasm in Bible reading.

During the month of January the people who are taking part in the movement are to read one chapter each day from the gospel of Saint Luke and in the month of February they will read a chapter from the Book of Acts each day.

At a combination meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and its Advisory Board it was decided that the program be given a place in our own chapel exercises for the two-fold purpose of keeping in step with the rest of the world in religious matters and also in order that there may be a revival of Bible reading in our school. The decision rendered by the Cabinet and Advisory Board was approved by Dr. Jarman and as a result the movement has become a part of the daily chapel program.

Refreshments were served. After which the teams were conducted to their rooms by the Seniors, to the piano accompaniment of "Show Me the Way to Go Home."

FRESHMAN STUDENT COMMITTEE ELECTED

On January 13th, after chapel the Freshman Class held a meeting to elect their Student Government representatives. Six girls were nominated before Christmas, and were passed on by Miss Mary. Dr. Jarman and the Student Committee. From the six nominees three representatives were elected: Louise Dedmon, Lucille Forman and Blanche Overbey.

MISS IDA BIERBOWER, Alumnae Editor

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

RESULTS

The Student Body, and all youth, for that matter, hears a great deal about its lack of assimilative qualities where lectures are concerned but our game with Fredericksburg Saturday night was a shining example of the value of lectures.

The entire game showed that we had paid attention to our coach's talk on sportsmanship. When we cheered for our opponent's good plays we cheered sincerely and with spirit, although not as enthusiastically, it must be admitted, as if we were cheering for our own score. We know, however, that the Fredericksburg varsity played a wonderful game in which our team was outclassed and that they deserved all the cheers they received.

Fighting against a strong team and under a cloud of disappointment our team exhibited a "peppy" spirit and "never-say-die" attitude that was splendid. Their cheerfulness and determination held out even after the balance of the score had been hopelessly upset.

Another result which was observed at the game was the excellent cheering, due to our "pep" meetings. Our cheer leader's display of "pep" and her vivid personality were large factors in helping the students retain some of their cheerful spirit.

PUT YOUR STUNTS AT A CONVENIENT HOUR

From now on until March the seventh, Founders Day, the program for entertainments will be full. This means that every one will want to go, and also that unless we are careful, we're going to monopolize our study hours.

Everyone wants to make money and in order to do it they have to put on stunts, or do something of the sort. Besides putting on the stunts we have to find audience. In order to do both and make the whole complete we're going to have to consider the standpoint of the audience, which is: they can't afford to have two or three study hours in a week broken into.

There is a remedy for the situation if we will all be considerate and try to be more careful. We may try this system. On Wednesday night we do not have prayers, because vespers come from 5:00 to 6:00. This means that we have an hour between supper and study hour. Why not try to put on our stunts, particularly the longer ones on Wednesday night from 6:30 to 7:30.

If we can't do it on Wednesday night, then let's say we'll make our stunt short enough so that by beginning at 6:45 we can be through by 7:30. This will give girls the entire study hour, and everyone will be able to go because they won't be losing time.

Third, we might start a new fad. Practically all the girls are through classes at 4:15, and during this cold weather, while we are spending the majority of our afternoons indoors, why not have our stunts from 5:00 to 6:00. We could at least try it.

There is a calendar in Miss Jennie's office where we can arrange a date for our stunt. Let's try and have them well proportioned, rather than several in one week. If we're going to have stunts, let's sign up right away for a date, and keep the other person in mind when we do it.

A CROWDED POST OFFICE

When we emerge, if we finally succeed, from the post office, most of us make the remark that we'll never try again to get our long sought for letters. Why? Simply because none of us have stopped to be considerate. If the Dramatic Club, or some other organization desires a realistic "mob scene" we can surely give it to them. We have evidently pushed our way in through any number of people, forgetting that people do not like to be jabbed in the side, but in the heart, and that there are classes in the room opposite the post office.

Now, of course, he fact that we have only one door in the Post Office makes the entering and leaving hard. But we can find a remedy, which will make all of us feel better and which will certainly save time, trouble and the nerves of any number of people.

In the first place we know the hours at which the mail is put up:

9:30 A. M.
12:30 P. M.
5:30 P. M.
6:00 P. M.

Of course we all want to get our mail as soon as possible, but why do we have to rush like so many small children, immediately before chapel. Some of us could certainly wait and go after chapel or between the 11:15 and 12:15 classes. Furthermore, we all try to get in at the same time, to go right down the middle of the hall and to have the entire floor space for ourselves. Are we going to have to have someone stand utside and tell us like little children that we have to wait, or that we must be more quiet. If we would only remember the two traffic rules of, (1) Keep to the right in a single, or double line, (2) Keep moving and do not park; we could at least have a partial solution and save a great deal of trouble. Then we should remember that classes are going on, and that the noise we make is disturbing any number of people who are still in class.

Besides being extremely disorderly in the halls we causemore confusion by going in the Post Office and standing there, until the mail is put up. This is what causes the jamming and crowding. If our mail isn't up, let's leave and come back later, because it causes so much confusion. We block traffic. We keep girls from leaving, we keep them from getting to their own boxes.

These are all such simple things, but if we would only do these very simple things, we would remedy this situation. It's up to us, so let's do our best to show that we are grown up enough to own these boxes.

TIME

"Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours set each with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever."

A sad, sad, story is that, yet a truer one has never been told. Time is fleeting, it offers you an opportunity, yours to take or to leave. It never coaxes or begs and if lost, is gone for ever and ever.

One of the things that we as students need most to learn is—the value of time. In this world of ours, of ever changing values governed by inventions and fashions, the natural reckoning of time has remained unaltered, from sunrise to sunset, through all the ages, from prehistoric days to the present day of jazz.

We hear on every side, especially among students, the never ending cry about lack of time. The phrase, "Honestly, I don't even have time to breathe.", is repeated on all occasions. The trouble with us is that we don't use our time to the best advantage. One of our favorite sports is "killing time." We play around, dilly-dally, complain about not having time for this and that and use all the other numerous weapons so deadly to time. Consequently all the work is stored up to be done at

REVIVAL OF READING OF THE HOLY BIBLE

All the world, throughout the months of January and February, is participating in the movement which is on foot in regard to the reading of the Bible. Religious workers feel that the Bible has been neglected by the American people and they hope by this means to arouse interest and enthusiasm in Bible reading.

During the month of January the people who are taking part in the movement are to read one chapter each day from the gospel of Saint Luke and in the month of February they will read a chapter from the Book of Acts each day.

At a combination meeting of the Y. W. C. A. and its Advisory Board it was decided that the program be given a place in our own chapel exercises for the two-fold purpose of keeping in step with the rest of the world in religious matters and also in order that there may be a revival of Bible reading in our school. The decision rendered by the Cabinet and Advisory Board was approved by Dr. Jarman and as a result the movement has become a part of the daily chapel program.

JUST SNOW

After we read about people being in blizzards and snow storms. Why, we even see pictures of such. Oft-times we go to a movie and freeze (due to our over-exercised imaginations) while seeing the heroine in the midst of a lone waste, hair flying, frozen tears, with one poor dying dog, with all varieties of snow flakes falling over her curly locks, always blowing very beautifully in the wind. We get warm suddenly when the hero with no weapons kills six or seven wolves, walks miles and miles, chances upon a sleigh led with strong dogs with which he saves the girl. They go home and live, supposedly, happily. That always worries me. They always live happily. Secretly I bet they fuss later in life when "hubby dear" refuses to put on his rubbers when he's going to walk five miles for an yeast cake in a snow storm.

But, speaking of snow—snow just fascinates us. It's white, pretty and pure (although some say that it contains most of the impurities found in the air). We always think of romance and snow of one accord. Snow makes one's nose turn scarlet, but I suppose that we will have to agree that it does give somewhat of a romantic appeal. Anybody who can be romantic with a cold nose has my congratulations. But we were talking of snow, not noses.

Romance, in the form of snow, instead of Hampden-Sidney, crept quietly upon us the other night. We awoke and lo! romance was frozen all over us everywhere. Our only trouble was that we had to wait until our radiators and ourselves thawed out before we could conscientiously appreciate our thrill.

It is difficult to get romance out of snow at this institution of being instructed. Easily, we can make a safe statement that the only excitement derived from snow for us would be snow a la cream. But as our neighbors and their roommates had no vanilla, we are praying that they will buy some before the romance falls all about us again.

BE THE BEST

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hills,
be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a bush, be a bit of the grass,
Some highway some happier to make.
If you can't be a muskie then just be a bass—
But the liveliest bass in the lake!
We can't all be captains, we've got to be crew;
There's something for all of us here.
There's big work to do and there's lesser to do.
And the task we must do is the near.
If you can't be a highway, then just be a trail.
If you can't be a sun, be a star;
It isn't by size that you win or fail—
Be the best of whatever you are!

MOVING

When one has fully decided that one will surely be an old maid, has become reconciled. to all the required conditions of a school teacher, one just hates to move or be moved. But there is the new portion of building connecting Main with the much-worked-for "Benefit of Student Building," which has to be used so both the movable and the unmovable have to be moved. Upon being told that one must move, one first wonders where one will move. Then the person looks at the room.

The room is very satisfactory; at least, the four white walls and prison-like mattress upon the bed looks quite comfortable, the bed anyway. But, ah, one shivers and shakes upon just adding long enough to look at her new abode. It's cold! Then one goes away and brings back a curtain. The curtain is always too long, but is finally fixed. One realizes, too, suddenly that the window has two sides to a curtain, under difficulties, such as not having either nails or ladder, is fixed upon the other side of the window. The curtains look like mere draperies to everyone except the girl who puts them up. To her each tack, screw, and wrinkle is known, appreciated, and loved!

One decides that the beds must be moved. It's very queer, but it's a fact that beds get larger and larger upon being pushed around in various places. One realizes that the bed must remain just as it was first thrown in. One sits down in the new room to study—but one has no books. Books are borrowed and notes of all colors and descriptions are heaped high upon the table. One realizes that likewise cloths and the tooth brush must be brought in. The cloths are thrown in all corners of every where not in sight. A great trouble arises. There's no place for the toothbrush. One looks everywhere and finally puts it in her pocket, with the consolation that "there's a place for everythin." One hasn't yet realized that the tooth brush is an exeception.

The new occupant is unable to study. Something is wrong. It is the newness of the room? What can it be? Just then it walks in. It speaks It has the nerve to say, "What horrible curtains! The beds are wrong! The room looks crowded! Ah, let's change it all!" One resolves firmly never to again—"Oh, goodness—oh. oh! the roommate has pulled down one curtain!"

"SH! SH—SH!"

"Sh-sh-sh" and, in the midst of the most inspiring part of a lecture, one is finely conscious of a buzz, buzz and then wholly aware of a prolonged "sh-ing" as if one were "sh-ing" chickens from a cherished flower garden.

In the library, one is reading: 'And the moon never beams—

Without bringing me" "sh-sh-sh!" What was the moon beam bringing? The thought is lost; the emotion, the feeling is lost; the effect is lost. The poem is lost for the time.

Studying psychology references in the library, one reads: "a conditioned reflex is a re—sh-sh-sh—"action to." "sh-sh-sh!" The connection is lost. The whole must be read again.

Someone is singing the most stirring, melodious song when snap! and drowned out that melody so sweet. The whole effect is lost.

In the dining room: Will the girls interested in—"sh-sh-sh!" please meet —"sh-sh-sh"—and the announcement is lost. Probably I was interested; but in what? and where should I meet?

If one has inspirations at S. T. C., it will be necessary for that one to wear ear pads in order to prolong that inspiration and not have it abruptly cut in half by "sh-sh-sh!"

ZETA TAU BANQUET

The Zeta Tau Sorority was presented with its coat-of-arms, on Saturday, January 15, at its banquet, which was held in the Tea Room. The color scheme of the banquet was effectively carried out in orchid and ivor. A most interesting program was given.

The lovely coat-of-arms, which was presented by several of the alumnae, was painted by Miss Julia Alexander, of Norfolk, an old Zeta Tau.

The guests included Miss Evelyn Peake of Lynchburg, Miss Elizabeth Maddox of Blackstone, Miss Sallie Ray Rives of McKenny, Miss "Pookie" Maddox of Kenbridge, Miss Ellen Moses of Norfolk, Miss Julia Alexander of Norfolk, Miss Elizabeth Lewis and Mrs. Elizabeth Moring Smith of Farmville.

HERE I AM

(The following poem is dedicated to last year's Sophomore diploma girls who are with us now).

I said I'd never come back,
But here I am, here I am.
I said knowledge I didn't lack
But here I am, here I am.
Don't take advantage of me
Because a Junior I'll be.
Just be real, real easy on me.
Oh, what I'm going through!
I said that I could get work
And how I tried, how I tried.
I said studying days were done,
How I lied, how I lied.
Nobody knows how hard it has been,
The thought of your classes
Just made me give in.
I said I'd never come back
But here I am.

ROBERT E. LEE.

Today marks the 118th anniversary of the birth of General Robert Edward Lee, the consummate flower of American manhood and Anglo-Saxon chivalry. Thorugh twenty generations of knightly culture, from the battle of Hastings to Appomattox, God was making the man. At the time of his death an editorial in the London Standard said of him:

"The bitterest enemies of his country hardly dared to whisper a word against the character of her most distinguished general, while neutrals regarded him with an admiration for his deeds and a respect for his lofty and unselfish nature which almost grew into veneration, and his own countrymen learned to look up to him with as much confidence and esteem as they ever felt for Washington, and with an affection which the cold demeanor and austere temper of Washington could never inspire . . . . Truer greatness, a loftier nature, a spirit more unselfish, a character purer, more chivalrous, the world has rarely, if ever, known. Of stainless life and deep religious feeling, yet free from all taint of cant and fanaticism, and as dear and congenial to the Cavalier Stuart as to the Puritan Stonewall Jackson . . . . . Both North and South owe a deep debt of gratitude to him and the time will come when both will be equally proud of him."

Today the words of this neutral observer are fulfilled; the North nd South alike are proud to honor his memory.

A GRAMMATICAL KISS

A kiss is always a pronoun, because "she" stands for it.

It is masculine and feminine gender mixed; therefore, common.

It is a conjunction because it connects.

It is an interjection; at least it sounds like one.

It is plural because one calls for another.

It is singular because there nothing else like it.

It is usually in apposition with a caress; at any rate, it is sure to follow.

A kiss can be conjugated, but never declined.

It is a preposition because it governs an objective "case".

However, it is not an adjective, because it cannot be compared, but it is a phrase that expresses feeling.

SMILE

A temper! Just how dangerous is a temper? From our own experience and the experience of others, we find that a temper is the most detrimental thing that can be acquired or inherited.

"If you can keep your head, when all about you are losing their's and blaming it on you, etc" is well known, and is probably some of the best advice ever given. If things go wrong, if other people get honorary positions that you think should have been given to you, smile and smile again. The worst thing that you can do is to show people that you are irritated and angry.

You can't all be captains. Even though you haven't any honors, if you can smile in face of disappointments and be a pleasant follower and friend to all, YOU have accomplished wonders. — Exchange

Johns Hopkins was a Baltimore merchant, bachelor and Quaker. He founded the university that bears his name because he believed only two institutions would endure—"a university, for there will always be youth to train; and a hospital, for there will always be suffering to relieve." —Exchange

At Harvard a "Confidential Guide of College Courses" is published for all new men, both freshmen and new upper classmen. It is truly a student's criticism of college courses, frankly giving the merits, attractiveness, and unattractive features of forty of the most important of the catalogue courses. Some are warmly recommended, some are bitterly censured. This criticism is given with the sincere intent of bettering methods of instruction. —Exchange

the last minute. It is at this tragic stage that we remember, "Time and tide wait for no man," and if we wish to progress, "we must be up and doing."

No one would be so foolish as to say there is no time for play, for we all realize the vital necessity of diversion of this workaday world.

"To every thing there is a season,
And a time to every purpose under the heaven.
A time to weep, and a time to laugh,
A time to mourn and a time to dance."

Our job is to select and use the right time. When it is time for us to work, let us work hard and when it is time for us to play let us play with equal energy.

MON., TUES. & WED.—The SHANNON PLAYERS will play at the theatre. This company is well known to our patrons as they have played here before. Monday night they will present "Danger Ahead". This great comedy drama will more than please you. It is a great heart story and is brim full of comedy from start to finish. Tuesday night they will present "The Girl Who Came Back" which will please everyone from 8 to 80. The story is plaesing, the heart interest great and the comedy a riot. On Wednesday night they will present "When Wifey Steps Out" a play that will appeal to and highly entertain all who see it. The company carries a good orchestra, and bewteen each act they will entertain you. All tickets sold at theatre. Come early to get good seats.

THURS. at 4 o'clock matinee and at 8 o'clock at night The Randolph-Macon Glee Club will play at the theatre. There are 30 poeple with this company and they carry a ten piece snappy orchestra with them. They will present an evening of entertainment that should more than please you. All tickets sold at theatre.

Friday and Saturday—The super special "FIG LEAVES" starring George O'Brien and Olive Borden will be shown. This is the story of clothes that made the woman and wrecked the man. An intimate but bold parade of feminine finery from "Fig Leaves" to frocks and frills. This picture vies withth e most lavish productions ever mdae. Its settings are very pretty. The technicolor scenes are extremely beautiful; they have not been surpassed in any picture. It will appeal to the high and the low. We know that this is one of the most beautiful and entertaining productions ever produced. You must see it. Also good comedy with this picture. Mat. each day. at 4 o'clock.

If you can't be a pine on the top of the hills,
be a scrub in the valley—but be
The best little scrub by the side of the rill;
Be a bush if you can't be a tree.
If you can't be a bush, be a bit of the grass,
Some highway some happier to make.
If you can't be a muskie then just be a bass—
But the liveliest bass in the lake!
We can't all be captains, we've got to be crew;
There's something for all of us here.
There's big work to do and there's lesser to do.
And the task we must do is the near.
If you can't be a highway, then just be a trail.
If you can't be a sun, be a star;
It isn't by size that you win or fail—
Be the best of whatever you are!

MOVING

When one has fully decided that one will surely be an old maid, has become reconciled. to all the required conditions of a school teacher, one just hates to move or be moved. But there is the new portion of building connecting Main with the much-worked-for "Benefit of Student Building," which has to be used so both the movable and the unmovable have to be moved. Upon being told that one must move, one first wonders where one will move. Then the person looks at the room.

The room is very satisfactory; at least, the four white walls and prison-like mattress upon the bed looks quite comfortable, the bed anyway. But, ah, one shivers and shakes upon just abiding long enough to look at her new abode. It's cold! Then one goes away and brings back a curtain. The curtain is always too long, but is finally fixed. One realizes, too, suddenly that the window has two sides so a curtain, under difficulties, such as not having either nails or ladder, is fixed upon the other side of the window. The curtains look like mere draperies to everyone except the girl who puts them up. To her each tack, screw, and wrinkle is known, appreciated, and loved!

One decides that the beds must be moved. It's very queer, but it's a fact that beds get larger and larger upon being pushed around in various places. One realizes that the bed must remain just as it was first thrown in. One sits down in the new room to study—but one has no books. Books are borrowed and notes of all colors and descriptions are heaped high upon the table. One realizes that likewise cloths and the tooth brush must be brought in. The cloths are thrown in all corners of every where not in sight. A great trouble arises. There's no place for the toothbrush. One looks everywhere and finally puts it in her pocket, with the consolation that "there's a place for everythin." One hasn't yet realized that the tooth brush is an exeception.

The new occupant is unable to study. Something is wrong. It is the newness of the room? What can it be? Just then it walks in. It speaks It has the nerve to say, "What horrible curtains! The beds are wrong! The room looks crowded! Ah, let's change it all!" One resolves firmly never to again—"Oh, goodness—oh, oh! the roommate has pulled down one curtain!"

"SH! SH—SH!"

"Sh-sh-sh" and, in the midst of the most inspiring part of a lecture, one is finely conscious of a buzz, buzz and then wholly aware of a prolonged "sh-ing" as if one were "sh-ing" chickens from a cherished flower garden.

In the library, one is reading: 'And the moon never beams—

Without bringing me" "sh-sh-sh!" What was the moon beam bringing? The thought is lost; the emotion, the feeling is lost; the effect is lost. The poem is lost for the time.

Studying psychology references in the library, one reads: "a conditioned reflex is a re—sh-sh-sh—"action to-" "sh-sh-sh!" The connection is lost. The whole must be read again.

Someone is singing the most stirring, melodious song when snap! and drowned out that melody so sweet. The whole effect is lost.

In the dining room: Will the girls interested in—"sh-sh-sh!" please meet —"sh-sh-sh"—and the announcement is lost. Probably I was interested; but in what? and where should I meet?

If one has inspirations at S. T. C., it will be necessary for that one to wear ear pads in order to prolong that inspiration and not have it abruptly cut in half by "sh-sh-sh!"

ZETA TAU BANQUET

The Zeta Tau Sorority was presented with its coat-of-arms, on Saturday, January 15, at its banquet, which was held in the Tea Room. The color scheme of the banquet was effectively carried out in orchid and silver. A most interesting program was given.

The lovely coat-of-arms, which was presented by several of the alumnae, was painted by Miss Julia Alexander, of Norfolk, an old Zeta Tau.

The guests included Miss Evelyn Peake of Lynchburg, Miss Elizabeth Maddox of Blackstone, Miss Sallie Ray Rives of McKenny, Miss "Pookie" Maddox of Kenbridge, Miss Ellen Moses of Norfolk, Miss Julia Alexander of Norfolk, Miss Elizabeth Lewis and Mrs. Elizabeth Moring Smith of Farmville.

HERE I AM

(The following poem is dedicated to last year's Sophomore diploma girls who are with us now).

I said I'd never come back,
But here I am, here I am.
I said knowledge I didn't lack
But here I am, here I am.
Don't take advantage of me
Because a Junior I'll be,
Just be real, real easy on me.
Oh, what I'm going through!
I said that I could get work
And how I tried, how I tried.
I said studying days were done,
How I lied, how I lied.
Nobody knows how hard it has been,
The thought of your classes
Just made me give in.
I said I'd never come back
But here I am.

ROBERT E. LEE.

Today marks the 118th anniversary of the birth of General Robert Edward Lee, the consummate flower of American manhood and Anglo-Saxon chivalry. Thorugh twenty generations of knightly culture, from the battle of Hastings to Appomattox, God was making the man. At the time of his death an editorial in the London Standard said of him:

"The bitterest enemies of his country hardly dared to whisper a word against the character of her most distinguished general, while neutrals regarded him with an admiration for his deeds and a respect for his lofty and unselfish nature which almost grew into veneration, and his own countrymen learned to look up to him with as much confidence and esteem as they ever felt for Washington, and with an affection which the cold demeanor and austere temper of Washington could never inspire . . . . Truer greatness, a loftier nature, a spirit more unselfish, a character purer, more chivalrous, the world has rarely, if ever, known. Of stainless life and deep religious feeling, yet free from all taint of cant and fanaticism, and as dear and congenial to the Cavalier Stuart as to the Puritan Stonewall Jackson . . . . . Both North and South owe a deep debt of gratitude to him and the time will come when both will be equally proud of him."

Today the words of this neutral observer are fulfilled; the North nd South alike are proud to honor his memory.

A GRAMMATICAL KISS

A kiss is always a pronoun, because "she" stands for it.

It is masculine and feminine gender mixed; therefore, common.

It is a conjunction because it connects.

It is an interjection; at least it sounds like one.

It is plural because one calls for another.

It is singular because there nothing else like it.

It is usually in apposition with a caress; at any rate, it is sure to follow.

A kiss can be conjugated, but never declined.

It is a preposition because it governs an objective "case".

However, it is not an adjective, because it cannot be compared, but it is a phrase that expresses feeling.

SMILE

A temper! Just how dangerous is a temper? From our own experience and the experience of others, we find that a temper is the most detrimental thing that can be acquired or inherited.

"If you can keep your head, when all about you are losing their's and blaming it on you, etc" is well known, and is probably some of the best advice ever given. If things go wrong, if other people get honorary positions that you think should have been given to you, smile and smile again. The worst thing that you can do is to show people that you are irritated and angry.

You can't all be captains. Even though you haven't any honors, if you can smile in face of disappointments and be a pleasant follower and friend to all, YOU have accomplished wonders. — Exchange

Johns Hopkins was a Baltimore merchant, bachelor and Quaker. He founded the university that bears his name because he believed only two institutions would endure—"a university, for there will always be youth to train; and a hospital, for there will always be suffering to relieve." —Exchange

At Harvard a "Confidential Guide of College Courses" is published for all new men, both freshmen and new upper classmen. It is truly a student's criticism of college courses, frankly giving the merits, attractiveness, and unattractive features of forty of the most important of the catalogue courses. Some are warmly recommended, some are bitterly censured. This criticism is given with the sincere intent of bettering methods of instruction. —Exchange

the last minute. It is at this tragic stage that we remember, "Time and tide wait for no man," and if we wish to progress, "we must be up and doing."

No one would be so foolish as to say there is no time for play, for we all realize the vital necessity of diversion of this workaday world.

"To every thing there is a season,
And a time to every purpose under the heaven.
A time to weep, and a time to laugh.
A time to mourn and a time to dance."

Our job is to select and use the right time. When it is time for us to work, let us work hard and when it is time for us to play let us play with equal energy.

MON., TUES. & WED.—The SHANNON PLAYERS will play at the theatre. This company is well known to our patrons as they have played here before. Monday night they will present "Danger Ahead". This great comedy drama will more than please you. It is a great heart story and is brim full of comedy from start to finish. Tuesday night they will present "The Girl Who Came Back" which will please everyone from 8 to 80. The story is plaesing, the heart interest great and the comedy a riot. On Wednesday night they will present "When Wifey Steps Out" a play that will appeal to and highly entertain all who see it. The company carries a good orchestra, and bewteen each act they will entertain you. All tickets sold at theatre. Come early to get good seats.

THURS. at 4 o'clock matinee and at 8 o'clock at night The Randolph-Macon Glee Club will play at the theatre. There are 30 poeple with this company and they carry a ten piece snappy orchestra with them. They will present an evening of entertainment that should more than please you. All tickets sold at theatre.

Friday and Saturday—The super special "FIG LEAVES" starring George O'Brien and Olive Borden will be shown. This is the story of clothes that made the woman and wrecked the man. An intimate but bold parade of feminine finery from "Fig Leaves" to frocks and frills. This picture vies withth e most lavish productions ever mdae. Its settings are very pretty. The technicolor scenes are extremely beautiful; they have not been surpassed in any picture. It will appeal to the high and the low. We know that this is one of the most beautiful and entertaining productions ever produced. You must see it. Also good comedy with this picture. Mat. each day. at 4 o'clock.

Admission to S. T. C. girls Fri. & Sat. 35c; all other days 50c.

JUST SNOW

After we read about people being in blizzards and snow storms. Why, we even see pictures of such. Oft-times we go to a movie and freeze (due to our over-exercised imaginations) while seeing the heroine in the midst of a lone waste, hair flying, frozen tears, with one poor dying dog, with all varieties of snow flakes falling over her curly locks, always blowing very beautifully in the wind. We get warm suddenly when the hero with no weapons kills six or seven wolves, walks miles and miles, chances upon a stray sled with strong dogs with which he saves the girl. They go home and live, supposedly, happily. That always worries me. They always live happily. Secretly I bet they fuss later in life when "hubby dear" refuses to put on his rubbers when he's going to walk five miles for an yeast cake in a snow storm.

But, speaking of snow—now just fascinates us. It's white, pretty and pure (athough some say that it contains most of the impurities found in the air). We always think of romance and snow of one accord. Snow makes one's nose turn scarlet, but I suppose that we will have to agree that it does give somewhat of a romantic appeal. Anybody who can be romantic with a cold nose has my congratulations. But we were talking of snow, not noses.

Romance, in the form of snow, instead of Hampden-Sidney, crept quietly upon us the other night. We awoke and lo! romance was frozen all over us everywhere. Our only trouble was that we had to wait until our radiators and ourselves thawed out before we could conscientiously appreciate our thrill.

It is difficult to get romance out of snow at this institution of being instructed. Easily, we can make a safe statement that the only excitement derived from snow for us would be snow a la creme. But as our neighbors and their roommates had no vanilla we are praying that they will buy some before the romance falls all about us again.

The new occupant is unable to study. Something is wrong. It is the newness of the room? What can it be? Just then it walks in. It speaks It has the nerve to say, "What horrible curtains! The beds are wrong! The room looks crowded! Ah, let's change it all!" One resolves firmly never to again—"Oh, goodness—oh, oh! the roommate has pulled down one curtain!"

"SH! SH—SH!"

"Sh-sh-sh" and, in the midst of the most inspiring part of a lecture, one is finely conscious of a buzz, buzz and then wholly aware of a prolonged "sh-ing" as if one were "sh-ing" chickens from a cherished flower garden.

In the library, one is reading: 'And the moon never beams—

Someone is singing the most stirring, melodious song when snap! and drowned out that melody so sweet. The whole effect is lost.

In the dining room: Will the girls interested in—"sh-sh-sh!" please meet—"sh-sh-sh"—and the announcement is lost. Probably I was interested; but in what? and where should I meet?

If one has inspirations at S. T. C., it will be necessary for that one to wear ear pads in order to prolong that inspiration and not have it abruptly cut in half by "sh-sh-sh!"

ROBERT E. LEE.

Today marks the 118th anniversary of the birth of General Robert Edward Lee, the consummate flower of American manhood and Anglo-Saxon chivalry. Thorugh twenty generations of knightly culture, from the battle of Hastings to Appomattox, God was making the man. At the time of his death an editorial in the London Standard said of him:

"The bitterest enemies of his country hardly dared to whisper a word against the character of her most distinguished general, while neutrals regarded him with an admiration for his deeds and a respect for his lofty and unselfish nature which almost grew into veneration, and his own countrymen learned to look up to him with as much confidence and esteem as they ever felt for Washington, and with an affection which the cold demeanor and austere temper of Washington could never inspire . . . . Truer greatness, a loftier nature, a spirit more unselfish, a character purer, more chivalrous, the world has rarely, if ever, known. Of stainless life and deep religious feeling, yet free from all taint of cant and fanaticism, and as dear and congenial to the Cavalier Stuart as to the Puritan Stonewall Jackson . . . . . Both North and South owe a deep debt of gratitude to him and the time will come when both will be equally proud of him."

Today the words of this neutral observer are fulfilled; the North nd South alike are proud to honor his memory.

A GRAMMATICAL KISS

A kiss is always a pronoun, because "she" stands for it.

It is masculine and feminine gender mixed; therefore, common.

It is a conjunction because it connects.

It is an interjection; at least it sounds like one.

It is plural because one calls for another.

It is singular because there nothing else like it.

It is usually in apposition with a caress; at any rate, it is sure to follow.

A kiss can be conjugated, but never declined.

It is a preposition because it governs an objective "case".

However, it is not an adjective, because it cannot be compared, but it is a phrase that expresses feeling.

SMILE

A temper! Just how dangerous is a temper? From our own experience and the experience of others, we find that a temper is the most detrimental thing that can be acquired or inherited.

"If you can keep your head, when all about you are losing their's and blaming it on you, etc" is well known, and is probably some of the best advice ever given. If things go wrong, if other people get honorary positions that you think should have been given to you, smile and smile again. The worst thing that you can do is to show people that you are irritated and angry.

You can't all be captains. Even though you haven't any honors, if you can smile in face of disappointments and be a pleasant follower and friend to all, YOU have accomplished wonders. — Exchange

Johns Hopkins was a Baltimore merchant, bachelor and Quaker. He founded the university that bears his name because he believed only two institutions would endure—"a university, for there will always be youth to train; and a hospital, for there will always be suffering to relieve." —Exchange

At Harvard a "Confidential Guide of College Courses" is published for all new men, both freshmen and new upper classmen. It is truly a student's criticism of college courses, frankly giving the merits, attractiveness, and unattractive features of forty of the most important of the catalogue courses. Some are warmly recommended, some are bitterly censured. This criticism is given with the sincere intent of bettering methods of instruction. —Exchange the last minute. It is at this tragic stage that we remember, "Time and tide wait for no man," and if we wish to progress, "we must be up and doing."

No one would be so foolish as to say there is no time for play, for we all realize the vital necessity of diversion of this workaday world.

"To every thing there is a season,
And a time to every purpose under the heaven.
A time to weep, and a time to laugh,
A time to mourn and a time to dance."

Our job is to select and use the right time. When it is time for us to work, let us work hard and when it is time for us to play let us play with equal energy.

MON., TUES. & WED.—The SHANNON PLAYERS will play at the theatre. This company is well known to our patrons as they have played here before. Monday night they will present "Danger Ahead". This great comedy drama will more than please you. It is a great heart story and is brim full of comedy from start to finish. Tuesday night they will present "The Girl Who Came Back" which will please everyone from 8 to 80. The story is plaesing, the heart interest great and the comedy a riot. On Wednesday night they will present "When Wifey Steps Out" a play that will appeal to and highly entertain all who see it. The company carries a good orchestra, and bewteen each act they will entertain you. All tickets sold at theatre. Come early to get good seats.

THURS. at 4 o'clock matinee and at 8 o'clock at night The Randolph-Macon Glee Club will play at the theatre. There are 30 poeple with this company and they carry a ten piece snappy orchestra with them. They will present an evening of entertainment that should more than please you. All tickets sold at theatre.

Friday and Saturday—The super special "FIG LEAVES" starring George O'Brien and Olive Borden will be shown. This is the story of clothes that made the woman and wrecked the man. An intimate but bold parade of feminine finery from "Fig Leaves" to frocks and frills. This picture vies withth e most lavish productions ever mdae. Its settings are very pretty. The technicolor scenes are extremely beautiful; they have not been surpassed in any picture. It will appeal to the high and the low. We know that this is one of the most beautiful and entertaining productions ever produced. You must see it. Also good comedy with this picture. Mat. each day. at 4 o'clock.

'THE PRINCE CHAP' PRESENTED BY THE DRAMATIC CLUB

Critic Lavish With Praise of Cast of "The Prince Chap" Given Friday

A poor novel often would suffer honors and critics would be heaping even suffering, would commend even for the manner of writing by adopting a role as a Prince Consort [illegible] the case of a certain [illegible] chair to the contrary. Against the [illegible] of a collegiate life was so pleasantly interpreted by the members of the Dramatic Club, in the play, "The Prince Chap," by Booth Tarkington, on the evening of January 20, in Jarman's Hall. Even the most critical of the audience could find no fault with the production, and the [illegible] of the cast was unanimously commended.

As to the performance of the play itself, Prince Consort, by the College Dramatic Club, we can say nothing more for fear that the [illegible] "She doesn't make her entrance rather she comes on stage in the play's need." But our opinion will [illegible] that the play was [illegible] Virginia will find it worth [illegible] and a very fine audience enjoyed [illegible] college girl performance. We were charmed by the finish of the production every character [illegible] and [illegible] there was [illegible] a [illegible] of response to emotion. We [illegible] surrendered ourselves to it.

For the sake of those who may think that the play, "The Prince Chap," was made for Louise Breaux, as was the case in "Seventeen," we hasten to say that Miss Breaux has succeeded in portraying [illegible] totally different character. In some ways, however, [illegible] difficulties she seemed [illegible] in Mr. Parrish's role. Her [illegible] and [illegible] were most [illegible] and [illegible] yet here they seemed [illegible] things. Especially [illegible] powers were most needed and [illegible] when, on the return of the [illegible] proceed to resume the old [illegible] fashionable Patsy Dean [illegible] with all its gayety and [illegible] she most needs and what [illegible] gave her heart.

Alice Turner was played [illegible] extraordinarily by Dulcena Dunn Wade we cannot [illegible] the [illegible] adolescence which characterizes the part, we can [illegible] as well as understand the Prince Chap's early worship of her.

THE BELLS.

Ding-dong! Ding-dong! Another class---more work--- and the beginning of more responsibilities. Yet is that all the bells ring out? Is that all their meaning? They have a drawing power, a power which we little realize. It was the bells whose call we heeded when we came to dear old S. T. C. at the beginning of this year. We did not realize what it was, but it drew us to our college. Day by day and hour by hour it has ruled over us, calling us to a life of strenuous endeavor. Everything we have done has been in obedience to their command. Sometimes we grow heavy and lose not responded to its call, but still it has called, called, called. It challenges us day by day to new conquests in the mind and new accomplishments. Though its tone may sound over the same, each swing of the bell has a new call, a special meaning. To each one it speaks differently. So, when in the morning, the same bell calls us to a day of opportunity, be sure that the bells call us onward to the higher things. The clear and bell has sung to us as Freshman and will ring as out when the time comes for us to leave. May we never forget the message that our school bells sing.

FELLOWSHIP.

All of the groans and sighs that a "Y" meeting after chapel causes, doesn't mean entirely that our interest in our organization is not great, but probably that our interest in our neighbors standing is greater. How could we have a true spirit in our class with such a teacher of fellowship as we have in our sister class, and such a leader as our president, and such a help as our class [illegible]?

Haven't we all heard that he who knows most seems most? Just wait until we have the chance to live what we know, and then watch us do it. We have so much zest in us that we cannot do a prosperous future and drive the rest we will not leave. All will recall instances with a smile that will speak for itself. Those are specimens in our College that represent natural cooperation, good sportsmanship, and excellent citizenship, with worthwhile ambitions and the fine spirit that Farmville prides. Is it enough that we have made our mark through? We can do it, we say. With such confidence as we have, the [illegible] couldn't be otherwise with such a motto as "Each for all, and all for the class."

Do you remember last year when the Freshmen "toddled" into the hearts of S. T. C. by that exceptional production, "Toddletown"? Of course you do and if you don't, you know you've certainly heard about it for a year. Well, did you know that those Freshman, now most sophisticated, are going to give another performance equally exceptional on February 19? I really meant more exceptional? I really meant more exceptional because of they, as tiny green freshmen could produce such a wonder, what can they, grown up to Sophomore-hood do under the same able and capable guidance of Miss Iler and Mebane Hunt? For your own good we only ask you to come and the rest will take care of itself.

"THE ENEMY" RARELY PRESENTED FRIDAY

Maude Huntington - Benjamin Read to Appreciative Audience in Auditorium

In an age when one is often trapped into sitting hours listening to mediocre readers and declaimers, it is a decided treat to recognize in the first line of interpretation—an artist. Some remembered Maude Huntington Benjamin's reading of "The Fool" year before last, others heard her for the first time. It is a tribute in itself to say that her personality was so submerged into the being of a strong and unusual play that she herself was forgotten as the panorama of events staged itself in our imaginations.

The range of her characterization was seemingly limitless; from the subtle irony and complexity of the professor to the evident burlesque of Bereska, the maid. "The Enemy" was not a light, a fanatic bit of play for a woman to give; it involved a range of emotions to sweep the listeners into the force and subtlety of its lines. The futility and horror of war, the gulf that lies between those who declare it and those who suffer its toll and agony, and the unfathomable figure of Hate, "The Enemy" were depicted vividly, dramatically, in one rendering of a play.

"The Enemy" was unusual. Maude

Dedication

The Sophomore Class dedicates this issue of The Rotunda to our Alma Mater.

To our Alma Mater!
Her spirit, pure and noble,
Emanating visions of the ideal—
Ideals and dreams
In fairy bubbles.
To each girl she throws a bubble,
Delicate and small,
But colored with infinite possibilities.
Girlhood breathes her soul into it;
Womanhood protects it from the winds of life,
A thing of beauty, a pictured soul.

O Spirit of Alma Mater,
Blow your lovely bubbles!
Send them floating higher and away.

Once upon a time there was a building and it was called a school. Because it was a school in a world of realities, there had to be rules and regulations, and principles as its bulwark. The school grew, and within its walls something else grew that wasn't as tangible as the walls. Dreams were dreamed, and plans were planned, and deeds were builded that went through the walls of the school into the world of cities. People often wondered; seldom understood the source of strength that [illegible] planning, the doing, the living. The man (to whom the [illegible] had been entrusted) thought [illegible] finished until he dreamed into being a spirit, so fine, so big, and so all-enveloping that only a dream could have brought it into being. Then a woman (who loved girls and because she loved them, understood them) [illegible] that spirit in the school just by being—herself. I don't know . . . I have never seen this spirit, but I have felt her presence until I have visualized her. She is a lovely girl-lady, who from a slender amber, bubble-pipe blows innumerable and unceasing bubbles above the heads and selves of the inhabitants of the school. They are joyous, evanescent tantalizing bits of color . . . challenging us to catch them and mold them into realities and deeds, before they burst into nothingness. Spirit, as I see her, is not reality, but reality is born from her. Bubbles of youth—joy, of unselfishness, of desire for service she blows out of the amber pipe into our heart and hands. Out of them we mold acts and deeds, and realities. We are the products. She is Alma Mater!

SECOND GAME OF SEASON TO BE PLAYED AT HOME

BOLD PIRATE CREW APPEARS AT S. T. C.

Pirate Party Given by Y. W. Cabinet to members of Freshman Commission

Into the "Main" of Farmville, on last Monday afternoon at five-thirty a ship load of treasure-seekers dropped anchor. Thirty-five of a ruffian crew escaped into the stately portals of State Teachers College. They were led by a captain known as Harrell, as hale and hearty as any rover of the high seas.

One-eyed Soll, the ship's "lookout" hidden treasure somewhere between the points North [illegible] (recreation hall) and West 22 degrees (cabinet room). The first mate, Harriet Foster, and the others assembling of the [illegible] staged out three search parties. Her only orders were to locate the treasure. (Here I might tell you that pirates never fail to carry out orders.)

'Twas then that the silence of the halls of many a dormitory shone with the pois[illegible] of the delirious pirates in quest of such treasure. Clues were found here and there throughout the building. The treasure was finally located at the end of the blue triangle in the Y. W. C. A. cabinet room! The pirates then returned to the recreation hall for a feast given in honor of their successful plundering! As is the custom of such a crew, stories of other victories and plunders were told by members of the crew. "Yo Ho Lads" rang out to punctuate each silence that slipped in!

At 7:30 the ship slipped out the harbor as quietly as it had arrived—"no pirates, no noise, no treasure, no food"—only the silence and calm of study hour.

No, my imagination is not on a rampage. Merely am I trying to describe the Pirate Party given by the Y. W. Cabinet to the Freshman Commission on last Monday afternoon.

FACULTY TO APPEAR IN ORIGINAL PLAY

The entire student body will have a chance to see the Faculty of our College perform when they stage their play in the S. T. C. auditorium, Wednesday, February 16. Every character in the play will be portrayed by a member of our faculty. Dr. Jarman, himself, will be one of the performers.

In order to consider the varied tastes of the student body, the faculty has arranged for a quartet, and a full orchestra, as well as a play. There will also be an exhibition of dancing by a member of the faculty who is considered a splendid exponent of the terpsichorean art.

Varsity to Match Strength With Radford Sextette in Gym February 5

Our team is practicing hard and fast for a clean struggle with Radford on February 5. Are you one hundred per cent S. T. C.? Are you willing to fight as hard and as clean against our sister college as our varsity is? Do you realize that the team only matches to a large extent physical strength with the opposing team? It is you who have to do with the creation of the spirit of sportsmanship and it is you on whom the outcome of this game depends. We do not only ask you to come, but we ask also that you come with your whole-hearted support, your spirit and enthusiasm, and give to the visiting team a display of the true spirit of sportsmanshinp which lives in every heart at S. T. C.

S. T. C. REPRESENTED AT REGIONAL CONFERENCE

There is to be a regional conference at Richmond, Virginia, February 3 to 6, at which all departments of the Y. W. C. A. will be represented. This is one of eight such conferences being held in various parts of the country, but the only one in the South.

Professor Jackson of North Carolina College for Women will give a series of talks on some phase of the recent developments and changes in the South. There will be discussions led by Miss Gerwick of the Education Division of the Y. W. C. A. Women from all Associations, colored and white, will have an apportunity to discuss their common problems.

S. T. C. should consider herself fortunate in sending four delegates to this conference. They are:

Rosalind Harrell
Frances Willis
Blanche Overbey
Elizabeth Bowers

MISS IDA BIERBOWER, Alumnae Editor

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

YOUR BUBBLES AND MINE

You see the picture of the girl blowing bubbles from her pipe. She spends her time that way, for she is our Alma Mater and the bubbles are pictures of what we are in terms of what we do. And we are the student body, we are the minute particles of every bubble. Some of us are parts of many, some of us are parts of only one, perhaps. There is the tiny bubble the girl slips off the bowl of her amber pipe for the freshmen when they first arrive. But because so often, in their confusion, the freshmen burst their wee first one, she gives us another, and in it is a bit of color for every girl in the class. Are we on the bright side of the bubble, or is yours the drab color one sees? The sophomore bubble is larger, for it has expanded for a year. It is brighter too, for many gray dots are now gay. The junior one is larger and brighter. The senior one is the largest and most brilliant, for it is filled with the spirit of Alma Mater, and glows wih her ideals. Every organization, every group is pictured in colors of its standards and ideals. And I think, too, that the bubble girl blows into being a separate one for every girl in our College. Look at yours! Is it a pretty one? Is it as beautiful as you might make it?

See the faith in the face of the spirit! She is trusting us to guard our ideals against the pricks of a disillusioning world. Let us keep faith with her, so that we may not see our bubbles vanish when dreams don't come true, but may make the colors purer for the testing, and fill the world with the beauty of truth in ideals.

BUSY?

"A word to the wise is sufficient"—and how wise we all are! This is only a hint, so govern yourself accordingly. Do you recall how annoyed you are when those teachers have given you three tests for Tuesday and on Monday afternoon no less than seven people walk over your busy sign to tell you various and sundry bits of news which are not in any way related to those tests? Of course you remember that under the enjoyment of all those bits of gossip you were constantly wishing that you could study that sociology, psychology and government, but do you remember this when you on Wednesday open a door on which is tacked plainly and clearly "Busy"? I said before "a word to the wise"—Think over it.

THE SPIRIT OF OUR ALMA MATER.

There is a spirit which pervades our college, and which is found in each and every true daughter of S. T. C. This is the "Spirit of Our Alma Mater." It is the spirit which drives us on when we are tired and discouraged; it is the spirit which fills us with enthusiasm for higher and better things; it is the spirit of loyalty, friendliness, and service.

Perhaps, too, much courage goes to make up the "Spirit of Our Alma Mater." It takes courage to be loyal under all circumstances. For the timid, self-consciousness girl, it sometimes takes courage to be friendly. Still more courage is required for the other and larger part of this spirit. Service requires sacrifice, and it often takes courage to make sacrifices, especially of little personal pleasures.

The true daughter of our college feels that service is required of her. She is planning to serve her country and humanity by teaching its childhood and youth. It is her great responsibility to influence them to become good citizens and, above all, true Christian men and women. The "Spirit of Alma Mater" drives her on, and helps her to live closer to her ideal.

At the end of this year, a large number of Sophomores will leave this institution of learning to go out into the state to teach. With them they will carry something which has meant much to them during their stay here at S. T. C. They will carry away with them the high ideals for which our Alma Mater stands, and the spirit of loyalty, friendliness, and service will remain with them always.

"All hail, Alma Mater, Dear Mother, to thee,
Thy daughters, true, faithful, and loyal will be."

THE PIERIAN LITERARY SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING

The Pierian Literary Society held its regular meeting Friday night, January 28. The president made a speech of welcome to the new members, who were quite thrilled, for their president told them that they had been chosen because of their abilities and that great things were being expected of them. The new members are:

Ruth MCarn	Nellie Stephens
Etta Marshall	Evelyn Russ
Elizabeth Sawyer	Blanche Morrill
Grigsby Peck	Elizabeth Eikelberger
Lucille Norman	Sammy Scott
Perniele Byrd	Louise Marshall
Hazel Bromm	Virginia Gurley
Audrienne Lane	Nellie Murray
Beth Bryan	Frances Wilson
Alice Cole	Drema Chambers

After the new members had repeated the pledge and received their pledge ribbons, the officers for this quarter were elected. For president, Mildred Lohr was re-elected.

Vice-President ..... Mary C. Royall
Secretary ..... Alice Wiley
Treasurer ..... Margaret Hansel
Critic ..... Louise McCormick

GOOD NEWS

Much enthusiasm is being shown throughout the College over the prospects of soon having the new Y. W. C. A. and Student Council rooms in the Student Building. They will be ready for use by the fifteenth of February. The secret of just how they will be arranged and furnished is yet to be revealed to most of us. All of us know, however, they are going to be the very best we have ever seen. We are grateful to Dr. Jarman and Miss Mary for their untiring interest in making the school beautiful. We hope that we may, in a small measure, show our appreciation of them.

HAMPDEN-SIDNEY TO MEET WAKE FOREST

The basketball team of Wake Forest College, Wake Forest, N. C., will play the team from Hampden-Sidney here on Friday, February 4. The game will be played in the S. T. C. gymnasium.

One side of the gymnasium will be reserved for the North Carolina Club who will help lead the cheers for Wake Forest.

SUNSET'S MAGIC

Sunset on the ocean
And all the world is still—tenseJ
Waiting for evening's greatest miracle;
The sea is calm;
There is no sign of life,
Save where some steamer,
Lone upon the sea,
Sends up a smoke cloud
To darken the horizon;
The sky is blue and white and gold—
Gold as the scattered dust
From angel's wings—
And over all is cast a rosy hue;
A tang of salt air rises heavenward;
My heart o'erflows with longing,
Longing for sky and sea and sand,
Longing for blue and white and gold,
And a sea breeze—which means "Home."
The breeze comes—
The air stirs, slowly shaking off its bonds,
And the sun sinks to rest.
The magic spell is broken;
Slowly I rub the cobwebs from my eyes;
The sky is still the sky;
The sea—a gray tin roof;
And thes moke comes not from a distant ship,
But from a huge chimney on the power house.
What tricks our imaginations play at sunset!

BIRDSONG

Last night
There were no stars
And I did not see a silvery moon.
Today—
There was no sun
And the dark sky
Wet the violets and mignonette
With her tears. . .
But at twilight
In the still time of today
I heard a bird
Singing thru the rain.

"APPEAL TO THE GREAT SPIRIT."

God of the hilltops, forest and trees,
God of the sunshine, songbirds and bees,
Nelti thy servant is speaking to you
In Indian tongue 'neath skys of blue.
Nelti is asking, Great Father of Man,
That you will send sunshine to brighten his land,
Sunshine and flowers, moonlight and stars.
Indian chieftains are seeking thy cause.
The Indians face brightened, arms lifted above,
For the God of the white man was sending him love.

A REVERIE

The clear cold ring of roller skates filled the air, and penetrated to the utmost parts of my brain. Memory, like an overwhelming tide, surged o'er me. Had not I, too, known the joy of flying along on my skates with the speed of the bird? Had not I often coasted down steep hills with the wind rushing by, and stinging my cheeks to crimson as it passed?

Well could I see the little rosy-cheeked girl with a light in her eyes from the real joy of living, and being in action. Was this bright-eyed girl my little sister, or was she the child that I used to be? Perhaps, she was both; perhaps, she is both. Perhaps, she is childhood, the spirit of childhood, itself, taking life as it comes, and meeting it gladly in passing, as she meets the wind rushing by.

Some clear, cold day in winter, I, too, shall get out my skates, rusted, perhaps, from disuse. I shall oil them until they glisten in the sun, and until their steel glitters like a sword blade, clean-cut and cruel. Then I shall fly down the hills, and the air will ring with the sound of my skates on the sidwalks.

Small children will stare, and old men will smile at a little girl as I pass. I shall not care! I shall feel the wind in my face again, and my lauqgh shall ring out on the frosty air. I shall be a child again, a child that will never grow up; but a child that will skate, and laugh, and sing for the sheer joy of living, and being in God's good world!

SACRAMENT

Why do they pity me?
True, the gold and crimson candles
Have burned to nothingness . . .
Shawdows like baby memories groping toward actualities
Flit, and droop bewildered at your feet.
Across the tea table, once a banquet-board,
With yellow cakes and yellow tea and mellow laughing flames.
You, across the barren cover and groping shadows
Offer me now . . . bread.
Blind fools . . . to be sorry for me!
I remembered yellow tea and yellow cakes and twilight candles.
(I remember one night . . . the perfect feast, the amber wine, Scintillating light of first understanding)
And because I remember, from your hands across the table
Tonight I take the proffered . . bread,
And, 'mid the groping shadows, make of it
My sacrament.

MEBANE HUNT

THE SWEETEST ONE, MEBANE HUNT

It is so easy to write a tribute to a great person we have never known personally, or even to such an intangible thing as the spirit of our Alma Mater. But how different it is to express in so small a space the affection and devotion to one near us! How can we find the words befitting a tribute for Mebane? She isn't a mediocre person, neither is she a mediocre president. In her leadership there has been enthusiasm mingled with tact and justice and dignity. In her fellowship constantly we have found sympathy and understanding. Once we loved Mebane for the beauty of her voice, but now we find in her a depth and sweetness far deeper and more lovely than the richness of her voice.

THEY'RE THE SENIORS

Full of fun and kindness, too,
Are the seniors;
Help you when you're feeling blue
Yes, the seniors.
They can work as well as play,
And just make things come your way,
We're all for them any day;
They're the seniors.

A true friend to everyone,
They're the seniors;
Always having lots'a fun,
Are the seniors.
They're the ones whose wits do shine,
They who made this life so fine,
Now they're leaving us behin'Y
Yes, the seniors.

MISS ILER, OUR CLASS MAN

There is, in our school, one whom everyone, especially the Sophomores, loves. Miss Iler is her name.

Never was there a more loyal, more democratic class man than our Miss Iler—always willing to help in any way; always cheerful and always standing for the fine and noble things in life and in our school. We all love her and offer her our love and loyal support in anything that she may undertake.

PREFERENCE

I had rather you would smite me
A blinding blow;
I had rather you would hate me
And I should know . . .
I had rather feel the torrent
Of fury spent
Than feel you, gentle and unknowing,
Grow . . . indifferent . .

Lorah Brewer '29

DREAMS

Through the shadows of the night
Soft and clear
Come to me faint sounds—
Can't you hear?

Through the window they come tripping
Ah, so light!
Tiny fairies dancing
In the night.

And I wonder what they are—
Can they be?—
Yes, dear heart, they really are
Your dreams of me.

—Julia Wilson

SET OF SUN

Banners of blazing colors streaming across the sky. Mother Nature with all her wonders marvels at herself. With lavish brush she splashed crimson and gold, violet and rose, colors of the flowers in the springtime, of the leaves in autumn, of fairy robes alight with jewels, of mermaids on the glistening rocks, of splendor of kings and princesses and sordidness of peasants poor; colors of the sound of the trumpet call and violin string, and deepest 'cello and sweetest flute, of sounds of wildest exultation on victorious battlefield, of weeping of baby-heart, fatherless; of roaring of waves beating against the shore, of gentle lapping of quiet lake round flowers' feet.

Dead trees are turned to bronze, crumpled leaves to gold. Huts become gilded palaces, dusty road a golden trail.

Cloudlets, tiny forms of angels' wings, infants in a realm of innocence, guard the majesty of the departing sun. They are flung from heaven's heights, clothed in untold beauty, proclaiming to the world their purity.

The grandeur fades away. The day is done.

LILACS

Yesterday
I saw you, dear,
With your dainty gown blowing
In the soft, sweet wind;
And today
I saw a lilac bush
With its green heart-shaped leaves
Dripping from an April shower.
And the flower-buds,
Fragrant with the sweetness of your heart,
Were the color of your gown
That was blowing in the wind.

STAR THOUGHTS

The stars were trying to tell me a tale
Last night when I looked at them,
They sparkled and sang, then seemed to pale
Like a flower when I broke its stem.

But just for a moment—again they twinkled
As only rare jewels can,
And down on this world sweet dreams they sprinkled
Oh, if I could only understand!

A Recipe

Take one natural-born fool, one high-powered motor car, and three or four drinks of "white mule". Soak the fool in the "mule", place in car and turn loose.

In due time, remove fool from the wreck, place in black satin box, garnish with flowers and serve cold.

A Word to the Wise

1. In taking Mr. Moss' classes never learn details or dates. He abhors them.
2. Miss Davis never requires a note book.
3. Always wear colored hose to Miss Ilers' classes.
4. Don't bother about the main topics for Miss Tucker.
5. Never expect to hear Dr. Marshall's thesis.
6. Always wait for Miss Stubbs to call on you.
7. Never flatter your supervisor.

A MESSENGER OF SPRING

You may think you're very smart because you think you tell in part when and how long 'twill be 'till Spring when about that fact you know nothing. I'm the guy who determines things, when flowers bloom and birdie sings and I'm the guy who's awful smart—I've never been penned or even caught. I'm no mediocre hog whose pen is full of mire and bog. I'm not exposed to rain or sun, my home is subterranean.

(Keep this little secret, please, for my conscience must be put to ease. I'm really afraid as I can be of that frightful thing which chases me. It's never there on a cloudy day, I come out all the time and play. But on a sunny one it's at my side and that's the time I run and hide. Of this I'm really scared a bit but I hope that you won't mention it.)

You think you've seen me, don't you now? Well if you have please tell me how? But I wonder just how flat you'll feel when I know you've never heard me squeal!

TREES IN WINTER

Trees in winter, I sometimes think
You're beautiful as those in summer.
I know your leaves are gone.
You're stiff and black in the chilling air,
But what a lovely lace you make against the sky!
Black lace, against a winter sky of grey—
And sometimes blue.
At night its patterns are traced on the moonlit snow.
And in the evening, black winter trees,
You stand, so bold and clear,
Against a sky of glowing gold
And silver.

Hannah Hamlett

AN APPRECIATION OF FRESHMAN ATTITUDE

Perhaps some of us remember that eventful night of November 20th, when that august body of "bold, bad Sophomores" called together the few inmates of the Freshman Class who just ouldn't comply to those set and drastic rules, somehow. And then there were the other four hundred and ninety-nine who had to come to the trial of their fellow-sufferers and pay the large sum of one cent so that the honorable Sophomores might make $7.07 (as it were) toward the Student Building.

It may be that the dignity of the jury, the prosecution by the attorney, and the attempt at solemnity by the Judge and other members of the court failed in its purpose to literally scare the defendants out of any other offense that might occur, but be that as it may—we want to thank all the Freshmen who gave us their support, both in a personal and financial way, for the wonderful attitude displayed, and their part in helping us put across our little "stunt of reprobation."

The Judge

FAMILY LIKENESSES

We were a congenial little family group as we sat at the dinner table. We had many things in common, how many we hardly knew ourselves.

"I think I will go to see Sallie tonight, since we haven't been for so long, and, besides, I want to take her that piece of silk she asked me for." Mother ended the conversation and rose from the table, "I'll go and look for it right now."

I could hear her as she looked in various places, and I judged that her besetting fault had asserted itself again, and, sure enough, it had. She appeared in the doorway and said, "Now, I remember, just as well as anything, putting that silk away where I could lay my hands on it in a moment, but I can't for the life of me think where it was." So I joined in the search, and finally found it tucked away in the farthest corner of the lowest drawer of her dresser. Of course I couldn't refrain from a little teasing, but she broke in on it and said, "Now, if you will run upstairs and get my coat and hat we will be ready." I mounted the stairs obediently; powdered my nose as usual, and presented myself at the foot of the stairs all ready to go.

"But where's my hat?" mother asked, and there, my besetting sin had asserted itself too. So I retraced my steps, allowed nothing to distract my attention from the clothing in question and performed my mission.

I met Father at the foot of the stairs and he was quite evidently perturbed. I didn't have to inquire as to what it was, for he greeted me with: "Now where in the world are my hat and gloves? I put them right here just before dinner and they've disappeared." So I dutifully searched the house over for the lost, strayed, or stolen, and finally found the sought-for articles on the porch steps.

And finally we were all three ready to go. As we stepped outside the door, I chuckled inwardly. Yes, we are a congenial little family group. We have many thing in common; how many we hardly know ourselves!

MON.—George Sidney, Charlie Murray and Vera Gordon in "THE COHENS AND THE KELLYS" one of the funniest featurese ever made. All the humor and side splitting laughter of a hundred thousand Cohens and several thousand Kellys has been captured in this perfect haracterization of these two famous families. It's a race picture with everybody in the cast racing to see which can provide the most laughs. Judged one of the best picturese of the year. Also Pathe News. Matinee at 4 o'clock.

TUES.—William S. Hart in his latest production "TUMBLEWEEDS" a romantic drama of the great west portrayed by the one man who really knows that vast territory, knows its people, their ways and the western code. An epic, not just a cowboy picture. Full of thrilling scenes and heart interest. Also good comedy.

WED.—Buck Jones and Eva Novak in "30 BELOW ZERO". Here is a picture with thrills to chill you—in this story of a square young man in a round of adventures—from red hot Broadway to the snow swept North. He always looked for trouble because trouble looked for him. Aesop Fable.

THURS.—Laura La Plante with Harry Myers and Alexander Carr in "THE BEAUTIFUL CHEAT" a special production from the Saturday Evening Post story by Nina Wilcox Putnam. It is an actress's own story of her rise to fame in the movies. iGrls! see the five different ways of making love as portrayed by Lura La Plante. Don't miss it! It's great! Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 oc'lock.

FRI. & SAT.—Ricardo Cortez, Greta Garbo, Tully Marshall and a great cast in "IBANEZ TORRENT" a special production. Life gave her beauty, riches and adoration—but her heart hungered for the love that always passed her by. Here is a great duman document—a frank insight into the heart of a famous beauty—unfolded against the brilliant background of Continental life and society. It is here now in a masterful screen production with an exraordinary cast. By th man who gave you "The Four Horsemen". Matinee each day at 4 o'clock. Good comedy with this picture.

THE ROTUNDA

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE, FARMVILLE, VIRGINIA

Volume VII. THE ROTUNDA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1927 Number 17

DR. SWAN DELIVERS INTERESTING LECTURE

Sent to Talk to the State Teachers Colleges by Board of Health

On Wednesday morning, February 2, as Dr. Jarman walked into Assembly with a man, a general twitter of "That's the man that talked here last fall, isn't it?" was heard on all sides. In answer to that question, it was the man that was here last fall, and we were all glad to have Dr. Swann, for that is "the man's" name, with us again. Indeed, we welcomed him with our southern hospitality, and his message with clear minds.

Dr. Swann hailed to us from Maine. The Virginia State Board of Health chose him to lecture to all of the State Teachers College in Virginia, and we ask, could they have made a better selection? Most emphatically, the answer is No!

In Assembly Wednesday morning Dr. Swann lectured on the general subject of "Social Hygiene," dealing more specifically with the sexual differences between men and women, boys and girls. He emphasized the fact that society was not men, not women, not boys, not girls, but men and women and boys and girls. And that to understand society we must understand sex, not as a subject to be pushed aside in awe, but as a subject to be clearly understood so that we may strike a "happy medium" between the two extremes, one of oversensitiveness to the subject and the other of over-familiarity.

On Thursday evening, Dr. Swann delivered another of his series of lectures in which he discussed "The Psychology of the Adolescent Child." This was an age, he explained, when a child was neither a baby, nor a man; he was at the great "in-between" age of extreme sensibility. In other words, he was in a state of mental as well as physical awkwardness. As a method of solving the so-called bad boy or girl, he advised an understanding mind, a friend to friend attitude, and an everlasting bond of sympathy. In fact, sympathy was the keynote of his entire address, for, as illustrated by a story that he told, Love and Life can endure only when united by Sympathy.

On Friday morning at 10:15 Dr. Swann gave an illustrated lecture in the Eaco Theatre, in which he showed that life can only come from life.

We are extremely fortunate in having had Dr. Swann with us, and regardless of how we welcomed him, we bade him adieu with an unbiased mind and a lingering hope that he would come to see us again.

STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE CLASS OF TWENTY-EIGHT

College—in big letters over the gate the word stood out. "Oh," cried the leader, "so this is the place for which we are searching—the place where (so we have heard in the far country from whence we came) knowledge could be gained. It is knowledge for which we seek." So saying the leader raised the iron clapper and the eager band wait in breathless silence.

At length, down the avenue of trees came a figure clad in flowing robes. It paused at the gate and spoke: "Who are you and whom do you seek?", asked the figure. "We are the class of twenty-eight," assured the leader, "and we seek entrance to your halls, where we may find knowledge." "Oh", assured the figure, "and did you know that down the hall that leads to knowledge there are many steps to climb. One must first ascend the stair of service, for until one learns to climb this flight, knowledge with success can never be attaind. Along the halls one must choose wisely his traveling companions. Fellowship, courage, strength, fortitude, sportsmanship and many others must be chosen for constant companions, or you will wander aimlessly into the by-paths and dark corners. One must grope one's way down dark corridors until at last he comes out into the light of unselfishness, or he can never succeed in finding knowledge. "Oh," cried the leader, "all this will we strive to do if only you will allow us to enter."

So the robed figure stepped back, threw open the gates that the class of '28 might enter. The first year many of the companions about which the stranger had spoken were sought. Sportsmanship, courage, and fellowship were found in athletics. There were many in the band that excelled in all sorts of sports. Through this the class of '28 won three Thanksgiving games and put its own colors on the athletic cup. This class knew that they would need guidance along the dark corridors and for this they chose Miss Carrie Spradlin.

They soon caught the spirit of the institution and when they returned for the second time they were eager to prove their love for their Alma Mater. This they did by giving to other seekers what they themselves had found.

Only a small number of the original band have returned for their degrees. Their accomplishments are yet to be told but they are searchnig for more of the things which the stranger told them lay hidden along the corridors.

Dedication

It is to you, dear classmates, who did not return, that we take great pleasure in dedicating this issue of the Junior Rotunda.

TO OUR CLASSMATES
WHO DID NOT RETURN

The warm rays, penetrating, pierc'd
Slender glistening grain.
Each timid one, shunning sun of noonday
Added to the seething, sultriness
Of a toilsome journey.
Courage and the God of the desert, soothed
Our thirsting souls, and we caravanned on.
You . . ill-fate or choice calling . . .
Wandered from our mecca.
Over the rolling sands, we glimpse the oasis;
Each day clarifies the vision . . .
O, that you were journeying with us!

M. C. R.

TO MR. McCORKLE

Who is it that knows when things go wrong?
Who greets each new day with a song?
Who strides along with rapid pace?
Meeting his trials with smiling face?
Whom do we love—one and all together?
This man who is happy whatever the weather,
He who will stick through thick and thin,
Meeting our problems, as big, with a grin,
Perhaps you have guessed, would you like me to tell?
McCorkle's the man whom we Juniors love so well.

SPANISH CLUB GIVES PLAY

At the meeting of the Spanish Club Tuesday night members of the Sophomore Class presented a delightful little play, "El Criado Astuto." The bright Spanish costumes added color and atmosphere. The cast was as follows:

La Senorita Angelita Louise Vaughan
Pablo, el criado ..... Lillian Rhodes
El Senor Seco .... Lavalette Morton

Isabel Macdonald read a paper on "El Cil" which was interpreted by Glayds Wilkerson. Afterwards games were played and refreshments served.

TO THE FRESHMEN

We wish to congratulate you on your issue of the Rotunda. It was a credit to your class and your sister class was proud of your ability displayed there. We appreciate your dedication to us and wish to take this opportunity of saying, "the Juniors thank you."

A school paper is a great invention.
The school gets all the fame;
The printer gets all the money,
The staff gets all the blame.

MR. CRONE ADDRESSES HISTORY CLASS HERE

Thursday morning ofl ast week Mr. Frank L. Crone, of Richmond, addressed the class in Latin American History. Mr. Crone was for several years Commissioner of Education for the Philippine Islands, and later served for four years as Minister of Education under the Peruvian government. He is known internationally as an authority in colonial affairs, especially in education. He spoke of the necessity of knowing the Latin American mind with its background in order to deal intelligently with the government and the people. He is frankly skeptical of the words "constitutional' and 'legal' in countries where constitutions as laws are suspended and enforced according to the whim of the executive whose only restraint is the judment of mob.

Very striking was Mr. Crone's distinction between the corrupion and fraud of public life and to the beautiful home life of Latin peoples. His hearers enjoyed to the fullest his explanation of "white terror" as a degree to which you were after any marked success.

DAN CUPID TO VISIT S. T. C.

Come and celebrate Saturday
At a Valentine cabaret;
Eat to the joy of music and song,
The dance; so bring a partner along."

Everyone loves to celebrate Valentine season by donig something unusual. Yet, it is often hard to find unusual things to do. However, the mystery has been solved. This is the secret. Dan Cupid has promiesd to come to the recreation hall Saturday from five-thirty until seven so all kinds of arrangements are being made to celebrate the occasion.

First of all, there will be food,—hot food and good food. That is, it will be termed good if one considers hot rolls, good meat, a salad, home made cake, ice cream and a hot dring as good. There may be more but that is enough to start on.

Then there will be good music to dance by between courses. There will also be a program to suit the occasion. And Dan Cupid may play a big part; who knows?

Give your "little sister" or your "big sister" or "your girl friend" a treat by taking her to the Valentine Cabaret Supper Saturday night.

A QUESTIONNAIRE

Which position do you occupy in your school?

Are you—
An attender—or an absenter?
A pillar—or a sleeper?
A wing—or a weight?
A power—or a problem?
A promoter—or a provoker?
A giver—or a getter?
A worker—or a worry?
A booster—or a boaster?
A peacemaker—or a strife creator?
A friend—or a fault-finder?
A helper—or a hinderer?

RADFORD BASKETBALL TEAM VICTORIOUS 22--9

Farmville Sextette Showed a Marked Improvement Over the First Game

Luck was against us Saturday night when a visiting team was again victorious. It was a fast game from begining to end. Both teams showed good passing and teamwork.

There is something more important however than victory and our team reached the highest pinnacle of good sportsmanship in playing the game clean, and victory without this essential brings little honor to a school.

There is an old saying that, "Everything comes to the man that waits," so if we will just wait and have faith in our girls they'll bring us the "buckeye" yet.

At the end of the first half the score was 13—4. In the second half our girls raised it to 9 but Radford's scor also climbed upward.

Captain White and Hatchett played an outstanding game with Gurley and Palmer in the center doing some nice pass work. Hardy and Rhodes played a hard game, but they were outmatched by Radford's strong guards.

The line-up:

Radford	Farmville
Ogburn F.	Hardy F.
Etheridge, F.	Rhodes, F.
Baylor, G.	Hatchett, G.
Fugate, G.	White, G.
Camper, J. C.	Gurley, J. C.
Mears, S. C.	Palmer, S. C.

Substitution: Radford—Gilby for Etheridge; Morrell for Fugate. Farmville—Smith for Rhodes; Rhodes for Smith.

THE WOMANLESS WEDDING

A very beautiful wedding took place in the S. T. C. auditorium last night when Miss Rosebud Delicatessen became the blushing bride of Mr. Hercules Haedlite. The head ushers were Dr. Walmsley and Mr. Walker Paulett.

After the guests had been seated, Miss Dabney Jarman entertained us with several selections on the violin. She was ably accompanied by Miss Kerns, of Hampden-Sidney. The maid of honor, Miss Julian Harris, wore a beautiful gown of yellow organdie. The matron of honor, Miss Georges Jeffers, was very bewitching in an orchid gown. She also wore a beautiful Italian shawl. The bridesmaids, Misses Thomas and Watkins, made a charming picture as they took their places around the altar. The little flower girls, Misses Garland and Dahl, were very attractive in dresses of green organdie.

Then came the bride. She was indeed beautiful! Her gown of white brocaded satin was cut low in the back. Her headdress was of white tulle and fell flowingly along the aisle. Many of the guests remarked upon the handsomeness of the groom, Mr. Coyner, and his best man, Mr. Waller Sanford, as they advanced to meet the bride.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

WHY SOPHOMORES COME BACK.

So many students enter school in their Freshman year with the idea of remaining in college for only two years. This is due in many cases to the fact that there are many courses offered in the curriculum of S. T. C. that require only two years for completion. Yet, when the September that marks the beginning of the Junior year comes, a large number of graduated Sophomores begin to consider seriously the idea of returning to their Alma Mater for the additional two years. When school opens it finds many of the Sophomores, that in June had given no thought to returning for their degrees, back once more. Why have these girls changed their minds? Because they have decided, after much thought, that the four year college course is the one that actually benefits most.

At the end of two years there are so many things that have been only begun and so many of the "like-to-have-taken" courses left in school. These "like-to-have-taken courses are in many instances the courses that would offer more real enjoyment to the would be teacher and would give her a more fully equipped preparatin for her work as a teacher. The last two years finish and round out the work begun in the first two. This work gives a clearer insight into and a broader conception of the subject. It makes possible the attainment of the goal set by every college girl—a degree!

A degree teacher is a boon to the entire educational system. A degree gives the opportunity for securing a much better school, which brings with it better environment, better equipment for work—and incidently more salary. Besides aiding the teacher a degree aids the pupil in like manner. The additional knowledge gained in completing the the prerequisites of a degree enables the teacher to have more to give her pupils and gives her a better understanding of them.

Besides its academic value a four year college course benefits the individual. It completes the ultimate aim of all education—making the individual. The last two years of college life bring out and develop the leadership and responsibility that have been in a dormant stage during the Freshman and Sophomore years. Personality is constantly in th making and the dignity of the upper classman years does much to develop it more fully. These are a few of the thoughts that fill a Sophomore's mind from June to September. Therefore—

Sophomores Come Back!

THE CAMPUS AND YOU.

All of us have been enjoying the beautiful spring-like days that have characterized the week just past. As spring approaches we just love to spend our time out doors walking about the campus. But have we felt a discordant note in the midst of our enjoyment? Girls, have you noticed the condition of the campus recently? There are bits of paper here and bits of paper there; there seems to be a general collection of unsightly trash scattered about to mar the appearance of the lawn of our college home. There are days that aren't so spring-like and beautiful—days when we have to stay indoors, and we wander up and down halls. But do you know there is a strange similarity between the halls and this similarity lies in the presence of paper—candy and chewing gum wrappers and tiny bits of torn note paper? Don't you think it's up to us to do something about this generally unsightly appearance of things? If we would put our trash in the cans provided for that purpose, and if we would cooperate further by picking up the paper that some one else has carelessly dropped, we would be surprised to see how much we had helped to improve the appearance of the lawn and the halls of our college home. Let's see how much we can accomplish in the way of improving conditions.

INDIFFERENCE.

Shakespeare tells us of the professional grave diggers of his time. Only a minutes' thought is required to locate an appalling number of grave diggers in our student body. No, do not conjure up visions of haunted houses and dark cemeteries. Our grave diggers do not bury men with shovels and spades. They bury ideas, hopes, dreams and real constructive work towards making our school better, under a blanket of an "O, what's that to me" attitude. Criticize if you will. Favorable criticism, if sincere, is always welcome. Adverse criticism, if just, might even prove more helpful but if one cannot exert himself to the extent of being genuinely interested enough to help, them he could at least hide this desire to do nothing.

It does not make us attractive nor do we give any hint of the worldy wisdom which some of us would assume when things are discussed which we are too lazy to think about and we treat someone's hopes and plans with utmost indifference.

Upon looking inward, if we find that we are one of the grave digger's profession, then the first thing to do is to think. If we put serious thought upon ourselves and upon our own attitude, before we realize it w will become interested in plans which really amount to something. Following on the heels of this new interest will come a desire to accomplish things. When that desire comes to the heart of all of us or to the hearts of many of us, it means a dawning of a new day in our school.

A VALUABLE ASSET

There are two kinds of senses of humor. The sympathic kind which can appreciate the funniness of self as well as of other people; and the kind which laughs longest and loudest at other people, but which does not even giggle when the laugh is on it. This is the kind which can never be found when it is really needed and which has to be coaxed back with apologies. This is really not much better than none at all, and a great deal more trouble, but not quite, for to lack a sense of humor is a tragedy within itself.

I often used to wonder what it would feel like not to have a sense of humor. That was before I learned that even the most highly developed sense of humor sometimes strays off to parts unknown and leaves you with a blank feeling and a hurt where the humor ought to be. But where does it go, you ask? So do I. And why should so valuable a sense leave you when it is most needed? I suppose that it runs away and hides just to show us that it is valuable and that we should be perfectly miserable without it. When we have discovered the fact it comes skipping back and we are once more invulnerable to the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune."

TEA DANCE

Come one—Come all! Who? You and your sister and your girl friend. Where? "Rec." When? Thursday, February 10 at 4:00 o'clock. Why? 'Cause if not you'll miss one of the happiest dances of the "season." Hampden-Sidney orchestra will produce the music. You come and help manufacture the fun!

(SYSTEM)—A FABLE

He narrowly missed getting up at the regular time; narrowly missed being to breakfast on time. He narrowly missed being cross with the family, but he might as well have been, because he was not agreeable.

He narrowly missed exeeding the speed limit; narrowly missed a pedestrian or two. (He will do better next time). He narrowly missed arriving at the office on time, and narrowly missed doing his work as it should have been done.

He almost was late to a golf engagement, and almost beat the train across the track. Two ambulances narrowly missed getting the remains, but there was another ahead of them. He narrowly missed being late to the funeral, because they thought it was to be at 2:30 instead of 2:15. He narrowly missed getting to Heaven.

All bec ause he started late and never quite caught up. He didn't have time. He was like thousands of others, who have all the time there is, but never enough, because he missed the importance of system.

DAWN

I was clothed in the flowing robes of night
As I sailed to the land of Nod.
I was leaving the cares of the world behind,
To be with my dreams—and God.

Then morning came—I know not whence—
And I dropped again to earth,
But the far ideals of the dawning day,
My dreams of the night gave birth.

MASQUERADING

She stood on tip toe in order to peep in the oval mirror that hung over the little lacquer cabinet. One last peep before she covered, with a mask, the rather wistful little face peering at her from the glass. It was not a beautiful face, not even a very pretty face. The nose had a tiny bit too much of an upward tilt. The mouth was a trifle too large but was saved from ugliness by its curves that would crinkle up into a smile despite the owner's desperate attempt at seriousness, though we must acknowledge it was almost drooping just now, almost not quite. But the eyes—perhaps it was the eyes after all that made the little face such a dear little face and caused it to come so close to being pretty! No they were not soulful brown eyes, nor were they shy blue eyes—they were just grey eyes, very honest grey eyes that could be very full of laughter or very full of sadness. And the owner of such eyes must surely be—and she was named Betty.

Betty stood back from the mirror and viewed herself at a distance. She wore a red cape, that came to the bottom of her dresses, and a hood fitting down over her face, which in fact when entirely on almost hid her completely. From the costume and the basket she carried one would instantly decide that little Red Riding hood pulled down—the disguise was glass before leaving for Grandmother's house! Yes you would guess right, only it wouldn't be Grandmother's house at all in this case, but to a masquerade dance at the country club.

At last the mask was on and the hood pulled down—the disquise was complete. "Now", she exclaimed, "Grady will never know me. He's awfully mad with me," she added. "I don't believe he'll ever want to know me. Well, if such little things as my going on that house party with Bob Marsden make him mad then I won't care. No I won't", she repeated with the stamp of one small foot for emphasis.

The whirr of a motor engine, hurried footsteps on the verranda, a peel of the bell proclaimed Bob's arrival. Another peep in the mirror and Betty ran to meet him at the door.

"Oh, Bob, you're late," he cried.

"I know it, I had trouble with the confounded engine down on the Branchfort road. The proverbial engine trouble, Betty", he laughted. "Let's snap it up and we'll get there just in good time, the musc will be just right. Gee, Betty, no wonder the Wolf ate Red Riding Hood! Jove, if she looked like you I'll say the beast had jolly good taste! How do I look as the Wolf? Ferocious enough? Isn't he frightened, though—I won't eat you—even though I'd like it," he added.

She laughed and ran past him down the steps to the waiting car, its motor throbbing rythmically.

A whirl through the crisp air and white moonlight, and they were already approaching the lighted club house with its car-lined driveway.

Whirl of color, with its varied costumes,—clowns, painted dolls, lords and ladies, wood nymphs and elves. The Orient and Occident met and danced together 'neath the shaded lanterns. Dames of colonial days with stately sweep of hoop skirts and powdered heaps above their partner's shoulders danced to the strains of modern watzes with Highland Laddies in kilts. Pierrot and Pierrette were everywhere among the dancers.

Betty threw herself into the spirit of it with all her soul. She laughed and talked with each new partner yet was aware that something was lacking. Somewhere way down deep inside of her there was an empty place that just wouldn't stop acting, no matter how much she danced or laughed. There was a thought which kept coming back as such thoughts have a habit of doing. This was the first dance that she had even been to that Grady hadn't asked her if he might take her, and he hadn't even danced with her tonight, not once. There was one thought which consoled her. He didn't know her costume, she had kept that from every one except Bob, and he had sworn secrecy.

She watched Grady as she danced, she knew him, for Bob had let the cat out the bag (to use the poor bagged up cat again for illustration). He wore the costume of a court jester and it was the only such costume on the floor. She had watched the tall jester all evening and to her dismay he was as gay as any court jester that ever sent the king and his court off into gales of laughter. Then too he had been terribly atttentive to the little yellow butterfly with the gauze wings!

She slipped away to the dressing room—why waste sighs on Grady? He very apparently was far from wasting any on her.

She was coming from the dressing room when just beyond a tall screen of palms she backed into someone and turning faced squarely into the jester. She tried to avoid him but he was bowing before her and there was nothing left but to dance with him. She feared to speak lest her voice give her away and she dared not meet his eyes lest her own betray. She scarcely knew what he said or what he answered him till suddenly she awoke to the fact that Grady was flirting with her, flirting outrageously! So this was the way he talked to all other girls he met and danced with, of course he could not know it was she he was dancing with! All at once she was furious with him. With a bitter cry she snatched the mask from her face and confronted him. But to her amazement he showed no surprise. "Oh," cried Betty, "so this is the way you talk to all the girls you meet!"

A moment they stared at one another then she was gone. Somehow she found Bob and begged him to carry her home.

A roar of the engine and she was glad of the cold biting air in her face. She only knew she was flying through the night away from the dancing whirling crowd, the lights and music, away from insincerity and she never wished to return.

A flash of lights, a screech, a rending, tearing, grinding noise a shattering of glass with a jolt which threw her clear of her seat and all was darkness.

Someone was calling her, very far away, ever so far, she scarcely heard them, then closer. Why, it was Grady's voice, Grady, why what had happened? Then she remembered. She had been so mad with him—she was sorry now and she wanted to tell him so. Fusses were such silly things and never got anyone anywhere, and now. Well, she must open her eyes and tell him she wasn't hurt, only he deserved to be kept waiting. She smiled slowly and opened her eyes.

"Grady," she said, "did you know all the time who I was?"

"Yes, all the time", he said; "Betty, we were both just masquerading."

Johanna White and Johnny Black
Were wed one summer day,
And when their little daughter came,
The called her Nellie Gray.
A la Coyner

No wonder straight lines are in vogue with the fair sex. An Arkansas journal reports: "Woman Killed When Bus Hits Her on Curve"!

Will you give me a kiss
He asked the Miss,
And she nodded her sweet permission.
So they went to press
And well I guess—
They printed a whole edition.

Liz Williams and Liz Armfield met in the next world: "Hello, Williams, how did you get here?" "Flu", replied the other.

Moon: "What is 'The Call of the Wild'?"
Shine: "There are two of 'em; the midnight call is Madishon, shix-shix-four-four (Yellow Cab), and the noon call is Aspirin, oh Aspirin, how my head aches for thee!"

Ferree, on street car: "Postpone me at the next stop, please sir."

George—"Are you fond of puppies?"
G. Jarman—"This is so sudden."

Sutherlin (In Bible class): "Do you know the parables?"
E. La Boyteaux: "Yes ma'am."
Sutherlin: "And which of the parables do you like best?"
E. L. B.: "I like the one where somebody loafs and fishes!"

If when we wrote:
No mon'
No fun
Your son
The answer came back:
Too bad
Too sad
Your dad!
I wonder

Lives of Seniors all remind us
We should strive to do our best,
And departing leave behind us
Notebooks that will help the rest.
—Ray

The ocean wearily exclaimed:
"Incessantly I go
I wonder that I don't get corns
Upon my undertow."

The orchestra softly played
"Kiss me again."
She gazed into his eyes
And breathed a sigh:
"You dance like a poem,"
She said.
"Yes, yes, go on" he Murmured.
"An Amy Lowell poem,
The feet are all mixed up!"
She answered.

I lie in my bed and I look in your face,
But there is no tenderness there—not a trace.
I hate you! I hate you! You trouble my dreams.

Through you, life a feverish lunacy seems;
As heartless as Fate and as hard as a rock—
Ye gods! There you go, striking eight o'clock.

Paul Revere was the first radio fan. He broadcast with one plug.

A DUES DITTY

The rose is red
The violet blue;
This little bill
Is overdue.
So pay it now—
Dont wait till when
The rose and the violet
Bloom again.
For if you do
Delay it thus,
No violets
Will bloom for us.
Unless you pay,
The rose will rest
Upon our fair
And manly chest.
The birds will sing,
But what of that?
W shall not hear them
Where we're at.
So come across;
We need the dough
Not in the spring
But now you know.
The rose is red
The violet blue;
Do we need the cash?
I'll say we do.
This might be taken seriously by all those who haven't payed their class dues.

JUNIORS RANK WELL IN ATHLETICS FOR 1926

Heretofore everyone has regarded upper classmen athletic activities more or less as a joke. However, this year the Juniors decided to try mighty hard not to be that joke. Although not winning any championships in class athletics, they played in all finals except basket ball.

In tennis singles Dulaney won in semi-finals, but lost to Morris in the finals. In doubles Woodson and Dulaney arrive at finals but lost to a close score to the Sophomores.

The support of the hockey team was unusually good considering the fact that it was a new sport. In the Junior-Senior game, the Juniors won by a score of 2 to 0. They then played the Soohpmores for the championship and lost 2 to 1.

In basketball the Juniors put up a hard fight, but the Seniors won 22 to 13.

The class is proud to have one member, Mary Clements, on the Honorary Hockey Varsity. Those in the class winning the old English "F" are: Elizabeth Armfield, Evelyn Dulaney, and Frances Volk; and those who achieevd monograms are: Elia Putney, Elizabeth Armfield, and Maud English.

THE MAN BEHIND THE SMILE

I don't know how he is on creeds,
I never heard him say;
But he's got a smile that fits his face
And he wears it every day.

If things go wrong he won't complain
Just tries to see the joke;
He's always finding little ways
Of helping other folk.

He sees the good in everyone,
Their faults he never mentions;
He has a lot of confidence
In people's good intentions.

No matter if the sky is gray,
You get his point of view;
And the clouds begin to scatter
And the sun comes breaking thru.

You'll know him if you meet him,
And you'll find it worth your while
To cultivate the friendship of
The "Man Behind the Smile."

A FAREWELL ADDRESS

Now that you would leave me
And another woo,
Was it you that told me once
Lovers should be true?

Was it you that told me
Dear, I still believe in love
But no more—in you!

THE WOMANLESS WEDDING

Rev. T. A. McCorkle officiated. When the Rev. McCorkle asked for objections to the wedding, Mr. Ernest Garland offered his opposition to the marriage by the dreadful declaration that he had given this young lady a box of Sears and Roebuck's choicest candies fifteen years ago. However, Mr. Shannon announced that he was financing this wedding and that it must go on.

When the blushing bride left the auditorium she threw her bouquet into the air. It landed in the lap of Miss Ann Archer Irving. We wonder if Miss Irving will make as beautiful a bride as Mrs. Rosebud Delicatessen Moss Coyner did?

MON.—Reginald Denny with Marion Nixon, Otis Harlan and Zazu Pitts, in the special production, "WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES." He stole the bride and kidnapped the bishop and then—what happened to Denny in "What Happened to Jones." is a plenty. It will keep you howling with joy and glee. It is a reckless, rollicking comedy that will give you the laughing jag of the year. You won't know what joyous, unconfined laughter is until you've seen Denny in this picture. Also Pathe News. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

TUES. & WED.—Mary Pickford in "SPARROWS" her latest big special production. Here they are Mary and her brodo in "Sparrows." Mary as the whole world loves her, Mary as the hoyden, the protector, the fighter. Mary in her greatest achievement a document of joyous laughs and happy tears. A Mary whose drama thrills you and holds you in a thrall of breath-catching suspense. Here is drama and suspense such as you find once perhaps in a genration of pictures. Also good comedy. Mat. each day at 4 o'clock.

THUIS.—Mary Philbin, Elliot Dexter and a most excellent supporting cast in the special production, "STELLA MARIS". What would you do if—two men loved you and you were in love with both? If you made your decision but—the man you cared most for was already married? If you'd lost your faith in humankind and regained it again? If you want the answer to all these questions see Mary Philbin as beautiful Stella Maris. It's a picture you'll glory in and take to your heart. Also good comedy. Mat. at 4 o'clock.

FRI. & SAT.—Norma Shearer in "THE DEVIL'S CIRCUS" with Charles Emmett Mack and Carmel Myers in the supporting cast. This is a special production in which you will see a great star in a film masterpiece. This is a drama that unfolds behind the scenes of the circus. You'll be thrilled as seldom before by this picture, which mirrors the heart-beats, the tears and joys of humanity. There will be a good comedy with this picture each day, and there will be at matinee each day at 4 o'clock. Mat. prices are less than night prices. Please come Friday to avoid crowding on Saturday nights.

S. T. C. girls admission prices are 25c to each show.

CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS TO APPEAR AT S. T. C.

To Present Their Own Folk Plays in Auditorium on February 24

On February 24 the Carolina Playmakers, who make frequent tours of the state, presenting not only their own plays but others of the best quality, will appear at S. T. C.

These plays are based on native history, legend, and tradition. Local as they are in their sources and settings, many of them embody so much of the universal that they are being produced in various parts of the country.

The Carolina Playmakers is the dramatic organization of the University of North Carolina which, since it was founded in 1918, has attracted the attention of thoughtful critics and of the public throughout the country.

During the past nine years The Playmakers have produced 46 of their original Carolina Folk Plays by thirty different authors.

They have made 23 tours, playing in every nook and corner of their own state and beyond its borders into Georgia as far south as Savannah, and north to Baltimore and Washington, D. C.

They now have their own well-equipped theatre building on the campus of the University. Here they mount productions of the best plays written by their young playwrights. In this way they are conserving and interpreting in new dramatic forms the life and tradition of their state.

The Washington Post says: "Recently we spent a magical evening with the Carolina Folk-Plays. They are dynamic in their dramatic sweep, and touched with beauty so unlike the artificial clap-trap that we are accustomed to see in the professional playhouse that we feel it a solemn duty to call the attention of the serious theatregoer to this fellow Koch and the plays he has collected and published."

RUSSIAN CHOIR GIVES GOOD PROGRAM

A long to be remembered occasion by those who heard it will be the concert given by the Russian Choir, in the auditorium, Friday night.

This group was composed of well trained artists, who rendered a program far superior to those we genorally have an opportuntiy to hear.

The program was divided into three parts: first, Religious Songs; second, Classical Selections, and third Folk Songs;. Each part seemed better than the one which went before. The Folk Songs probably appealed to the audience more because of the unusual rythm which ran through them.

The entire student body extends a vote of thanks to Dr. Jarman for making it possible for us to hear such a delightful program.

INTERESTING CONFERENCE HELD IN RICHMOND

Discuss Many Problems at the Y. W. C. A. Meeting

They say the most wonderful things in this life—the most truly beautiful things are neither printed nor spoken, but are sensed, and then they disappear. We find it better so. VIRGINIA

As someone recently said, "Virginia is like a vast hall hung with rich tapestry." Her citizens live in the midst of a greater wealth of tradition than do those of any other state. Encroaching commercialism has not destroyed the fine old country places of Colonial times. Virginians hold these things priceless, and rightly so.

It is very well known that Virginia was the first permanent English settlement, that she was the first colony to have a legislative assembly, that the first blow for freedom was

FARMVILLE WINS GAME FROM FREDERICKSBURG

At the Long End of Score for First Time This Season on Opponents' Court

Our varsity met with wonderful success when they journeyed to Fredericksburg to match their strength with a strong opposing team. The Farmville girls started out with the determination to win and took the lead from the start, and the Fredericksburg girls were unable to gain on them. The game was an unusually fast one; both teams showed good team work, but it was evident from the first that the Farmville team had the upper hand. Both teams fouled very little, and the game was noteworthy for the good sportsmanship shown on both sides. The Farmville forwards seemed to be able to locate the basket easily and consistently, while the Fredericksburg centers played an oustanding game, and they were well supported by all the members of their team.

At the end of the first half the score was 15—8 in favor of Farmville, and in the second half, goal after goal was shot until at the final whistle the score stood 29—15 in our favor.

The line-up:

Fredericksburg		Farmville
Drufus	R. F.	Hardy
Belote	L. F.	Wilkinson
Brown	J. C.	Gurley
Hagan	S. C.	Palmer
Wilkins	R. G.	Hatchett
Johnson	L. G.	White

Substitutions: Fredericksburg—Squires for Brown, Norris for Belote.

DR. JOSEPH L. JARMAN

Dr. Joseph L. Larman, President of our college, has made a great contribution to Virginia in connection with education, and particularly in connection with the State Teachers College, Farmville, Virginia. The history of the educational renaissance in Virginia, which has taken place in the last thirty years, is the history of the work of wise and courageous leaders, among whom Dr. Jarman ranks near the top.

Dr. Jarman has contributed greatly to the constructive educational work of the 'State, and has been honored both at home and in other states; but we who know him best honor him for his loving and sympathetic personality.

Dedication

With love and gratitude for the benefits derived as students, preparing for future service, in one of her institutions, we dedicate this issue of The Rotunda to the State of Virginia.

SENIORS HAVE TEA DANCE

On Thursday night, February 10, the Senior Class gave a tea dance in the Recreation Hall. The music was furnished by a six-piece orchestra from Hampden-Sidney. Although the dance lasted for only an hour it was very good not only because of the good floor, but especially because of the excellent music.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The members of the Debating Club wish to express their appreciation to the members of the faculty and student body who so willingly cooperated in the presentation of the Faculty Take-Off.

CABARET SUPPER IS AN UNUSUAL ATTRACTION

Lights covered with red lent a rosy glow to the Recreation hall Saturday evening. The occasion was a cabaret supper, for the benefit of the Student Building. The color scheme of red and white was carried out giving due honor to St. Valentine. Hearts, big, little, and middle-sized were hung in profusion from the lights and windows.

During the supper, and after, entertainment was offered in the form of songs and dances by some of our favorite performers. Music during the supper was furnished by the Hampden-Sidney orchestra.

Last but not least was the food. It was home-made. One need hardly say more. Except that it was easy to see how it was appreciated from the expressions on the faces of the diners.

A number of girls who did not attend the supper, come to the Recreation hall for the program, and a chance to dance to orchestra music. The Carbaret Supper proved to be one of the most attractive events that has been put on this year.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

THE SENIOR HEART.

A great heart has more than three component parts, but all sections of a heart are never visible to the same persons or groups. We give you a heart. Will you look at it and know that in the center of the heart of State Teachers College are the Seniors? Four years within its walls; four years of giving and sharing the best and finest we have found; four years of cooperation as a class, as members of organizations, as leaders in the student body; four years, and the Senior Class has grown into the heart of the college. Four years,—and the spirit of Joan of Arc grows clearer and more intense! Her inestimable fineness of character, reverence to a higher calling, and noble aspirations,—these are the qualities the Seniors would embody. These are the qualities personfied and magnified in the personality and long service of our own Dr. Jarman to Alma Mater and Virginia.

Our Alma Mater, in the heart of Virginia, is a growing institution, breathing its soul into young womanhood. The Senior's heart, then, must include Alma Mater; it must embrace the great commonwealth of Virginia. Each Senior must imbibe something of the fineness of the college and must be keenly aware of the needs of the State that she may transmute her knowledge into constructive use. This year, wt present the Heart of the Senior Class to Virginia, and pledge our service to the Old Dominion.

LEADERSHIP

In college, we are so busy studying, working, and having a good time that there is rarely time or place to do very much meditating. However that may be, I dare say that each Senior, at least, has asked herself this question, "Why have I spent four years at college?" The answers would be as different and as numerous as the number of Seniors on roll. Perhaps all of them would, in the final analysis, amount to this, "I have prepared to lead, and in leading, to serve others." Thus, we develop leadership and the ability to guide others along the upward way.

"Leadership that depends for preeminence upon self-confidence alone will be at best transitory. If it brings material rewards, they will be attended by dishonor. Leadership that has both self-confidence and self-control as basic principles will be lasting, will win rewards, will be productive of honor.

"Such leadership means worldly success and meets with popular approval. To understand, however, whether such is the highest form of leadership, we need only to turn to the life of the great Examplar. He is the Light, the Truth, the Way. As the Son of God, He was conscious of His power. There were many tones in the harmonious Life, but the keynote was self-sacrifice. Self-sacrifice recgnizes the need for responsibility. Self-sacrifice recognizes the need for patience. Self-sacrifice recognizes the need for sympathy. Leadership under the spell of this great power must be magnetic. Self-confidence, then, is creative, self-control restrictive, self-sacrifice persuasive. Leadership that possesses all three qualities cannot fail to bring success with honor and peace."

TRI-SIGMA IS VISITED BY MISS M. L. WALTON

Mabel Lee Walton of Woodstock, Virginia, visited and inspected the Alpha Chapter of Sigma, Sigma, Sigma February 7, 8, 9, and 10.

Miss Walton has been engaged in sorority work since she was initiated into the Gamma Chapter of Tri-Sigma at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Virginia, and has been national president of Sigma, Sigma, Sigma for the past fourteen years. She, through her experience as an officer, is well prepared to understand the problem of the undergraduate and is able to give much valuable help and information.

On Monday, February 7, the Alpha Chapter of Tri-Sigma gave a banquet in honor of Miss Walton in the tea room. A color scheme of purple and white was carried out in the menu, decoration, and favors. Miss Walton was presented with a corsage of double voilets.

On Tuesday afternoon Miss Elizabeth Newton was hostess at a delightful tea given in "Mabel Lee's" honor.

On Wednesday, the Alpha Chapter of Sigma, Sigma, Sigma entertained at an informal tea in the Student Building. The guests included: Mrs. Wm. Dunnington, Mrs. P. W. Beckham, Mrs. C. B. Crute, Mrs. George Richardson, Mrs. E. R. Booker, Mrs. E. Newton, Mrs. R. H. Potts, Misses Stubbs, Peck, Mrs. Laing, Mrs. Warren, Miss Mary White Cox, Mebane Hunt, Frances Willis, Louise Foster, Frances Sale, Alwyn Hughson, Edith Cornwell, Evelyn Dulaney, Louise McCormick, Mary Christian Royall, Jeannette Johnston and Gladys Huband.

Miss Walton left Thursday for Tallahassee, Florida, where she will inspect Rho Chapter.

RESERVE

Reserve is the armor
The shy soul puts on
As a shield, against
The javelin thrusts and sword pricks
Of a seemingly harsh world.

Or it may be a shell,—
Into which the coward crawls
When the tacks of life become difficult
And there is need for action.

Sara Spiers

YOUTH

He has breasted the hill at last,
And smiles at the cool breeze blowing
The strands of hair from his sweatless brow
"'Tis life! I'll conquer!" I hear him vow.
To whsper life's warning is useless, and now
He faces life's trials unknowing.

I thrill at his courage and faith!
To ecstasy rise with his joy!
Unshackled and free I watch him go,
I shudder—and though life's battles, I know,
Must be fought alone—still I whisper low—
"Keep faith,—keep faith—Boy!"

A SENIOR ANSWERS AND WONDERS

You, too, wonder what Seniors think of when they are walking down the aisle in Chapel. We even dared imagine ourselves in the places of Seniors who have gone before us. As Freshmen, we were awed. As Sophomores we were proud of a sister class. As Juniors, we just existed until we, too, might wear caps and gowns. Caps and Gowns! Marks of distinction, emblems of four years of work, play, tears, and smiles. Caps and tassels, gowns and eyes downcast or straight ahead, thinking about,—what?

Often, we perhaps aren't thinking! Now, there's nothing tragic in that. If you had been thinking for a quartet of years—

The primitives and age old thought on that memorable morning was "Is my cap on straight?" or "I know that the highest heels on my newest shoes will get tangled in the gown and I have mental pictures of myself sliding all the way down the aisle." Perhaps, with many, it was, "I wish ——(fill in, per choice) were here. Uh—he'd probably like me; really, my hair looks unusually well, blonde against this black cap." Throbbing, jumping gowns on left shoulders, vibrating with each beat of palpitating heart,—that was the first morning!

Sometimes we think of Mothers and Dads, of best friends that sigh a huge, long-drawn, enviously proud sigh as they gaze at us. If we frown, Senior test records may recently have been fatal, or it may be one of those times when the world is gloomy and we ask resignedly "What's the use?"

But if our eyes glow, we're seeing the student body, the faculty, and Dr. Jarman. We're knowing that in his smile, Dr. Jarman is spreading the cheer and the fineness of the Spirit of S. T. C. To us there comes a vision of white State Teachers College on a blue banner, of an athletic record of sportsmanship, good games, and fine cooperative spirit. We're hearing the voice of Alma Mater speak through students.

And if our eyes are dreamy, and faint, far-away smiles flit across our faces, we are visualizing the future, when, having gained knowledge and a real way of living, having had as an ideal and inspiration Joan of Arc, we shall be helping others to a finer realization of the meaning of life. There is half a sigh for those who follow and a hearty wish that their way may be as glad and as worthwhile as ours has been.

All of us are alike, yet so different, that we couldn't possibly think alike. Do you wonder now? Four years! And I, too, wonder.

CONGRATULATIONS

The Senior Class wishes to congratulate the Freshmen, Sophomores, and Juniors on their success in editing their class issues of The Rotunda. In all that you do in future years we wish you as great success as you have attained in this undertaking.

THE INFLUENCE

It thrills me through the weary hours,
That smile I saw one day,
When everything was dark ,and I
Was groping on the way.

They sound deep down within me still,
Those words you chanced to say,
Which changed the summer's warmth to chill,
And brought a winter's day.

It lingers with me all the while,
That song you sang to me,
That lifted up my weary soul
Above life's Calvary.

SONNETS

The Desire of the Moth

Enraged tools of God, so wild and free!—
The blinding, whirling, lashing silver rain
That falls from Heaven like cruel cries of pain,
That beats upon the earth and floods the sea!
The raging wind that blindly hurls aloft,
All man-made things and even the things of God;
The flashing streaks of fire that rend the sod—
At these great powers fools may blindly scoff . . .

Not I! For in my weak and trembling
They claim me for their own, their fated child.
They swiftly strike a fierce and wild desire
For quick attainment of my earthly goal,
For powers such as they exert—no mild
Endeavor, but a vast consuming fire!

The Doubt of Ages

The doubt of ages here on earth doth dwell,
And brain and heart of man must burn and ache;
Oppressed, he feels his own soul sob and quake.
The Fates will grin, and puny man will sell
His soul with shifting eye and cynic's gaze;
Will blaspheme Him whose tender love and care
Is near,—would dare, though aged with toil and pain,
Extend his hand to clear the tangled maze.

Hold fast, oh Dreamer of Dreams, and seek the power
Of Heaven's strength and peace; too soon, you, too,
May scorn the Will Divine and Tender Love.
O, drink the beauty of Life, of sun a nd shower
And see esconced in love and Heaven's blue
Awakening souls to praise the God above!

Rosalind Harrell

VESPERS

Day is done
And grayness settles down to earth.
Nature worships God,
Pouring out her heart to the Creator.
Come moments of quiet
And peace. . . . .
Gleam of candles, soft and shimmering,
Sweetest tones of music blending,
Lift one's heart in thankfulness
To God.

Rosalind H. Harrell

OUR PRESIDENT

If I could write a poem—I can't! But I can recognize one, and perhaps classify it. Virginia is a poem—an epic poem. All of the grandeur, the splendor, the grace and power, the sweeping force and beauty of composition, majestic of spirit and superb, courageous idealism that combine to make a poem an epic,—these very qualities make our President a leader, an epic symbolizing the finest hopes and aspirations of a Senior Class.

OUR HONORARY MEMBER

Endowed with the sweetest of smiles, the very bluest of eyes, and a purely golden heart; radiating cheerfulness and gladness, an inestimable fineness of thought and spirit that permeates the hearts and lives of every Senior, Miss Grenels typifies the spirit of Alma Mater, that of unselfish service and cheerful cooperation.

VIRGINIA

struck within her borders. During the one hundred and thirty-eight years of our national life, the presidential chair has been filled nearly one third of the time by native Virginians.

"Because of a fine loyalty to the Mother Country, Virginia earned for herself the title of Old Dominion. Because of her magnanimity, she is the Mother of States. Because of the leadership of her sons, she is the Mother of Presidents. But it is not pride in personal ancestry that inspires Virginia today. Her obligation is to defend and maintain the fundamental principles of a great country, and thereby win for herself another title, Virginia, First in the Heart of the Nation."

Virginia has almost every kind of topography and climate: the fertile and breeze-swept Eastern Shore, the cotton lands of the South Side, the beautiful vale of the Shenandoah, and the majestic mountain empire of the Southwest. She is free from persistent periods of abnormally hot or cold weather, and in no part of the state is the average rainfall insufficient for crop needs.

Virginia, n the fever of post-war restlessness, stands like a great "rock in a weary land." Communism, the hysteria of the jazz age, and the decadence of the home have found little sympathy from the sturdy and straight thinking patriots of the Old Dominion.

But, above all, because Virginia's citizenship is largely rural and intelligent enough to think for itself, the people have a high conception of the meaning and purpose of life. No people entertain their friends with better cheer and welcome, while strangers and travelers are treated in the most hospitable manner. In short, the people of Virginia not only live the best kind of lives themselves, but also consider it a high privilege to serve others.

FACULTY TAKE-OFF IS A BIG SUCCESS

Faculty Realistically Presented in Three Acts

On St. Valentine's night the student body and the faculty were entertained for about an hour at the faculty take-off. The take-off was in the form of a three-act play with a very weak plot. The plot was the momentous question, "Should S. T. C. students be allowed to avail themselves of the benefits, as well as the drawbacks, of cosmetics."

The first act was the faculty at assembly on Tuesday morning. Mrs. King, represented by Miss Mary Christian Royall, directed the singing. After the supposed student body had come up to the requirements of Mrs. King, Dr. "McCormick" Jarman read the notices. Miss "Hutt" Coulling made an announcement for the schelule committee and Mr. "Brewer" Coyner spoke in behalf of a benefit picture. Mr. "Scott" McCorkle then exhorted the students to put their pictures in the Virginian before the faculty should have the opportunity of depriving them of the right to use rouge. The faculty then calmly sat while the students marched out of assembly.

The scene of the second act was the faculty room on Tuesday night. Dr. Jarman congratulated the faculty on their punctuality before several members came in late, and then the minutes were read by the secretary, after which Mr. Coyner gave the report of the committee on cosmetics and the faculty plunged into a rigorous discussion. Mrs. "Royall" King threatened to leave if the girls could not use rouge; Miss "Pedigo" Stubbs insisted that oustanding girls didn't use it; Mr. Jeffers said that Pearl Button never used it; Mr. "Wiley" Moss said that only genuises knew how to use it; Miss "Codd" Lewis thought it was perfectly ridiculous that the girls used it; Miss "Overbey" Wheeler said that it was absurd, that the Chinese and Japanese did without it and so could we; Mr. "Hughson" Wynne said that Mrs. "Royall" King "got the point;" et cetera. Mr. "McCormick" Jarman called for a vote and announced that our girls would be deprived of the privilege of using rouge.

The third act took place on Wednesday morning in the various class rooms. Mr. "Woodson" Bowman gave his opinion on the subject to his classes; Mr. "Hopkins" Bell gave an account to his class, Miss "Cobb" Craddock, Miss "Liebman" Tucker, Miss "Graves" Davis, Dr. "Overbey" Marshall, and Dr. "Hughson" Wynne also talked at length with their classes on the subject.

CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS

The glory of a sunset on a far mountain peak,
The homely lure of blue smoke curling from a cabin chimney at twilight;
By night, the long, loud moan of billows on a wind-swept sea, never silent, tossing—
They catch up these into unforgettable
loveliness,
Into something strong, true, lasting—
A vague, indefinable something, which is Art.

Fresh Soph: "Say, Prof, when day breaks, where do the pieces go?"

It's all right to begin at the bottom—except when you're learning to swim.

Librarian: "Isn't this book rather technical?"

Frances Sale: "It was that way when I got it ma'm."

Professor (to student) : "Why are you so far behind in your studies?"

M. Grossclose: "So I can pursue them better."

Senior: "Do you think the English Prof is old?"

Freshman: "I know he is. He told me he once taught Chaucer."

Mr. Jeffers: "When is the season for shooting stars?"

M. Lohr: "Don't know, sir; I am not acquainted with the state's hunting laws."

When two school girls use a box of powder together, do you call it a partnership or a compact?

Professor: "I believe you missed my class yesterday."

A. L. Gwaltney: "Why, no I didn't, not in the least."

Dr. Marshall: "Why did Shakespeare become so famous?"

Lucy Haile: "He met an editor who was hard up for material."

E. Beckham: "In early youth we are taught to 'love one another.' Later on we learn to love one—and another."

Aunt Lucy: "Does y'all study with that Victrola going all the time?"

Betty Hopkins: "Sure we do."

Aunt Lucy: "Humph, I'd be studyin' 'bout somethin' else."

JOAN

While round about the seething throngs
Of babbling voices play,
Joan, the guardian of our halls
Sits there all silently.
Hush! babbling throngs, thy chattering moil
And listen, for perchance
Some voice may sound within thy soul,
Or some great vision glance.

The sunlight of her life has passed
To realms and worlds unknown;
But not the shades of influence vast
Which time can ne'er dethrone.
O, may some maid that round her form
Comes babbling, there may pause
To catch the spirit of her zeal,
And champion some great cause.

DR. JARMAN ELECTED TO PI GAMMA MU

Everytime anyone mentions Dr. Jarman's name to an S. T. C. girl, her heart swells and beats a little faster with love and pride. We are always happy when he has been honored by the outside world.

Recently Dr. Jarman has been elected an honorary member of Pi Gamma Nu, national fraternity in Social Science.

Dr. J. E. Walmsley, an outstanding and influential member of our faculty, is already a member of Pi Gamma Mu.

A SENIOR'S LAMENT

(Appropriate Apologies Applied)

I have a little schedule that goes in and out with me,
And what can be the use of it is more than I can see;
It is very, very contrary from beginning to the end,
And I'm very sure and certain that
I'll never call it friend.

The funniest thing about it is the way it likes to act,
Not at all like proper schedules which
are always full of tact;
For somtimes it's so full of life, it has twenty-two full hours,—
And then again it must be changed;
'tis dead and calls for flowers.

My schedule hasn't a notion of what college girls can say,
Or it wouldn't make a fool of me in
every sort of way;
Always it is with me; biology must change, you see
Or Latin or English must be "2" or
"3."

Some morning very early, before the sun is up,
I'll rise and drown my schedule in a blue and white tea-cup.
"Why blue and white?" you ask me;
why, that is plain, you see,
Tho' I thoroughly detest schedules,
I'm loyal to S. T. C.

NEW GIRLS ENTERTAINED

On Tuesday afternoon, the Y. W. C. A. gave a Tea in the Recreation Hall. The girls who have entered since Christmas were guests of honor, and the Cabinet and girls living in town met them informally.

A most delightful program was presented. Indeed, girls over tea-cups can chat most affably, short or long acquaintances,—and everyone enjoyed tea.

RICHMOND CONFERENCE IS VERY INTERESTING

I not been fortunate enough to attend the Y. W. conference held in Richmond last week-end. You ask why a conference should be considered so truly important. Because, first of all, it was not exactly what the word "conference" implies to the majority of students and, I might add, persons.

This conference was a realization of someone's dream, someone who saw a problem and tried with the efforts of his best self to solve it. There was a miniature world represented there and as it turned on its axis for three days, it acquainted us with a Japanese Y worker, Mitch Kawai; a university professor, Dr. Jackson of the North Carolina State College for Women, negro students, and real secretaries with real problems to offer.

And so we left our "student world" to stay a while with the "every day world."

We thank the college for giving us this opportunity.

BLUE RIDGE COMMITTEE MEETS IN LYNCHBURG

General Secretary at Randolph-Macon and Chairman of the committee, composed the group who spent the week-end planning the Blue Ridge Conference in June.

Themes suggested were: Interracialism, Relations of Men and Women; Industry and Economics in the South; and Community Relations and Adjustments.

As Chairman of State Week-end Conferences in the South, Rosalind Harrell was urged to show Southern states the wisdom of having State conferences, forerunners of Blue Ridge, a sharing and gaining of ideas and facts that might merge into the idea of an "Advancing South", the probable theme of the Blue Ridge Conference for 1927.

COLONIAL DAMES AND GENTLEMEN APPEAR

Ideal Colonial Setting, Dances, and Costumes Seen at Dance Tuesday Night

Stalwart, courteous, courtly Georges and lovely, gracious Marthas minueted softly into the doors of S. T. C. last Tuesday night, and with their entrance the girlish harum-scarum inmates left it for the visitors twilight hour! The dining room lost its every vestige of modern atmosphere as the gentlemen, of powdered wigs and buckled shoes, brought in becurled and most lovely ladies on their arms. Also miracle of all miracles—was that music? In the balcony, a merry-making orchestra played and played such music to entree Colonial lad and lass to forget that at the end of twilight hour they had to leave! Then, when they had dined sumptuously, they went to the recreation hall, and for an hour, there were no scenes of Charleston or Black-bottom steps, but the grace and dignity and beauty of the minuet reigned supreme.

In the midst of the dancing, and laughter and flirting, into the safety colored atmosphere of Colonial days and night, came the loud clang, clang of a bell. Instantly there was regret, and confusion—for had not the lovely ladies and gallant gentlemen promised to return the school to the modern at a given hour, warned by a bell? With a sweep of skirts, and backward glances, and whispered good bys the spirits of an age gone by slipped out. But the twentieth century girls all that night and the next day felt something subtle and strangely sweet in the air. Heliotrope, lilacs, Colonial memories. . . .

SOPHOMORES TO PRESENT ENTERTAINING MUSICAL

On Saturday, February 26, the Sophomores will present another musical, which will equal, if not excel last year's production, Toddle Town. The musical, which will be entitled Hello Bluebird, will be given in the S. T. C. auditorium.

Hello Bluebird will be composed of six acts containing peppy choruses, singing, dancing, recitation, and humorous sketches. The main interest in one of the acts will be a lamp.

For the mere price of twenty-five cents, you can hear some of the latest song hits, see some jazzy choruses, see a lamp perform, and find out who is the Sophomores' idea of the girl in Precious.

DR. BURTON LECTURES ON MARK TWAIN

Personal Acquaintance Aids in Fine Lecture on the Great Humorist

Those who heard Dr. Burton's lecture probably have not only a different conception of Mark Twain, but a different conception of humorists as men.

Personal acquaintance leads to the learning of the most intimate characteristics of a man's life, and Dr. Burton gave us such facts told in such a way as to make those who love "Mark Twain," appreciate him more, and those who perhaps haven't felt so keenly a sense of appreciation for his qualities, a greater desire to read and know his literature.

Dr. Burton had a most attractive personality, and presented his lecture in an unusual fashion. He took us far away from S. T. C. and put us among new and unfamiliar surroundings, yet ever made them absolutely real. Hearing Dr. Burton was a rare treat, and one we should like to have repeated.

"V" VINCENT WINS BEAUTY CONTEST

After two exciting days of voting with first one and then another in the lead, the contest finally ended Friday night with "V" winning the race. If a visitor had passed the "polls" during those two days they would have thought that S. T. C. was probably applying some of those principles which were taught in government classes. They would have thought correctly too because there were proups here and groups there discussing the prospects for their favorite candidate; and then others would "register" excitement when they watched the "thermometer" rise and find that their candidate's thermometer was the highest. However, "V's" thermometer rose to the top and procaimed her the winner of the beauty contest.

MISS HAYNES ENTERTAINS

Wednesday afternoon Miss Haynes was hostess at an informal tea for Miss Mix and the first grade teachers in the training school. Misses Betty Hopkins and Margaret Cobb, assistant supervisors of the first grade, and kindegarten respectively, Doris Brauer, Helen Taylor, Annie May Ellis, Virginia Boxley, Sarah Doll, Kathryn Patterson, Sara Nichols, Mignonne Griggs and Margaret Fowler, were guests of the afternoon.

CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS TO BE HERE THURSDAY

Three Plays to be Presented in the Auditorium Under Direction of Dr. Koche

A rare treat is in store for the students of the school and the people of Farmville. The Carolina Playmakers, from University of North Carolina, will present three plays in the auditorium Thursday night.

The dramatic literature at the University has been under the direction of Dr. Koche for sometime. Under his direction, or rather supervision, classes have written and put on some almost finished productions. They are known all over the United States as perhaps the most outstanding of the "Little Theatre" groups.

Here they will present three plays, written, directed and acted by The Playmakers with the help of Dr. Koche. These plays are, Trista, by Elizabeth Lay Green; In Dixon's Kitchen by Wilbur Stout and Ellen Lay, and The Miser, by Mr. Paul Green.

Did you ever go courting in the country? Did your girl have a little brother? Then you will heartily enjoy seeing this country courtship and the trials of Lena, which we find In Dixon's Kitchen.

Trista, given as a wonderful interpretation of the fantastic side of witch belief, is a play of Colonial superstition. You are familiar with the Salem witchcraft days—and you love these old superstitions, so don't miss this play.

Mr. Green, author of The Miser is being recognized as one of the foremost playwriters of the day by all critics. Some of his plays are now playing in New York. The Carolina Playmakers may really feel that they have given a real contribution in his work.

Don't miss seeing these three plays. We are all interested in dramatics, but its almost more interesting to see what other colleges are accomplishing with time and equipment.

VINCENT ATTENDS MEETING

The officers of the Southern Intercollegiate Student Government Association, of which Virginia Vincent of S. T. C., is secretary met at Sweet Briar College the week-end of February 19. The conference was to decide where the most suitable place would be in which to hold the annual convention this spring; only the officers were at Sweet Briar.

DANSANT GIVEN IN THE RECREATION HALL

Hampden-Sidney Orchestra Renders Charming Music for Entertainment

S. T. C. was delightfully entertained at a dansant given in the Recreation Hall, Monday afternoon, February 21. The Hampden-Sidney Orchestra played, which was, of course, one of the special and most delightful features. The special attraction of the afternoon were composed chiefly of songs and dances. A musical number was given by Loela Carter, Polly Aderholt, Byrd Thompson, and Anna Curtis Higgins. Ellen Smith gave a dance, and Polly Aderholt sang. Leola Carter and Polly Aderholt gave a song and dance together. A trio, Byrd Thompson, Anna Curtis Higgins and Martha Lee Moomaw, concluded this program by singing. The afternoon was more than enjoyed by all who went.

BASKET BALL BANQUET

On Saturday night the varsity squad gave Miss Graham a banquet in the tea room. All the decorations were carried out in six-pointed stars of blue and white, even the tables being arranged in this formation.

Orline White, as captain, acted as hostess, and it was unanimously agreed that she was a wonderful one since she had such understanding of her "starry" guests. She called upon each star in turn, and the entire constellation received some interesting and startling inforation. Miss Graham told how George Washington would have coached a basketball team, pointing out that the game would have been a very decorous one due to the difficulty of overgaurding in hoop skirts. One star gave a few pointers on the etiquette of the breakfast table in different parts of the country; another, very attractively, set forth the advantages of tooth paste as a face lotion, and Mrs. Ennis, the mascot of the team, told how to charm those who live to eat. The program ended with a delightful and unusual rendering of "Onward Farmville," after which the band dispersed to appear later on the basket ball court ready to prove themselves skilled in the art of handling a basket ball, as they had already given convincing evidence of their ability to handle the weapons used in the consumption of good provender and of their unusual talent as brilliant conversationalists.

S. T. C. FACULTY IN INTERESTING PLAY

Charming One-Act Play, "Crawford is Presented by the Faculty

Our faculty have once more proved itself to be most versatile. Wednesday night they presented in the auditorium a most charming one-act play, Crawford. Miss Davis opened the show with a most charming original prologue.

Miss Barlow we could hardly imagine the "retreating lady" of Crawford. Dr. Marshall, Miss Camper, Miss Draper, Miss Norris, Miss Croddock, Miss Sutherlin and Miss Mix—all took us back to Colonial times and their given excitement over royalty. While Miss Meredith charmed us with her quaint, winsome courtship. We are really grateful to the faculty for showing us this new side of their achievements.

Miss Thomas gave a most delightful dance, immediately following the little play. She was so charming and winsome in her old fashioned costume that the audience would have loved to be carried on and on to the lilt of her dancing feet. The climax of the whole evening came when the faculty gave us a most charming orchestral concert. Mr. Coyner was a most excellent director and his orchestra showed that the most careful training had been given them in order to bring out their untold talent. The Rosary as sung by Miss Bullock has hardly been surpassed on our stage, while the accompaniment by the orchestra helped make it even an I lovely. The final number, It's the State Teachers College was rendered with such pep and enthusiasm that the audience burst into applause long before the end. The entire student body is waiting for the next faculty presentation.

CLASS ISSUES

The Rotunda Staff wishes to take this opportunity to express to the various classes, and especially to the very splendid issues of the Rotunda which they edited.

Every issue showed that time and thought had been put on it, and that interest had been shown. These issues have helped bring out the talent to be found in the classes.

The judges decision has not yet come in, but there is no doubt in the world that it will be a close one. The decision will probably be announced within the net two weeks. The judges for these issues will be the same as those for last year. Watch the Rotunda for the decision.

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

A COLLEGE GIRL'S CONCEPTION OF GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Fiery horses; powered wigs and quivering rapiers; the clash of bright steel on bright steel; the clink of silver spurs on heavy boots; a toast on high and a cheer for the Republic; a lady's glove and a supple bow; gay laughter and a loyal heart; courage to risk and to win. Colonial Days! Colonial Ways! Romance and Chivalry! And through it all the spirit and the influence of George Washington pervades.

Virginia's priceless heritage of tradition is of gentlemanly chivalry to man, to woman, and to God. The essence if not the very body of this tradition can be traced to a beginning in Washington. Many a college girl and boy have the idea that Washington was a "goody-goody," rather ordinary man, forced in spite of himself to an undue prominence because of the stirring time he lived in. To me that is a sacrilege. Washington was first of all human. He lived, and loved, and laughed as the rest of us do; perhaps he erred, too. Though history has made no record of it I am sure he did, for, as I have said, he was human. He was great in spite of the times and in spite of criticisms or his own small defects. Such a greatness can rise only from an inherent quality of the soul; and regardless of time, place, or conditions Washington would have risen to equal heights again.

Because of the very fact of his greatness, Washington is indeed a lonely figure in our country's history. In his day he was held in awe, he was respected, he was loved; but he was intimately known by so few as to make it seem a subtle change in the attitude of people towards him today that somewhat justifies my use of this quotation in closing— ". . . . he is still, as has been truly said, an unknown man. Here is where the pathos comes in. He stood in lovely elevation. Although the mass of his people loved him, they did not know him; and some curs, set on him by thoughtless men, even dared bark at him. We do not know him yet; and some of us, to our shame, have ceased to love him."

TRADITIONS

She passed on the colonnade overlooking the little court, which lay between the Main building and White House Hall. The court was a small one, with an oblong flower bed in the center, edged with ferns and surrounded by a walk with little stone steps at each end.

Many times Yvonne had paused here before to pour out to the little garden her troubles and tears. Some times the night was lonely, rainy, dreary and the little court became a limpid pool, or a cold wintery night and the court, dropped in a blanket of snow, shone in all its white splendor under a large round moon and a dark blue sky sprinkled with stars.

Tonight to Yvonne the little court seemed warm, green and fragrant with the breath of spring. The ferns hung luxuriantly over the sides of the flower bed. The shrubs and the green tender blades of grass reached up to the new moon for warmth.

To Yvonne the court was a shrine to which she told all her troubles and problems. She stood there trying to solve the problem of her life, would she and Jimmie ever bridge this huge break. No, it was the end; it couldn't be anything else for she hadn't heard from him for two whole days. Then it seemed that the spirit of the place swept over her. She wondered to how many hearts this little place was held dear, just how many hearts had poured out their sobbing story to her shrine in the past. Perhaps it had been a rendezvous to many mothers —even to many grandmothers who were the school girls of yesterday. Slowly the school girl's heart, same yesterday as today, the hearts of the school girls of the past, who had passed through the portals of Yvonne's dear old S. T. C., were unfolded before her and it was the tradition of their passing that enveloped her now.

It was at this stage of the reverie that Yvonne's meditations were interrupted by Aunt Lucy's pleasant drawl, "Lawsy honey, what you doing here, I got a special for you, from yo' beau!" The problem was solved for it was from none other than Jimmie.

MOONFLOWERS

A dried rose sifted its sere petals on the floor as Frances Allison lifted her memory book from the bottom bureau drawer. Carefully picking up each tiny, brown petal she sat down to try and find the place in her reminiscences. Here a rose and there a ribbon—each one, though they would have had no meaning for you or me was full of poignant memories for Frances. Suddenly she stopped at an almost empty page. In the center was a single crushed, brown moonflower. Her mind flew back to that moonlit night in the garden. That was the night Howard had come to tell her goodbye. He was going to India. He had told her that she looked like a moonflower—a pale, beautiful moonflower. Then he plucktwo—gave one to her with the warning to keep it until he came and put the other in his pocket. Howard had been a splendid boy.

Frances was brought back to earth by a masculine voice speaking in her ear, "So you still have yours too?"

Yes, Howard had been a splendid boy and he was a still better husband.

DISILLUSIONMENTS

Each of us arrives at College. Ever after we wonder how the process occurred and how it happened, but actually finding ourselves very securely settled here, impresses the fact upon us that we must have arrived at some time. Then things begin to happen. Before our arrival we have hardly realized that our head was enclosed about a mind. Now we go in a room at a specified time because of said direction on Official Schedule. This turns into a psychology class. Then we learn more things about this mind of ours! We become afraid to think because of recent knowledge concerning the complexity of actual thinking. Some of us never ever after think again. Thus our first disillusionment comes. We find that the so-called head part of our body is not only just to hold our good faces, but it controls and contains our thinking powers. It is disillusioning to realize that all of those little wheels are turning, and all those connections, all those things are happening right behind our faces. Goodness knows that upon looking at some of us one might doubt if anything was happening, but it really is—regardless of our noses, chins, etc.! It does scare us to find out that people have found out things about ourselves that we don't even know.

People have found out other disillusioning facts for us—the school girls (with all sorts of school girl complexes except complexions). Our heighth of disillusionment comes along the historical lines. From the cradle we have thought of romance and history along the same connection which has developed behind our faces. Now we find out that we have been wrong. Why, we even find out that it is hardly true that Pocahontas and John Smith were in love. Ah! that's horrible. Why would a girl sacrifice her life for some one if she didn't love him—with a romance? We certainly should have text book on the "Powers of Just Friendship"!

Then along came January, February. The twenty-second day appoaches. Each time we see a horse we think of George Washington being so noble as to kill one, and then relate the story to his father. It certainly must take bravery to kill a horse. But the confession is the part that gives the glory of romance to us. In the course of learning we find out that George Washington never caused a horse to die, that this fact is of absolute insignificance. We swallow our disillusionment and proceed to learn when he was born and why he was called the "Father of America." Every time we have cherries for dinner on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and sometimes Fridays we immediately think of that glorious truth about a tree upon which cherries once grew. But then again we become disillusioned. There is no historical proof that George Washington cut down any cherry tree! Thus life becomes one disillusioning factor after another. Ah! higher education is really a very bitter disillusionment!

SUPPOSE

Suppose, my little lady,
Your dorine feel and broke,
Can you make it whole by crying
Till you sniff and choke?
Now wouldn't it be better
To take it as a joke,
Be thankful 'twas your dorine,
And not your heart that broke?

VERSE AND PROSE FROM FRESHMEN

THOUGHTS IN A CROWD

Some people live in cities,
Others live in town;
But I can't understand it,
My soul seems always bound

By throngs that won't be loosened,
By walls all round about it,
By crowds that seem to gather
To see if they can route it.

A soul's a sensitive, sacred thing
That cannot bear the eyes,
Of a harsh and critical world,
So it suffers alone and sighs

For the great and open spaces
Where beauty and nature and God
—Seem ever and always present
In the skies and the trees and the sod.

VESPERS

I.

n azure sunset glimmers, fades,
Twilight, misty but opalescent falls,
Broken by shadows ushering in
The Vesper Hour.

II.

The hour of silent meditation,
'Midst the glow of flickering candles
Of faint music, echoing silent praise
Of Him, the Omnipotent.

SOMETIMES

Sometimes when you are feeling blue
You feel your friends are few
And then a friend comes smiling along,
A friend with a smile and a song.

Sometimes when hours drag slowly by
And you think you'd like to cry
Don't you think if you would only smile
It would make life more worthwhile

Sometimes sorrow, sometimes pain,
Sometimes the sun and then the rain,
If you'll be cheerful all along,
You'll be that friend with a smile and a song.

THE BAD LITTLE GOOD LITTLE GIRL

Have you ever been a bad little good little girl? Or maybe if you haven't been one you have wanted to be one. At least, you have seen one, haven't you? There are so many of them in this world.

You know the little girl that always seems good! Well, sometimes this little girl gets tired of being good, and decides to be a bad little girl for a while. Haven't you felt like you were tired of being thought of as always being good, and that you wanted to do something really bad? That's just what this good little girl feels like too, and when she does—whew! You had better look out, 'cause she's got the badness in her and it's going to come out.

GAMMA THETAS HAVE BANQUET

The new Gamma Thetas entertained at a Valentine party, Monday night, Fberuary 14 in the banquet hall. The hall was very attractively decorated with hearts, and the color scheme was carried out with Valentine decorations. The old Gamma Thetas were presented with dainty boudoir pillows. Covers were set for thirty. Those invited besides the Gamma Thetas were: Miss Stubbs, Miss Mary White Cox, Miss Mix, Miss Grenels and Mrs. Coyner.

GAMMA THETAS ARE ENTERTAINED

On Saturday afternoon, February 12, Gamma Theta Sorority was entertained at a delightful Valentine party given by Mrs. Coyner and Miss Mix. After a novel Valentine game was played, delicious refreshments were served.

The guests, besides the sorority members, included Misses Stubbs and Grenels, and Miss Catherine Ewing from Norfolk, Va.

HEARD AT THE MAIL BOXES

"Nothin but dust."

"I' going to change me box."

"That wouldn't bring any more mail."

"I don't believe she's put it up."

"Has she put it up?"

"Is she putting it up?"

"Has she started yet?"

"Where is she?"

"Has she finished this section?"

"Has the last bell rung?"

"I don't care I'm going to wait and see if I get a letter."

"I ought to be at class this minute, but I can't help it, I'm going to wait till she finishes."

"What's the number of your box, Ann? Well, there's a letter in it. Ann, Ann, another one!"

Do you know the combination of ——'s box I wish I knew it I'd take her that letter!'

"Tell me your combination and I'll bring you your mail."

"——— is in class. I'm going around there and tell her she has a letter so she can come right away and get it."

There's a letter for ———. It's from Tom! She got two from him yesterday! She gets more letters!"

"Look! She's playing around my box, but she doesn't put one in it!"

"Please, please put one in my box. Let it be from my brother. And let it have money in it."

"I wonder if it would do any good to pray?"

"I never get anything on Monday but here I stand."

"I never get anything at this time, but I love to see her put it up."

"I'm a wreck."

"A—, the bell has rung. I don't care."

"O, Etta, darling! Do you love me as I love you?"

"Uh-huh."

The Lost Chord

I cannot sing of autumn nights
Nor lovers 'neath the moon—
I cannot sing of perfumed winds
That kiss the still lagoon.

I cannot sing to happy hearts,
Of wedding bells that ring—
Alas! I cannot sing these things
Because I cannot sing!

Mary Malbon: "Is she self-centered?"
Margaret Johnson: "Self-centered? Why that girl thinks 'Hail, hail, the gang's all here' is a solo."

The Psychological Spot

'Tis done beneath the mistletoe,
'Tis done "beneath the rose,"
But the proper spot to kiss you know,
Is just beneath the nose.

Hostess: "What's the idea of bringing two boy friends with you?"
Guest: "Oh, I always carry a spare."

"Well—everything I say goes."

PRESERVE THE IDEAL OF GOOD SPORTSMANSHIP

If we wish to remove the stigma from women of not being good sports, let us "play the game," let us make the best of existing conditions, let us avoid criticising, let us cheer good plays by opponents, let us play to win, but let us preserve the ideal of good sportsmanship.
Remember—
"Be a Sport!"
What if you lost or won the game?
"Be a Sport!"
You didn't play for fame
You played for the fun,
When all is said and done—
"Be a Sport!"
"Be a Sport!"
So:—
"Be a Sport!"
(Detroit Sports Campaign Yell)
Let our creed be:
"For when the Great Scorer comes
To write against your name,
He writes not that you lost or won,
But how you played the game."

PRIMARY-KINDERGARTEN CLUB IS GIVEN PARTY

Seniors and Sophomores of the Primary-Kindergarten Club gave a Valentine party for the Freshmen and Junior members of the Club, in the Recreation Hall, Tuesday afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock. The guests were most delightfully entertained, the refreshments furnishing not the least part of the festivities. The program conisisted of:

Solo	Virginia Rice
Reading	Mable Fitzpatrick
Solo	Alice Davis
Piano Music	Sue Sebrell
Reading	Etta Marshall

WHAT THEY SHOULD BE IF THEY WERE CHANGED

If Mildred Smith were a shoe she'd be the tongue.
If Mebane Hunt were a bird she'd be a nightingale.
If the Sophomore class were a delicacy they'd be—"Applesauce."
If Margaret Mackasey were an orchestra she'd be a whole jazz band.
If Virginia Vincent were a deck of cards she'd be the Queen of Hearts.
If Lucille Pitt were a piece of music she'd be "Baby Face."
If Anna Burgess were a Department of State she'd be the Bureau of Information.
If Anne Palmer were a Ford she'd be the noise.
If Phyllis Wood were something to wear she'd be a suit of rompers.
If Mabel Hayes were a fruit she'd be a peach.
If Mattie Lewis were a periodical she'd be a Confession Magazine.
If Virginia Snyder were a box of candy she'd be Whitman's.

SPECIAL SING GIVEN SATURDAY NIGHT

For the small price of ten cents, the members of the student body were given a chance to spend an interesting half hour. Some of our best and favorite performers did their best to give us an enjoyable evening. There were dancing dolls, who with their dainty hands and feet, beat time to "Mistress Shady," "Hinkey Dee" and other old favorites.

Then the "inmates" of Tacky Alley gave in unusual performance. First, they sang a song, then they sang the song backwards, don't worry, they tricked you, by turning their backs. This, however, did not complete their achievements; they also stood on their heads and sang, since this was done back of the screen we have no explanation. A solo dance formed another interesting feature of the program, as always we delighted in an exeution of the terpsichorean art.

Elva Headly made us all wish to know the why of other things so realistically did she tell the story of 'Why the Camel Has a Hump."

The final number on the program and the one over which we still warmed, was Mrs. Bowman's interpretation of an entire orchestra. She did not stop with the violin alone her usual contribution, but was also the piano and other instruments. This brought to an end a "Sing" which was well worth our dime.

A MODERN BALLAD

"Oh, Mother, Mother, may I go
Out to dance tonight?
There'll be four and twenty chaperones,
And I know it'll be all right."

"Oh, Father, Father, may I go
Out to the dance tonight?
I'm going with Bill who's a sober youth,
And I know he won't get tight."

"Oh, Sister, Sister, I can go
Out to the dance tonight,
And if I wear my velvet dress
Do you think I'll look all right?"

She met her lover at the door;
In his roadster they drove away,
With every intention of dancing
Until the break of day.

But a train came rushing through the night;
They met it at the track,
And there two souls did leave this earth,
Never to come back.

Next morn, of the two was only found
A hand, a leg, an ear,
And the remains of a velvet dress
Wrapped 'round the steering gear.

Greenie (wonderingly): "And how did you happen to decide to come to S. T. C?"
Annie P.: "Well, you see I won a Farmville pennant and they would not exchange it."

MON. Claire Windsor and Owen Moore in "MONEY TALKS," by Rupert Hughes. He believed that money made money—so, broke, he talked millions, and carried the bluff through! You've never seen a picture to equal this for excitement, novelty and comedy. Fights! Pursuits at seat! and daring rescues by revenue cutters. Also Pathe News. Matinee at 4 o'clock

TUES.—House Peters and Wanda Hawley in "COMBAT" a special production. A surgn melodrama of the Big Woods rising to a terrific climax in the biggest forest fire ever filmed. A wonderful romance of a hate that turned to love in a revelation of heroism. This picture will give you the thrill of a life time. Also good comedy.

WED.—Hoot Gibson in "THE CALGARY STAMPEDE." The greatest Western show on the screen! Two great shows in one! A rip-snorting drama, and the rarin', tarin', wild exhibition, wild exhibition Calgary stampede of 1925, with Hoot Gibson the wldest of them all. Clashing wagons and foaming horses lashed like mad by demoniac drivers—wild cows, wild horses, Roman races and bronco busters—rope spinning and trick riders—thrills and spills. Everythnig to make this the most spectacuarly thrillng Western ever thrown on the screen. Also Aesop Fable.

THURS.—Bessie Love William Haines in "LOVEY MARY" aspecial production. Here is the picture every one has been waiting for—the most lovable character in fiction, on the screen at last. And it's a film that's perfect entertainment, too—as appealing as the book! As you probably know, this is the great story of Mrs. Wigg's cabbage patch. Also good comedy. Matinee at 4 o'clock

FRI. & SAT.—Aileen Pringle and Edmund Lowe in "SOUL MATES" the famous story by Elinor Blynn. Fate demanded that she marry a man she had never seen—there was no way out—she had to go through with it! Here is the thrilling andg orgeous romance of a beauty whose love was made a pawn in an amazing struggle for wealth and position. Too late, she tried to lock her heart—but a caveman wooing made her change her mind. This story is the brilliant successor to "Three Weeks" and "The Only Thing." This is a lavishly produced love story you'll love. Also good comedy. Mat. each day.

SOPHOMORE MUSICAL GIVEN SATURDAY NIGHT

Snappy Choruses Receive Much Applause from Enthusiastic Audience

Saturday night in the S. T. C. auditorium the Sophomore class, under the splendid direction of Miss Mebane Hunt, presented a very entertaining musical,

The musical opened with a charming chorus Hello Bluebird. The girls were lovely in long blue dresses, and the "boys" were very handsome in white trousers and blue coats. Folloing this chorus, Margaret Hubbard sang a solo, Precious. Then a snappy chorus of eight girls looking truly "precious" did a very original dance.

The audience broke into loud applause, when Mignonne Griggs, dressed as a typical college boy in white "knickers", and smoking a very "collegiate"-looking pipe, sang We Love the College Girls. She was supported by a strong chorus of eight typically slouchy, good-looking college "boys." This chorus was followed by a very peppy one, Do-Do-Do.

Frances Jenkins, as the soloist of Hi Diddle Diddle, was perfectly adorable in green rompers and a huge, frilly sun-bonnet. Her chorus of little girls was equally adorable.

After the curtain went down on the first act, Lorah Brewer gave a very fine recitation in her charming manner. The audience fully sympathized with "Russy", and was, oh, so glad that he didn't have to sleep with a "lie" after all! Lucy Marstellar also delighted the audience with two solos, "Just a Cottage Small" and "Tonight You Belong to Me."

The second act was a clever little one-act play, Money Talks. Marion Grimes, as Mr. Lot—a—Cash from Peoria, kept the audience in a continuous uproar. Annie Gris McIntosh was the height of sophistication as the beautiful vaudeville actress, Miss Susie Bare. Florence McIntyre, as the maid at Susie's apartment, won over the audience as well as Mr. Lot—a—Cash, by her knowing manner when she sang, If You Knew Susie. Following this scene all the "maids" gave a dance.

The last scene, Because I Love You, sung by Alma Smith was a languorous one of soft lights, roses, gorgeous evening gowns, gleaming shirt fronts, love and romance with a capital "R".

There were two charming dances. One was a splendid toe dance, and the other an old fashioned one by Margaret Mackasey and Phyllis Wood, dressed as twins.

Then came the grand Finale. Every chorus was on the stage moving and swaying in perfect rythmn. An amusing incident accurred when a "youth" from Hampden-Sidney put his cane upon the stage. It was immediately acquired by Mr. Lot—a—Cash who used with equally as much, if not more, ease than its owner.

Miss Mebane Hunt as director, Miss Virginia Burks as pianist, and

GLEE CLUB OPERA TO BE PRESENTED NEXT WEEK

The Glee Club is preparing for us another surprise in the form of the opera, "In a Vienna Garden" which will be given March 8—9 in the auditorium here.

The plot centers around the story of a Vienna artist and the daughter of an American man who owns a pickle factory; also t is about the long lost daughter of a very wealthy woman. The setting is chiefly in Vienna and the characters are not only people from Vienna but also gypsies and American tourists.

A great deal of time and work have been put into this and it promises to be very good. This is scheduled as on the lyceum course so everyone must get their lyceum tickets out.

ORIENTAL WEEK OF PRAYER IS OBSERVED

The week of February 21—25 was observed as Oriental Week. At prayers, on Monday night, we were invited to act as audience to a real conference.

Mabel Hayes acted as chairman, and Helen Davidson as secretary. Different girls, in the dress of the students of the Orient, acting as respresentative student delegates of the typical colleges of China, Japan, and India gave entertaining reports of the industrial, social, religious and educational conditions of the countries represented. All stressed the need of a better educational system and asked that the American students try to understand their problems.

This conference was followed up on Thursday night by a talk by Mr. Jeffers. He told of the accomplishments and problems of the Orientals, and tried to make us realize their attitude toward us by comparing our reactions to theirs if the same thing had occurred in the United States.

On Friday night, Mr. Moss gave a very interesting talk on the two outstanding religions of China. He ended by comparing these to Christianity.

Oriental Week was planned to better inform our students of the conditions of the Pacific Basin.

CLASS IN CLOG AND FOLK DANCING TO BE OFFERED

Next term the physical educational department is offering a course in clog dancng and folk dancing which is open to Sophomores, Junoirs and Seniors. The class will meet three times a week with one hour's credit. This class will be of special benefit to Seniors and Sophomores who wish to teach folk dancing next year, so if there are any girls who wish to take this class it will be advisable to pass her name to Miss Barlow as soon as possible because this will not be scheduled unless at least twelve girls desire the course.

SATURDAY MARCH 5TH IS FOUNDERS DAY

Many Alumnae Are Expected to Return and Take Part in Festivities

The long looked for, planned for, worked for day, is actually here. Saturday, March 5, will be observed as Founders Day. Founders Day is really March 7, but due to the fact that it is more convenient for returning alumnae and for the administration, March 5 will be observed this year.

Founders Day means something to everyone in this school. Perhaps more to those who have been here longest and have had the thrill of one such day. However all of us are looking forward to this Founders Day to see what it will mean.

Perhaps the nicest part of the whole day is the fact that we hear from so many of our alumnae. Whether the old girls come back or not, we can generally count on the fact that they will send us some message and if not a message, then we know they are thinking of us.

The program this year consists of the usual morning of stunts, when our money, which we have worked for, begged for, and played for, will be presented. Those of you who have been here longest, wonder what new and original stunt can possibly be found this time,

In the afternoon the Farmville Alumnae Chapter will have a reception for the returnng alumnae.

The night program will consist of two lectures, by two most interesting people:

Miss Lula Andrews
Mr. Robert Tunstall

FRESHMAN PICTURE

Money talks, yes, to every one of us. That is the reason the Freshmen made such a success of their benefit picture, Monday. All those who listened to the quarters came to see "Money Talks". We also witnessed that in the comic skit of the same name which the Sophomores presented to us.

The picture was of an interesting plot with Claire Windsor and Owen Moore as its chief players. It was that of a man who was stripped of his property, his furniture, left without a shekel and with his wife in a frantic state. Then began the attempt to regain the family fortunes. These two certainly found money talked in a lots more comfortable way than the lack of it. Just ask anyone and they'll tell you just how good it was.

Besides that the Freshmen themselves gave an extra performance as an "added attraction" program.. There was an attractive dance by "Liz" Sawyer, our well known little dancer. There was a collegiate chorus who sang and danced. Of course, all those were Freshmen too.

All in all the Freshman picture was a huge success.

RADFORD DEFEATS TEAM IN LAST BASKETBALL GAME

The Blue and White went down in defeat before the Purple and Gray when the Farmville girls journeyed to Radford on February 24. The first three quarters were hotly contested, the score being tied twice, but the Radford girls proved too strong for the Farmville team and finally won a victory 35 to 20.

At the end of the first half the score stood 17—14 in favor of Radford.

The guards played an outstanding game for Farmville, while Radford's center force was its strongest point. Neither team was in the best possible shape, as was evident from the frequency of fumbling on both sides.

Captain White was sorely missed by the Farmville team.

CAROLINA PLAYMAKERS COME TO S. T. C.

On Thursday night, February 24, Carolina Playmakers presented three plays in our auditorium. This is the ninth year that Folk Plays have been given in the states of Virginia, North Carolina, and Georgia by students of the University of North Carolina. The plays are given under the direction of Frederick H. Koche.

The first presentation was a comedy of a country courtship, "In Dixon's Kitchen." The little play was very humorous, clever, and entertaining. The second presentation was "Old Wash Lucas" or "The Miser," written by Paul Green. "In Abraham's Bosom", a Negro play, of Paul Green's is now playing in New York at the Grarrick Theatre. "The Miser" was a tragedy of farm life. The last play was "Trista," written by Mrs. Paul Green. This was a play of Colonial superstition. Each of the plays gives a clear insight into the lives of the poorer and superstitious class of the North Carolina population. "Their plays are a good deal more than merely interesting; they are dramatically strong in pathos and tragedy . . . with intense human interest, and all true to life" . . .

STUDENT COUNCIL AND Y. W. C. A. ROOMS

One of our dearest associations with our Alma Mater is one of beauty, first, of spirit, then of form. One can hardly describe the spirit, but one can understand it. It is that intangible, elusive quality that makes S. T. C. loved by all and that sends her girls out with a vision of beauty and truth. Not the least important factor in the composition of the spirit is the evidence of beauty in our buildings themselves. They grow into our very souls. We shape our thoughts in harmony with our physical environment. Dr. Jarman and Miss Mary, realizing this fact, are continually adding to our joy by furnishing our college with only those things which call forth the very best that we can

CHANGE IS MADE IN STUDENT COUNCIL

To Have Five Officers And Two Ex-officio Members is New Plan

It has been the custom to have five officers of the Student Council elected by the Student Body as a whole. These officers were, president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and campus league chairman. Besides these officers there were six ex-officio members, president of each of the four classes and the president of the Y. W. C. A. and of the Athletic Association. In addition to these there were reresentatives elected by each class. The system being, one representative for every fifteen members of the class.

As the Student Body grew the Student Council had enlarged, until it had become an almost unweildy group. This entire year the Student Council as well as Dr. Jarman and Miss Mary, along with other interested people, have been realizing that some step should be taken to help make the Council a more workable group. After due consideration, meetings and plans, the following suggestion was put before the Student Body through the classes, to be passed on.

The plan: To have the same five officers, to have only two ex-officio members, President Y. W. C. A., and President of the Athletic Association. These two officers, being ones which were in direct touch with every member of the student body, or practically everyone. The class presidents would no longer be ex-officio members, but were eligible for election as regular members of the Student Council. Rather than having one representative for every fifteen girls in the class. Each class was to elect two representatives.

The plans as suggested are with the unanimous approval of the various classes. Accordingly all members of the Council resigned with the exception of the officers and the two remaining ex-officio members. Each class then elected, after much discussion and deliberation, two representatives to the Student Council. The results were as follows:

Seniors—
Virginia Potts
Elva Headley

Juniors—
Alice Wiley
Elizabeth Woodson

Sophomores—
Pearl Etheridge
Gladys Huband

Freshmen
Etta Marshall
Lucille Norman

A scrap of verse entitled Suppose was inadvertantly included in last week's Rotunda as an original composition, whereas it was merely a paraphrase. Apology is hereby made to the author of the orginal verse.

MISS IDA BIERBOWER, Alumnae Editor

We are always glad to publish any desirable article or communication that may be sent to us. We wish, however, to call attention to the fact that unsigned correspondence will not be published.

The Rotunda invites letters of comment, criticism, and suggestions from its readers upon its manner of presenting and treating them. A letter, to receive consideration, must contain the name and address of the writer. These will not be published if the writer objects to the publication.

All matters of business should be addressed to the Business Manager, and all other matter should come to the Editor-in-Chief. Complaints from subscribers as regards irregularities in the delivery of The Rotunda, will be appreciated.

WHO WILL LEAD US NEXT YEAR?

Have you stopped to realize that in one month we will be asked to name the person to lead our college community for the coming year? I doubt if we have realized how close the day was coming.

How are we going to vote this year? Are we going to the polls to nominate without a single idea in our minds, simply to put up the person we have heard mentioned oftenest for the office? Or are we going to begin now to consider our officers and our prospective leaders.

The usefulness and happiness of women depend, more than on anything else, on the number of high and worthy subjects in which they take an intelligent interest."—Sir J. Fitch
If this is true then all of us should not only take an interest, but an intelligent interest in our coming election. This is certainly a worthy subject.

Don't let's feel that because we aren't coming back we are completely excused from this responsibility, or privilege. The girls who are elected this spring are the ones who will lead in the shaping of the policy of your Alma Mater next year, not only next year, but in the years to come, for every year helps in the making of the whole.

We who are returning can feel that we aren't willing to put ourselves into the hands of incompetent persons and that we are not willing to be led by a person unfitted for her position.

Then what is our duty as a citizen of S. T. C.? What should we first consider? What are the qualifications of a candidate? Have we a code to which a girl should reach? Do we know the needs of our offices? Are we capable of voting intelligently? Let's stop and think over these questions now—not on March 31. An intelligent vote counts for something. Can we have them all intelligent?

OUR NEW STUDENT COUNCIL.

The student committee has been changed. Every member of the student body was given a chance to express her opinion of the change. We liked it! We were just ready to sanction an act which apparently would strengthen our governing body. We were given a chance to elect new representatives, or to re-elect old ones. We did it.

Perhaps, if the change made in the student committee did only one thing that one thing which it certainly did, may mean a complete change in our school life. The one thing it surely made us all do was "think", and let's hope it wasn't in the past, but that we are still thinking. While we're having various and sundry thoughts running through our mind, can we turn them to constructive lines?

Every class, no doubt, brought out its attitude toward our system of self-government. Perhaps some of us realized what we had never realized before—that we have a very definite part in our own government.

We've made our student committee smaller, which means that every member of the committee will feel a larger and heavier responsibility as our representative. I wonder if we have considered our side of the question as well as the side of our representative. If we are having fewer representatives, and expecting them to shoulder a larger burden, we're going to have to do the same thing. More than ever is it our opportunity to help take on our shoulders part of the responsibility of making our student government a real self-government.

Whlle we're starting new, we have an opportunity to start an attitude within this school, that will cause almost a complete change next year. After all it's the old girls who make our school what it is. We're mighty proud of our class spirit, our S. T. C. spirit and we like to talk of keeping alive this spirit, of handing it on to the generations to come.

What is our spirit of honor? You know it has been said that an organization is as strong as its weakest member. Here we might stop and consider the little slogan which we've noticed so often this year, "If every member of this student body were just like me what kind of a student body would this be?" Have we thought about this when we very deliberately walk into someone's room during study hour, when we spend the night out during the week, when we do the many other thoughtless things we do daily, just because they're mean? Somehow or other when we talk about co-operation, we forget to think about it in connection with our student government. Here we are prone to feel that that we are privileged individuals with no responsibility to the other members of our group or community.

Perhaps it's purely thoughtlessness. Because somehow none of us like to break our honor—and that's what we're doing. We're doing another thing we haven't realized, we're helping another person either break or keep a rule. There isn't a single individual in school that doesn't influence to some extent some other person; then which way are we going to take our influence?

We have such a great chance to leave in this school for the coming students, an ideal of honor, cooperation and fine spirit in regard to our student government. We have such a splendid opportunity to help our new Committee do big, broad, constructive work, by relieving them of petty misdeeds to think of—while we're thinking, let's turn our minds along these channels and see if we can't "Look up and not down,

Look forward and not back,
Look out and not in
And lend a hand."

—E. Everett Hale.

TRAMP, TRAMP, OUT OF THE DINING ROOM

Aren't people funny? We get into things slowly and get out equally as slow. Sometimes one would think that this is the Age of Slowness. At least, just one experience of coming out of la salle a mange (that's the quickest way of saying dining room in French) would give a person the idea that we crawled around, only we were on our feet. If we should walk up aisles as slowly as we move out of the dining room, it's a fact that none of us would ever reach a husband at an altar. But, seriously, can't something be done? It's most discouraging after having enjoyed the roll and cheese to spend at least five minutes leaving the room. And ah! there's always such a crowd! And elbows are so sharp. Also, black spots on hose aren't a bit attractive and stepped on shoes and toes are like we are in the Training School. "Now little folks, (big folks, too) let's see how very quickly we can get out of the dining room without knocking anyone down or tramping on any toes. By all means, little folks, (big folks, too) don't stop to tell your girl friends how many rolls you have eaten when a whole mob is waiting to get by."

give. Their latest gift to us is the rooms in the Student Building for the Student Council and Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, and the social room. They are lovely in every detail, and we already love the rooms so that we hope Dr. Jarman and Miss Mary feel that they are in some measure repaid for their untiring efforts.

We thank them now, verbally. We are trying to show them, now and always, by our ideals, that the influence of a beautiful environment is so forceful that the true spirit of our Alma Mater is reflected to a greater degree through our lives. Already constructive programs are started in the new rooms by the Student Council and the Cabinet. Since the best things we do are prompted by love, and love accompanies beauty, one may be confident that the inspiration from the new rooms will have its effect throughout the student body.

THE FOLLOWING GROUP OF BALLADS — IMITATIONS OF FOLK-BALLADS — WERE WRITTEN AS CLASS EXERCISES IN ENGLISH 19.

FOLK-BALLAD'S FALL

Folk-Ballad lived long years ago,
And a mighty king was he;
For all his men came from far and near
This mighty king to see.

His strong knights all this king obeyed
And followed o'er the lea;
